Cast of Fall Play Chosen As Results of Tryouts

THREE FRATERNITIES TO HOLD DANCES TOMORROW

Lambda Iota, Phi Mu Delta, and Sigma Alpha Epsilon to Honor Pledges

Saturday night will see a number of fraternities celebrating the annual incoming of pledges by informal dances. Not all of the fraternities are giving pledge dances at this time, since the interfraternity dance served as a general pledge dance.

Lambda Iota will hold its pledge dance Saturday, November 11. E. R. Greemore '36 is in charge, and music will be furnished by the Black Pirates. Prof. and Mrs. P. H. Ewert and Prof. and Mrs. W. E. Fulton will chaperone.

From 6.30 to 10.00 o'clock Saturday night, November 11, the Phi Mu Delta dance will be held. W. E. Concannon '34 is in charge of arrangements for the affair.

The Sigma Alpha Epsilon dance is to be held Saturday night with Prof. and Mrs. L. B. Puffer as chaperones. N. O. Wells '34 heads the dance committee and Lechnyr's orchestra will furnish the music.

Sigma Delta is holding no regular pledge dance, but is planning to hold a party the evening of November 11. Saturday will also see festivities at Sigma Nu Lodge, under the direction of F. H. White '35. Members of Tau Epsilon Phi will disport themselves in terpsichorean fashion on Saturday evening. P. D. Gould '34 and H. J. Selib '34 are the students in charge of arrangements, and the chaperones will be Prof. and Mrs. W. H. Behney.

The Delta Psi fall informal is to be November 25, with Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Kiphuth as chaperones and the Kappa Sigma dance will also take place on November 25, with D. F. Green '34 on the committee in charge.

Sigma Phi will hold its first dance of the season about Christmas time. A number of the other fraternities have not as yet decided anything definitely in regard to their informal dances.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB MET LAST EVENING

The Home Economics Club met last evening, November 9, at the Home Management House. Following the short business meeting Ruth Johnstone '34 gave a report of the Omicron Nu convention held in Milwaukee, Wis., this past summer. Omicron Nu is the honorary Home Economics Society and Miss Johnstone was chosen to represent Vermont at the national convention.

There was a good sized attendance at the meeting as all students planning to join were required to be there to conform to the new regulation which states as one requirement that a girl must attend two consecutive meetings.

DISCUSSION ON DUTIES OF STUDENT SENATE HELD

"What is wrong with the Student Senate?" was the general topic of discussion at the meeting. A true representative body of the students at U. V. M., it possesses great potential powers and should not be "dead." The history of the organization since its founding in 1925 has been important up to the last few years. Why has it changed to its present latent condition? The Student Senate should be the organ of the Vermont student, as the Interfraternity Council handles the fraternity side of college life; and the Faculty-Student Council maintains relations between the students and the faculty. The body is well founded, containing six Boulder and five Key and Serpent men and including the four class presidents. Support is the one element lacking to insure the success of the Student Senate. It is backed by the administration and is situated well financially.

Concerning this lack of support, T. G. Cogswell '34, the president,

PLAY TO BE PRESENTED AT CITY HALL DEC. 13

The Torch-Bearers," the fall play, which is to be presented on Wednesday, December 13, in the City Hall auditorium, has the following cast: Mrs. Paula Ritter, Ruth Maurice, who played in one of the group plays presented on November 2; Mrs. J. Duro Pampinelli, Eleanor Douglas; Nellie Fell, Birdie Creagh, who was in the group plays last year and was cast in the fall play the year before, Florence McCrickett, Marion Herberg, who was in the class play and the group plays last year, and the group plays this fall; Clara Sheppard, Alice McConnell, the president of Masque and Sandal, women's honorary dramatic society, and who was in "March Hares" and the group plays last spring; Jennie, Betty Beach, who was cast in the class play last year, but was unable to take the part because of illness; Mr. Fred Ritter, S. Pierce, Jr., president of Wig and Buskin, men's honorary dramatic society, and who played in "She Stoops to Conquer," and "To the Ladies," the fall play last year; Mr. Huxley Hossefrosse, H. Abbott, who was in the cast of "To the Ladies," and the group plays last spring; Mr. Ralph Twiller, E. B. Kane, who played in "To the Ladies" and the group plays last spring; Teddy Spearing, S. P. Belcher, who was in the group plays on November 2; Mr. Stage Manager, P. Andress, who played in "To the Ladies" and the group plays last spring.

Nothing definite has yet been decided about stage and property managers and assistants, but this will probably be taken care of during the next week.

Mrs. Taggart, the coach of the production, is well qualified to fill that position, as she has had much stage experience herself, and has so successfully directed many college plays during the past few years, the two most recent of which, "To the Ladies" and "March Hares," were presented last year. ARIEL PHOTOS TO COME MIDDLE OF NEXT WEEK

W. E. Concannon, editor of the Ariel, says that the portraits from the Weeks Studios will arrive by the middle of next week. No great time changes in the setup for the women may be effected.

He further stated that he wished to place special emphasis on the fact that all snapshots which are submitted and approved will appear in the book. Particularly in demand are snapshots of the Dean field and of Mountain Day.

MILITARY BALL AT THE GYMNASIUM TONIGHT

Minotti's Ten-piece Orchestra Will Furnish Music for Colorful Affair

In a striking array of grim military arms and the gay colors of many nations, students in equally striking array will make merry this evening. The Military Ball, first big formal dance of the year, will be a colorful event. Shining brass buttons, snappy blue trousers, impressive officers' uniforms, dressy tuxedos and the grace and beauty of the season's new evening gowns will mingle beneath the colored lights of the U. V. M. gymnasium.

The annual Military Ball, sponsored by Scabbard and Blade, will begin at 8.30 this evening. Music will be furnished by Bob Minotti's ten-piece orchestra which will present an entirely new style of dance program in accordance with a plan by F. O. Walter '34. Refreshments of cider and cookies will be served according to D. E. Bennett, Jr., '34, who also states that the entire affair has been planned with a view to making it outstanding in a year when social affairs are "at their best for less money."

The receiving line will include Col. and Mrs. F. F. Black, Col. and Mrs. C. R. Haig, Capt. and Mrs. M. E. Craig, Capt. and Mrs. E. Colby, H. G. Stone '34 and Miss Mary Breen of Essex Junction.

H. G. Stone '34 is chairman of the dance and C. F. Drown '34 is co-chairman. Decorations are under the supervision of G. L. Davis '34, while responsibility for programs, advertising and tickets has been given to F. O. Walter '34. D. E. Bennett, Jr., has made the arrangements for music and refreshments for the evening.

All R. O. T. C. members have been urged to attend in uniform in keeping with the atmosphere of the occasion.

VESPER SERVICES AT REDSTONE SUNDAY NIGHT

Vesper services at Redstone Sunday night were in charge of Peggy Nugent. Music and poetry were the topics and in accordance with these Norma Carder sang a solo, Elsie Roosa sang, Mary Whitney played a violin solo accompanied by Madeline Ainsboro at the piano, and Peggy read some delightful poetry.

The Rock Point group did not meet Friday because of rain. They will, however, meet this week for their last outdoor meeting of the season. Hereafter time will be devoted to handcraft, Christmas gifts especially, with Marie Horak in charge. There will also be group singing including popular songs (at the request of the youngsters).

MONSIEUR LEON VALLAS GIVES FRENCH LECTURE

A lecture on the music during the reign of Louis XIV, king of France, was given last Monday evening, November 6, in the auditorium of the Robert Hull Fleming Museum by Monsieur Leon Vallas before a rather large crowd. The topic of the lecture concerned the temperament of the people at that time and the nature of their music. Louis XIV's reign was light and airy and the music was typical of the times—quite snappy.

The lecturer, Monsieur Vallas, using quite simple French in his lecture, was very easily understood by the majority of the crowd. A member of the French department of the University of Vermont said of him: "His enunciation was most distinct, his manner of speaking most delightful, and his speech very simple to understand and very clear."

Following the lecture a number of French pieces were played by Pro-

Lecturer Has Lived in Russian Soviet Union for Twelve Years

Dr. Anna Louise Strong, a resident of the Russian Soviet Union for twelve years and a foreign correspondent and traveler, will deliver the second lecture in the University lecture series at the University of Vermont the evening of Tuesday, November 14, at 8:00 o'clock. The lecture, to be held in the Fleming Museum Auditorium, will be open to the public. Doctor Strong's subject will be "My Twelve Years in the Soviet Union."

Doctor Strong has a distinguished record as author, foreign correspondent, editor and traveler. Perhaps her greatest achievement has been the organizing of an English language daily paper in Moscow—The Moscow Daily News. This influential journal not only reaches thousands of American workers and engineers throughout the length and breadth of the vast Soviet Union, but also has thousands of readers in America, England and Japan. It has become one of the leading English language dailies outside English speaking lands. The lecturer's extensive travels have given her unusual opportunities for observing the far flung activities of Bolshevism in social reform and economic organization of the life of Russian and allied races. The range of her travels has embraced the far north beyond the Arctic Circle, the Arid Wastes of Turkestan, and the High Pamirs, "roof of the world."

When Collective Farms were first introduced Doctor Strong spent an entire year visiting them. During the last two years she has continued her study and visiting of collective farms and industries.

Aside from popular interest in the revolutionary Russian experiment, this lecture will be of particular interest to those who heard Sir Frederick Whyte's discussion of the rivals of Democracy, among which is, of course, the Communistic régume of the Bolshevists. According to Sir Frederick, conditions in Russia were so different when Lenin and Trotsky inaugurated their great adventure in special planning and economic control, that it is not especially significant for the Western world. And further it is a scheme of economic adjustment and organization, rather than political in character.

Others, however, feel that the association between political institutions and economic functions is so intimate and inevitable, that the Bolshevik Revolution is bound to develop political institutions which may exert a fascination for the discontented and underprivileged of more advanced nations, just as have the Bolshevik aims for equality in economic status and for the dictatorship of the proletariat.

Hoberman '37, H. R. Gilmore '37 and R. N. Saxby '37. The chairman in charge of the women is Ruth Barron '36 and the one in charge of the men is E. R. Greemore '36.

The men held a practice debate last Wednesday in the old Mill Chapel, affirmative against negative.

FROSH CROSS-COUNTRY TEAM MEETS RANDOLPH AGGIES HERE SATURDAY

Frosh Not Expected to Beat Strong Aggie Team

The frosh cross country men meet the Randolph Aggies tomorrow on the home course. The race is to start at eleven o'clock.

The freshmen have been coming along well lately, especially Kennedy, star at Waterbury High last year. He placed third in a time trial with the varsity last week, making good time over a four-mile course.

The frosh are not expected to beat the Aggies, who usually have a good team. In late years the Aggies have won by big margins.

Coach Tudhope is training his men carefully, aiming at the Middlebury meet, a week from tomorrow. The squad is some smaller now, a few men having dropped the sport. The biggest upset is the failure of Pinnix to come through. He led the team home in an early time trial but has failed to do anywhere near as good since that time.

Cats Oppose Purple Tomorrow

Catamounts Have Edge After Decisive Victory Over Norwich Last Saturday—St. Mike's Good Showing Against Midd Evens Betting

BOWERS OUT WITH BAD INJURY TO KNEE

Fresh from their decisive victory over Norwich, the fighting Catamounts, now ... with that valuable asset—confidence, tackle the ever dangerous Purple team from Winooski. Led by that open field wizard, Emil Bozek, St. Michael's will bring to Centennial Field a club which has started slowly and has not yet reached its peak. It upset all the dope last week by holding Middlebury to a scoreless tie and almost beating them. They clearly outplayed the Blue and White but lack of a scoring punch prevented them from coming out on the long end of the score. In Paddy Lavin, Coach Carr has developed one of the most consistently dependent kickers in the Conference. Although weighing only 140 pounds, he averages fifty yards on punts and when in form is very reliable on placement and drop kicks. Frank Kennedy, one of the outstanding tackles of the Conference, is the bulwark around which the line is built. This huge forward broke through the Middlebury line to stop play after play and will have to be checked Saturday or he will wreck Vermont's running plays.

Vermont will be crippled by the loss of Larry Bowers, huge center, if his injury is of sufficient importance to keep him out of the game. George Rapuano, valuable blocking back, who this year has blossomed out as a carrier, has strained stomach muscles and may be kept out of the tussle. Red Negus, stellar sophomore wingman, who seems to have clinched one of the end posts, will undoubtedly start with Rollie Delfausse at the other end. Cook and Morgan will be at the tackles. Paul and McGowan will take care of the guard posts with either Concannon or Bowers over the ball. Ed Sowka will start at the pilot position, Lanahan and Beckley at the halves with Andy Werner at fullback. The reserve backfield which Coach Burke has been saving for scoring situations, consists of Saba, Jezukawicz, Ramon and Rapuano.

On the basis of the showings against Norwich, Vermont rates a favorite but the St. Michael's spirit and fight always offset any advantage when the teams line up for the starting whistle. If the Cats get the jump we pick them to win but if not it will be a tough battle and probably a scoreless tie. The showing of the Cats will undoubtedly hang on whether they can shake the slippery Lanahan loose for open-field jaunts, whether the hard-running Saba can get going on those off-tackle slants and whether the highly vaunted air attack, mostly depending on the strong right arm of Johnny Beckley, functions.

CAST FOR FALL PLAY CHOSEN IN TRYOUTS

members of the cast have expressed their appreciation of her ability, and are looking forward to the pleasure of working with her again.

The play, "The Torch-Bearers" by George Kelly, is a satire on the "Little Theatre Movement," and is directed against those amateurs who would "bear the torch of artistic ability," and hand down the tradition the "flame of dramatic art." In any community there is a Mrs. Pampinelli, whose purpose is to inspire "the world," or a Mrs. Ritter, whose credulous soul is influenced by whoever is nearest and strongest.

The story is that of a Little Theatre group and their production which has been presented successfully once, and is to be repeated for the benefit of the Seamen's Institute, a society for the aid of decrepit sailors. However, just three days before the first performance the husband of the heroine died, and although the cast tried to persuade her that "it wasn't as if anyone close to you, or your own," or anything had passed on," still she felt she could not fill the role. Therefore, Mrs. Pampinelli, the "leading spirit" (for so she is termed by the local newspaper), influenced Mrs. Paula Ritter, whose sensible husband is away on business to take part. Thus, when Mr. Ritter returns unexpectedly he finds his wife "a highly talented emotional actress," who can be depended on by the Little Theatre Society, and himself in the midst of a rehearsal for the charity production arranged for the following night. The play is the opening attraction. The many humorous days ensuing in this are being many amusing and entertaining incidents, which lead to an unexpected and surprising conclusion.

STUDENTS WORK OUT NEW MANAGERIAL SYSTEM FOR COUNCIL'S APPROVAL

Representatives of Boulder, Fraternities, Faculty and Managers Make New Plan

At a joint meeting held in the graduate manager's office last Monday at four o'clock representatives from the various fraternities, the varsity managers and representatives of Boulder made up a new system of managers to be used here in the future. Professors Adams, Butterfield and Carpenter of the Athletic Committee were also present at the meeting.

The new system, a copy of which follows, will come up for the consideration and approval of the Athletic Council at its meeting next Monday at four o'clock. If anyone wishes to make further suggestions and criticisms he is asked to do so before the meeting Monday.

Each year a prize of $25 to be known as the "Athletic Council Managerial Prize" shall be awarded at commencement time to the senior manager showing the greatest efficiency in carrying out the work of his office.

VARSITY CROSS-COUNTRY SQUAD AIMS FOR MEET WITH MIDDLEBURY NOV. 18

Men Have Light But Steady Work all Week, With Some Speed Work

The hill and dalers have had a fairly easy week running on their trails and only once or more than the regular course. The men are all in top-shape except Carl Rogers, whose charley-horse is still pretty ...

Last Monday night the Middlebury squad ran over the course to learn the lay of the land and consequently to try to dope out a system of running it that will enable them to take the lead from the start and hold it. Their squad numbered about twelve men and they were accompanied over the course by Assistant Manager Win Hebb.

The new course, for those who do not know, starts in front of the gym runs across the campus and down South Prospect Street to the country club road. Then it cuts south across the golf course, winding some and keeping to dirt roads part of the way to its southernmost end then the course cuts east and follows the fences bearing to the left to the dirt road running across the golf course. Then it follows west, going backwards on last year's course down to the corner of Main and South Prospect Streets. From here it runs up Williston road to East Avenue and then to the finish by last year's course. The distance is about four and one-half miles.

The trip to Boston to take part in the intercollegiates is definitely off now. The team, however, feels it has only itself to blame, in view of it showing against Connecticut.

Suitor, Levine, Harwood, White, Rogers, Andress, Twitchell and Woodruff made a formidable sounding array but just sound never will beat Middlebury. They will have a tough job on their hands for the Blue and White have a fighting team.

As readers of the CYNIC must have noticed, the course has been changed several times this year. The first one was laid out through the University orchard and the country club. After the club officials had given permission, Professor Cummings told the men they could not run through the orchard. He said, "They were taking apples."

Class elections, status of frosh rules, athletic difficulties; system of managerial appointments and elections, all problems of the undergraduate students.

The next meeting of the Senate will be held on Thursday, November 16, at the A T O House.

Dr. C. H. Thurber, dean of Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y., has accepted the presidency of the University of Redlands, Calif.

Northwestern University, in order to solve the problems of the precocious child admitted to the school this fall has students between thirteen and fifteen years old. They were provided with a special course and a favorable atmosphere. This sounds a great deal like home, tuition.

The CREAM OF THE CROP ITS Crowning Glory

INSURING FINE TOBACCO FOR future Lucky Strikes

Not many smokers have seen a fine tobacco plant in full bloom, so we show you this picture. Only a few of these fine plants are permitted to flower and to produce seed. These carefully selected seeds reproduce the following year the "Cream of the Crop" for your Lucky Strike, for tobacco must be grown from seed each year. This careful breeding of fine tobaccos explains why Luckies maintain the same fine, uniform quality from year to year—so round and firm and fully packed—free from loose ends.

Six representatives from Vermont, representing various campus activities, attended the New England Conference at Durham, N. H., last week-end. The conference had for its purpose the opportunity for the exchange of ideas on student publications, student government organizations, and interfraternity governing boards.

The confeernce is the first of its type to be held in New England and was sponsored by New Hampshire State University. Vermont delegates were R. E. McCuin '34, G. H. Burrows '34, and W. D. White '35 from the CYNIC staff; T. G. Cogswell '34, president of Student Senate; W. W. Brislin '34, president of Interfraternity Council; and C. I. Keelan '35, next year's president of Interfraternity Council.

IMMIGRATION OF YOUNG VERMONTERS TO CITIES BELIEVED ON DECLINE

Experiment Station Bulletin Also Reveals Tendency for Operated Farms to Decrease

Immigration of Vermont's young people to cities is believed to be on the decline, according to conclusions reached in a recent bulletin published by the Experiment Station of the University. Further, it was concluded that the number of operated farms will probably continue to decrease, and that old people comprise a large proportion of the population.

Studies of land utilization in thirteen hill towns of Vermont, representative of a total of eighty-seven such towns comprising 35 percent of the area of the State, are reported in a 150 page bulletin recently published by the Vermont Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College. The towns studied are Wardsboro, Goshen, Stockbridge, Pittsfield, Plymouth, Sherburne, Shrewsbury, Roxbury, Fayston, Warren, Mt. Holly, Granville and Ripton. The authors of the bulletin are C. F. Clayton and L. J. Peet, senior and assistant agricultural economists, Division of Land Economics of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Among other conclusions reached are that the partially operated and abandoned farms will revert to woodland, that the number of births is sufficient to maintain a stationary population in the towns if the children should remain there. Records showed that 75 percent of the children away from home at the time of the survey were still in Vermont. The authors believed that the towns will not become extinct, that a small population will inevitably remain, and that this is a public good.

Concentration of population on the lands best adapted to agriculture, a scientific reforestation and forest care program, rural electrification, water power development, and encouragement of local industries were among the recommendations.

APPLICANTS MUST WORK TO BECOME MEMBERS VERMONT PRESS CLUB

Admission to Press Club this year is to be gained through hours of work only," states Helen Mount '35 the president of the club. Eight hours of work at the rate of one hour or more a week must be accomplished before the Christmas recess. Previously, in addition to the stipulated hours of work, an essay dealing with the number of students at Vermont, had to be written. Miss Mount expressed herself as being quite satisfied with the work of the scrubs and said she felt that the writing of an essay would not be necessary.

KEY AND SERPENT TO HAVE CHARGE OF SMOKER AND PEP RALLY FRIDAY

Rogers and White, in Charge, Say Rally Will Have Unique Features This Year

The best pep meeting U. V. M. has seen in years will take place next Friday evening at 7.15 p.m., according to Key and Serpent men in charge. The affair will begin with a program in the gymnasium, which will include a short entertainment by the sophomore medics, and will continue with a parade and speeches in the City Hall Park bandstand.

The annual Key and Serpent smoker will be held Friday evening, November 17, in preparation for the Vermont-Middlebury game on the following day. C. A. Rogers '35 and D. W. White '35, Key and Snake men in charge of the smoker, anticipate a larger and more enthusiastic crowd than has been seen at such affairs for several seasons. As White states, "Student enthusiasm has been gradually increasing during the past two years and it is to be expected that interest will reach at least a minor climax with the last game of the football season. The team will need every bit of moral and active support that it can get if it puts the blanket over this year's Middlebury team. Putting 'two and two together,' we predict this year's smoker will be an overwhelming success."

In keeping with this situation the program has been varied from the conventional to include a short entertainment to be put on by the sophomore medics with R. D. Towne '36 in charge. This will be a "first-rate number" according to those in the know. Following this flares will be handed out and the entire assembly, headed by the R. O. T. C. band will parade to the City Hall Park, where the major part of the celebrating will take place. Coaches and players will be given opportunities to speak from the bandstand and the short leaders will be ready to "show their stuff."

FROSH WOMEN DEBATE NOVEMBER 14 AND 15

The freshman women will hold debates on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 14 and 15 at four o'clock in the Fleming Museum. They will debate on the redistribution of the activity fee in the various societies.

Tuesday, November 17 the upperclassmen will hold a debate versus the upperclassmen. The subject will be on some aspect of N.R.A. This debate will take the place of the regular meeting and members are required to attend.

November 9 the report on freshman debates was given and the following were three minute prepared speeches: Ruth Latimer '36, "Social Life of Germans Under the Hitler Régime"; Marcella Marshall '36, "One Hundred Million Guinea Pigs"; Frances Whalen '35, "The Devil's Island"; Marie Black '36, Chinese Life Among the Peasants"; Cecelia Kremski '35, "Fascinations of Waiting on Table"; Hilda Hoag '35, "Fighting Insomnia."

IN MUSEUM TONIGHT

[illegible] Lecture by Mr. [illegible] Strong tonight at the Fleming Museum on the twelve years in Russia [illegible] spoken accompanied by [illegible] of exceptional importance [illegible] the rapprochement between Russia and the United States and the [illegible] commentary comparisons gathered between the Russian Communist [illegible] Mayor Lavrov and President [illegible].

Many humorous and unpublished [illegible] impressions of the Russians have undoubtedly [illegible] hands be missed and [illegible] deprived by the learned lecturer and [illegible] traveller. Few observers have had so long continued contact of an intimate sort and such varied and extensive experiences in the vast Soviet Union as Anna Louise Strong. Her travels have covered from Russia proper through Siberia and Turkestan. Her travel articles reporting her journeys and explorations have shown in her an enviable capacity for keen observation, for distinguishing the essentials and more significant factors and for vivid presentation.

Russian Experiment Helpful

The Russian experiment has aroused much hostility in the United States, especially in view of Bolshevik propaganda in favor of Communism and World Revolution. But curiously enough it has also exerted a considerable though largely innocuous, influence in favor of schemes of social planning and controlled production. While the NRA legislation is not communistic or Russian, and is intended as a temporary adjustment within the Constitution, and a frame of democratic institutions, it nevertheless seems to be a fact that its adoption has been prepared for and facilitated by a changed social climate. And to that change in social climate the aims and achievements of the Bolshevist party in Russia seem very definitely to have contributed. The growing interest in recent years in schemes of economic and social planning, and the increasing popular favor of such schemes, must be attributed in part at least to the preaching and practice of Messrs. Lenin and Stalin.

Dr. Strong's lecture will be held in the Fleming Museum at 8.00 p.m. Tuesday, November 14. All who are interested are cordially invited to attend by the University.

The stupidness of the play is outstanding and we wonder why there was not a little more thinking. Every St. Michael's lineman was rushing directly at Beckley and the backfield was backing up to cover Vermont's ends and backs who were possible receivers. Why not use the "Statue of Liberty" play with Lanahan carrying. A splendid opportunity to get him in the clear from midfield—possibly for a touchdown.

Credit must be given to the Purple for they surely deserved to win. They have an abundance of fight and spirit and that combined with a good team is enough to beat anybody. Frank Kennedy, huge tackle, lived up to all advance reports for not only were no gains registered through him but he made tackles all over the field and frequently nailed the safety man for no gain. Lavin, Bozek and Peavy shone in the backfield. Lavin kept Vermont backed up against her own goal line with his brilliant kicking and prevented the Vermont team from getting any offense working. Bozek and Peavy were always dangerous and their offtackle slants kept the Cats on edge all afternoon.

For Vermont the outstanding man in the defeat was Red Cook. He was fighting every minute and even at the most discouraging periods was making tackle after tackle to prevent a worse defeat. Negus and Paul did well but the rest of the club hopelessly failed to come up to expectations.

Second, third and fourth prizes are the same—each is offered his choice between the master pilot ground course and the master mechanic's course—except that the winner of second place will be given, in addition, twenty hours of flight instruction. Each course covers nine months, beginning in July or in January.

Vermont students interested in entering the competition for these scholarships may obtain further information by applying to Dean Eckhard of the College of Engineering in his office in the Engineering Annex (old museum) or by writing to the Boeing School of Aeronautics, Oakland, Calif.

MYRICK TO SPEAK ON LE BURN AT MUSEUM

At the Museum this week there will be several attractions. On Thursday, November 16, Professor Myrick will speak on Le Burn paintings. In addition there will be one on exhibit.

A show of rare textiles centering about the Carnegie Art Set will be exhibited on Friday also. Rare shawls and other textiles are to be borrowed from various residents of Burlington. These are to be worn on models. This program is in charge of Middlebury College officials.

Saturday morning will see the usual Saturday Story Club for children.

There will also be a meeting of the Galton Club on Saturday morning.

On Saturday afternoon there was a children's program entitled "Wild Animals of Africa." This talk was supplemented by moving pictures and lantern slides.

AFRICAN FILM SHOWN

"Simba," a motion picture of wild life in Africa, was shown to an audience Saturday morning composed largely of children, zoology and evolution students, and professors in the Fleming Museum.

Wild animals of Africa, pictured in their native habitat, were photographed by the Johnsons, veteran explorers, in the jungles and deserts of the African veldt. Lions, zebras, elks, elephants, and alligators were filmed at tremendous risk to the photographers of the expedition, and a real lion hunt by an aboriginal tribe was also included in the film.

CAT'S MEOW

—Sports Editor—

St. Mike's, led by a gent named Beck, sprung a decided upset and humbled our Catamounts last Saturday to the unexpected tune of 13-0. The Winooski Park outfit deserves a lot of credit for winning a close hard-fought game and are certain of at least a tie for the conference title as a result of victories over Vermont and Norwich and a scoreless tie with Middlebury.

If ever the Cats should suddenly come to life again as they did against New Hampshire and defeat the Panthers the title would go to St. Mike's. If not there will be a tie between Middlebury and the Michaelmen.

The boys played a hard game from beginning to end but something was lacking. Vermont has a club this year which should be at the top of the list of New England small colleges. Why the Green and Gold has failed in games which they should have won is a mystery to us.

Whether it's the lack of training of the individuals themselves, the lack of plays, the lack of spirit or what, we can't tell.

Like all athletics, when they're going good, they can't be beat, but when they're off (which is too often) they couldn't beat Shelburne High.

However, when they win we are all proud of "our" team and give the highest praise to the boys and coaches Burke and Crehan. When they lose, the coaches are terrible, should be kicked out, etc., and the team hasn't any fight.

This should not be so. When the team loses they need our support most and the coaches need our confidence in them. Let's not squawk over Saturday's loss and ride the team and coaches because of the poor showing made by the Green and Gold but on the contrary let's all get behind them and give them our strongest support for a victory over Middlebury this week-end.

Vermont can win and will win Saturday's game and "Beat Middlebury" should be our cry from now until after our victory Saturday afternoon.

AND THERE ARE CAPS

A new fad has subtly sneaked upon Vermont's fair campus. Rakish, jockeyish corduroy caps have made their appearance. The chief feature of these creations (as the ladies call new hat dresses, etc.) is the reversibility of the crown. A twist of the wrist and—Presto chango!—the fairy glory of a most amazing red blazes forth. Of course, with this snowfall, the bunny-lined combination earmuff and neck protector, disappearing style, has its advantages. It costs but 79 cents for Vermont laddies to keep pace with the campus stylists (God bless 'em) this time.

NORCROSS APPOINTED EXTENSION ECONOMIST

Harry C. Norcross has been appointed Extension economist in farm management by the Extension Service of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College. Mr. Norcross is a graduate of the Massachusetts State College in 1923, where he majored in agricultural economics. For six years he served as county agricultural agent in Litchfield County, Connecticut, after which he studied for an advanced degree in farm management at the Connecticut State College, Storrs, Conn., receiving his degree in October, 1932. He has, for the past year, been county agent in Grand Isle County, where he conducted a complete program in Extension work for men, women, and boys and girls.

Mr. Norcross has had before and during his college years excellent farm experience. After completing his college course he did farm advisory work on the large Seeal Lear Farms in Stamford, Conn. He comes to the position of economist in farm management with special training in the farm management field and with a wide experience in Extension work. Aside from the work in farm management, he will have charge of the Extension work in farm credit.

WOMEN'S PHYSICAL EDUCATION CLASSES ARE NOW PLAYING SOCCER

Having completed the course in hockey, volleyball or tennis, the classes in women's physical education are now practicing soccer up on the hockey field. At the end of the tennis, hockey and volleyball season, Fall Field Day was held, and finals of the tournament games in these sports were played off.

Soccer practice forms an interlude between field day and the beginning of women's indoor sports, which will occur immediately after Thanksgiving.

Soccer is a comparatively new game to most of the physical education students, who seem to find it not too difficult to supply the necessary foot power.

It is played by teams made up of the same number of players as a hockey team. The positions are also called by the same names as the corresponding ones in hockey. One side is allowed to kick off, this being done by the center forward. After a goal has been made, the center forward of the side which made the goal kicks off.

The playing and the rules of play are much the same as in hockey, taking into account of course the fact that the foot is the implement used for propelling the ball about.

London city council has appealed to the schoolmasters of the grand old city to impress upon their young pupils how dangerous and costly it is to break the glass in street lamps, as a result of glasses totalling more than 1,000 being destroyed last month.

ANNUAL FOOTBALL HOP WILL END ACTIVITIES OF KEY AND SERPENT

Players in Tomorrow's Game to Be Guests; Letter Men to Receive Blankets

Tomorrow evening Key and Serpent will bring the varied activities of the week-end to a close when it presents the Football Hop and Key and Serpent dance in conjunction. The dance will be held in the gymnasium from 8.30 to 12 p.m.

All students of Vermont and Middlebury and any guests in town for the game will be welcomed. The presence of the football heroes of the fame is assured by the announcement that any man who plays tomorrow will be the guest of Key and Serpent in the evening.

Arrangements for the dance were in charge of M. A. Patch '35 and G. H. Cook, Jr., '35, who have exerted every effort to make the occasion one that may be enjoyed by all.

Music will be furnished alternately throughout the evening by Bob Minotti and Sid Carsley. During entermission Assistant Coach Crehan will present blankets to all seniors who have won a letter in football.

The chaperones for the evening will be Prof. M. H. Aldrich and Miss Cornelia H. Collier and Prof. and Mrs. F. B. Puffer.

All preparations have been completed and it is hoped by the committee that students will turn out in large numbers for the occasion.

REV. PECK OF RUTLAND LEADS CHAPEL SERVICE

"If you get something for nothing, it either costs someone else something or else it isn't worth anything," declared the Rev. George W. Peck, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Rutland, Vt., at chapel Wednesday. He went on to say that false prosperity booms had become boomerangs. He characterized cynicism as the resultant disease of young people of today and warned them against their present-day attitude of "be merry, for tomorrow you die." He further added that there is everything to live for even at a time like this and that it remains for all to help write "a new page of human history."

GIVES PICTURE OF RUSSIA IN CHAOS

Explains Effect of Five-year Plan; Expresses Opinions on U. S. Relationship Question

Tracing the development of Russia in the last decade, since the chaos of 1921, Anna Louise Strong last Tuesday night gave a forceful and vivid presentation of "My Twelve Years in the Soviet Union." The lecture was held in the Fleming Museum, before a capacity audience as the second in the series of University lectures.

Prefacing her main address by an account of her own activities, she told how in 1921 she went to Moscow with the Famine Relief of the Society of Friends; she was also Hearst correspondent covering the famine. Her chief work in Russia was writing. Three years ago, with the advent of many English and Americans, a need for an English newspaper deepened, resulting in her starting the Moscow Daily News. Throughout her sojourn she traveled widely and observed life carefully in all parts of the country.

Miss Strong drew a picture of Russia at the time of her arrival. War effects were heaviest there. Demoralization permeated everything—shattered industries and mechanical disintegration—and the chaos resulted in famine, starvation and international blockade. Harsh rule and civil wars had left the land in great turmoil.

Development of the country to its present place among great powers has been by two periods: that of reconstruction and restoration up to 1928, and the Five Year Plan. In that year Russia was about up to pre-war days—

DR. VINCENT RAVI-BOOTH OF OLD BENNINGTON TO GIVE LECTURE TUESDAY

First Church Minister Will Speak on "Three American Shrines"

Dr. Vincent Ravi-Booth, minister of First Church, Old Bennington, will deliver the third address in the series of University lectures Tuesday, November 21, at eight o'clock, to be held in the auditorium of the Fleming Museum. Doctor Booth's subject will be "Three American Shrines: Williamsburg, Va.; Valley Forge; Old Bennington."

Doctor Booth will illustrate his address with a generous number of stereopticon views of the restored and rebuilt buildings of colonial Williamsburg, of the historical monuments of Valley Forge with its Washington chapel and Cloisters; and of Old Bennington, which he hopes to see recognized by the people of Vermont as another sacred spot with rich associations and significance for American history.

Doctor Booth as a boy grew up in India but at the age of seventeen he left that country and received his education in America. Some thirteen years ago, he became minister of historic First Church in Old Bennington, following long pastorates in Manchester, Vt., and Cambridge, Mass. There he has interested himself in the life of the community, serving as village trustee and also as police commissioner. A cultured man of scholarly tastes, he has also interested himself in education. And it was Doctor Booth who proposed the estab-

MIDDLEBURY HAS BEST RECORD IN MANY YEARS

Boehm and Williams Expected to Present Some Strong Opposition

PANTHERS BOAST FOUR WINS FROM SIX TRIES

Coming forth from the lair of the Panther with a record of four wins, one tie and one defeat behind them, a cocky, typical Ben Beck coached eleven, invades Centennial Field for their annual battle with the Catamounts tomorrow.

Riding on the crest of the wave after their overwhelming victory over Norwich this team looks like the best to be developed at Middlebury since the days of Guarnaccia. Led by Wally Boehm second highest scorer in New England and Dick Williams the man with the educated toe, the Panthers have the ideal situation for a team with a big, heavy line and a light, exceptionally fast backfield. Boehm has packed off a long run at almost every game this year, either to score or to put the ball in a position for a score. He is very fast and shifty, and it is he is shaken loose by one of Beck's famous trick plays will prove very difficult for the Catamounts to stop. Williams, who beat Williams College 3-0 with a drop kick, a very liable to the

CLARENCE DEMAR WILL SPEAK IN MASS MEETING TOMORROW MORNING

Activity Period Tomorrow to Be Devoted to Further Arousal of Enthusiasm for Game

A student mass meeting will be held in the gymnasium Saturday morning at 10.00. The meeting will be in the nature of a pep rally following up the Key and Serpent rally tonight in an effort to arouse some enthusiasm in the student body for the final big game with Middlebury at Centennial Field.

Clarence DeMar will be the principal speaker at the meeting. Mr. DeMar a former Vermont man is perhaps the best known marathon runner in the United States.

He won the Ashland Marathon in 1911 and broke his own record in 1928 over the same course. He has probably finished in more marathons than any other man in the country. He is an instructor at Keene Normal School and one of the most prominent speakers in the East he was well known to Vermont students.

For the first time in history effort is being made to organize a cheering section at the mass meetings for the games. It is hoped by the promoters of the scheme to have a special section for the Vermont cheering made up of a unit of [illegible]

A bird's-eye view showed the way

The territory was heavily wooded, spotted with swamps and peat beds, with roads far apart. So a map was made by aerial photography. With this map, the best route was readily plotted, field work was facilitated.

Bell System ingenuity continues to extend the telephone's reach—to speed up service—to make it more convenient, more valuable to you.

1933 FOOTBALL SQUAD

VERMONT TO PLAY MIDDLEBURY SATURDAY

game is close, to break it up with a goal from the field. Captain Riccio, who was injured in the St. Michael's game, has steadily improved and is expected to start tomorrow. He is one of the outstanding tackles in the State and his presence in the contest will make a big difference for the Blue and White.

Middlebury Has Best Record in Years

The Panthers, in the first game of the season, beat Boston University and then Williams. They were then defeated by Tufts for the only reverse. Since then they have beaten St. Anselm's, tied St. Michael's, and swamped Norwich. This is the best record Middlebury has had in years and they want badly to cap it with a win over Vermont. Not only that, but they have another incentive because if they win tomorrow they will tie with Tufts for the New England championship. They are always dangerous and one can rely on their unleashing everything in a furious drive to beat their ancient opponent.

Vermont Eleven Driven Hard After Defeat

The Green and Gold, after the disastrous week-end, have been driven hard all this week to try to correct some of the errors prominent in the St. Mike's game. It is very doubtful whether Larry Bowers, bulwark in the center of the line, will be available for duty. Bowers has been out with a leg injury for about two weeks and is still favoring the member. His absence leaves a makeshift combination in the center of the line which greatly weakens that section. The rest of the team is in fair condition and should be ready to shoot the works for a win. Most of the Green and Gold regulars played against Middlebury last year and attribute that defeat to poor officiating. With this in mind the boys are working harder than ever so as to leave no excuse for anything which might happen tomorrow.

Freddie Lanahan, who has been rested for the last few games and has not assumed any of the ball-carrying duties, will endeavor to show the Panthers that his great work last year was no fluke and with any sort of interference should be able to get loose for those beautiful open-field jaunts of his. Ed Saba, who has been relied on for most of the ball carrying of late, is expected to bear the brunt of the kicking and will probably do a good share of the carrying. Johnny Beckley and Ed Sowka will handle the passing with Andy Werner, Enos Ramon and Itch Giardi to buck the line.

Red Cook, giant tackle, who has played a hang-up game in every contest this year, will be depended on to stop the greater share of Middlebury's line plays. Red is very fast getting down the field under kicks to make the tackle, blocks, kicks and passes regularly and this year has developed a flair for kicking goals from the field. Negus, sophomore end, who this year has developed into an outstanding wingman, will team up with Joe Delfausse on the flanks. Cook and Morgan start on the tackles. McGowan and Paul will be at the guard posts with either Bowers or Concannon at the pivot position. Saba, Lanahan, Rapuano and Ramon will start in the backfield.

The game should be close but if the field is dry the fast backfield of the Panthers will be very dangerous. Unless the Catamounts show more fight and headwork than they have shown this year, with the exception of the New Hampshire game, the Blue and White should win by a touchdown. However, the Cats have the power and with the breaks we pick them to win by one touchdown.

Don Tobin will have to wear two pairs of flannel pajamas at this Saturday's game.

Where did Hebb and Starbuck get those darkened orbs?

CROSS-COUNTRY FROSH TO MEET MIDDLEBURY

Chance for Victory Good Since Teams Are About on a Par

The freshman cross-country team will run in its last meet of the season against Middlebury frosh tomorrow on the Vermont three-mile course. To date the inexperienced Vermont yearlings have faced more experienced teams in every meet. Since the Middlebury team is expected to be about on a par with the U. V. M. squad in this respect, the Harriers are about even for a Vermont victory, it is thought.

Of those running, the first eight men, judging by previous records, are C. L. Bellmaire, H. C. Daigneault, J. E. Gates, M. Horne, R. F. Kennedy, F. P. McIntyre, R. H. Treadway, and R. K. White. H. A. MacMillan has just come out for cross-country after football and is expected to make a good showing. Other runners representing Vermont will be R. V. Buttles, R. G. Clausen, L. R. Evans, L. P. Hawley, W. J. Jacks, D. L. Marlow, and W. L. Thibault.

TEN MEN NOW OUT FOR BASKETBALL, EXPECT FOUR MORE, SAYS TOBIN

Close of Football Season Will Release Beckley, Morgan, Sowka, Ramon

FIRST ENGAGEMENT HERE DECEMBER 9

Three Home Games Scheduled for First Week

It looks as if Vermont were to acquire a basketball team if signs are to be heeded. According to Manager Tobin there are now ten men out for the team and four will be expected after the football season. These are Captain Beckley, Morgan, Sowka and Ramon.

Although Vermont lost only Chet Taft by graduation, Layden has gone into medicine and does not intend to report for the team. From last year's freshman team come three men: Negus, Young, and Werner to fill in any vacancies which may occur.

Scheduled for three home games in less than a week, one with Dartmouth, beginning December 9, Coach John Burke will have a hard task to put forth a finished team for the first engagement.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIP COMPETITION TO BE HELD DURING JANUARY, 1934

Vermont Candidates to Compete With Students From Other New England Colleges

Saturday, November 18, was the date on which all applications for candidacy in the annual Rhodes Scholarship Contest were due. This year, as in the past thirty years, thirty-two Rhodes scholarships to the University of Oxford, England, are to be awarded to students of United States state colleges and universities.

The Rhodes scholarship was created in 1901 upon the death of Cecil Rhodes. Mr. Rhodes was born in England, the seventh child of a family of ten. Being sickly from childhood he found it difficult to complete his education at Oxford. Upon visiting the cotton farm of his brother in Union of South Africa he discovered that the dry climate there was much better for his tuberculosis than the damp air of his homeland. He decided to remain there, and took up first his brother's occupation, then turned to diamond mining, from which he gained a large fortune. Again and again he returned to England, but always found that for the sake of his health he must return to South Africa. Taking up politics he became prime minister of the Union of South Africa. Always interested in furthering the education of young men, upon his death he left a large part of his accumulated wealth to establish the Rhodes scholarships by which he hoped to aid worthy students of the United States and of all the countries of the British Empire to study at the University of Oxford.

MEN'S DEBATE TEAM TO START ON NEW YORK TRIP NOVEMBER 29TH

St. Lawrence-Vermont Debate to be Broadcast from Canton, N. Y.

... men's debate team leaves ... Wednesday ... to open a ... campaign ... New York ... Vermont ... Hamilton ... Lawrence University. This will be the first encounter of the year for the team, being preceded only by the Dartmouth decision debate which took place here some time ago.

The first debate will occur Wednesday evening with Colgate University at Hamilton, New York. Vermont will be represented by a two-man team upholding the affirmative side of the N. R. A. question. Manager McCann states that it will be a no decision.

The second contest of the series will be held Friday, December 1, against the University of Buffalo, at Buffalo, N. Y. This time the Vermont team will be made up of three men, speaking on the affirmative side of the question, Resolved, That the United States should adopt a system of radio control similar to that of Great Britain.

The N. R. A. question will again be used against St. Lawrence University at Canton, New York, on Saturday afternoon, December second. A new and interesting feature of this debate is that it will be broadcast over the St. Lawrence University radio station. It is not known whether the last two debates will be decision debates or not. The teams at Buffalo and Canton have their choice in that event.

The team has been holding nightly practice debates and discussions, and those in charge are fully confident of the fellows' ability to further Vermont's reputation of the past two years.

At the present the plans for the southern trip next spring are only tentative, however it is certain that McCann will have a heavy schedule for the team to follow.

The Catty Co-ed is so sorry she cannot accept the kind invitation but she has a class. However, she will be at the Cynic office from four until five that afternoon.

The latest bit of veracity comes from the correspondence school advertisement that claims that after one lesson their pupils were fired with enthusiasm.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIP COMPETITION TO BE HELD

... was changed. Now there is no state election. There are eight districts of six states each. The state committee nominates two men to appear before the district committee. From the twelve candidates, four are selected to represent the states at Oxford. The New England States is considered one group with one district committee at Boston.

The scholarships are tenable for three years and are four hundred pounds, about two thousand dollars. The first one to be granted to a Vermont student was in 1904 to John C. Sherburne who is now a judge of the United States Supreme Court.

To be eligible for competition the candidate must:

1. Be a male citizen of the United States and unmarried.
2. Be between the ages of nineteen and twenty-five.
3. Have completed at least his sophomore year at college.

The following are the qualifications for selection:

1. Literary and scholastic ability of high order.
2. Qualities of manhood, truth, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy, kindliness, unselfishness and fellowship.
3. Instinct and moral force of character to influence his fellows to lead and to take an interest in his schoolmates.
4. Physical vigor as shown by interest in outdoor sports or in other ways.

Elections will be held in January 2-4 of 1934. These candidates selected to be awarded the scholarships will enter the University of Oxford in October, 1934. The University of Oxford is in the hands of Dean C. H. Bardwell.

BASKETBALL PRACTICE FOR WOMEN NOW UNDER WAY

The extra-curricular basketball practice has started off very well, according to Miss Blanchard of the physical education department. The girls practice on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 4.00 to 6.00. Forty-two freshmen, thirty-three sophomores, fourteen juniors, and fifteen seniors have signed up for practice. The manager for the freshmen is Lois Hammond '37, for the sophomores Natalie Hilliker '36, for the juniors Marie Nicholson '35, and for the seniors Edith Rogers '34. The campus manager is Helen Mount '35.

SAE AND ATO MAY PLAY FINAL FOOTBALL GAME

Alpha Tau Omega Expected to Win Last Game in Interfraternity Touch Football Tournament

The final round of the interfraternity touch football tournament, to be played between the SAE's and the ATO's, was postponed on account of inclement weather Armistice Day and will be played as soon as weather permits.

The Alpha Taus, presenting a very fast line-up, have swept everything before them in their march to the finals and it is difficult to see how they can be prevented from winning the championship. Trudeau, the Hart brothers, Columbo, Brislin, Joly, and Williams make up a team which has proved unstoppable in fraternity competition. These boys have played together for so long a time that now they work together perfectly. Trudeau excels in long passes while Columbo is probably the cleverest broken field touch football runner in college. Williams, the captain, is usually on the end of passes and his speed will be very unpleasant to the Sigma Alphs if the field is fairly dry.

The SAE's are not so fast or as clever as the Alpha Taus but make up for this in fight. Their team is not so well balanced for they depend for the most part on Keeney and Mahoney. In their previous contests they have emerged victorious by close scores whereas their opponents in the finals have swamped every team they have come up against. It looks like ATO by three touchdowns at least.

SOCIAL DANCING CLASS HOLDS SECOND MEETING

The social dancing class, under the direction of Miss Baldwin, seems to be a great success, according to Miss Cummings, Head of the Department of Physical Education. There are about fifty members in the class, which held its second meeting last Thursday night in the the Vermonters' Clubhouse. This year in the first course there are to be four lessons. "If there are enough who wish to have a second series of lessons it may be possible to continue the course," said Miss Cummings. "Last year there were ten boys and ten girls who wished to keep on with the lessons; if there are the same number this year, there may be a second course."

MUSEUM NOTES

Saturday, November 11, "Simba," a movie of African animal life filmed by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, was shown before an audience of about 700 children and adults in the auditorium of the Fleming Museum. Many from the zoology department attended and also students taking the science courses in school. This picture has never been released for use outside New York before.

Prof. A. B. Myrick will give a talk before the Fleming Museum Art Association on the opening night of the showing of the LeBrun painting. This painting is scheduled to be put on display in a special alcove, Thursday night, November 16.

On November 18, Prof. H. F. Perkins will give a talk on the Fleming Museum in New York before the Alumni Association at their annual luncheon.

MEMBERS OF JOHN DEWEY CLUB

A meeting of John Dewey Club will be held Wednesday at 8.00 p.m. at the Vermonters' Club House. The Rev. C. S. Jones of this city will speak. Any members who are unable to attend should communicate immediately with the secretary.

PROGRAM OF INDOOR SPORTS FOR WOMEN IS NOW UNDER WAY

The physical education program for women this year is most interesting, according to Miss Cummings, Head of the Department of Physical Education. On Mondays the girls have Dance exercises and different kinds of games. On Wednesdays, the program consists of various types of dancing under the direction of Miss Baldwin. Tapping is taught also some natural dancing, English folk dancing, and usually a few minutes at the end of the hour is given to social dancing. On Fridays the classes are divided into two sections, one section is taught basketball technique, while the other part learns to play badminton, deck tennis, shuffleboard and pingpong.

There will be a chance for juniors and seniors to learn badminton on Fridays at 2.00 p.m. and 3.00 p.m. in the cage. This course will be to teach the girls how to coach the game. Women of other classes may sign up at other hours for use of the courts. Miss Frey, assistant in the Physical Education Department, is to have charge of the teaching of the girls.

FROSH BASKETBALL ASPIRANTS TO HAVE TEAM, SAYS ABELL

On Tuesday, November 14, S. C. Abell, announced that there would be a freshman basketball team this year. Owing to the spirit the frosh have shown, the council reversed their previous decision on the sport. The call for candidates will not be sent out until December.

Mr. Abell said that he planned to arrange games with local fives for most of the Kittens' schedule.

WRIGHT MAKES CHANGES IN DEPUTATIONS PROGRAM

Single Service Trips Give Lieu to Type Similar to College Chautauqua

Student deputations at Vermont are to be radically changed from those of last year, according to plans now in formation by R. S. Wright '35, this year's director. Instead of the many single service trips of which there were thirty-nine last year, there are to be inaugurated a new, big type, which will be sent out but six times a year at first.

This will be in the nature of a college chautauqua, which will arrive Saturday afternoon, and present programs of different kinds including a play, perhaps some hike, a debate, talk or lecture, Sunday morning service with talks by three or four students, and some sort of a Sunday evening program.

Instead of going to many small towns within a radius of sixty miles of Burlington, the deputations hope to go to a few key towns in rural sections of the State, and put on programs which will be attended by delegations from smaller towns surrounding the key town. In this way fewer and better deputation programs will be presented, with much more preparation than was given to last year's and much longer.

FLASHLIGHT POINTER FOR LECTURE DEVISED

To assist in lectures and blackboard demonstrations, research engineers have devised a novel and effective aid consisting of a lighted pointer. By placing this spot of light at the center of interest of the diagram the speaker is able to focus the attention of his audience on the point of interest emphasizing in relief the area being discussed. Also, when used with a colored light, it may be used with lantern slides.

The pointer is easily made and may be built by anyone having the need for a similar device. It is entirely self-contained consisting of a standard flashlight, a sectional steel fishing rod, fittings, and some small wire. The flashlight proper is the handle of the pointer with the bulb placed at the end of the fishing pole, and connected to the battery through the hollow pole. The light is used as desired by pressing the flashlight switch in the handle.

A medic told the Cynic Council that the New Science Building should be for the students in the academic colleges. We hate to admit it, but we think it is the medics loss, certainly not ours.

Classic Vermont-Middlebury Tilt Postponed Until Saturday

Panthers and Catamounts to Fight It Out Then Regardless of Weather or Ground Conditions—Both Teams Claim Advantages by Postponement

WINTER SPORTS CLUB MEETS AFTER VACATION

According to authoritative statements recently received there will be a meeting of all students interested in forming a Winter Sports and Outing Club shortly after the Thanksgiving recess. Over ninety men have signified their interest in the project by signing petitions circulated on the campus, while many more have verbally sanctioned their enthusiasm and approval. Those interested in the matter are especially urged to bring back with them snowshoes, skis, skates and winter sports togs if they have them after the Thanksgiving sojourn.

CO-EDS ARE OFFERED COURSE IN SCOUTING

A course in Scout Leadership was given last week by Miss Dorothea Sullivan, member of the National Girl Scouts. These meetings were held every day from Monday to Friday at the home of Mrs. Paul French, from 2.00 to 4.00 in the afternoon and from 7.00 to 9.00 in the evening.

The course was conducted along the line of a regular scout meeting. Miss Sullivan interrupted the meeting once in a while to lecture on requirements for different ranks and badges and to give suggestions for various scout activities.

The people who took this course have the opportunity in the future to offer their services here in Burlington as assistants, or to act as substitutes or head a scout group in their home town. The course plus the passing of the tenderfoot test qualifies any one to be a leader. It not only enables girls who are scouts to be leaders, but also the girls who have never had any of this work before can now be captains.

"For anyone who is interested in outdoor sports, this is an ideal course. It puts all the theory into practice," according to one of the girls who attended this course. Everybody who went to these meetings liked it very much and "found it most helpful."

PROGRAM OF HANDCRAFT BEGINS AT ROCK POINT

Stuffed cats, bureau scarfs, and crayonettes, intended for Christmas presents, are to be begun today by the girls at Bishop Hopkins Hall, under the direction of Marie Horak '35, a member of the Y. W. C. A. The older girls will begin on the crayonettes this afternoon and will probably make bureau scarfs later. The handicraft planned for the younger girls to begin on, is the making of stuffed cats.

Norma Piper '36 and Mary Whitney '36 conducted a singing project last Friday. Miss Whitney led the singing and Miss Piper played the piano. They plan to present a concert of violin and piano today.

CALLED OFF FRIDAY P.M.

Setting grid precedent in the state of Vermont, Vermont and Middlebury agreed to postpone their annual gridiron clash till Saturday, November 7, when hard ground and good playing weather was the basis of one of the few football postponements of the current season in America last Friday afternoon when the unexpected announcement came from the graduate manager's office.

According to opinion on the Blue and White eleven, the week's postponement came in the nature of a break for it was generally conceded that the Catamounts had a bigger advantage on a slippery field. The shifty plays used by the Middlebury backfield, involving spinners and laterals would be checked by the uncertain ground condition of Centennial Field. In light of this several Vermont enthusiasts continue to hope that the field will remain in its present state until next Saturday so that Boehm and Williams will have little chance to slip away on any of their typical jaunts.

However, looking at it from the Vermont point of view it is not so bad. Injuries have been heavy of late and this week is just what is needed to put Negus, Morgan, R. Delfausse and Bowers in perfect shape for the clash. Middlebury, too, beset by injuries, will not benefit so much because Captain Riccio seems to be the only regular really in need of rest.

There is another point which may upset Mr. Beck's calculations. It has snowed a great deal over the week end and yesterday, and while he is planning on it warming up for the week end, all signs point to continued winter weather.

Any way we look at it the break seems to favor Vermont. The team will be in shape. If the snow continues the heavier team Vermont will hold the advantage and if it melts the field will be muddy, giving us the same advantage.

COLLEGE BOOK WEEK TO BE DECEMBER 4-10 ON REDSTONE CAMPUS

Book Week is to be held on Redstone campus from Monday, December 4, until Sunday, December 10. Recent books are to be on exhibition at Redstone each night with a short talk on books from 7 to 7.15. One subject of literary interest will be spoken on each night, either that of poetry, drama, or biography, etc.

Detailed plans of the proposed week will be announced later.

Stuart Wright is wearing his bear skin cap. Professor Dean, where's your fur hat? Do you doubt that winter's here?

A certain member of the Cynic staff states that everyone knows something which, after all, is taking quite a lot for granted.

BRISLIN RESIGNS JOB AS SPORTS EDITOR CYNIC; RECOMMENDS SUCCESSOR

Conflict Between Work, Studies, Athletics and Activities Too Much

W. W. Brislin '34, sports editor of the Vermont Cynic, owing to the pressure of his activities this coming year, has handed in his resignation to the editor of the Cynic.

Brislin's letter of resignation follows:

November 21, 1933.

To the Editor, Vermont Cynic.

I wish to tender my resignation as Sports Editor of the Vermont Cynic, since conflicting interests make it impossible for me to perform conscientiously my duties.

In looking over various members of the senior class who might fill this position for the remainder of the term, I should like to recommend Donald Worcester as my successor.

Sincerely yours

William W. Brislin.

In commenting on his recent act, Brislin declared that his resignation had become imperative due to the pressure of his extra-curricula activities and scholastic schedule.

Brislin is a prominent figure on the campus. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega; was president of Gold Key during the second semester of his sophomore year; a member of Key and Serpent; class president in his junior year; took part in class basketball his junior and sophomore years; was assistant manager of basketball his junior year; a member of the Cynic staff for three years and news editor his junior year; he was circulation manager of the 1934 Ariel; was on the Kake Walk committee his sophomore year and assistant director last year; he served on the Football Hop committee and was Key and Snake dance chairman; he has been a member of Student Senate, Faculty-Student Council and Interfraternity Council; corporal; and holds an Honor Scholarship. This year he is to be Kake Walk Director and to take part in class basketball, and is president of Interfraternity Council and Newman Club. He is a member of Boulder, and vice-president of Alpha Tau Omega.

ARIEL PHOTOGRAPHER TO BE HERE MONDAY

The photographer from White's Studio will be at Vermont Monday, November 27, to finish all portraits. The medio portraits will be taken at night.

Those of those who now have proofs can desire a resitting they may obtain one by making an appointment with A. O. Williams, men's photographic editor, Barbara Wears, women's photographic editor, or W. E. Cass, editor-in-chief.

After Thanksgiving vacation, the representative of White's will arrive with the proofs of these and the women's portraits to effect the change from the high to the low drape of the latter.

"At this time, those who failed to return their proofs the first time will do so, because all proofs must be returned if the pictures are to appear in the Ariel," stated Editor Bill Cass.

Junior Society Will Sponsor Football Hop

Gridiron Celebration Postponed From Last Week to Be Held in Gym Tomorrow Evening

SENIOR FOOTBALL MEN TO RECEIVE BLANKETS

Sixteen Letter Men to Be Honored During Intermission of Annual Hop

Key and Serpent, junior honorary society, will sponsor the informal dance to be held in the gymnasium tomorrow evening. All those who play in the Middlebury game tomorrow afternoon will be guests at the entertainment, including the members of the visiting team. Dancing will begin at 8.30 and music will be provided by Bob Minotti's ten-piece orchestra.

"Because of extenuating circumstances, the football hop originally scheduled for last Saturday evening will be held tomorrow night. As a result of the mix up, the committee has been put to quite a bit of trouble in securing tomorrow night for the dance. However the committee will feel fully repaid if a large number of Vermont students attend this annual function. It is our only opportunity to show Middlebury students how well Vermont can run a dance," declared M. W. Patch '35.

"We are pleased because all but two of the fraternities gave up their pledge dances for the football hop. We had advertisements put up in Middlebury and expect a crowd of Middlebury students," said G. H. Cook, Jr., '35.

THANKSGIVING RECESS BEGINS NOVEMBER 30

Vacation Declared by University for First Time in Several Years

On Thursday, November 30, at 7.30 p.m., Thanksgiving recess will commence for a period of four days. This is the first time in several years that the University has declared a vacation at Thanksgiving time, and came as a result of student expression of a vacation at this time.

Elizah Swift, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, has issued the following regulations to be observed regarding Thanksgiving recess.

Students are advised that the recess begins Thursday, November 30, at 7.30 a.m. and closes on Monday, December 4 at 7.30 a.m. Date and hour should be carefully noted. Wednesday, November 29 the usual Chapel service will be omitted and classes will meet in accordance with the following schedule:

First hour	8.00- 8.50
Second hour	9.00- 9.50
Third hour	10.00-10.50
Fourth hour	11.00-11.50
Fifth hour	1.10- 2.00
Sixth hour	2.10- 3.00

The above hours should be carefully noted to avoid unnecessary absences.

Students should note the following extract from the University Regulations II, paragraph 4(b): "A student who absents himself without permission (secured in advance from the Dean of his college), from any University exercise or exercises on the day immediately preceding or following a recess or holiday may be placed on probation."

The University Council in voting to lengthen the Thanksgiving vacation agreed that there should be an understanding that no applications for extensions would be considered.

STATE CONFERENCE OF HIGH SCHOOL EDITORS TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Journalistic Problems to Be Discussed by Able Speakers at Museum

The annual state conference of high school editors will be held Saturday, November 25. The convention which is sponsored by the University of Vermont will be held in the Fleming Museum from 10.30 in the morning until about 3.00 in the afternoon with a luncheon being served by the University at noon.

Such meetings have been held each year for about fifteen years. According to Mr. L. W. Dean, assistant professor of English, who is chairman of the Conference, these annual "get-togethers" have done a great deal to advance high school journalistic work throughout the state. Their aim is to give new ideas to the students and to help solve any of the individual problems which various schools may have to face. To this end opportunity will be provided throughout the program for discussion on the different subjects presented by the various speakers and part of the afternoon will be devoted to general discussion.

New features of the program will include an exhibit of textbooks in high school journalism, short-story writing and play writing, and an exhibit of high school papers from the larger secondary schools of New England. Another change is the luncheon to be served in the Museum rather than in one of the hotels as has been customary in former years. This will save interruption occasioned by a trip down street and will allow the students to mingle more intimately and a correspondingly more pleasant social hour.

Four speakers have been obtained who will talk on subjects of general interest. Miss Laura Parker of the English department of the University will speak on organization for the high school paper and its place in the high school program. Miss Parker has taught in high schools of the state and more recently in one of the normal colleges of the Middle West. Prof. I. I. Lindsay another member of the University of Vermont English department and a former newspaper man will speak on editorial writing. Miss Frances W. Field of Rutland High School needs no introduction to any of the state having a copy to journal.

NEWMAN CLUB ELECTS NEW STUDENT OFFICERS

Officers were elected at a recent meeting of the Newman Club which is composed of Catholic student body men and women who attend the University of Vermont. The following officers were elected: W. W. Brislin '34, president; Mary H. Casey '35, vice-president; M. J. Walsh '35, secretary-treasurer.

At the meeting held Sunday, November 19 at the Knights of Columbus rooms W. J. Ryan '34 gave a lecture on evolution and following the lecture led the group in a discussion period. Rev. J. J. Brady, chaplain of the Newman Club, spoke for a while on the various aspects of evolution as affecting the churches.

TORCHLIGHT PARADE TO FOLLOW ANNUAL REVIVAL OF SPIRIT THIS EVENING

Band to Accompany Students in Annual Prelim to Second Home-state Clash

The smoker and pep rally which was to have been held last Friday evening will be held tonight in the gymnasium at 7.30. The greatest departure from the customary procedure is the decision to hold the entire smoker and rally in the gymnasium. This, however, will not affect the torchlight parade which will proceed immediately afterwards through the principal streets of Burlington, or the location which may be held on the back campus.

The program for the evening promises many surprises according to D. W. White '35, who states, "Although because of the cold weather we have decided not to have the pep rally in the City Hall Park, we feel that this change will in no way detract from the success of the evening and furthermore will be appreciated by the student body. Another advantage of the change is that it permits the innovation of a unique feature, the presentation of several humorous skits by the sophomore medics under the direction of R. D. Towne '36."

The speakers for the evening will include Graduate Manager S. C. Abell, Assistant Coach Paul Crehan, Capt. Jack Morgan, and Mgr. C. B. Eaton.

Joe Lechnyr and the R. O. T. C. band will be in attendance to play the college songs and to lead the parade afterwards. Coach Burke has requested that the football squad be present at the rally.

The rally this year as in previous years is being run under the sponsorship of Key and Serpent, honorary junior society, with C. A. Rogers '35 and W. D. White '35, co-directors of the affair. The sophomore medics, having a large part in the program, harks back to the days when Cap and Skull, honorary medic society, had charge of this traditional rally.

STUDENT SENATE HOLDS SPIRITED DISCUSSION

Current Topics of University Interest Dominate Meeting of Class Representatives

Brightened by the prospect of refreshments at the close of the meeting, members of Student Senate held several spirited discussions last Tuesday evening, November 21 at the Sigma Phi Place. Methods of further unifying the Vermont student body cut system, Chapel services, Student Union building were among the topics discussed at the weekly meeting.

Julian Abell '7 graduate manager stirred to the meeting much material for consideration and took for the most part a receiving back to place for. His interests centered about a Student Union building with a high house where all freshmen would be required to eat and where classes training table for athletes might be held.

An Evening Retreat

H. C. Gray '36, representing several students on the campus brought the subject of having some place where the students could spend the evening together to escape the depressing atmosphere of either a public eating place or the evenings at their dormitories. Members of the senate expressed many favorable and several unfavorable opinions on the matter. In reply to J. Tobin '34, a member of the Boulder Society, "I think it is an excellent idea." According to L. S. Makepeace '36, class president, "There is certainly nothing to lose by it and everything to gain."

The Vermonters' Club House

The possibility and feasibility of securing the Vermonters' club house for a recreature commons for students who had nothing to do evenings was the result of a discussion held on Gray's suggestion. It was suggested that a meeting or rally could be installed and dancing held.

An impromptu discussion on the method and program of chapel services

At the conclusion several hundred questions were delivered to the platform, the presiding chairman mechanically reading them to the speaker. After "thanking several" the Berlin professor chose a few which he answered. Those that he chose to answer dealt mainly with literature and art and the impatient audience remained to avoid questioning.

Adjournment Asked

At this juncture a member of the audience moved that the intelligent people present demand an adjournment. Despite loud protests the chairman insisted that the session go through the customary procedure by a vocal disbanding. Never-ending cat-calls erupted forward to the [illegible] questions at Professor [illegible] and refusing to be adjourned. After thirty minutes of confusion and milling of the throng had subsided, it was discovered that the speaker had disappeared.

Thus unsuccessfully unanswered, the students set up a shout for the truth from Miss Mary B. Gilson, an ardent and passionate opponent of Hitlerism, who since her trip to Germany last year has constantly been in touch with conditions there. She answers satire, the clamor and presented an entirely opposite picture of the Hitler program in a concise six-minute speech.

In her dramatic presentation of the opposite view she emphatically denounced everything that had been said by Dr. [illegible], picturing the reign of terror in Germany as he knew it.

The business department of the Cynic has just completed a survey on the Vermont campus concerning the various brands of cigarettes that are smoked by students. The results obtained are incomplete and incomplete but are nevertheless representative.

The three popular brands received the most votes and the results would have probably varied had more students voted. It is inconclusive however to expect that the same relative proportion would exist had there been more votes.

The present cut system with the exception of one department it was found, was rather [illegible]. A resolution that an investigation and conference with said department regarding cuts for athletes be held with the head of the department was passed.

All 3 O'clock Classes

G. H. Cook '35, football tackle, mentioned the fact that the football team would benefit greatly if they got out of classes at three o'clock during the months of October and November when it gets dark so quickly. In remedy of the existing situation he suggested holding morning classes on the hour, everyday except Wednesday, and begin afternoon classes at one o'clock during the dark months of the football training period. "As it works out now," stated Cook, "a fellow gets out of class at four, takes fifteen or twenty minutes or more to get dressed and over to the field. Then it is already pretty dark and he may not receive the full benefit of a practice. In addition, the hardest player has to get to supper at six and that doesn't leave much time for good practice."

Refreshments, in the nature of cider and doughnuts, were served.

Said Professor Ewert to his psych class:

"And the longer you sleep, the weaker is the stimulus necessary to produce a return to the waking state."

Grace Harris: Oh? Well, then wouldn't you think it would be easy to get up in the morning? (Laughter)

Prof. E.: Oh well, some people are still in a deep sleep. (Cheers and applause from everyone but Grace.)

quainted with a greater number of college students. For, it was argued, "one of the major reasons school spirit lags is the fact that so few people really become acquainted with each other."

Believing such an institution would not only save college students some money in the long run, but also promote fellowship and more worthwhile acquaintances, Student Senate has referred the matter to the student body at large and invites questions, comments, recommendations and student opinion in regard to the matter. The Cynic would be only too glad to receive any communications either pro or con on the subject.

Team Geared Up to Go After Postponement of Meet From Last Week

[illegible] Weather as the game [illegible] mud and a nasty [illegible] proved a keeper as Vermont [illegible] last week-end and annex [illegible] accentuated the postponement [illegible] meet with Middlebury. [illegible] teams find themselves about equal in calibre, with Vermont [illegible] slightly favored. Coach Post rests hope on Cliff Harwood and John Wruff to combat against Sears, Middlebury star, and also [illegible] first and second places. Wilbur Rogers, Suitor, Twitchell, Andress and Levine form strong [illegible] which should guarantee Vermont its [illegible] victory of the season and a title [illegible] State.

There will be a meeting of all men and women interested in fencing in the armory in the gymnasium on Monday, November 27. If enough people turn up, a series of ten lessons will be given for $1.

MISS ANDREE EMERY SPEAKS TONIGHT AT HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

"Bennington College Plan" to Be Subject of Discussion at Presence of Honored Speaker

Miss Andree Emery of Bennington College will speak on "The Bennington College Plan" at a meeting of the Home Economics Club to be held this evening at 8 o'clock at the Home Management House. Reports on class projects will be given by those girls in charge.

Miss Emery (Mrs. Stevens in private life) received her A.B. degree from Marianum College, Kolozsvov, Hungary, in 1923. She won a graduate scholarship at the University of Budapest for three years (1927-30), and also a graduate foreign fellowship at Bryn Mawr College (1930-31), where she received her master's degree. She has been a research fellow in the Brookings Institute, Washington, D. C., and was the assistant, for a time, to the capital director of the first experimental year of the social service school of Budapest. She has served as the head of the Industrial Research Department of the Hungarian Red Cross in Budapest, and was assistant in the department of Economics in the University of Budapest.

After teaching Economics and Sociology at Fordham University she was appointed Professor of Social Studies at Bennington College, beginning this year. Miss Emery is to be a guest of the Home Management House this week-end. Her talk this evening will follow a dinner given in her honor.

SIX SCHOLARSHIPS IN CHEMISTRY TO BE GIVEN

Six chemistry scholarships of $150 each will be awarded again this year by the University of Vermont to students in Vermont high schools according to an announcement made at the University today.

The six scholarships, now in their third year, are awarded for the best essays written by students of chemistry who are enrolled in secondary schools of Vermont. The contest is arranged and administered by the Headmasters' Club. The judges are appointed from the faculty of the department of chemistry at the University, of which Prof. George N. Burrows is head.

Last year Brattleboro High School and Burlington High School each won two of the scholarships, and Spaulding High of Barre and Springfield High took one each.

The 1933 Ariel scrubs must have all snapshots and other work that has been assigned in this week.

V. C. A. TO BE HOST TO STATE YOUTH COUNCIL THANKSGIVING WEEK-END

Vermont Campus Is Headquarters of Fourth Annual Conference of State Organization

REV. R. A. WAITE WILL BE THE PRINCIPAL SPEAKER

Thanksgiving week-end will see many new faces on the Vermont campus. The Vermont Christian Association will entertain the Vermont State Youth Council in its annual convention in Burlington, from Friday afternoon, December 1 to Sunday.

The V. C. A. will act as host at this the Council's fourth convention. Headquarters will be the Gymnasium, where registration will take place Friday afternoon from 2 to 5. The local association has provided through the Burlington churches for homes for approximately the expected 150 delegates. The Old Mill will be used for the commission sessions; the Fleming Museum will be the scene Saturday night of a play presented by the young people of the Congregational Church, under the direction of Mrs. Dallas Pollard. Sunday services will be held in the University Chapel.

The convention will open with a banquet and addresses Friday evening in the Gymnasium. The conference speaker is a nationally known figure, Rev. R. A. ("Dad") Waite of the American Youth Foundation, St. Louis.

For a part of the three conference sessions Saturday, the council will divide into commissions, with the best discussions leaders available and experienced resource leaders. Frequent general sessions will be held for reports to the entire council, and for opportunity to give and take of question, criticism and suggestions between groups. The conference theme is "Finding One's Self in a Changing World." It will be discussed in six aspects: 1 Personal Religion—what should religion mean to me today? 2 Moral Issues—what is right and what is wrong today in the area of personal conduct? 3 Economic Issues—is our present economic order Christian? 4 Personality Development—why are some folks liked and others disliked? 5 Leisure Time—How shall I use it? 6 Life Work—how do I find it these days?

At the meeting of the A. I. E. E. held Friday morning, November 24 in the Williams Science Hall, John C. Arnold gave a demonstration of Sir Oliver Lodge's experiment on "Syntonism" or "Resonance," and also a demonstration of the early type of radio using "Coherer" method of detection.

Speaking of sports, this is a good chance for all W. A. A. members to pile up some extra points. There are approximately 112 hours in the Thanksgiving recess, and surely a few of them should be spent in indoor and outdoor exercise.

Of course one can always go to a show and it's as good a way as any to pass time. Here's a list of what's on and when for your convenience:

Flynn—"Footlight Parade" (Thursday, Friday, Saturday).

Majestic—"The Masquerader" (Wednesday, Thursday); "Melody Cruise" (Friday, Saturday).

State—"Moonsingle and Pretzels" (Wednesday, Thursday); "Secret of the Blue Room" (Friday, Saturday).

Strand—"You Must Harmonize" (Wednesday, Thursday); "Smashing and Crashing" (Friday, Saturday) (double feature).

My final suggestion is that as a last resort time can be passed to good advantage in the libraries doing outside [illegible] reading or something of that nature. Mid-years aren't so very far in the distance. All libraries are closed Thanksgiving Day, but the librarians will be glad to see you at any other time. The Billings Library is open on Friday from 9 to 12 and from 2 to 4; on Saturday from 9 o'clock until 12 and on Sunday from 2 o'clock until 5. Hours at the Howard Free Library are Friday 9 o'clock to 6, Saturday 9 o'clock until 6 and 7 o'clock to 9. Sunday the library remains closed.

DR. McMAHON SPEAKS AT MASS MEETING SAT.

President McMahon—"Mickey" McMahon was the principal speaker at the student Mass Meeting Saturday when the McMasters is a former Vermont star and was a cheerleader while a student here. His speech was in form of a pep talk for the Middlebury game. By well chosen anecdotes and his enthusiasm he roused the student body to bounce the cold and attend the game. He pointed out that as men on the University of Vermont the students should be proud of the team and the team to support it at the game.

[illegible] Langdon '35 a member of Key and Serpent was in charge of the program and introduced a new Vermont song which was sung impromptu by members of the Glee Club.

FROSH DEBATE SCHEDULE INCLUDES FIVE DEBATES DURING CURRENT YEAR

Debates With Dartmouth, Middlebury, St. Michael's, and Essex High

Last Tuesday afternoon the freshman debate squad held a meeting in the Old Mill classroom at which Manager Greenman outlined the program that will be followed during the next two months. Five debates are scheduled for the team including Dartmouth, Middlebury, St. Michael's and Essex High.

A practice debate will take place Wednesday afternoon, December 6 in the Old Mill chapel between two teams made up of freshman men in order to determine the men who will speak in the first debate. The question which will be used in the practice debate is: Resolved that the United States should adopt a system of radio control and regulation similar to that of Great Britain. Earnshaw, Fox, Sandy and Hathaway will uphold the affirmative side of the question with Hoberman, Lamoureaux, Stanley and Gilmore as their worthy opponents.

The dress rehearsal debate with Essex High will be the evening of December 8 using the same men who are in the practice debate. The team will meet Middlebury at Middlebury, December 14. Either the N.R.A. question or the radio question will be used. On January 8 the freshmen meet the Dartmouth freshmen here and will argue on either the radio question or the N.R.A. question. Sometime after mid-years a return debate will be held with the Vermont team going to Dartmouth. Also after mid-years the team will meet the St. Michael's freshmen. Manager Greenman should be congratulated for getting such a good initial schedule.

The alternate freshman members of Pinfagen will be represented by Miss Helen Workman and Miss Thelma Gardner in a debate against the freshman men. H. Stanley and F. Timmermann will uphold the affirmative for the men. The question to be used is: Resolved that fraternity rushing for men should be deferred until the sophomore year. This is the rubber debate in a series of three. Oregon won the men having won one and the second one.

The new product is a mixture of pure maple sugar and pure cream, carrying from 50 to 75 per cent butter fat and is described as having many uses as a "dressing" in candy making, as sauce and spread on waffles etc.

It is readily made and even more readily eaten" states the bulletin.

The product is characterized as having [illegible] commercial possibilities. It is somewhat perishable. Full directions for making it are given. The bulletin number is 364.

MISS ANDREE EMERY OF BENNINGTON COLLEGE SPEAKS TO HOME EC CLUB

Lecturer Gives the Ideals of Bennington College and the Philosophy of European Students

"European students talk more philosophically than Americans" is the opinion of Miss Andree Emery of Bennington College as expressed in part in a talk before the Home Economics Club Friday evening, November 24.

"When I came to Bryn Mawr, which is a college for spinsters you know, I was overwhelmed by the American students. They talked so intellectually that they intimidated me a lot but I wasn't going to submit to that. I soon found that they were as much in awe of the foreigner at the school because of the big words which we used. Later we grew to be the best of friends.

"The Europeans have a philosophy of life which seems to be lacking in American students, for all of their vast amount of knowledge. I do not think that knowledge in itself is not any use unless one has a worthwhile philosophy of life. One must have certain standard to guide one's efforts. A wholesome philosophy cannot be found by merely reading a lot of books on the subject. You must work one out for yourself."

At the request of those present Miss Emery briefly outlined the Bennington College plan with which school she is at present connected. Bennington College for Women attempts to fit its students so that they can cope with contemporary civilization. During the first two years the student is on probation. She first plans her schedule around her initial interest. She may find after a few months that this work does not appeal to her or that she can not do her best work in this field. She has the privilege at changing and experimenting these first two years at the end of which she has presumably found her life interest and for the last two years concentrates her efforts on this interest.

There are no examinations or tests given at Bennington. Each student must plan her own work and carry it through. There are no special papers and reports required. However a girl must show ability and carry them or she is dropped sooner or at the end of her second or her third year.

Miss Emery (Mrs. Lochner) is a Hungarian. She has studied current events and done considerable work both here and abroad. She gave the girls a glimpse of life in Hungary.

Hungary is a poor and a depressed country today. Its only resources are the plums where wheat alone can be grown. Of course there is no sale for wheat today, and so the people have scarcely any income. The three provinces in which a crop may be grown are [illegible] medicine and agriculture. It is different there in that it is considered honorable to be a lawyer.

Miss Emery talked of many other relative subjects such as the fact that there is no dating done in Hungary. She portrayed the loneliness of war, a criminal act and recommended the reading of an article in the September [illegible] Magazine on the subject of war.

According to the school calendar the days between September 2 and December 4 will be observed as Thanksgiving vacation. Provisions were formerly made that [illegible] but it was decided last year by the people that these new days would be given to the students.

Classes will be resumed on Wednesday and the Glee Issue will be on sale.

BICYCLE

The Tech, M. I. T.'s newspaper, recently ... a photo of two men on a bike, a tandem, and added that the speed attained by the winner and his crew was very good considering the gear that was provided by its present owner, $2.50.

And that brings to mind the fact that bicycling is a very popular and, what is more important, a perfect and inexpensive method of getting about at many colleges in America today. In some places bicycling has attained popularity which leads not to remark that sport to a position almost as important as that it has long in the Gay Nineties, but not quite.

KEY AND SERPENT RALLY PROVIDED INNOVATIONS LAST FRIDAY NIGHT

Gold Basketballs and Charms Presented by Athletic Council; Sophomore Medics Give Short Skit

The medics' skit the "German Band" presentation of tokens to last year's lettermen in basketball and tennis and a snowy torchlight parade and bonfire proved to be outstanding in the Key and Serpent pep rally Friday night. About 300 students attended and the usual program of songs, cheers and speeches were included.

The innovation provided by the sophomore medics met with loud acclaim though it was commented upon by some as being rather markedly risque. The medic program was concluded when R. D. Lemon '36 presented J. T. Webster president of the freshman class with a souvenir from among the properties used in the medics' dramatic production.

Coach Crehan, Captain Morgan and Graduate Manager S. C. Abell all expressed their hope that the student body would give their best support to the team and that their efforts might be well rewarded.

Why—

You say Chesterfields are not like other cigarettes

CIGARETTES are made of tobacco, wrapped in paper, and they may look alike; but that doesn't mean that they are alike.

Chesterfield Cigarettes are not like other cigarettes. The tobacco is not like the tobacco used in other cigarettes. It is mild, ripe—not harsh, or strong.

Then again, Chesterfields taste better. They are seasoned in the right way with the right kind of Turkish Tobacco. There is nothing flat or tasteless about them.

You're telling me "They Satisfy"!

● Isn't it exasperating to have to miss a wonderful party because of "recurring" pains! Embarrassing, too, when you can't tell friends the reason. But now, no need to flunk an exam or miss a party. When you are below par, take Kalms, quick-acting tablets developed by Johnson & Johnson especially to relieve "recurring" pains, such as headache, backache and neuralgia. Alpha Chapter of Honorary Scholastic Society Will Have Banquet at Ethan Allen Club

Grace E. Harris of Stowe, Stella Brown of Montpelier, Ida Saiger and D. W. Jenks of Burlington, J. L. Beckley of Great Neck, N. Y., and E. R. Carter of Groton are to be initiated this evening into Alpha Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity, at its mid-winter banquet in the Ethan Allen Club house. E. R. MISS FISHER WRITES INTRODUCTION TO "ROWLAND ROBINSON"

Seven-volume Centennial Edition to Be Published the First of December

Dorothy Canfield Fisher has just contributed an introduction to the forthcoming seven-volume Centennial Edition of Rowland Robinson, which will begin with Volume 1, to be published the first of December by The Tuttle Company, Rutland, Vermont. The series will contain a foreword by Dr. Fred Lewis Pattee of Rollins College and will be designed by and published under the supervision of Vrest Orton.

Rowland Robinson was perhaps Vermont's most typical and best beloved author. He wrote in the late nineteenth century about that corner of New England of earlier days. His books, long out of print and sought for by collectors, are a distinct contribution to Americana for their authentic and accurate recordings of the New England, and the French Canadian idiom and dialect. And his simple but moving yarns are, as Mrs. Fisher points out, as real as life itself and a true part of the childhood of all Vermonters who have heard them by word of mouth.

The new edition, edited by Prof. Llewellyn R. Perkins of Middlebury College, is to celebrate the 100th Anniversary of Robinson's birth which is being observed by many civic and social groups in Vermont this year. Rowland Robinson, long blind, lived and wrote his books in the quaint eighteenth century Robinson homestead at Ferrisburg, Vermont, which served as a station on the "Underground Railroad" before and during the Civil War. It has now become a shrine for Robinson admirers and is visited by hundreds every year. The blind man, once a fine wood engraver and cartoonist in New York, later a great hunter in, and lover of the fields and woods, returned to the scenes of his birth and spent the rest of his life writing fourteen books by the use of a unique grooved board which he invented, and on which he felt and made his writing pencil follow the raised lines. The new edition will contain much new material and also many of his drawings and wood engravings.

FALL PLAY REHEARSALS PROGRESS FAVORABLY

Cast and Coach Are Optimistic Concerning Success of "Torch-Bearers"

As Tuesday, December 12, draws near, all members connected with the production of "The Torch Bearers" are working hard, are decidedly optimistic concerning the success of the play to be presented in the City Hall Auditorium on that day.

Mrs. C. I. Taggart, who is coaching the fall play again this year, declares that "the play is excellently cast, and everyone is doing very well indeed. The play itself is a travesty on the Little Theater movement," she continues, "and is very very funny. The characters are very well drawn."

The play, by George Kelly, is a satirical farce with a New England flavor. The story is told that Mr. Kelly, while traveling in New England, saw a group of amateurs struggling to produce a play for their neighbor's benefit; that he was so amazed that he decided to write this drama, "The Torch-Bearers." In dialogue, the author laughs at the attempts of those amateurs who would "bear the torch of artistic ability" and give to posterity "the flame of dramatic art."

The story is that of a Little Theater group and its production, which been presented successfully once, and is to be repeated for the benefit of the Seamen's Destitute, a society for the aid of decrepit sailors. However, just three days before the first performance, the husband of the heroine died. Although the cast tried to persuade the bereaved that "it wasn't as if anyone close to you, of your family, or anything, had passed on," still she felt she could not fill the rôle. Therefore, Mrs. Fitzpatrick, the leading spirit (as the local newspaper termed her), influenced Mrs. Paula Ritter, whose sensible husband is away on business, to take part. Thus, when Mr. Ritter returns unexpectedly, he finds his wife a "highly talented emotional actress" (as she is hailed by the Evening Breeze), and himself in the midst of a rehearsal for the charity production scheduled for the following night; thus, in short, is the opening situation. The next two days bring many amusing and entertaining incidents, which lead to an unexpected conclusion.

The cast: Mrs. Paula Ritter, Ruth Maurice '37, who played in one of the group plays presented on November 2; Mrs. J. Duro Pampinelli, Eleanor Douglas '37; Nellie Fell, Birdie Creagh '35, who was in the group plays last year and was cast in the fall play the year before; Florence McCrickett, Marion Herberg '36, who was in the class play and the group plays last year, and the group plays this fall; Clara Sheppard, Alice McConnell '34, the president of Masque and Sandal, women's honorary dramatic society, and who was in "March Hares" and the group plays last spring; Jennie, Betty Beach '36, who was cast in the class play last year, but was unable to take part because of illness; Mr. Fred Ritter, S. Pierce, Jr. '34, president of Wig and Buskin, men's honorary dramatic society, and who played in "She Stoops to Conquer," and "To the Ladies," the fall play last year; Mr. Huxley Hossefrosse, H. Abbott '35, who was in the cast of "To the Ladies," and the group plays last spring; Mr. Ralph Twiller, E. B. Kane '36, who played in "To the Ladies" and the group plays last spring; Teddy Spearing, S. P. Belcher '37, who was in the group plays on November 2; Mr. Stage Manager, P. Andress '36, who played in "To the Ladies" and the group plays last spring.

PRESS CLUB TO CHOOSE NEW MEMBERS SOON

New members will be chosen for the Press Club, under the supervision of Professor Dean and Helen Mount '35, in about two weeks. All the scrubs who have done regular work and have met all the requirements may be fairly sure of becoming members.

The quality of the work will be taken into consideration first and then the amount of time spent. The scrubs sign up in a book the number of hours they have spent a week.

Two Sunday services were held in the Ira Allen Chapel.

The convention opened with a banquet and addresses Friday evening in the Gymnasium. President Bailey who was unable to attend, was represented by Dean J. L. Hills, who gave the University welcome. Margaret Nugent '35 and R... Wright '35 gave the conference welcome from the Y. W. C. A. and the V. C. A. respectively. The conference speaker was a nationally known figure, Rev. E. A. ("Dad") Waite of the American Youth Foundation, St. Louis.

The plan of the conference was to divide into commissions, six in number, under competent discussion leaders and experienced resource leaders. Sunday, at the last session of the convention, commission findings were reported to the general assembly, and opportunity for give and take of question, criticism and suggestion was allowed. These findings are later to be compiled into pamphlet form as the official decisions of the conference.

The conference theme was "Finding One's Self in a Changing World." The six commissions discussed it under the following heads: 1. Personal Religion—what should religion mean to me today? 2. Moral Issues—what is right and what

CHOIR WILL PRESENT CHRISTMAS CONCERT

To Be Assisted by Orchestra, Date Changed Because of Vesper Service

The annual Christmas concert by the University choir will take place this Sunday, December 10, at 4 o'clock in Ira Allen Chapel instead of the following week as originally scheduled.

Prof. H. G. Bennett, director, is to be assisted by Clair Leonard as organist and the University orchestra with Miss Charlotte deVolt as concert master. The Rev. R. A. Hall of the Congregational Church of Charlotte and of the department of English will read from the scriptures.

The program which will be announced in the next issue of the CYNIC consists of a variety of Christmas selections.

Because of the vesper service on December 17, a date made necessary in order to secure the visiting speaker, the concert date had to be set ahead.

The concert is as usual open to the public.

BLUESTOCKINGS HAS MANY CONTRIBUTIONS

An unusually large number of contributions has been submitted this year to Bluestockings, women's honorary literary society, it was recently announced by Alice Hoyt '34, president.

The writings are now being judged by the various committees on short stories, essays, and poetry, and nominations for membership will be made as soon as possible. The standards are quite strict especially since the group wishes to keep its membership limited. There are now twelve or thirteen members in the society.

Coming up against a strong Clarkson team, the Cats were robbed of a victory through poor officiating as they outplayed the Engineers most of the game. Delfausse, Saba, Cook and Beckley featured in this encounter. In the next playing at Boston University the fates were again against us for a series of lucky laterals gave the Terriers the game. Vermont threatened to score several catching the Green and Gold made an times but uncertainty near the goal line resulted in fumbles and spoiled chances.

Year's High Point

The greatest event of the year came when the confident Wildcat eleven from New Hampshire came onto Centennial Field. The Wildcats, a very heavy team and one of the outstanding of the smaller outfits in New England, conceded the Green and Gold little chance for a victory. Everything clicked that day for Vermont and with Negus, Paul, Werner, Saba and Rapuano playing even greater ball than the rest, outplayed them to win. From that high point of the schedule the Cats steadily declined and although we beat Norwich it was only the great punting and passing game that saved us. Overconfident, the Cats next took on St. Michael's, who took advantage of last-period breaks to score two touchdowns and thoroughly humiliate the Vermont team. Saba, Ramon, Cook and Morgan did well in this debacle.

The Middlebury Panthers, coming two weeks later, showed very much superior teamwork but won on breaks. Saba, Werner, Ramon, Beckley, Negus and Cook turned in good performances Saba especially, excelled in catching passes and running back punts while Werner bucking the line and Ramon backing it up were standouts.

Players lost for next year's team include: Saba, Bowers, Morgan, Beckley, Joe Delfausse, McGowan, Rapuano, Sowka, Blakey, Wegner, Concannon, Ricker, Selib and Cass. The valuable returning material includes: Cook, Ramon, Lanahan, R. Delfausse, Denhoff, Saxton, Caracciola, Behringer and Pogar, Negus, Werner, Paul, Giardi, Funk, Fraint, Gardner, Jones. Coach Burke's contract will expire with the conclusion of the basketball season and not any definite word has been given out as to the situation for next year.

U. V. M. TO GIVE THREE LITERARY SCHOLARSHIPS

Three literary scholarships of $100 each, sponsored by the University of Vermont, are to be offered for the first time this year for the best short story, the best essay and the best poem written by high school students in the State of Vermont.

The purpose of the scholarships is to stimulate literary interest and activity in the high schools of the state, and any high school senior or junior of good standing in a four year high school in Vermont is eligible to compete. Each school may submit three manuscripts in each class, there is a limit of three in the essay class. The manuscripts must be the unassisted work of the author, and a member of that class must sign each manuscript. The manuscripts will be judged by the literary critics of Vermont whose names may be addressed in care of Prof. Lane W. Lane. The contest will close May 1, the date all manuscripts must be received.

TRAYNOR TROPHY TO BE AWARDED AGAIN

Will Be Presented, as Usual, by Key and Serpent in Memory of E. L. Traynor

The Traynor trophy, which is presented each year to the fraternity gaining the greatest number of points in interfraternity contests, will again be awarded this year by Key and Serpent, the junior honorary society, presided over by G. H. Cook, Jr., president.

The trophy is a silver loving cup. It is presented by Key and Serpent each year in memory of Edward I. ("Pie") Traynor '32, baseball captain-elect for 1931, who was killed in an automobile accident during the Christmas vacation of 1930 near his home in New York City. It was awarded first to Kappa Sigma in November, 1931.

The point basis governs qualifications for the cup, which gives it to the fraternity which proves itself outstanding in interfraternity competition. Points may be earned in competition in touch football, basketball, baseball, winter sports, track events, Junior Week stunts and Peerade, and Kake Walk events. In all these activities both the winner and the runner-up will be recognized. Scholastic standing will be reckoned twice during the year.

Traynor, in whose memory the cup is to be presented, was one of the last to play varsity baseball during his freshman year before the one-year ineligibility regulation went into effect at the University. He was a member of the freshman baseball team in 1928 under the coaching of Larry Gardner, during his first year as coach. He was born in Philadelphia, January 24, 1909 and graduated from the Manual Training High School in Brooklyn, N. Y. He enrolled at Vermont with the class of 1932 in the Commerce and Economics course. He was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

The spring of 1931 would have seen Traynor playing his third year at second base but for his untimely accident. While in college he attained a batting average of .335 during his last season, and participated in every minute of every game. He was high scorer in the 1931 interfraternity touch football tournament.

The Traynor trophy will not be kept in permanent possession by any fraternity, but will rotate from year to year to the winner. Two years ago Sigma Phi was the highest scorer, with Alpha Tau Omega a close second.

CAT'S MEOW

[illegible]

I don't regard all the day's suggestions that are coming between the end of the football season and the beginning of basketball, topics of note on the sweets given round.

It is presumed, however, that the Delt ice truck no longer makes daily trips to the campus.

One more thing to report that our varsity basketeers are all set for a big season with such individuals on hand as Capt. Leon Vaplon-Lanier Bradley, Platonic friend Palmer Mott, Sowka, Gates Grant, Eagle Morgan, Enos Ramon, and Lowcat Valery.

Our esteemed contemporary, The New Hampshire, releases to the waiting public an all-New England team. They include our own Eddie Saba in the first team backfield together with such standouts as Stangle of Dartmouth and Capt. Bob Lassiter of Yale.

Evidently they thought so much of the Willimantic boy that they just had to Saba place for him. Pardon that one; it just couldn't be helped.

The basketball fan who can't get along without his favorite game might drop up to the gym of an evening and get a load of the class basketball games.

These struggles are often more spirited than the varsity games. They are usually good for plenty of laughs, also.

The veteran senior team looks to be a cinch for the championship.

After lengthy and involved negotiations the management of the senior team has secured the services of Beowulf Wegner, the prehistoric terror of the Connecticut badlands, as center. This attraction alone should make the senior team worth going miles to see.

A thought for the graduate manager: When the Athletic Association recuperates from its present debility, one of the first things it could do would be to install a press box in the football stands at Centennial Field. The conditions under which the press is forced to labor are exasperating, to say the least.

Our inside men have not as yet furnished us with any hot tips concerning the frosh basketballers. We do not intend to keep our palpitating public in suspense much longer, however, so look for a few dopeful bulletins concerning the Kittens in our next issue.

And so to bed.

MEDICAL APTITUDE TEST

The medical aptitude test required of all students who intend to apply for admission to the Medical College of the University of Vermont and by most grade A medical schools as one of the requirements for admission, will be given in Room 27, Science Hall on Wednesday, December 6, at 3:00 p.m. Registration for this test must be made prior to the above date with Professor Jordan, Room 14 Medical College. Every student who is considering the study of medicine next year should take the test and it should be noted that taking the test does not obligate a student to apply for admission to a medical college. The hour and day for this test is set by the authorities of the Association of American Medical Colleges.

A meeting for general description and discussion of the test by Professor Jordan will be held in Room 27, Science Hall, on Tuesday, December 5, at 4:00 p.m. Attendance at this meeting is optional but advised.

Tuesday afternoon from 3:00 to 4:00 there will be basketball for any girl who wants to practice an extra hour. Anyone interested should sign up in the "Y" room. It's a good chance to get in a lot of basketball practice.

3 about Cigarettes

Not so long ago practically all cigarettes were made by hand

Now, Chesterfields are made by high-speed machines that turn out 750 cigarettes a minute, and the cigarettes are practically not touched by hand.

BY the use of long steel ovens—drying machines of the most modern type—and by ageing the leaf tobacco for 30 months—like wine is aged—Chesterfield tobacco is milder and tastes better.

Only pure cigarette paper—the best made—is used for Chesterfield.

And to make sure that everything that goes into Chesterfield is just right, expert chemists test all materials that are used in any way in the manufacture.

Chesterfields are made and packed in clean, up-to-date factories, where the air is changed every 4½ minutes. The moisture-proof package, wrapped in Du Pont's No. 300 Cellophane—the best made—reaches you just as if you went by the factory door.

In a letter to us, an eminent scientist says:

"Chesterfield Cigarettes are just as pure as the water you drink."

ARGOW TO GIVE FINAL TALKS ON RELIGION NOW

Eminent Preacher Climaxes Week of Question Box Discussion of Liberal Religion Problems

The pastor of the Unitarian Church of Burlington announced last week a series of addresses by the Rev. Dr. W. W. Argow, minister of the May Memorial Church in Syracuse, N. Y. He is here to give opportunity to discuss and ask questions about liberal religion, in the manner of Fosdick and other famous preachers. He will give private audience to those who desire to make appointments for more personal discussion.

He has three talks scheduled for tonight and Sunday morning. Each evening address is preceded by a question period, during which Doctor Argow answers questions on religion submitted in writing on that or the previous evening. The church has installed a "question box" for the deposit of questions.

The remaining schedule of talks is: Tonight, "The Cure for Our Present Spiritual Paralysis"; Sunday morning, "The Great Hunger of This Age."

Prominent as a Unitarian clergyman, author and lecturer, Doctor Argow is a member of the Masons, Brotherhood, a liberal preaching order which is devoted to widespread education in liberal religion.

Doctor Argow is the author of "Was Abraham Lincoln a Christian?" "Is Death the End?" "What Must America Do to Be Saved?" "Life as a Point of View," "Outspoken Thoughts," and "Beyond," a book of meditations. He is a member of the editorial board of Unity, a liberal weekly, also of the Wayside Pulpit Committee of the American Unitarian Association which, with a similar committee of Universalists, makes the selections for the sentence sermons of the outdoor posters of the "Community Wayside Pulpit." He is a member of the American Association of Sociologists, the Iowa Historical Society and the American Academy of Political Science.

FOURTH COLLEGE LECTURE GIVEN WEDNESDAY BY M. DESCLOS IN MUSEUM HALL

History of French Landscape Painting Depicted by Artist With Aid of Lantern Slides

A word artist himself, M. Auguste Desclos last Wednesday night, with the aid of carefully selected lantern slides, depicted for an appreciative audience the history of French landscape painting from mediaeval times to the present. The lecture held in the Fleming Museum at eight o'clock, was the fourth in this year's series.

That nature has scarcely seemed to inspire painters in early times, Monsieur Desclos began, would seem obvious from the history of painting.

But, he declared, artists have been sensible to the beauty of nature, even in the Middle Ages. But in that time they were directed by convention; there was no realistic landscape painting.

In the Middle Ages, painting originated merely as a branch of architecture, and most of the architecture was religious; the whole life of the community was dominated by the Church. This earth was the "Vale of Tears" where one prepared for the life everlasting in a world to come; while nature was represented by nymphs and satyrs, believed by pious folk to be incarnations of evil spirits. The task of the artist, then, was not to depict the evil world about him, but to prepare men for the future world.

The only art of the time, mural, tapestries, illuminated manuscripts, used for a background azure or gold.

Little by little, landscapes came to be used. They were, it is true, artificial and conventional, but they were landscapes. They were symbols and had a part in the story to be told; they formed a sort of atmosphere and represented the vices and virtues figuring in the story. Mountains and rivers had a moral significance, and there were trees such as man has never seen and mountains he can only imagine.

In the fifteenth century was the advent of something curious in France—realistic landscapes. It is one of the few movements of whose beginning we can accurately answer the questions When, Where, and Why. An exciting date made

H. H. Abbott '35 who takes the part of Mr. Huxley Hoopdriver made the following statement: "Anyone who enjoyed the fall play of last year will enjoy this to a far greater degree. It contains many amusing and complicated situations which should create for the audience many moments of delightful entertainment. It is a very difficult play to [illegible] for there are several times during the play when four or five are speaking at the same time."

We want everyone to see 'Torchbearers' as it is certainly bound to be successful. It is very, very funny and we are all working to put it over. She takes the part of Mrs. Pamphilli, "the leading spirit" in attempting to "bear high the torch of artistic ability."

TWO POLITICAL SCIENCE PRIZES ANNOUNCED

Announcement of two fifty dollar prizes in the department of political science was made this week by Prof. E. C. Mower, head of the department. The two prizes will be given for the best essays on two political subjects. They are given as the Philo Sherman Bennett prize and the Robert D. Benedict prize.

Awards will be made as the result of examination on the essays. They should be presented to the Committee on Degrees not later than May 1. The department head will be glad to confer with students intending to compete for the prize.

The Bennett prize is given for the best essay "discussing the principles of free government." Mr. Bennett left a fund of $400, the income of which is paid annually at Commencement as this prize.

The Benedict essay prize requires the best essay from a member of the senior class on the subject of "International Arbitration." Benedict, of the class of 1848, left the University $300, the income from which goes to the writer of the [illegible] essay. The interest on [illegible] has been accumulating for [illegible] and no prizes were [illegible] so [illegible] is larger this year than usual.

Old Mill Gives Up History Of Adventures In Former Years

Ancient Building and Traditions Described From Erection of Predecessor in 1801 Through Fire, Water, and the Sword to Present Ancient Pile

The campus [illegible] its traditions, the [illegible] buildings have their [illegible] and have appeared in the CYNIC expounding the dire need of a new, larger and better equipped building to replace the traditional "Old Mill." Such a need cannot be denied; yet before any radical changes are made it is perhaps best to investigate the history, and traditions of the ancient building.

In the spring of 1801 the first of the college buildings was erected after the years of wasting during which time the State of Vermont and the University suffered many trials and tribulations. Much difficulty was encountered [illegible] in selecting plans for the building. But the problem was solved by Governor Tichenor of Vermont, who submitted plans modeled after one of the college buildings at [illegible]. Princeton, the [illegible] Mower. It was a large [illegible] the second [illegible] was [illegible] glorious [illegible] nearly a quarter of a century.

Used as Barracks

During the War of 1812 the Old Mill was used as barracks for the soldiers. The University received $ 600 from the United States Government for rental and damages incurred during its occupation by the troops. With this money extensive repairs were made in the Old Mill and in other buildings on the campus.

In 1864 just following another critical period in the history of the University the college building was destroyed by fire. Due to the efforts of Professor [illegible]

After that the freshman was willing enough to disclose any information that the reporter was looking for.

Funny Question

"What was the purpose for my coming here this evening" queried the fair one. "What a funny question! Can't I come here if I want? Well, anyhow I've got to look up the lives of some famous French authors and so I thought this would be the most logical place to go to for that pertinent information. When asked whether she made a regular habit of coming to the library to study, she answered: "Well, not exactly, but whenever I feel sort of lonesome, I come here to do my work. I like the atmosphere where everyone is quiet and working much."

The reporter then wandered up the stairs and there he saw a young Irishman looking through the art books and gazing at certain kinds of pictures. When he was asked why he happened to come to the library, he was rather embarrassed and stammered out that he was waiting till the Burlington Free Press would be free, and so to kill a few hours he was amusing himself by gloating over the fruit of some French artist's brawn.

The fellow that was using the Burlington Free Press said, in answer to the same question, that he liked to keep up with the news of the day, and so he made it a point to drop in every evening, no matter how busy he happened to be, and scan the day's newspapers from the Rutland Herald to the magazine section of the New York Times.

Femmes and "Boys' Life"

Sitting at the same round table with the last mentioned person was a young lady, deeply engrossed in the latest copy of Boys' Life. She said, rather blushingly that she had always liked to read boys' literature rather than that which was allotted to the feminine sex. "I like stories with action to them—a little football, a little wild west, a little adventure, and so on. I never cared for stories concerning nice little Annie who sewed a dress for her dollie on one day and on the next sewed her dollie a bonnet. Such things always nauseated me. Maybe I should have been masculine."

Seeing that the situation was getting too warm, and nobody for him, the reporter laughed, said, "Well, it would have been better wouldn't it," and made a quick get-away. The next person to be interviewed was a graduate student who, upon studying into the matter, found there wasn't a graduate student used to work nowhere in the whole library. At last report that he wanted to find quiet spaces that he wanted to concentrate. After consultation for a few minutes, the reporter found himself in a conversation with the aforementioned and after talking on various topics, not just for a rather length period of time he succeeded in popping the same question on that worthy individual.

"Why, I don't know, only for the fact that there are by far, much greater facilities for energetic study than anywhere else. I find that I can concentrate much—oh, very much more in this certain room than in any place I've ever studied. And then, of course where could I get all these reference books. They are most invaluable to me." After talking another considerable length of time with him on various current topics of the day, the reporter extricated himself from the [illegible] and proceeded to look for new victims. Glancing all about, he noticed a well-known sophomore, gazing at a book which he had taken from the reserve shelf. At that moment [illegible] the fact that he could

Pictures of Color

Then was the reign of the picture of color; and then was the time of Claude Monet. A picture of his, of the shimmer of light on a river's surface, is, says Monsieur Desclos, the perfection of the realist landscape.

All had been accomplished; there was nothing left to glean. At its zenith, realism was played out. So artists today are returning to the intellectual conception of painting, and in a day when there are no conventions, only the artist's desires.

"All of this leads us to an outstanding fact," Monsieur Desclos philosophized, "that always art is a language, a language by which one man conveys his ideas and emotions to another's mind. Certainly, this language must be intelligible. But we ourselves, if we wish to be fair to the artist, must try to learn his language.

WOMEN'S BADMINTON TOURNAMENT UNDER WAY

Harriet Gray '36, in Charge, Announces Winter Schedules for Novel Sport

Badminton is being started with much enthusiasm among the women here at the University according to Harriet Gray '36, who is in charge of the tournaments now being started. Matches are to be played off at the houses and dormitories and then between the girls who live in town.

After that tournaments will be held between the winners of these matches to find the badminton champion of the University of Vermont.

"No one has had much practice in playing the game and we want everybody to come out for it," says Harriet Gray. "It is very easy to learn and lots of fun to play. If you have a few minutes' time to spend come up to the gym and practice. The cage is to be free for use on Mondays and Wednesdays from 3.00 to 5.00, Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3.00 to 4.00, and on Fridays from 2.00 to 4.00. Miss Frederica Frey of the physical education department will give special instruction on Fridays.

According to the Sportswoman, "badminton is becoming so popular a game in the United States that the formation of a national badminton association is being considered. India, England, Canada and Australia already have national associations. Two years ago the English men's team visited the Canadian Association and international matches were played. The game is one of the best of winter indoor games, as it can be played on any kind of a floor and in comparatively small space. The speed, agility and accuracy required make it an ideal form of exercise.

CO-EDS HEAR DISCUSSION OF MENTAL HYGIENE BY PROF. SARA HOLBROOK

Thirty-five college women were present at the Alpha Chi Omega house, Sunday evening, November 26, to hear a mental hygiene discussion led by Miss Sara Holbrook. Miss Holbrook began the discussion with an introductory talk on social adjustments. She stressed the necessity for one's knowing her own potentialities, then adapting her work to her abilities. The best way to overcome mental illusions is to have something to take up one's time, and in which one is really interested. This, in part, was the message which Miss Holbrook brought to the meeting.

Following this, there was a very informal discussion of individual problems concerning mental difficulties.

The Women's Health Council was the sponsor of this meeting, and it is hoped that throughout the winter more of them may be held as successfully. The Health Council is of the belief that here is a chance for free argument and general discussion about the various health problems which face everyone. Later meetings will be concerned with various other phases of health.

The committee in charge of the Sunday night meeting consisted of Ruth Barrow '36, Gladys Sussdorf '35, Margaret McCracken '35, and Marguerite Bean '37.

OLD MILL ADVENTURES OF PAST YEARS GIVEN

Porter, a young chemistry instructor and a few of the younger graduates, funds were raised for the erection of a new building. All that remained of the institution was a few baskets of books, some philosophical apparatus in the corner room of a deserted storehouse, and the newly started foundation of North College. Three buildings were eventually constructed on the spots known as north, south, and middle and between each building was an intervale of seven or eight feet. Governor Van Ness laid the corner stone of North College in the spring of 1827. On June 29, 1825 a month or two later, General Lafayette laid the corner stone of South College. Middle College was not completed until 1829. The north and south structures were built for dormitories. The buildings were three stories high and seventy-five feet long by thirty-six feet wide. Later a few recitation rooms were placed on the first floor of South College. The Middle College, somewhat longer than the other two, contained the chapel, museum, library, lecture rooms, and two rooms assigned to "The Social Fire" and "University Institute," rival debating societies. It was surmounted by a gilded dome, the working plans for which were drawn up by Professor Benedict. It was a prominent landmark during the time that it remained standing.

Buildings Finally Connected

In 1848 a few new rooms were added by walling up the space between the buildings. There were, however, no corridors running lengthwise of the structure, thereby making it necessary to go out of doors in passing from one building or from one room to another. The tin roof was changed at this time for one of Welsh slate.

Shortly after 1860 the north and south buildings were both thoroughly repaired and a convenient suite of rooms provided for students. The chapel was also enlarged.

In 1882 the construction of the "Old Mill" in its present form was made possible by John P. Howard, who contributed nearly $50,000. The plans were drawn up by J. J. Randall of Rutland. The different stories were raised, and the chapel and other rooms were enlarged by adding projections at the ends and center. A drill room then occupied what is now the University Store, Coffee Corner, and educational offices. The rooms over the chapel were then used by the Engineering College. The administration offices were on either side of the central projection off the main hall, probably about where the Dean's office and the Y. M. C. A. rooms are now located. Room 1 North was then a chemical laboratory, and the rooms over it were dormitories. The rest of North and the corresponding parts of South (Rooms 3, 23 and 33 at either end) contained lecture rooms and store rooms. With the exception of the part on the fourth floor, above the chapel, the entire South College was used for a dormitory. The corner stone of the reconstructed building was reland with Masonic ceremonies conducted by Dr. L. C. Butler of Essex, as a part of the commencement program on June 26, 1883.

In the early part of the summer of 1918 the south wing was badly damaged by fire and extensive repairs were made on the building. The dormer windows which used to light the fourth story were removed. At this time the present steam heating system was installed to take the place of the stoves. In order that visitors to the city might take advantage of the view from the tower the stairs leading up to it were repaired and electric lights put in. This renovation gave us the new and present Old Mill except that Room 4 south was then the Trophy Room. The north end was also renovated in the summer of 1919, when a general cleaning up took place following the occupation of University property by military units.

VERMONT CRAFTS EXHIBIT OPENS

Hundreds of Hand-made Articles on Display in Fleming Museum, Third Floor

Hundreds of articles made by the skilled hand of Vermont men and women are now displayed in the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont, awaiting the opening of the Vermont Crafts exhibit on Monday, December 4.

The exhibit which is on the third floor of the museum, occupies the whole of the art gallery. The articles displayed are all for sale and those who entered them are prepared to furnish duplicates to prospective customers. The object of the exhibit is to encourage native crafts and to create a market for them. The many objects exhibited, including rugs, woodcuts, furniture, baskets, leather goods and many other articles have been selected on a basis of quality from preliminary exhibits and come from individuals and groups in all parts of the State.

One of the interesting exhibits is a hooked rug, 8 x 12 feet in size, having twenty-four squares, each square having been set by itself and made of hooked wool in original patterns.

The exhibit is from December 4 to 10, inclusive, which takes it through next Sunday, when metropolitan visitors can take advantage of low week-end train rates to visit it. The exhibit will be open to the public each afternoon, including Sunday, from 2.00 to 5.30 and on Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Members of the Klifa and Athena Clubs of Burlington will be hostesses. Railroads are offering special train rates through the State.

The Biggest user

OF FINE TURKISH TOBACCOS

—why Luckies taste better, smoother

On certain mountains in the Near East is a limited collar of earth—called in Turkish, "Yacca." Tobaccos grown there cost as high as $1.00 a pound. Carefully they are examined, leaf by leaf. Often it takes a man a whole day to select two pounds of certain of these fine tobaccos. Lucky Strike is the world's biggest user of fine Turkish tobaccos. For these tender, delicate Turkish leaves are blended with choice tobaccos from our own Southland—to make your Lucky Strike a cigarette that is fully packed—round and firm—free from loose ends. That's why Luckies taste better, smoother.

CHINA'S COMPLICATED PROBLEMS DISCUSSED BY CAPTAIN COLBY IN TALK

C. B. Eaton '34 Resigns Presidency of Public Affairs Club Because of Doctor's Orders

"Disinterested observers agree that no self-defense was involved in the actions of the Japanese in fighting the Chinese from September 18, 1930, until the cessation of hostilities," Capt. E. Colby told an interested audience Friday evening, December 8, at a regular meeting of the Public Affairs Club. Speaking on the Far East situation with which he is familiar from having been stationed in China as an American Army officer, Captain Colby held the interest of the club members with a detailed account of the customs and personal traits of the Chinese.

Prior to the talk Helen B Jenkins '34, vice-president of the Public Affairs Club, presided over the meeting which was the first since the resignation of C. B. Eaton '34 from the presidency. His resignation followed orders from his personal physician that he give up all active extra-curricular duties and part of his class work because of ill health.

Concerning the commercial life of China, Captain Colby remarked: "The Chinese have no deep admiration for successful business men. They merely feel that the wealthy merchant has been lucky. They have a novel way of doing away with capitalistic competition. When steamers were introduced by a shipping company on the Yangtze River, and the Chinese boatmen saw that the steamers could carry passengers and freight cheaper than their small boats were able to, they initiated sabotage against the steamers.

"China is a collection of individual units governed locally, family or tribal life holding sway. It is a government of moral law, few desiring another person's property, or stealing from others."

Discussing the international aspect, Captain Colby said: "The Far West is intensely interested in China commercially. Theoretically, western nations have divided China up among themselves for commercial gain.

"Japanese troops could drive in from the north and attack the Chinese, but business in the southern part of the country would go on just as usual between the Chinese and the Japanese business men who happened to be there at the time.

... of the scheme Miss ... "Let us hope that the system does not pass through a process of evolution and develop so that it would be the woman who pays and pays. Let's make it a fifty-fifty proposition."

Man Loses Self-respect

"I guess I'm old-fashioned, but I believe there is a double standard in dates as well as in other things in life," declared Alice Hoyt, president of Bluestockings, when asked her opinion of women's Dutch treating. "A boy loses a little bit of self-respect if he goes on Dutch treat most of the time," she stated. "His opinion of himself and the girl's opinion of him is lowered. If a boy and girl have gone together two or three years, I think it is perfectly all right for the girl to invite him out occasionally to a movie or a dinner."

Ada Ingalls, president of Pan-Hellenic Council, believes that Dutch-treating is a good thing and its only obstacle is pride. "The girl does not like to ask a man and it hurts the boy to have to ask the girl to share expenses," said Miss Ingalls. She stated that the entertainment evenings at Vermont are a good step in this direction.

FIVE SORORITY DANCES ARE HELD SATURDAY

Christmas Informals Are Marked by Holiday Features of the Yule Season

Five sororities held their informals on Saturday, December 9. The houses that gave the dances were Kappa Alpha Theta, Pi Beta Phi, Alpha Chi Omega, Kappa Delta and Sigma Gamma.

The Theta dance was under the charge of Helen Miller '35. Bob Minot's orchestra furnished the music for the occasion, and the chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Kiphuth and Prof. and Mrs. H. A. Prentice.

Among poinsettias and rose stockings over the fireplace, evergreens decorating the room, and lighted candles in the windows, the Pi Beta Phi dance took place under the direction of Betty Boright '35. The chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rebmey, Prof. L. D. Meredith and Miss Laura Parker, and the orchestra which played was the Carolina [illegible] prompt.

At the Alpha Chi dance many alumnae were present. Whittemore orchestra from Worcester supplied the music, and the chaperones were Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Brown. The dance was under the supervision of Ruth Wilkins '35.

Both Kappa Delta and Sigma Gamma gave balloon dances. Prof. and Mrs. G. Dykhuizen, Mr. and Mrs. Truman [illegible] and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Volz were the chaperones for the Kappa Delta dance held at the Knights of Columbus rooms under the charge of Marie Horak '34. The orchestra was Doug Green's "Blue Ribbon Boys."

At the Catholic Daughters' rooms Joe Lechnyr's "Vermonters" furnished the music for the Sigma Gamma dance, which was in charge of Theodora Johnson '34. The chaperones were Prof. and Mrs. P. H. Ewert, Miss Cornelia Collier and Mr. M. H. Aldrich.

W. A. A. SPONSORS HOUR OF DANCING AND GAMES

Recreation night, sponsored by W. A. A., was held in the gym Friday, December 8, between seven and eight. Thirty-five women were present; the number was less than had been anticipated, but there were enough present to prove that this experiment in providing a place and time for participation in dancing and games was a success. The point of the matter is to work up unity between the students. It is hoped to have several more recreation nights after mid-years and one before if other activities do not intervene.

Tobin Criticizes Attendance

But we of the technical staff ... [illegible] ... have taken pains to ... And when finally ... detail and training we dress ... and have on a production as finished as a ... working three hours a day ... four weeks can make it, out in front ... the footlights we spot a host of ... three-quarters audience. Our receipts ... barely top our expenditures. Of course ... it's fun, at times, and good training, but ... we ask ourselves, is it worth it?"

Backstage with the Cast

The act mentioned by Tobin is the unusual feature of the play. Instead of the ordinary play within a play common in Shakespeare, the audience is given a backstage view of the actual production of a play. One sees the backs of the regular stage "flats" with doors and iron braces, a switchboard and extra properties exactly as any backstage appears ordinarily, and on the other side of the scenery the play within the play is going on. Whenever the door is opened for someone to exit from or enter the stage on the other side, the audience catches glimpses of a row of regulation footlights and an expanse of carpeted stage with properties in place and characters going through their play. Thus one sees a play being put on, from the backstage angle.

The idea of thus calling attention to good food and rest habits at the time of year is to help the students best prepare themselves for passing the mid-year examinations.

SENIOR CO-EDS TALK ON DUTCH TREATS

Reduces Gold-diggers

[illegible] a very good idea especially [illegible] was the opinion of Velma Thornton, president of Women's Glee Club. She believes that Dutch treating will reduce the number of gold-diggers among the women. She advises the ladies not to [illegible] on the victim.

Dutch treats should depend on the individuals concerned, according to Catherine Dysart, president of Women's Student Union. Generally speaking, I would approve the adoption of it at present on the campus," says Miss Dysart, although in some instances it might be advantageous.

According to Augusta Cohen, women's editor of the Cynic, Dutch treating would be very desirable at Vermont. "The system should be made flexible, and not universal. It might eliminate the unreasonable practice of using a date [illegible] as a meal ticket." she added. The average co-ed allowance is not any less than the average man's and she should bear her share of the expenses. Miss Cohen believes that the system should be universally practiced on restaurant and eating places. It would seem to advantage to extend it to the social affairs as dances, although [illegible] might cause [illegible] be solved by mutual [illegible].

Hard on Pride

"Dutch-treating is a bad policy," said Claribel Morris, president of Mortar Board. "If a man really wants to take a girl out he can usually scrape up the money somehow, and if he can't, I think it is better he never should be done. Miss Morris suggests that if a man is a mere pride to let a girl what she can and it is not much than for the girl.

Dutch-treating would be worthy of a trial at Vermont if it would enlarge the number of men and women enjoying social life, according to a statement made by Gilbert Harris, Women's Student Union chief justice. "The system should be tried with reservations," said Miss Harris. "It might be improved on dances and eating places. But I see no reason why the girl should not pay if she wants the evening with a companion on the campus."

Barbara Bodmer, president of Pi Beta Phi, declared: "I don't like the system at all, unless the girl is going out occasionally with a date and then it may be the best regulation with no [illegible]."

The first meeting of the new fencing class was held Wednesday December 6. Because many did not see the notices, only twenty out of the thirty five who signed up were present. G. H. Burrows, H. '34 coached for a half hour. Arrangements for the next meeting are as yet undecided, but it is hoped that it may be held at a time convenient for all. The class may later be divided into two parts.

"We are much pleased with the amount of interest shown in fencing and hope that it will continue. There is to be a course of ten lessons at this time for one dollar, which seems reasonable. The money is to be used for purchasing fencing supplies. We hope to continue more lessons if the interest in this sport does not wane," stated Katherine Babbitt '37, manager of fencing.

The members of the 1934 aggregation acted as if they had never seen each other before and as if they never wanted to again.

The freshman team looks like the strongest five to represent the first-year men in quite a spell, two years anyway.

Such men as Al Tomassetti, the Meriden whirlwind; Dick Duncan and Lefty Warden, formerly of Mount Hermon School, George Shaw, the lightweight end of the frosh football team; and Cowles Munger of Peacham, supported by a brilliant cast of understudies, form a combine sure to strike fear into their opponents' hearts.

For the second time within a week Vermont will suffer invasion from a tribe of Indians—this time a bloodthirsty band of aborigines who come screaming from the hidden hills of Hanover.

Tomorrow night the Big Green will hold an almost entirely veteran quintet. Captain Kraszewski, George Stangle, Jake Edwards and Bonniwell, the last two named being former leading scorers of the Eastern Intercollegiate League, form a highly capable nucleus.

We refuse to attempt to predict the winner of this game because of the recent disheartening reverses we have nobly suffered. However, we think that our personal opinion as to who will win the game is the same as that held by a large number of Vermont students. (Note: This is where we're playing smart.)

Both Notre Dame and Dartmouth are changing football coaches. This news gives us food for thought.

Fighting Catamounts Win Season's First Game by 28 to 22, Last Saturday

MORGAN HIGH SCORER

A Vermont basketball team with the varsity quintet being composed entirely of freshmen stepped out on the court to take exact McGill in keeping with tradition by the score of 28-22 last Saturday night. By winning the opener the Cats continued where they left off last spring with the State championship in their hands.

As the game time neared Vermont appeared with Captain Beckley and Grant at forward, Morgan center and Palmer and Sowka, guards. Soon after the whistle started the Green Mountaineers jumped to an early lead when Grant tossed in a two pointer. The Montreal team then knotted the count and began to forge ahead due to the excellent work of that ex-Dartmouth star Howie Lewin. They worked well together and simply tired our boys out. Here Coach Edwin Burke with the score 13-12 against him strategically sent in fresh men retaining only Palmer in the starting five. The quartet had Saba at center Werner and Sturn, both playing their first intercollegiate game at forward, and Ramon at the other guard position. This combination, while they scored but once, held McGill to three points and in general fired enthusiasm and spirit into the game. They succeeded perfectly in their venture to run the Canadians ragged. As the period closed the first half McGill had the lead 16-14.

The same team which closed the last period of play the red-jerseyed boys drew first blood to increase their lead. With Vermont further behind than they had been throughout the game, Coach Burke sent in the entire starting quintet. The State champs fought hard and clean and waited until they could make a break. Then came the tally sheet saying that McGill led by two points, Lewin, who already had three personals charged against him, fouled Eddie Sowka to have himself removed from the game. Realizing his opportunity, Mink Sowka proceeded to sink two beauties through the hoop to knot the score. Rejuvenated, the Cats scored again to take the lead. From then on they played inspired ball to pile up their score and win the opener 28-22.

The team as a whole worked well throughout the contest although they consistently missed easy shots which would have mounted their total to quite an extent. Jack Morgan, despite his injured knee, played a stellar game at the pivot, holding Lewin well at all times and being high scorer with seven points. Jack dropped in two beautiful pivot shots to climax his excellent performance. The forwards, led by Bob Grant, scoring six points, and Capt. John Beckley, in a new position, with two points, all played capably; while of the guards, Palmer played a good floor game although his shooting was below par, and Sowka rose superbly to the heights when he tied the score. The screen formation, introduced last year, was used to good advantage and should improve as the season progresses.

Lewin led the Canadian attack and was the spearhead of their entire play. He was their high scorer with six points [illegible] and [illegible] at the [illegible] court [illegible] included [illegible] and four points respectively [illegible] the [illegible] summary follows:

JUNIORS TAKE FIRST GAME OF INTERCLASS SCHEDULE WEDNESDAY

Neither Team is Able to Gain Advantage During First Half

GAME IS PLAYED HARD AND FAST FROM TOSS-UP

On Wednesday night the seniors and juniors opened the 1933 interclass basketball league games, with the former coming out on the short end of a 21-12 score. The game was played at a very fast pace throughout, and the teams were evenly matched for the first half.

At the toss both teams guarded closely, and neither team was able to score for the first few minutes, but Cogswell broke the ice with a fine shot from the center line. Patch then scored the first junior points and the game continued nip and tuck for the first half, with the upperclassmen leading at the close 11-10. It appeared to the few spectators that the seniors would be the victors, as they outplayed their rivals in the second quarter.

The '35's were not informed of the fact and they came back and played real basketball. So well were the juniors guarding that they allowed their opponents only 2 points in the second half. This was not wholly their fault, as the '34 men missed shot after shot. Two or three times there were two seniors alone under the basket and with the ball, but neither seemed able to drop it in for a score. The juniors relieved them of further embarrassment by taking the ball away from them.

Cass and Bent were probably the best floor men, while Patch and Goldberg were tied for high scorer with three field goals each.

HOME RESTING

CHESTER B. EATON

PROMINENT LEADER ON CAMPUS HAS BREAKDOWN

Chester B. Eaton '34, prominent leader on the Vermont campus, has temporarily left school fearing a nervous breakdown from overwork. He is resting at his home in Worcester, Mass.

He has had to give up some of his activities, notably that of President of the Public Affairs Club and part of the class work. The class work which he gives up is not enough to prevent his graduation next June, with the rest of his class.

"Chet" is one of the hardest workers in his class. He has placed consistently on the Dean's list, is the Senior Class President, and a member of Boulder. He was manager of football, editor of the 1934 Ariel and a member of Key and Serpent and Gold Key.

Several of his classmates have expressed their sympathy for him in this misfortune.

BILLINGS LIBRARY PLAYS ACTIVE PART IN VT. LIFE

Figures From Librarian's Records Show a Monthly Circulation of 5,500

With its 136,000 books and 45,000 pamphlets, and its monthly circulation of more than 5,500, the Billings Library of the University of Vermont plays a large part in the intellectual life of the University.

From the main library, excluding half a dozen departmental branches, the number of books charged out each month during the college year is between 1,800 and 2,000, according to the records of Miss Helen B. Shattuck, librarian. In addition to this circulation, more than 3,500 books a month are used from the shelves of reserved books which are directly correlated with classroom work and may only be used in the library except between closing time in the evening and opening time the following morning. About 2,500 books from the library are in almost constant use by faculty members, at their offices.

The most active departmental library is in the College of Medicine. It has its special librarian and provides the principal medical periodicals as well as new and standard books on medical subjects. Other departmental libraries are in the College of Agriculture, the Extension Service, the Latin and Greek departments and the Scientific and Electrical Engineering departments. There are also available to University students and faculty the Wilbur collection of Vermontiana and the Carnegie collection of art books and photographs at the Fleming Museum.

As a place to study between classes, the Billings Library provides chairs and tables accommodating about 125 persons besides the Marsh Room facilities providing study space for faculty members. Much of the time during the day practically all of the 125 study spaces are filled and not infrequently there is an overflow.

To supplement the Billings Library collection for the benefit of faculty and graduate students, the librarian has borrowed volumes during the past year from other New England university libraries

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION SERVICE HOLDS ANNUAL CONFERENCE THIS WEEK

Economic Situation of Agricultural World Discussed by Agents from Vermont

The annual conference of the members of the Extension Service of the University of Vermont was held all this week and is ending this afternoon with a committee report on Farm Bureau Organization by J. E. Carrigan, chairman of the service.

The general conference of the workers from all over the state of Vermont is held for the purpose of bringing together all members of the staff to discuss the economic situation of the agricultural world and also to make plans for the following year.

The conference opened with the conference mixer last Monday evening, December 11. The program was marked by round-table talks, committee reports, discussions and sectional gathering. The conference was continued at 9:00 Tuesday morning, when H. H. Hills, dean of the College of Agriculture, gave a formal greeting to the group. Following H. H. Carrigan, the director, spoke the Director's Message. From 9:30 to 10:00 was devoted to the appraisal of the Year's Work. H. W. Soule, county agent leader, Marjorie F. Luce, state home demonstration leader, F. J. Ingalls, boys' and girls' club leader, discussed the various successes of their respective efforts. From 10:00 to 11:00, Prof. G. G. Groat, professor of economics at the University of Vermont, spoke on the subject, "We Are Now a Creditor Nation. What Does It Involve and What We Are Doing About it." At 11:00, Paul L. Steere, Land Bank appraiser, spoke on "The Farm Credit Administration in Vermont."

At 1:30 p.m., Dr. F. A. Pearson, professor of prices and statistics at Cornell University, the principal speaker at the conference, spoke on the topic, "Getting Out of the Depression." Following a fifteen-minute intermission, Doctor Pearson spoke again, this time on "Keeping Out of Future Depression." From 4:00 the committee conferences took charge of things.

On Wednesday, the committee conferences were continued from 9:00 to 10:30 when a round-table discussion of pertinent phases of the new deal in their relation to agriculture was held. This discussion was led by R. D. Apley, assistant director of the Boston Milk Shed. H. C. Seymour, Extension economist in farm management; and Mr. Carrigan, the conference director.

After lunch the state leaders of the conference reported on "Wherein Have We Followed Conference Recommendations of the Last Two Years." At 2:00 committee reports were presented; first a report on the calendar was given by Mrs. C. P. Brooks; next a report on radio by Mr. Soule; and last, "Older Young People," by Martha E. Leighton.

On Thursday, at 6:30 p.m., a banquet was held at the Hotel Van Ness and today a committee report is to be given by J. E. Carrigan, chairman of the Farm Bureau Organization.

The sectional conferences that began yesterday morning and which end today at noon are in charge of the state leaders who are working with agents on the detailed programs for the coming year.

The Extension reception and party was omitted because of so many other attractions during the days of the conference.

"The Torchbearers" Presented Tuesday

STARS IN PLAY

SAM PIERCE

D. W. JENKS '34 PRAISES AID GIVEN BY ASSISTANTS

The Torchbearers is the best play I have ever presented in the last sixteen years at U. V. M. declared J. J. Lindsay, Professor of English. He went on to say. It was a very difficult thing to present but the players handled their parts exceedingly well. The play proceeded very smoothly and I felt that it was in safe hands.

A small audience of about three hundred attended the play but they enjoyed the presentation very much. Extremely funny at first, the cast very well chosen, lively were some of the various comments heard on the campus.

The leading roles were played by Eleanor Douglas '37, Samuel Pierce '34 and Ruth Maurice '37. They thought that the play went off very well and they were satisfied with the result.

Especial Praise

"For the benefit of all concerned it should be explained that the long waits between acts were caused by a lack of available stage hands for scene shifting. This shortage was occasioned by the fact that at the last minute all but two of the scribs who had pledged their assistance found that they were unable to work and it was then too late to fill the vacancies.

Particular praise and much credit is due to these two, W. V. B— '35 and A. Sorgeon '37, whose wholehearted cooperation and many hours of hard work

BLUESTOCKINGS PICKS FIVE NEW MEMBERS AS RESULT OF TRY-OUTS

Two freshmen and three upperclassmen who submitted work to Bluestockings proved their abilities in the writing of poetry and essays and were consequently rewarded by election to the society. The new members are Elizabeth Gallup '37, Alice Hamilton '37, R. Electa Schuster '35, Ruth Wright '36 and Natalie Hubbard '36.

Initiation for these girls will be held sometime before Christmas. Poetry seems to be the most popular form of literature this year as all the new members except Miss Hamilton chose to submit poetry. The choice an essay instead. Several of these manuscripts will appear in the current issue of Winnowings.

WINNOWINGS TO APPEAR TODAY IN NEW STYLE

Paper is Larger and Has Green and Gold Cover, and Black and White Illustrations

Green and gold, black and white, is the color scheme of the new Winnowings. A new size paper was used; the cover is formal, the columns, although two in number as usual, are wider than in past issues. The heads are in different type than has been used previously. In discussing its appearance Dorothy Kennedy '35, the editor of Winnowings expressed the hope that it had been made more attractive in general than before.

The essay and poetry are popular forms. The essays are mostly on philosophical subjects. Departing from custom a number of editorials have been included. Another new feature is the addition of a Contributor's Column in order that the reader of Winnowings may learn something of the authors of the various contributions.

The practice of putting each poem on a page by itself has not been followed out in all cases. Some share the page with an illustration, others come at the end of a story or article. In each case it was put as the make-up seemed to require.

The cover design was contributed by Sylvia MacKenzie, '34, Art Editor of Winnowings. F. P. Colburn '34, illustrated "Before the Storm," a poem by Gladys LaFlamme '33. "Heart's Autumn," by Elva-Mae Jenkins '36, was interpreted by Isabel Mills, PG, in her sketch "Fantasy," by Catharine Starbird '37, was the subject of an illustration by Helen MacKenzie, TT.

PHILAGON MEETS IN THE MUSEUM TODAY AT 4.00

There will be a meeting of Philagon this afternoon at 4:00 in the Children's Room of the Fleming Museum. The program has not been fully decided upon as yet. All members are urged to come as this will be the last meeting before Christmas vacation, and there will probably be only one more between Christmas and mid-years.

VARSITY DEBATE OVER WCAX TO BE DEC. 15

St. Michael's to Be Opponents of Vermont's Forensic Representatives in Radio Clash

The last scheduled varsity intercollegiate debate for 1933 will be a radio debate between the University of Vermont and St. Michael's College and is to be held Friday evening, December 15, between eight and nine o'clock over Station WCAX.

The question to be debated is "Resolved That the essential features of the NRA should be adopted as a permanent governmental policy of the United States." Vermont's two debaters who will uphold the affirmative side of the question will be R. E. McCuin '34 and D. W. Jenks '34. The debate will be rendered in the American style.

The decision will be given by a committee of three judges, who have not as yet been chosen. They will listen to the debate in their respective homes and at the close will telephone their decision to the debaters at the studio. The decision will also be broadcast preceding the hour at which the debate closes, as not yet finished.

This is the first radio debate of the year for Vermont. Last year several debates of argumentative presentation proved so pleasing to the listening audience that they were held.

KAPPA SIGMA HOLDS FORTY-FIRST INITIATION

Alpha Lambda of Kappa Sigma held its forty-first initiation last Sunday afternoon, December 10, at the chapter house on Summit Street. Those initiated were R. D. Burns '35 of Woburn, Mass.; R. P. Davison '35 of Wallingford; E. D. B. Kane '38 of Montpelier; R. A. Rogers '36 of Peabody, Mass.; L. H. Baker '37 of Newport; N. A. Briggs '37 of South Orange, N. J.; W. H. Heminger '37 of Burlington; A. J. Wunett, Jr. '37 of Pittsford; M. R. Turner '37 of Hamden, Conn.

The initiation, the 117th held by Alpha Lambda, was the sixty-fifth anniversary of the founding of American Kappa Sigma. An initiation banquet was held in the evening on the roof garden of the Hotel Vermont. George Patterson '34, chapter president, was in charge of the festivities. Senator Warren R. Austin '99 was the principal speaker.

The Catty Co-ed

Larry Bowers should be told that it is a woman's privilege to change her mind.

Professor Gould has established a precedent. The Catty Coed hopes that some of the other professors will serve class on cold mornings.

Do not bet were passed at basketball games perhaps on time enough points could be collected to buy Jim Naylor a new mattress.

Werner may be seen wending his way toward Allen House quite frequently. Will he or won't he?

What a fine story one hears about the Phi Delts.

The Catty Coed is going to start a correspondence on "What some girl women do" or present them on blind dates.

Have you noticed Bonnie Jennings is becoming a great favorite for a Chicago Musical by putting the whole cast to sleep.

Lou Simpson is entertaining Rand again.

Hope for cross when Rand's open for being longer. Your name on it.

DEBATERS PLAN PROGRAM FOR SAT. MASS MEETING

"Resolved: That the men's fraternity rushing should be postponed until the sophomore year" is the question for the debate to be presented at mass meeting tomorrow morning. Delamere has charge of the meeting with Norma L. Piper '36 as chairman. The snappy Oregon style of debate is to be used with a man and woman on each team. G. H. Burrows '34 and Norma Piper '36 are to uphold the negative. Frances Reuse '35 will debate the affirmative with the other member of that team not selected as yet.

These students who have witnessed a debate in the Oregon style will realize its effectiveness and interest and the use of snappy comebacks and quick wit.

SENIOR BASKETBALLERS LICK SOPHS IN SECOND GAME OF SERIES TUESDAY

Cogswell and J. Delfausse Star for Seniors, Jack Hart and Jim Naylor for Sophomores

In an interclass basketball game played at the gym this past Tuesday the seniors, paced by the irrepressible "Tommy" Cogswell who chalked up 13 points, defeated the sophomores by a score of 24-16. It was the second game of the series for both teams, giving the seniors a record of one won and one lost, and leaving the sophs wondering as to just when and where they are going to win a game, if they are going to win one. The game, however, was closer and more interesting to watch than the score would indicate. The seniors started fast and piled up six points before "Don" Davis' basket started things for the sophomores. From then on the sophs held their own, although the seniors never relinquished the lead. At half time the class of 1934 led by a score of 14-9 and up until the middle of the fourth quarter the sophs held grimly on, trailing at a 18-15 score. In the last few minutes of the game, however, the seniors spurted and put the game definitely on the proverbial ice with Myers, Cogswell and J. Delfausse getting hoops.

For the seniors the shooting of Cogswell and the floorwork of "Joe" Delfausse stood out. Jack Hart and "Big Jim" Naylor featured for the class of 1936.

Freshmen Play Without Services of Seven Star Players in This Game

Deprived at the outset of the services of the entire first string basketball team, which made most of the points that garnered in the victory over the freshmen in the first game, the first class team was completely outclassed by the sophs in a game played Wednesday afternoon in the gym. The final score was 27-13 in favor of the juniors. The upperclassmen started fast and piled up a substantial lead the outcome of the game was never in doubt. The showing of the 1935 team both in this game and a previous game against the senior make them favorites to win the league. Bert Hurley, Patek, and Kelly played well for the winners while Reed led the frosh in scoring with four points. Gates floorwork and the play of Langley, who didn't report until this week and played but a short while against the 1935 team, also stood out.

LISMAN TO BE U. V. M. DELEGATE AT GREY FRIARS' CONVENTION

Society to Start Weekly Readings in Form of Open Forum to Be Held in Old Mill

Louis Lisman '31 will attend the first annual convention of the charter members of the Order of Grey Friars. The convention will be held at the Statler Hotel in Boston on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, December 19, 20 and 21.

Mr. Lisman, president of Grey Friars in 1930-31, is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Tau Kappa Alpha, and Phi Sigma Delta. He held many responsible and honorary positions while at Vermont and received his master's degree here in 1932.

Other charter members of the Vermont section of the Order of Grey Friars expected to attend the convention are: George Gould '28, Lewis Leary '28, Evo Luccina '28, Pingree '28, Whitney Satford '28 and Orville Wood '28. R. J. Weissman '37, president of Grey Friars, was expected to attend as a delegate from the active chapter but due to studies in the College of Medicine and doctor's orders he will be unable to do so.

At the convention the charter members of the society, besides renewing old friendships, are to formulate plans whereby they may be of assistance to the active members of the societies in their various fields of endeavor.

The latest project of the local Grey Friars chapter is the plan to hold Tuesday evening readings in the Old Mill Chapel, the time to be announced later. The readings will take the form of open meetings of Grey Friars at which the members of the chapter and all other students of the University or members of the faculty will be asked to submit material in fields of poetry, story, and short drama for reading.

The members of Grey Friars and the faculty advisors, Prof. L. W. Dean and Prof. F. Tupper, will act as unofficial guest critics. An open forum will be held on the merits of each opus read. If the author is bashful, he may delegate someone else to read his manuscript. "If he is still more bashful," according to R. J. Weissman, president of Grey Friars, "his work will not be criticized."

If sufficient interest in the meetings is shown, they will start shortly after mid-years. Students or faculty members who are interested in these readings should communicate their ideas of this new activity at once to A. A. Ross '34 or W. E. Cass '35 in order that programs may be made out in advance.

Candidates for membership for the organization are especially urged to attend these meetings.

DR. LLOYD C. DOUGLASS GIVES TIMELY SERMON AT SUNDAY'S VESPERS

People Will Adopt Theory of Life Laid Down by Christ, Whether They Like It or Not, says Writer

"After 2,000 years of groping we are beginning to see and will adopt, whether we like it or not, the theory of life laid down by Jesus Christ." Such was the startling announcement of Dr. Lloyd C. Douglass in his address at the vesper service last Sunday afternoon at the Ira Allen Chapel. As one illustration of this fact, he mentioned the very recent realization that modern payment for work is not based on hours worked, but on the need of the worker.

Doctor Douglass attempted an evaluation of the life of Jesus as it occurs to one approaching Christmas. He briefly traced the familiar life and activities of the Master, and followed out his function as a teacher.

A picture was formed of this young man who came into the world with no credentials, no money, followed by a tatterdemalion group of farmers and fishermen, who made himself the Light of the World. "He became so important to the thinking of his time that the political government found it necessary to kill him as a disturber of the peace. They thought they had stilled his voice and that the case was a closed incident. However, it was not an incident, and it wasn't to stay closed. It had wings at the top and roots at the bottom. Any breeze could carry it abroad and any soil could make it thrive. Borne by galley slaves, traders, disciples, it girdled the world, this thing of small beginning."

The speaker went on to show that naturally legends had grown up around so great a figure. He compared them to Lincoln's old home, now a museum, most of the furnishings of which never belonged to Lincoln, but which are all used to create the atmosphere of his time. He said it was no more foolish to doubt that Lincoln ever existed because few material things have lasted to our day, as it was that Christ ever lived on earth just because nothing but the Bible remains of him.

In this connection he said that if we could bring ourselves to the facts and stories connected with Jesus, we would approach Christmas in the right spirit. He advised reading the beautiful story of the birth, the star over Jerusalem, the angel choir singing to the shepherds and the Wise Men bringing gifts reverently to the new born babe lying in a manger.

Doctor Douglass said it is gratifying to see that less and less Jesus is looked on as a magician. He illustrated that in this day of great inventions and travels

EXHIBIT OF PRESERVED SNAKES LOANED MUSEUM

The reptile collection at the Fleming Museum has recently been augmented by a temporary loan of preserved snakes and snake skins from the zoology department of the University. Among them is the Timber rattlesnake.

The Timber rattlesnake is described as the most fascinating and greatly feared of our reptiles. Prof. W. H. Behney of the zoology department says that this snake and the Copperhead are the only dangerous snakes found in this part of the country. The poison apparatus, he says, is not, as sometimes imagined, the forked tongue which snakes as a group extend when alarmed but two hollow teeth or fangs located in the upper jaw. These fangs are an exact duplication in hard enamel of the hypodermic needle. When the jaws are closed, the fangs fold back against the roof of the mouth. As the jaws open, they spring forward, ready for action. The ejection of the venom is accomplished by the pressure of the muscles which cause the closing of the jaw upon the poison glands which are connected with the bases of the fangs. The action is voluntary, however, and the hypodermic fangs act only when the snake desires them to do so.

The Timber rattlesnake grows to a length of six feet, while the Diamond Back, ranging from Vermont to Texas, attains a length of eight feet. Both are deadly. The reason why there are no more fatalities from their bites, explains Professor Behney, is because, like other wild creatures, they are timid and secretive and avoid man as much as possible.

WOMEN'S VARSITY TEAM DEBATES KEENE NORMAL ON THE NRA QUESTION

Elvira Farman, Mary Whitney, and Ruth Barron Speak for Vermont, Oxford Style Used

Resolved, That the NRA should be adopted as a permanent policy was the subject of the first women's varsity debate of the year. Tonight meeting, December 15, at Keene Normal School, at Keene, N. H. The Oxford style of debate was used with the debaters from Vermont upholding the negative side of the question. Elvira Farman '34, Mary Whitney '36 and Ruth Barron '36 were the debaters for Vermont.

The debating team this year will be chosen before each debate on a competitive basis. All members of Philagon are eligible and it is hoped in this way to get the very best teams possible and also to give everyone interested an equal chance. Unfortunately there will be no more debates until after mid-years.

The junior varsity, made up of Leonica Frey and Frances Rowe '36, will debate soon after Christmas with Middlebury's second team on the question "Resolved, That fraternities are more beneficial than detrimental to College life." The Vermonters will uphold the affirmative side.

SIX FRATERNITIES HOLD DANCES OVER WEEK-END

Phi Delta Theta, Phi Mu Delta, S A E, Sigma Delta, Sigma Nu, Sigma Phi Celebrate

The annual men's fall dances were given by six fraternities on Friday, December 15.

Phi Delta Theta held their dance at the chapter house under the supervision of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Braun as chaperones. Sid Garsia's orchestra furnished the music for the occasion. The details of the dance were provided by G. M. Sarim, chairman, '35 and C. D. Howe '36. Christmas decorations were used.

Nichols' orchestra of Essex Junction supplied the music for the Phi Mu Delta dance. The chaperones for the dance were: Prof. L. D. Meredith, Miss Laura J. Parker, and Prof. and Mrs. L. W. Dean. The committee in charge was W. E. Concannon '34, Chairman, C. A. Rogers '35, and E. C. Morse '34.

The committee for Sigma Alpha Epsilon's formal dance was C. R. Congdon '34, L. F. Cusick '36, R. G. Warren '36 and N. O. Wells '34, chairman. The decorations were black and white, and the music was furnished by Lechnyr's "Vermonters." The chaperones were Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Briggs, Prof. M. H. Aldrich, and Miss Cornelia H. Collier.

A formal dance was given by Sigma Delta in charge of R. R. Baldwin. The chaperones were Prof. and Mrs. L. B. Puffer and Prof. K. J. Sheldon, and the orchestra that played was Denhoff's.

The Sigma Nu's secured as chaperones Prof. H. E. Putnam and Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Soule. Don Preston's orchestra furnished the syncopation.

An informal dance was held by Sigma Phi with Bob Minotti's orchestra supplying the music. The chaperones were Prof. and Mrs. W. H. Behney and G. E. Ranslow '35 was the chairman in charge of the dance.

SOPHOMORE DEBATE IS POSTPONED TO TODAY

The sophomore men and women's debate has again been postponed until this afternoon at four o'clock. To those who may doubt as to whether or not the debate will ever take place, the chairman wishes to state that both teams will be in the auditorium of the Fleming Museum this afternoon ready to deliver the debate to whomever may wish to listen.

HAS BEEN AT VERMONT FOR THREE SEASONS

John Homer Eadie, head coach of football and basketball at the University of Vermont, tendered his resignation as coach to the Football Committee of the University at a meeting yesterday noon. His resignation becomes effective at the termination of the current basketball season. It was learned last night on verification of the report by Coach Eadie. Sidney C. Abell, graduate manager of the University, had no comment to make concerning coming upon interrogation by a Cynic reporter.

During his stay at the University of Vermont Eadie has coached the 1935 freshman football team, the varsity basketball team for the last three seasons and the Varsity football team for the past two years. Prior to his career at the University he was the mentor of athletics at Vermont Academy and turned out some championship teams in basketball and football. His football team at Vermont Academy won the New England prep school championship in 1930 and defeated a strong Benedict Prep team 9-6 in a post season contest.

His Record at Vermont

The 1935 Kitten team lost only one decision during the season and maintained an undefeated goal line being defeated only by Clarkson frosh 3-0.

The same year his basketball team won a 7 win city series between Vermont and St. Michael's. Last year the varsity football team won two encounters from St. Michael's and Norwich lost two tilts and tied once. The team finished second in the Green Mountain Conference.

Last year the varsity basketball team won the state title after starting off its conference games. This fall, with a wealth of veteran material the football eleven won seven games, losing to New Hampshire and Coast Guard Academy and dropped one decision to finish in third place in the state series after a most promising outlook.

VERMONT DEBATERS WIN OVER ST. MICHAEL'S IN FIRST RADIO BROADCASTS

The first radio debate to be broadcast over the facilities was won by the University of Vermont debaters last Friday evening against St. Michael's College. The debate was broadcast over the local Burlington Daily News Station WCAX with D. W. Eadie '34 and R. E. McCuin '34 upholding the negative of the question, "Resolved, That the essential features of the N.R.A. should be adopted as a permanent policy of the United States Government." St. Michael's debaters were G. R. Kilcoyne, Clinton, Mass., and J. Bennett of Troy, N. Y. G. H. Burrows '34 of the University of Vermont acted as chairman of the debate.

The plan American style of argument was used with each speaker having ten minutes at his disposal in the constructive case and each returning for a five-minute rebuttal. Bennett of St. Michael's opened for the affirmative and Jenks of Vermont opened the negative case. Kilcoyne of St. Michael's and McCuin of Vermont followed to close the first part of the debate. In rebuttal Jenks returned first for the negative with Kilcoyne following. McCuin closed the case for the negative with Bennett closing for the affirmative.

The judges who rendered the decision two to one in favor of the negative were Judge Clarence P. Cook, the Reverend David Reed of the Methodist Church and Ralph N. Hill, general manager and vice-president of the Green Mountain Corporation.

During the past few years there has been decreasing student interest in debating, borne by the lack of attendance at the debates held on campus. Several debates have been scheduled to be put on before church gatherings or other meetings. It was felt, however, that a debate between the University of Vermont and St. Michael's

Students Held Mass Meetings to Decide Matter of No Exams

INTERFRAT COUNCIL TO HOLD MEETING SOON

AS OTHER COLLEGES VIEW THE SITUATION

The University of Southern California Trojan recently made a collection of attitudes toward war of some of its graduates and employees of the university. Here are some excerpts:

"Because generations of husky males with burning visions envisaged the new era of exercising absolute authority over certain of their fellows in the World War we have today a powerful group of men in America who glee[fully] cultivate such occasions as Armistice Day to vaunt of the 'victory' they helped to win. If the majority of Americans accept this view, we might as well make up our minds to a future of wars and conquests."

"I met a few who, I suspect, enlisted because of some misconception prompting them to fight for an ideal—to save the country, to protect it from some invasion, or to insure democracy for the world. But the vast majority of us, I think, enlisted because it was being done. It was an interesting period and an exciting one, and we were a part of a gigantic wave of national emotionalism.

"When I enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps I was filled with what I like to think of as patriotism. On analysis I am constrained to admit that it was something less noble. I was weary with playing soldier in my Boys' R. O. T. C. I was hungry for adventure, and I feared the word 'slacker,' the most powerful word in the English language of 1918. Its invention was sheer genius on the part of the elderly patriots who were running the war at a comfortable distance behind the lines."

One might reasonably conclude from the above opinions that war is simply a huge psychological stirring up of public opinion in a direction which will spell profits for the munitions manufacturers, the professional political grafters, the strong militarists. Be that as it may, it is perfectly evident that war does not benefit the average individual in any manner whatsoever, especially in view of the fact that every war is inevitably followed by crises in finance and in moral standards. Every citizen should make it his duty to prevent future armed conflicts. He may advance the cause of more permanent peace by considering it his duty to curb all sentiments of racial hatred, extreme sectionalism, and international prejudice. Only deliberate and broad minded thinking on the part of each of the students of today, the ruling people of tomorrow, can stave off the next war, a catastrophe deemed inevitable by only too many people.

One dark night two young underclassmen secretly sneaked into the library then known as "Potter's Folly," climbed up on the balcony around the dome and cautiously made their way to the top of the dome where they strung up the cumbersome bundle they had dragged up with them.

In the morning the college discovered Mr. Wiemans dangling from the library dome. When Mr. Wiemans appeared in class there must have been sighs of relief.

It took a week to discover a way to get the dummy down. Its appearance attracted so much attention that a New York paper found it profitable to print a story with a picture on it. Had they known the truth as to who did the trick the paper might have printed a sensational story, for it seems that the press's son was involved.

Christmas Story

There is an old legend which tells that as Adam and Eve fled from the Garden of Eden they took a branch from the Tree of Knowledge. Adam was a gardener so he set about rooting the twig. It grew and grew and eventually became the cross of Jesus' crucifixion. This cross is the symbol of our Xmas tree.

There is another story telling of a French knight who was wandering through a forest on a certain Christmas Eve and as he journeyed he suddenly caught sight of an evergreen tree whose branches were bedecked with lighted candles. At the top of the tree was a vision of a child with a halo about his head. The vision brought the tale of the vision to the people to be interpreted. The answer was that the tree represented mankind; the candles, the people, good or bad; the child, the Christ. Thus was the first Christmas tree, a living tree.

While in America the tree is the symbolic of Christmas, other countries use different symbolisms.

The Christmas Eve mass in Italy is known as the "Mass of the Shepherds" and in churches where there is a pipe organ with an adequate number of stops, cocks are imitated and a chorus of crows by the organ at the first stroke of midnight. In some churches in Italy the lowing of cattle is imitated. Other sounds of a stable remind one of the humble abode where Christ was born.

The Christmas Eve feast in Italy consists of twelve dishes symbolic of the disciples of Christ.

In the eastern countries, such as Syria and Greece, the chief dish of the Christmas feast is roast lamb. In Greece the youngsters wait for Christmas to get a soup made of sweet cream and cream.

PARENTS' DAY

"Fathers and mothers of W[illegible] students will be welcomed to the campus of the State University next spring for a combined Mothers' and Dads' Day program if present plans of student leaders are carried out."—Excerpt from [illegible] sity of Wisconsin paper. The University of South Carolina Gamecock adds that it would certainly be a fine idea to have such a day between vacations, such as April, perhaps, and give concerts, dramatic programs, or something similar. Many elementary and secondary schools in this day of parent-teacher associations are following that very plan.

The next issue of the Cynic will appear on the afternoon Friday, January 5, 1934. In the meantime, members of the staff extend hearty wishes that it were Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

ORGANIZED BURLINGTON HIGH SCHOOL HOOPSTERS SURPRISE FROSH QUINTET

Seahorses Exhibit Polished, Fast Breaking Offense to Take Kittens by Storm Friday

In a practice game featured by numerous substitutions, coaches' time outs, a bewildered freshman team unaccustomed to springy backboards, and poor lighting were distinctly shocked when a veteran first-string Burlington High School quintet, well organized and in perfect condition overwhelmed them in the Burlington High School gymnasium 15-2 in twenty minutes of fast play. As yet unorganized and slightly overconfident because of their success in the scrimmages with the Vermont varsity, the yearlings had their nose rubbed in the fundamentals of good basketball.

The freshmen expect to play the Seahorses in a return practice game at the University gym after vacation, where they will be more in their element. Coach Hard substituted four different teams in the scrimmage during the course of the afternoon's drill, and while all were effective, none were able to outplay the freshmen as did the first team. The final score, which in light of the numerous injections and coaching is incidental, was 40-35 in favor of the Kittens.

In the first scrimmage the frosh attempted to work an unfamiliar offensive, but were completely foiled by the close guarding of the Burlington team. With their teamwork consequently hampered, the men failed to even give good accounts of themselves. Steirns starred for the Burlington quintet with three floor baskets and two foul shots, while Beattie, exhibiting some clever guarding and fine shooting, was the outstanding Vermont player on the floor.

The most effective Vermont combination on the floor seemed to be Duncan at center, Tomassetti and Pinnex or Warden at forward, and Beattie and Shaw at guard. There were no experienced referees on hand to call fouls and violations.

Coach Hard thought it would not be good policy to play the freshmen in the preliminary that was scheduled to take place before the Ithaca game, and suggested an unofficial game at the Burlington High School gym.

VERMONT DEBATERS WIN IN RADIO BROADCASTS

College would create sufficient interest to warrant the broadcast of the debate. The debate was arranged through the courtesy and facilities of the Daily News station. The time for the debate was one hour in length beginning at eight o'clock.

If sufficient interest on the part of students and townspeople warrant the continuance of the radio debates probably several more may be arranged in the future. The Daily News station or Manager McCuin will be glad to receive communications concerning the practice of radio debates.

The varsity team which has been busily engaged all fall with several debates will rest until after the holidays and mid-years. During February the schedule, although not complete, will include home debates with Rollins College, Florida; Boston University, Boston, Mass.; Clark University, Worcester, Mass.; Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y.; Virginia Union University, Richmond, Va.; University of Puerto Rico, Rio Piedras, Puerto Rico. Further debates will be held during the spring recess.

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports' Editor

Those who stayed away from the recent Ithaca impleasantness must be congratulated for their good sense.

It was the sourest evening experienced at the gym for nigh onto thirty years come Michaelmas.

By the way, we wonder if Bugs has collected that two bits yet from the Ithaca player.

Robert Smith Grant, eminent political scientist, once again was high scorer, pounding them from all angles. (We're getting sick of plugging this guy Grant. How's for the rest of you guys doing something?)

While it may have been a good idea to start the second team, we do not see the strategy in keeping them in so long.

By the way, we've been getting a big razz lately on account of our inability to pick winners. Next time we pick one, we'll make out our alibi in advance just so the wise boys won't have any comeback. (Catty Co-ed, please note.)

To the band: Please learn "Champlain" before attempting to play it again.

The winter sports friends are contemplating a winter carnival in place of Kake Walk. While this idea looks good on paper, in reality it is not so good, owing to the vagaries of Burlington weather.

It certainly seems peculiar that a college of the caliber of St. Mike's can support a hockey team, yet Vermont can't.

There is enough material and interest in the University to warrant support of a hockey team.

As is the custom at this time, we extend to our readers (both of them) our best wishes for a Merry Christmas.

And a Happy New Year, especially to those spending the vacation in places where repeal has arrived.

ARIEL GROUP PICTURES

Anyone wishing to order any of the group pictures which were taken for the Ariel a few weeks ago must wait until after Christmas vacation and then give the order to M. A. Patch '35, business manager of the Ariel. These group pictures include those of the different fraternities. Anyone having group divisions to check will make arrangements with William Cass '35, editor.

The editor asks members of the junior class to bring back from their vacation individual pictures. Many snapshots are needed and all that are brought will be used.

One of the best ways to distinguish between freshmen and upperclassmen is to observe that the freshmen will often run to avoid being late to class.

Second Team Plays Greater Part of Game; New System of Play Used

Last Friday evening at the University gymnasium the Catamount five, working under a new system, was completely overwhelmed by a smooth working team of giants from Ithaca School of Physical Education by the score of 45 to 26. The second team started the game and played the whole first half and part of the second before the regulars were sent into the fray and made to battle against impossible odds. The Ithaca team, composed totally of men over six feet tall, found little difficulty in passing and shooting over the short Vermont men's heads.

A unit composed of Stiern, Brown, Saba, Ramon and McGowan started the game and although they did fairly well the vast handicap of size was so great that they simply could not overcome it. With Hickey, Patrick and Hawley shooting from every conceivable angle on the floor the Ithaca team took an early lead that was never threatened. Enos Ramon, acting captain, was all over the floor in this half and it was mostly due to his leadership and inspiring play that the score was not larger. The half ended with the score 27 to 16 with the Green and Gold trailing and everyone surely thought that the first-string team would start the second half and attempt to make up this difference, but when the teams reappeared the same line-up as left the game went back in. They tried hard but the Ithacans quickly ran the score to 35-16 before Coach Burke finally summoned his regulars. They set out to make a great try to overcome that lead and with Bob Grant throwing baskets in from every corner picked up ten points but never made any serious threat. The game ended with the Catamounts shooting in a vain attempt to score. The contest which had seemed to be beforehand a close one turned out in a very unsatisfactory manner and the reason could not be determined for playing the two teams in the manner they did. Ramon played great ball while he was in there and in the second half Palmer and Grant excelled, but the odds were too great to be overcome. For the visitors, it is difficult to pick an outstanding man because everyone seemed to be having a good night. Hawley perhaps stood out a little above his mates, tallying twelve points and controlling the tap at all times. Patrick, Hickey, Pisinanoff and O'Brien each countered three times in the great free-for-all.

Higher Learning and Higher Athletics

Varsity athletics, from the personal angle, may well be described as "an institution for the discipline of college men."

In most investigations, discussions, and dissertations on varsity competition, the leading actor—varsity athlete—is ignored.

Attitudes of athletes are interesting. Most of them do not like the sport in which they are competing. Yet their pride forces them to persist in the distasteful competition, and their current reactions from game to game, or meet to meet, depends upon the psychological skill of the coach.

Even on championship teams there are three types of athletes: natural, competent, and incompetent.

The natural athlete makes precisely the correct, coordinated movement at precisely the correct instant. He acts by reflex, not thought.

He is the joy, pride, and relief of the coach. In football, for example, he does not have to be trained to side-step, pivot, or change pace.

He rarely becomes nervous, or loses any sleep from worry. All he has to do is keep moderate training and stay relaxed. Varsity competition is not as disciplinary for him as for his lesser fellows: it is a training in arrogance.

Competent athletes possess natural ability in much lesser degree—some of them possess it not at all. Those not so favored treat their particular sport as an exact science with hypotheses and factual evidence.

In spite of the competent athlete's inability to do anything without thinking about it, he often becomes by long experience almost indistinguishable from the natural athlete.

Varsity competition has been for him a character-builder and an education in perseverence—and he likes it as much as a French Foreign Legionnaire likes a thirty-mile trek across the Sahara.

The incompetent athlete is found anywhere from the third team down in any sport. Handicapped physically, he constantly expects to work up to varsity competition, but pathetically fails to do so.

We now raise the question as to whether or not such courses in discipline are needed throughout a man's University career, and we come to a negative conclusion.

The day when varsity competition is relegated to the College, i. e. the first two years, will mark real progress of higher learning away from the unnecessary discipline of higher athletics.—J. P. B.—Daily Maroon.

FRATERNITY RUSHING IN MASS MEETING DEBATE

A debate was held in mass meeting last Saturday on the subject "Resolved, That men's fraternity rushing should be postponed until the sophomore year."

Frances Rowe '36 defined the issues and upheld the affirmative and was then questioned by G. H. Burrows '34, "lawyer" for the negative. Norma Piper '36 then spoke for the negative, and was questioned by R. E. McCuin '34 of the affirmative.

The debate was given in the Oregon style, with five minutes for each speech.

Cruel and Unusual

(Rutland Herald)

Some phrases of Judge Grout's official lecture to the students fined for apple throwing in Burlington are entertaining. He said, among other noble sentiments:

"The feelings of the police department are most friendly with the boys and all they ask is their rights."

If these rights include the privilege of firing point-blank into a crowd of prankish students, a good many people will differ with the distinguished jurist. That deadly business, followed by the court's solemn lecturing, seems a trifle like over doing things.

What the Fellows Think in Regard to Dutch Treating

In response to a certain prominent remark that getting the girls' opinion on Dutch Treat was nothing, but that a boys' point of view should be published, a CYNIC reporter took it upon himself to assemble data garnered from a number of campus prominent gents concerning the topic in question.

"Dutch Treat is O. K. by me," says Mr. B——. "I've always been in favor of it. I've never had the nerve to propose it myself but whenever my pocketbook doesn't jingle little Barbara stays home and we have a parlor date or we go for a walk. Often have I wanted to go out to a good movie with the girl but when a jury-building stares me in the face I prefer to stay home. Perhaps some day when Dutch Treat is as customary as women's votes and sodas distasteful I'll be able to go out on two bits.

"Well, now I wouldn't say I offered to. I am a prominent member of the senior class. Dutch Treat is all right in its place but I can't imagine its taking the place of the time-worn custom of the man treating. Man still has to be the gentleman, while all the woman has to do is act like a lady. Nope I don't think Dutch Treat will ever be generally applicable until a great radical change is made, but if it comes to a vote, I'm in favor of it."

Another prominent athlete and student Mr. B—— states. "Well, I notice some of the women aren't against it. Why not? I'll help cooperate. I'll do my part by paying only half of what I used to. I don't know what the women mean about my losing our self-respect. We haven't any, and besides if they cooperated as they should we wouldn't lose it if we had it.

"When the laws gave women equal rights with men, they should also have endowed them with an equal intelligence. But today women demand equal privileges but resent the time-worn traditions of allowing the male to bear the financial burdens involved in mutual enterta[illegible] I don't think that's right. I think [illegible] in favor of Dutch Treat." [illegible] Mr. H—— worthy coming attra[illegible] the freshman class.

"What do I think of Dutch [illegible] Well, it's all Dutch to me! Say [illegible] what some of the others have said. Say that's a lot of bunk. Take a [illegible] the last CYNIC. It seems that the majority of the [illegible] are in favor of Dutch Treat, though a huge junior stated, "No, I prefer to [illegible] all the time. Women have 'copped' other rights of men, even wearing trousers. Here at least I feel I have [illegible] means of showing the superior [illegible] and protective strength of the male [illegible] the species homo sapiens. But [illegible] start Dutch Treat or if (God [illegible] women start treating, then there will be nothing left for us poor men [illegible] world. We shall be outcasts—we'll [illegible] I'm agin' Dutch Treat and I'll fight [illegible] fight with my last ounce of strength [illegible] save this one straw that lends [illegible] a backbone."

The greatest indictment of all, however, rests in the fact that this performance run by the students for their own entertainment and for financing their own athletic teams has not in past years received the complete support of the student body. The directors plan to have a special student rate and to do everything possible to procure a 100 percent student attendance, thus making the "Kake Walk of 1934" a true Vermont affair.

Directors Outline Aims

In producing the "Kake Walk of 1934" we aim:

1. To relieve the monotony of the long, cold mid-winter term with a novel bit of southern sunshine.
2. To raise funds for the support of Vermont athletics.
3. To maintain the usual fine standard of a true Vermont Kake Walk.
4. To attain these aims by attracting the complete, enthusiastic cooperation of the students of Vermont.

CYNIC BOARD CALLS FOR FRESHMAN REPORTERS

Competition Still Open for Journalistic Scrubs—Reporters Picked in March

Competition is stll open for freshman men and women from fraternities, sororities, or independents to serve as cub reporters on the staff of the CYNIC, and those who fill the necessary requirements and show the greatest proficiency will be selected as reporters at the annual meeting held in March.

General instructions will be given to each person who tries out, and he or she will be given news assignments once each week. The selection will be made in the regular fashion during the first week in March from the freshman candidates. Persons who have once tried out are still eligible to enter the competition, for the writing previously done by them is still on record. They may report again any day in the week at the CYNIC office in the north end of the Old Mill, or should sign on the sheet in the office for assignments.

No previous experience is required. From the unlimited number of men and women who are offered an opportunity to do reportorial work will be chosen nine men and six women members of the freshman class who will serve for one year as reporters before being promoted to editorships on the board.

WOMEN WIN DEBATE

Prof. L. W. Dean, who acted as judge for the sophomore intra-class debate, gave the decision to the women. The men vainly contested "that the essential features of the NRA should be made a permanent governmental policy." Ruth Barron and Mary Whitney spoke for the women while F. W. Hale and E. R. Greemore were the men debating.

U.V.M. Winter Sports Team Schedules Conference Competition for the First Time in Three Years, Also Carnival

Ricker '34, President of Newly-formed Winter Sports Club, Announces Try-outs for Eighteen-man Team to Compete at Middlebury Carnival February 10, 11, 12—Coaches Selected, Courses to be Laid Out—Conference Meet to be Held at Stowe, with New Ski Jump —Snow Carnival Planned in Conjunction with Kake Walk to Include Costume Ball, Selection of Carnival Queen, and Interclass Meet

PLAN "COSTUME BALL" FOLLOWING KAKE WALK

A Vermont winter carnival will probably be held in connection with Kake Walk, February 23 and 24, according to recent announcement by the president of the new Winter Sports Club. He states, "Our plans at present are to have Kake Walk on Friday evening, with a 'costume ball' Saturday evening. During the days, an interclass meet, with events for both men and women, will be held. A carnival queen will be chosen to preside over the carnival.

"Previous to Christmas vacation, the officers of the Winter Sports Club and the Kake Walk directors had talked about having a 'costume ball.' This would be something entirely novel for the student body, as Vermont has not had such an event since 1922. The Kake Walk directors naturally favor such an event. The admission would be as low as possible, and any sort of costume could be worn."

Interclass Meet

The interclass meet, with events for both men and women, is planned to include snowshoeing, skiing, and skating, with prizes to be given and small cups to be awarded to the man and woman who make the highest number of points.

The captains of the different class teams will be chosen the first of February. J. H. McCrea '35 has consented to give instructions in skating and will be in charge of the interclass skating races. D. G. Suitor '36 and G. M. Sabin, Jr. '35 will be in charge of the skiing races while D. F. Green '34 and G. O. Ricker '34 will head the snowshoe races.

The snowshoeing and skiing events will either be held on the back campus or at the Country Club, and the skating events will take place on the lake.

The U. V. M. Book Store announces a lending library policy that has never before been offered to college students. By it students have access to the latest and most important books at a minimum charge, the money received by the Book Store is to be used for the purchase of new books only.

With new books being purchased every week, the Book Store now offers the students the facilities of the Lending Library for the balance of this semester and for next semester for the reduced fee of one dollar. The use of the lending library is open to both students and professors, and is being highly recommended by the department of English, which is cooperating with Miss Annis O. Barney, manager of the University Stores, in choosing the popular books of the year.

A subscriber to the Lending Library may take any book for either one or two weeks, two-cent books being kept two weeks, and three-cent books one week. Reference books may be made use of for the balance of the school year for the sum of seventy-five cents, and these are of special value to students doing research work.

The following books are among the ones now being offered to students:

TEAM TO BE SELECTED FIRST WEEK IN FEBRUARY

For the first time in four years, a winter sports team is scheduled to compete with other universities of New England with ski and snowshoe. It is the first time in the history of the college that so ambitious a program has been forecast by enthusiasts, according to graduates.

Invitations have been received from the Dartmouth winter carnival, February 9 and 10, from the Middlebury winter carnival, February 10, 11, and 12, and from the Mount Mansfield Ski Club from Conference competition some time in February. Meets have been also tentatively arranged with Norwich, February 17, and St. Michael's February 20.

"The annual championship meet of the Intercollegiate Winter Sports Union, combined with the twenty-fourth annual Dartmouth winter carnival, will be held held under the auspices of the Dartmouth Outing Club in Hanover February 9 and 10," states the letter of invitation. The events will be 440 and two-mile skating races, figure skating competition, cross-country snowshoe race, downhill slalom and cross-country ski races, ski jump and combined ski jumping and cross-country. Members of the team will be guests of the Dartmouth Outing Club.

At Middlebury there will be six events, with a three-man team for each: Ski cross-country (five miles), snowshoe cross-country (three miles), ski slalom, ski jump, ski dash, snowshoe dash.

G. O. Ricker '34, president of the newly organized Winter Sports Club, announces that this team is to be chosen the first week in February by holding time trials. Three men will be picked for each event.

Minor letters are to be awarded at the end of the winter sport season to those men who are high-point members in this and other competitions of the semester.

Coach Secured

The club has secured the services of Mr. W. P. Pierce as coach. At present an instructor in botany at the University, Mr. Pierce was for four years a member of the Dartmouth winter sports team. He has consented to lay out a slalom course for the club at the Burlington Country Club, and has also declared himself willing to give instructions to anyone in skiing. He would especially like to meet anyone interested in trying out for ski jump for the Middlebury meet, as that is the weakest spot on the Vermont team at present, according to Ricker.

Members are welcome to the new Winter Sports Club, and any member is privileged to take advantage of the organization's facilities, such as coaches and courses.

As yet, no coach has been found for the snowshoeing events, but three members of the senior class who figured prominently in last year's interfraternity winter sports meet have consented to help those interested in learning the use of snowshoes. They are G. H. Bowers, H. D. F. Green and G. O. Ricker.

Conference Meet at Stowe

The Mount Mansfield Ski Club has also invited the University of Vermont winter sports team to compete in a meet, to be held at Stowe between Middlebury, Norwich, St. Michael's and Vermont. A new jump has been erected which has been made to conform with the grades of the intermediate jump at Lake Placid, N. Y. It permits jumps of from 150 to 160 feet. State engineers have laid it out and construction is being completed by C. C. C. labor.

Ricker expressed himself in a statement as hopeful that the team would participate in meets at both Hanover, N. H., and Norwich, although arrangements have not been made as yet. He made reference to the Middlebury winter sports and hockey schedule for the coming semester, pointing out that

It is generally felt that this change is a much needed one, and it is hoped by the directors that the 1934 Kake Walk, will receive a hundred percent support from the student body. There is no doubt that the students, townspeople and faculty members sensing the improvement will restore Vermont Kake Walks to the magnitude and importance that they formerly had.

WINTER SPORTS AT LAST

At last, after long years of sleep, interest in Winter Sports at Vermont has awakened with a start. The officers of the new Winter Sports Club have so far commenced on their prompt action in [illegible] a schedule over vacation.

[illegible] should, of course, be known as a university in whose sports [illegible] play a large part. St. Michael's and Middlebury [illegible] far ahead of Vermont in this respect, and so [illegible]. Middlebury has scheduled four winter sports meets and Context Hockey tournaments for this semester.

[illegible] who have regretfully refused the last few years to [illegible] winter sports here because of lack of snow and ice, have no [illegible] complaints this winter. If the recent past is any forecast of what is to come, there will be upon the slopes and vales of [illegible] Vermont enough snow for two seasons.

Another stroke of genius in those interested was the amalgamation of Kake Walk with a snow carnival, which includes a masquerade ball and an interclass meet. This, together with the decision by the Kake Walk directors to abolish to a great extent the peerade and stunts, should serve to greatly revive enthusiasm for Vermont's great annual classic as famous through the East as is the Dartmouth Winter Carnival.

FRESHMEN LOSE DEBATE

The freshman debaters of the University of Vermont lost a two to one decision in favor of the Essex High School team in supporting the affirmative of the question, "Resolved, that the United States should adopt the essential features of the British system of Radio control and operation." The style of debate used was that accepted as official in inter-high school contests, namely, the American, with six-minute constructive speeches and six-minute rebuttals for each man.

Those representing the Vermont freshman class were J. J. Barsalow, H. W. Stanley, and A. H. Ross.

JUNIORS DOWN SOPHS 16-9 IN SLOW CONTEST

Hold the Second-year Hoopsters Scoreless in First Half in Wild Tilt

Keeping up their winning streak the junior five downed the sophomore aggregation, in an exceedingly slow game, by the score of 16-9. Although the game had a few spurts of speed and a few unusual shots, it was on the most part rather wild.

The juniors had little trouble in downing their opponents for they held the sophs scoreless the first period and allowed them only one point in the first half. At the beginning of the game neither team seemed to be able to pierce its opponents defence. This tie was broken, however by Hart who tossed a long throw through the cords for the first floor basket. The rest of the half was repetition of the first quarter except that the sophs made a lone point when J. Hart sank a free shot near the close of the second period.

Although the sophs outscored their opponents in the second half, making eight points to their opponents five, they were unable to pass the eleven to one lead the juniors tacked up in the first period. The game ended with the juniors on the long end of the 16-9 score.

Vermont Ends 1933 Season With Winning Percentage

Review of Teams Shows 32 Victories, 31 Defeats, One Tie in 1932-33, With Capture of Two G. M. C. Titles—Tennis, Baseball, Basketball Ahead, with Track and Cross-Country Least Successful

TENNIS PULLS OFF PHENOMENAL RECORD

By Fred Tuttle

University of Vermont athletic teams concluded the 1933 season with a record of thirty-two victories, thirty-one defeats, and one tie for the first winning percentage that the Green and Gold has compiled in several years. The Catamounts captured two Green Mountain Conference titles, one in basketball and one in tennis, the latter a second consecutive championship. The baseball team, while losing to St. Michael's for the diamond crown, won thirteen of its twenty-four contests to win with tennis a winning percentage for the year. Track and cross-country were the least successful of the sports, with but one victory in the four meets scheduled.

To the tennis team goes the honor for the most phenomenal record advanced by a University of Vermont athletic representative in a decade. The Green and Gold quartet, composed of Captain Hugh Wilson, Norm Myers, Ex-captain Les Woodward and Bernie Mulcahy, wound up the season with a record of eight victories, one tie and one defeat. This record largely compensated for the losses sustained in the other sports.

Tennis Team Sparkles

The team won three matches on its annual spring invasion of Massachusetts by the astounding scores of 6 to 0 over W. P. I., 5 to 1 over B. U. and 6 to 0 over Tufts, defeated Middlebury once and St. Michael's twice for the Green Mountain title and lost just one match, to Union, on unfamiliar stone-crushed courts at Schenectady. Norman Myers and Hugh Wilson triumphed in nine out of their ten singles matches and were undefeated in doubles. The entire quartet was presented with gold tennis charms and Myers was elected captain of the 1934 season.

The 1932-1933 basketball combination pulled off its first conference championship in six years as the Green and Gold won five of its six state contests, defeated Middlebury and Norwich twice, and St. Michael's once, in a great overtime battle at Winooski Park.

Other high spots of the season a 27 to 25 overtime triumph against the New Hampshire Wildcats at Durham and a sterling last half rally that just failed to wrest victory from Dartmouth 29 and 27 at Hanover last December. With these exceptions, the Vermont club was unsuccessful, losing eight of its fourteen games and being outscored 401 to 368.

Hoop Club Triumphs

Functioning perfectly in the late season, due largely to the addition of Ed Layden and the great floor work of Whitey Palmer the club flashed to triumphs over the conference rivals behind a fine screen offense. The lettermen, Capt. Frank Pires, Capt.-elect Johnny Beckley, Jack Morgan, Ed Layden, Eddie Sowka, Enos Ramon, Whitey Palmer and Bob Grant, were presented gold basketballs as tokens for the state championship. Johnnie Burke coached the Green and Gold hoop quintet.

From the sunny leas of old Virginia to the frost-bitten slopes of upper New York roamed the University of Vermont baseball team, playing a twenty-four-game schedule over a 2,000-mile territory. The Catamounts won fourteen of their twenty-four games and outscored their opponents 122 to 112. Conquered by St. Michael's in two games, the Green and Gold nine forfeited the state title, although Coach Larry Gardner's crew defeated both Norwich and Middlebury on two occasions. Outstanding feats of the year included a 6-4 win over Princeton when Whitey Palmer smashed a towering triple to center field for the winning runs; Ed Layden's two-hit pitching victory over Tufts; Buster Garrett's sensational catch to initiate a triple play against Middlebury; and Larry Bowers' home run against Boston University.

Rollie Delfausse led the team in hitting with a .415 percentage, followed closely by Ed Layden, Dutch McCaw and Bob Macomber, while both Johnny Beckley and Marchie Swartz pitched winning ball. Beckley won five out of seven, losing only to Washington and Lee and Dartmouth, was elected captain for the 1934 season.

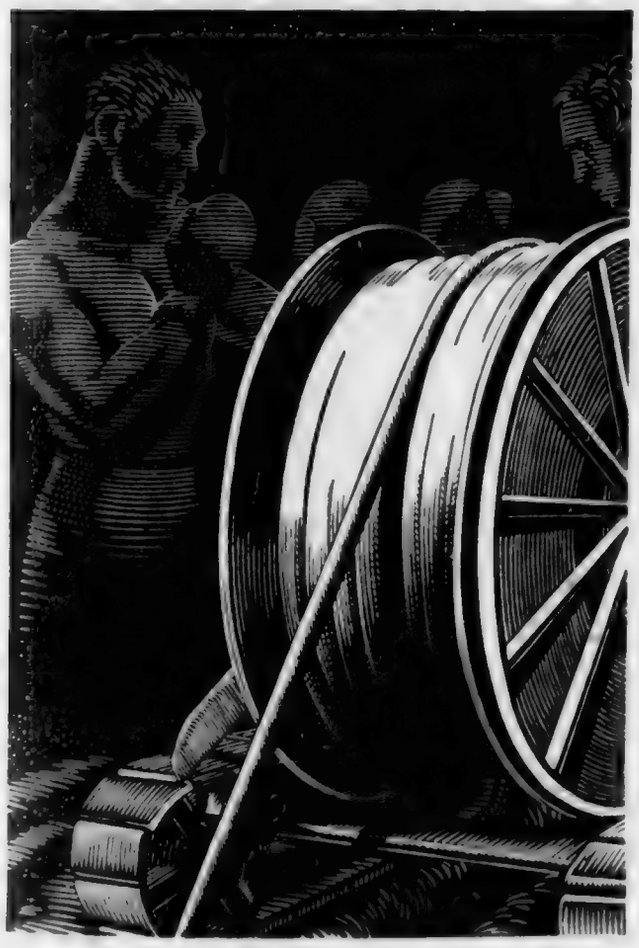
Grid Team Compromises

The University of Vermont football team was a combination of good and bad; successful in that Vermont tallied its first touchdown against Dartmouth since 1914 when Johnny Beckley flipped a short pass to Eddie Saba in the waning minutes of play; successful, too, as Saba and Rapuano romped for two touchdowns against New Hampshire for a 13-0 victory; but poor in recounting Green and Gold losses to Boston University, Clarkson, St. Michael's and Middlebury.

In résumé, the Catamounts won three out of eight games, tallied 95 points against 108 for the opposition and placed four stars on the all state team, Eddie Saba, Red Negus, Red Cook and Biddie McGowan. Twenty-two men were awarded letters at the conclusion of the season.

Handicap Downs Trackstars

The 1933 track team, coached by Archie Post, was handicapped by lack of material and won one meet against St. Lawrence. The green-jerseyed aggregation bowed to Montreal A. A. A. and R. P. I., then finished third in the state conference meet at Norwich. Joe Delfausse, specializing in 440, high jump, 220 low hurdles and broad jump, was the high point man of the year. Johnny Woodruff won the mile in the state meet and Dusty White broke the tape in the half while Delfausse garnered a second in the 440. Gardner placed second in the javelin and Harwood finished behind Sears in the two-mile race. Capt. Roy Brooks, Buster Adams, Walters, Red Cook and Ken Smith also won letters. Smith, the fastest man in the State, tied the college record for the hundred, but pulled a tendon in early season and was unable to compete against Norwich and Middlebury.



Despite a veteran array of material, the cross-country contingent never clicked perfectly and defeated Springfield alone in a schedule that also embraced Union, Connecticut State and Middlebury. Capt. Cliff Harwood placed in every meet and Manny Levine, Doug Suitor and Dusty White also placed during the season.

Hockey, formerly a minor sport on the hill, was discontinued last winter, due to lack of financial appropriation and poor ice, as also was fencing, another minor sport in past years. Boxing, wrestling, touch football, baseball and basketball were continued as intramural activities. Norman Myers, captain-elect of the 1934 tennis team, won the fall tennis championship in straight sets.

The Center Leaves have the finest Tobacco Quality

The first thing people see and like about Luckies is how round and firm they are. The tobacco doesn't spill out and there are no loose ends to cling to lips. That's because we pack each and every Lucky full to the brim with long, even strands of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos—only the center leaves. Not the top leaves—because those are under-developed. Not the bottom leaves—because those are inferior in quality. We use only the center leaves—because they are the mildest and fully ripe for perfect smoking. That's why Luckies always draw easily, burn evenly—and are always mild and smooth. So smoke a Lucky, a fully packed cigarette. And remember, "It's toasted"—for throat protection—for finer taste.

To the Class of 1934,

After three and a half active and enjoyable years as a member of the class of 1934, it becomes necessary for me to submit my resignation as your class president because of doctor's orders that I withdraw from college for the rest of this year. Naturally, it is with great regret that I do this.

Because I cannot do so individually at this time, I take this opportunity of thanking those who have sent me notes of good wishes for a speedy recovery; and of wishing that for every member of the class the remainder of the senior year may be both pleasant and profitable, and that success and prosperity may attend each of you in the years following graduation.

Yours very truly,

VT. BOTANICAL & BIRD CLUBS MEET JAN. 26-27

39th Annual Meeting Will Be Held in Fleming Museum

The Vermont Botanical and Bird Clubs will hold their thirty-third joint annual meeting at the University of Vermont January 26 and 27. The sessions will be held principally in the Fleming Museum.

It will be the thirty-ninth annual meeting of the Botanical Club, which was founded on July 4, 1895 on top of Stratton Mountain by six men who were then, or have since become eminent in the field of botany. These charter members were Ezra Brainerd and the Rev. J. A. Bates, both deceased; M. A. Rowe, assistant director of the New York Botanical Gardens; Prof. E. R. Jones of the University of Wisconsin; A. J. Grout of Newfane, world authority on mosses; and W. W. Eggleston of the United States Department of Agriculture. Publications of this society are now rare and much in demand by botanical libraries.

Since the foundation of the Bird Club in Burlington, July 2, 1901, the two clubs have always held their meetings jointly. The late Dean G. H. Perkins of the University of Vermont was first president of the Bird Club, and G. H. Ross of Rutland, its first secretary. The other charter members were Clifton D. Howe, Carleton D. Howe, Elizabeth B. Davenport of Brattleboro and the late Carrie E. Straw of Stowe. Mr. Ross is now president and Edith M. Esterbrook of Boston is vice-president. Dana S. Carpenter of Middletown Springs is president of the Botanical Club, and H. G. Rugg of Hanover, N. H., is vice-president. Prof. F. J. Fraternities Announce Kake Walk Aspirants For New Type of Show

"Walkin' Fo' De Kake" Is Solitary Event in Which Effort Is Being Made to Win Prizes; Other Features to Be Announced Later by Directors

RECORD COLD SPELL PRECEDES STUDENTS' RETURN TO COLLEGE

Holiday Temperatures Reach Record Lows Throughout the Country

Holiday temperatures were certainly down! The mercury did its best to crawl into the little glass globe at the bottom, and came pretty close to succeeding in some parts. The twenty-ninth produced the most records and the headlines on the last day of the old year were full of such titles as: MERCURY HITS 60-YEAR LOW, RECORD COLD CAUSES DEATHS, and MONTREAL REPORTS THIRTY SEVEN BELOW. Skiing and skating were hampered and many water pipes, auto radiators, and ears were frozen. Burlington had twenty-nine below; Northfield, forty below; Cartierville, a town on the plains near Montreal, fifty-two below. But the best one heard was one from Island Pond; a freshman from that well-known town reported that a man completely froze one foot while kicking the cat out for the night! (He didn't say how the cat fared.) Yes, there was lots of jawsupp for those who love to discuss their weather!

New Military Prize Will Be Awarded

Autographed Book by Colby Is Sixth Prize Instituted by Colonel Black

An autographed copy of "The Profession of Arms," a book written by Elbridge Colby, captain, United States Infantry, instructor in military science and tactics at Vermont, and published by the Appleton-Century Co., will be awarded to the sophomore attaining the highest rank in combat principles, it was announced by Col. F. F. Black, professor of military science and tactics. This makes the sixth prize instituted during Colonel Black's professorship at the University of Vermont.

Other prizes which are offered annually are the reserve officers' cup the American Legion trophy the Loyal Legion saber, the Scabbard and Blade cups and the Sons of the American Revolution medals. These are announced and presented during the military inspection in May.

Captain Colby, the author of the book, has written for various military magazines, law journals on international law and the New York Nation, Current History and the American Mercury. In the January, 1934, American Mercury he has an article on "A Revolution in Infantry Tactics."

BURLINGTON LIONS CLUB GIVES BANQUET TO 4-H

The banquet given by the Burlington Lions Club for the Chittenden 4-H Potato Club members was a big success, there being almost 100 percent attendance of both 4-H members and their Lions sponsors. Each sponsor gave a two minute talk in which he introduced his 4-H partner and told of the fine work that his 4-H boy had done in raising his piece of potatoes. Governor and Mrs. Wilson, and Ex-Governor and Mrs. Weeks gave short talks commenting on the excellent piece of work that had just been completed by the 4-H Club members and staff and the Lions Club. The Extension agronomist spoke briefly on some of the practices which the boys followed in producing their crops.

SEVERAL FRATERNITIES HAVE SELECTED WALKERS

A check-up of men's fraternities on the hill reveals that all of them are planning to compete for the kake at Kake Walk next month. Although some haven't selected their walkers, yet they are planning to do so soon. Others have picked their couples and have been practicing for some time.

Considerable interest is thus already being shown in this sole remaining competitory part of Kake Walk. With the omission of stunts and peerade, "Walkin' fo' de Kake" is the only way for a fraternity to show its superiority. As far as known, the Kake Walk classic, "Cotton Babes," will again furnish rhythm for the event at the hands of the R. O. T. C. band.

Reports from Sigma Phi show that W. H. Connor '36 and M. C. Jones '36 have been practicing for some time, attempting to develop some new steps. They are the couple who trained to walk last year, but Jones was prevented by a disabled foot. His substitute, Morse, and Connor were last year's winners. However, Connor may be unable to compete because of physical ailments.

Sigma Delta, second-prize winners last year, have their same couple going strong this year. E. E. Miller '34 and W. P. Stetson '34 are hitting the high spots in their workouts. Stetson has competed twice before, last year and three years ago, and Miller entered first last year.

Kappa Sigma, last year's honorable mention team, is entering W. M. Waterman '35 and E. C. Sowka '34 for competition. Waterman was a last year's prize winner and has competed three times, Sowka has competed twice before as well.

However, other societies are holding strong for a place in this list this year. "Cotton Babes" can be heard lurking around the still air of some of the houses, and commotion inside gives away the fact that everywhere "Walkin' fo' de Kake" is being walked already.

Delta Psi will probably be represented by J. R. Simonds '35 and R. W. Collins '35, its last year's strutters.

The Owls have considerable competition among themselves and choice will be made from the following six: R. K. Waite '37, J. K. Tangley '37, P. M. Andreas '36, F. A. Mayville '36, J. M. Bellows '36, and D. P. Germann '34. Germann is the only one who has contested before.

Phi Mu Delta Fraternity will probably have R. W. Ryan '34 competing, but his partner hasn't been chosen as yet.

E. O. Walter '34 may represent Sigma Alpha Epsilon, as he has for the past two years.

Three other fraternities have not selected as yet, but are to be represented. They are: Sigma Nu, Alpha Tau Omega and Phi Delta Theta.

TWO FRATERNITIES HOLD DANCES OVER WEEK-END

Owls and Kappa Sigma Have Formals With Unique Decorations

Two fraternity dances constituted the social activity last Saturday evening. The time from six to twelve at the Owl house was occupied by a dinner dance. Lechnyr's Vermonters furnished the occupation, and Prof. and Mrs. H. I. Briggs and Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Livingston were the chaperones. According to H. H. Abbott '35, who was co-chairman with A. R. Wilcox '35, "The decorations looked like hell! That is, they were supposed to represent hell, and were accented by an indirect lighting arrangement in red." There were about twenty couples present at the dance.

The Kappa Sigma dance lasted from eight to twelve and was promoted by J. D. B. Kane '36 and R. A. Negus '36. Prof. and Mrs. C. E. Braun were the chaperones and Sid Carsley's orchestra gave the music.

The CYNIC of the day is quoted as: "The 'Kullud Koon's Kake Walk' was given under circumstances different from the usual this year, and was a decided success.

"The Armory was filled Friday evening, November 12, by a crowd which occupied all three galleries, the seats on the east side, and several rows of chairs which had been placed on the west side. The judges were Prof. F. Tupper, Col. E. H. Powell, C. W. Brownell, Elias Lyman, T. E. Wales, W. S. Vincent and F. R. Wells. The Howard Opera House orchestra furnished music for the walk and the dance which followed. The Hay Hill Foot Ball Team, DeWolf Hopper Opera Co., and Rev. Ebenezer Johnson and family won pieces of cake in the order named. Special mention should be made of Queen Lil and Richard Coeur de Lion." Other novelties in the affair included "The Starvation Army" and the "Jackson-Sharkey Combination."

The Kake Walk proved successful as a financial venture, proceeds being $225 and expenses $60. It was used to help the football management to start the next season free from debt.

The new gymnasium housed the first Walk December 18, 1901. About 450 people were present, and athletics received the proceeds of $101.50. A specialty called "Rails and Wretchedness

KIMBALL YOUNG AND SOAP

(The Minnesota Daily)

When little sister dashes home from school and asks papa for a nickel to buy a cake of soap, papa says, "Who says so." And as teacher's word is law in most homes, little sister gets the nickel while another promises that it's an insult. The [illegible] or at least as clean as the [illegible]

Papa in this case is merely carrying out number one of Dr. Kimball Young's four tests for propaganda which were given to a recent convocation audience. Other questions which papa might ask are: "Why is teacher asking you to do it?" "What does she say?" and "What will be the effect of buying this bar of soap?"

By such questions papa can find out that teacher wants the students to bring soap to class to cater into cows, cats, rabbits and wampuses. The purpose evidently is to encourage pure, if not [illegible] and only a floating 99 44 per-[illegible] pure white variety of soap will satisfy the arts teacher. Papa knows that so he put a nickel and mamma knows that a squalling cat carved in soap will work no hurts. But seldom does mama or papa take the trouble to find out that some soap manufacturer is at the bottom of [illegible] artistic urge.

And that is just where Doctor Young's tests of propaganda fall short. He does not tell how mama and papa can get the facts on the thousand and one backdoor attempts by which the propagandists assail both purse and intelligence. The soap business is quite easy to trace to its source, but more difficult is the detection of some of the more subtle forms. How is the layman to know that a certain [illegible] published by the Smithsonian institute was financed by a group interested in the private ownership of public [illegible]?

[illegible] there is no public journal to which a person can turn to get the low-down on propaganda. The coarse but lively Ballyhoo tried to fill a niche by driving advertising into saner channels. Perhaps there is room in this country for a journal that will give intelligent answers to Doctor Young's questions. Perhaps newspapers could be induced to [illegible] the complete sources of their so-called news material.

An article on trade possibilities in Manchuria would carry the name of the Japanese railroad interested in building up such trade. A story of Marlene Dietrich's gowns would be credited either to her costumer or to her movie publicity. Such methods of carrying out [illegible] and immorality might help the [illegible] public make up its mind.

GLIDERS

Several American colleges have glider clubs, including McGill, Utah and Rensselaer. Burlington is surrounded by ideal gliding terrain; it has level fields, gentle slopes, steep slopes, mountains and the lake: in short, everything needed for every stage of motorless flight. If some group were so inclined they might club together, get some rope, an old Ford and a glider. For ten fellows (there would be too much argument in a larger group) the cost per man per glider would be about forty iron men. That is cheap fun when you consider the exercise and training which may be gained by gliding.

Dr. L. L. Davison, professor of physics at St. Mary's University, San Antonio, Tex., has discovered that falling hair is caused by drinking water before going to bed.

"NEW DEAL" IN KAKE WALK TRIED THIS YEAR

Co." won the cake, and "Darktown Band" and "The Last Rites of the Defunct Glee Club" received honorable mention.

Washington's birthday was made the annual date of the event in 1903. Dancing concluded the program until 1914, but was omitted due to the growth of the entertainment and increase in number of stunts. For a while before the entrance of this country into war, military drill competitions concluded the Kake Walk. In 1918, the proceeds, amounting to $925.71, went to the American Red Cross. It was the twenty-first annual production; the first up to then, and the only one to date the proceeds of which didn't go to the athletic fund.

In 1919 an epidemic of "flu" nearly prevented the Kake Walk from being held, but conditions turned to the better and the event was put on. This was almost the only time that events nearly prevented its production. In 1903, some critics considered it was not worth while as a means of raising money for athletics. A minstrel show was suggested, but the originality of the Walk won its continuance for itself.

By its long existence, it comes to be almost hereditary to us as a permanent institution. It is regarded as a mid-winter classic and will be repeated in this its thirty-seventh season.

Kake Walk this year will be partially reverting to its original program in turning a part of it into a masquerade ball. In fact the radical changes introduced by the directors should invoke enthusiasm and curiosity on the part of all.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

A girl must not squeal when a boy steps on her toe, must hear it if the boy bends her wrist double, must always agree that the other couple was at fault after a collision on the floor, must fail to keep time with the music if the boy does so, must reassure him of his prowess if he apologizes for his poor dancing and in short, however wrong the boy may be, the girl must encourage him into believing that he is always right. "If a girl follows these rules," says the Alabamian, "she will gain the reputation for being a good dancer and consequently should not lack for partners. Under the circumstances she should eventually marry. And if she marries then she will have somebody on whom she can unload her repressed criticisms and complaints for the rest of her dancing days."

Ye Crabbe - - -

By Bill O'Neill

At last! After the script has been around the CYNIC office for a [illegible] a month, as you may have noticed when you read the darn thing, [illegible] gave the high sign and Ye Crabbe broke into print. Not to be outdone by a mere editor, Ye Crabbe [illegible] will give all the news a month in advance, so that when you read this stuff you will know that it was handed in a long time ago. This, for instance, was handed in while Ye Crabbe was getting passing marks in math, which was a very long time ago indeed. . . . Now for the more serious business of the week: The [illegible] ed was sharpening her claws on a lamp post on the corner of Church and College Streets as Buster went by. No words passed between them, but a dirty look from the Co-ed and a dirty smirk at the crossroads. Several big strong gentlemen [illegible] upon Ye Crabbe the other night and in no uncertain tones demanded that such lousy puns be kept out of the column. "I'd column pretty good," I said, hoping to divert their attention from their homicidal intentions. The bruisers as they were, I saw they were under the impact of that last one. Realizing my power, I sent [illegible] pun with deadly force after them. They were groggy. "Did you ever hear the NH4OH song," I continued nonchalessly. "'Ammonia Bird in a Gilded Cage'?" That one floored them. I had one more now to complete the [illegible] "The little cutup song goes like this," I shouted. "Butcher arms around me." My assailants now lay quite still. I knew that the battle was over. Another victory for Ye Crabbe.

Crane, the darling of the debs, says that there is absolutely nothing to the rumor of his going to Dartmouth next year. When interviewed by the [illegible] Mr. Crane made the following statement: "Dartmouth is a swell place alright, but it's not co-ed." Several citizens of Burlington were startled by the extraordinary behavior of a certain frosh pledge the other night. From his perch on the [illegible] he announced to every passer-by that he was an owl. To further substantiate his claim, he rent the air with several owl-like towhit towhoos. Well, this time, after 143 years of [illegible] citizens of our fair city should be hardened to all sorts of weird goings-on. After all, that is the penalty one must pay for living in a college town. So if some night you are accosted on the streets by a hesitant youth whose face has been painted a beautiful shade of green by doting fraternity brothers, don't call for the police wagon. Simply smile and pass along. The poor fellow is, my dear Mr. Citizen, a [illegible]

With the utmost respect for our own sports editor, allow me to quote the Utah Chronicle for a humorous simile: "As accurate as a sports editor." Here's another one: "As optimistic as a college football song." Recently an undergraduate was arrested for stealing undergarments from the clothesline of one of the sorority houses at Tulane. When arraigned before the judge he was released on the plea that it was his first offense. Not bad, eh?

FRESHMEN BEAT SOPHS IN BASKETBALL, 27-24

Nip and Tuck Fight Is Result of Lower Class Competition

The freshmen closed a rather hectic basketball afternoon, by taking the sophomores into camp in an overtime period, 27-24. For a game that started off as slowly and as dully as this one, it wound up with a great rally, an argument, a course in addition, and a reprimand from a referee to a coach.

The frosh failed to get started and the sophs ran up a six-point lead in the first frame. The '36 men were playing great ball and the frosh were on the defense most of the first half, the score being 13-8 at the close.

Coach Shelanski must have given his boys a good pep talk, for they came out and went to work on that five-point lead. By the end of the third quarter the '37 men were only two points behind their opponents. They played a good defensive game, as they stopped big Jim Naylor every time he carried the ball. The spectators evidently enjoyed the sight of the soph guard sliding on the floor, as they called "Encore" after each trip.

It was a nip-and-tuck fight in the last quarter, with Stretch Kirley and George Shaw keeping their teams in the fight. Shaw scored the tying basket just a moment before the final whistle. Davis opened the scoring in the extra time with a foul toss, but Shaw sunk a field goal and Gerow added another goal to end the game.

Kirley was the best man that the sophs had on the floor, scoring 11 points, and Shaw took the honors for the frosh, with 9 points to his credit. Trudeau was the only man in either game to be ejected on fouls, and when he came off the floor he was heard to ask the Supernatural to curse the girls' rules (but not in so many words).

There was quite an argument at the scoring table, when the scorer announced that the frosh had won by the score of 23-22. It seemed as though the whole soph class moved en mass to the table to count the score. It was the great mathematician, Bumps Levine, who finally settled it. (It was a moment later that Bumps chased Coach Shelanski from the table for arguing with the scorer.)

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports' Editor

We were sorry to disappoint our public last Friday but extenuating circumstances rendered it impossible for us to turn out our bi-weekly diatribe.

As most of the U. V. M. students know, Lou Little attended Vermont for a year before transferring to Penn. Doubtless he learned his fundamentals here.

So congratulations to Lou Little and our condolences to Ben Beck, whose team, for some unknown reason, was not invited to the Rose Bowl.

According to the Springfield (Mass.) Daily News Ed Saba is captain of the U. V. M. basketball five. Some people get all the hot tips.

Speaking of basketball reminds us that our boys journey into New York for a three-game trip this weekend. Considering the strength of the opposition, things look pretty complex. But, in accordance with our policy, we are making no predictions.

We hope the bright lights of Troy don't offer too strong a temptation to the team.

The winter sports club is to be congratulated for the extensive schedule they have mapped out. It has always seemed a paradox that U. V. M. has not previously mantained a winter sports team.

The junior class basketball team looks like the real McCoy. They have won the first half and have started out well on the second half.

Larry Bowers has been sporting a catcher's mitt around the halls of the Old Mill lately. The rest of the diamond performers ought to start carrying hats around so they can get used to the feel of them.

Thanks for the Christmas card, Catty Coed. It brought a ray of sunshine into our heart.

County Agent Root reports one of the largest annual meetings of the Windham County Fruit Growers ever held. A cold storage house for the Windham County apple crop was an important topic of discussion. William Cole, professor of horticulture of the Massachusetts State College, Amherst, outlined plans for a cold storage plant that would hold 50,000 bushels of apples. M. B. Cummings, professor of horticulture of the Vermont Agricultural College, spoke on new points on sprays and orchard pests. A committee was appointed and has already met to investigate the feasibility of building an apple cold storage plant. Two types of organization are being considered, a cooperative and a proprietary. As approximately 50,000 bushels of apples from Windham County are shipped annually into storage houses outside the state, this cold storage plant would be of decided benefit to the fruit industry of southeastern Vermont.

WOMEN TO HAVE WINTER SPORTS TEAM IF ENOUGH INTEREST IS AROUSED

Physical Education Department to Devote One Hour Per Week to Outdoor Sports

Winter sports are now being made a part of the women's physical education. As long as the snow and ice are good for skiing, snowshoeing, and skating, one period of each of the gym classes each week will be devoted to these outdoor sports.

At four o'clock every afternoon, a group of experienced snowshoers and skiers will be at Redstone to teach any of the girls who would like assistance in learning. Experienced skaters will be down at Chiott's skating ring to help beginners who want to learn ice skating.

If enough interest is shown in these winter sports a women's team may be picked to compete at Middlebury with some of the women from other New England colleges. Then, too, the women's winter sports team may take part in the winter carnival to be held Kake Walk week-end.

The girls of Middlebury have also invited a team of Vermont women to go down and play them in volleyball. The time for this contest has not yet been set because of the shortness of time before mid-year exams.

VERMONT HOOPSTERS TO TACKLE THREE NEW YORK OPPONENTS THIS WEEK

Union, Rensselaer, and Army to Be Encountered on Successive Nights

On the first basketball trip of the season the Catamount hoopsters engage three rivals to conclude the first part of their schedule. Leaving Burlington Thursday noon, they open with Union College at Schenectady that evening. This should be a great battle after the stirring contest which these two clubs had last year on the gymnasium floor. Vermont, in a thrilling finish, just barely failed to overcome the big lead which Union had piled up. On Friday night the engineers from Rensselaer will entertain our boys. No game was played with them last year but they are usually represented by a strong team. After spending the night in Albany the Green Mountain champions travel down the Hudson to take on the Army Saturday afternoon. This tour of the Capitol District and West Point will be concluded when the team starts back Sunday, arriving here in the afternoon. A successful trip would serve as an excellent tonic for the fast approaching State series and would also instill a little enthusiasm into the school in general.

Coach John Burke has introduced a new offense during the past week and this should strengthen the team greatly. He states that the hoopsters are due to show improvement when they speed up the pace and keep the ball in circulation all the time. A short scrimmage was held Saturday against the frosh with the entire squad seeing action and using the new style of play. The starting quintet had Morgan at center, Ramon and Grant at forwards, and Palmer and Sowka at guards. They functioned fairly well but were not quite sure of themselves and missed several easy shots. The practice was cut short because of class games but was fast while it lasted. With three sessions this week, the team should be in somewhat better condition than they have been for some time.

No decision has been made as yet as to who will take the trip but it is planned to include ten basketball plays, Coach Burke, Manager Tobin and Graduate Manager Abell. The rosters will probably be made up of Captain Beckley, Morgan, Palmer, Sowka, Ramon, and Grant as a nucleus.

THE TOBACCO DOES NOT SPILL OUT

Good tobaccos... real good tobaccos... that's the reason for Lucky Strike's fine, smooth quality. We use only the center leaves of the finest Turkish and domestic tobacco plants. Not the top leaves—because those are under-developed. Not the bottom leaves—because those are inferior in quality. We use only the center leaves—because these are the mildest leaves—fully ripe for perfect smoking. Only these choice tobaccos are used to make Luckies—so round, so firm, so fully packed—and no loose ends to spill out. That's why Luckies are always mild and smooth. That's why always "Luckies please". And don't forget—"It's toasted"—for throat protection—for finer taste.

VERMONT FRESHMAN IS ROUGHLY HANDLED BY USHER AT MOVIES

Roger Waite '37 Suffers Black Eye and Broken Tooth in Scuffle With Usher—May Seek Damages

Four fellows went to the "Strong" theater the other night, Tuesday, and bought tickets in the first balcony (at 20 cents). They sat in the first row and, finding quarters cramped, propped their feet on the brass rail in front of them. An usher came down and told them to take their feet down. The freshmen did so, without any objections, and then set tled back to enjoy the rest of the picture.

Subconsciously they replaced their feet on the brass rail as the show went on. Shortly afterward, the usher came back and ordered them out of the theater. Before they could move, he grabbed the nearest one, Roger Waite, by his sweater front and began lambasting the freshman while holding him in his seat. Blindly the theater employee punched. By that time four other ushers were on hand and prevented Waite's three friends from interfering, so all four were forced to leave as soon as the dust had settled.

Waite suffered a badly bruised eye which swelled until, by the next morning, he was unable to open it. One of his front teeth was chipped, which tends to make one think that the usher had some hard object in his hand while striking, for the tooth could not conceivably have been broken by a bare fist. Waite said he got in only one punch at the usher. He was confined to his bed for several days after.

Asked later whether or not he made any attempt to complain to the management, Roger said, "I said plenty to the head usher, but I can't remember just what, because I was so mad."

Waite returned to the dormitory immediately after being ejected. About sixteen of the fellows from Converse Hall, on hearing Waite's tale, trooped down to the theater en masse, planning to settle accounts with the quick-tempered usher. Fortunately, perhaps, for the guilty man they couldn't tell which usher was the one for whom they were looking, so they all returned peaceably.

On being asked what he planned to do, Waite said that he would try to get settlement for the tooth and, if possible, the classes he was forced to miss.

It appears that the apple-throwing episode set a bad example for that particular usher.

MILITARY STUDENT GETS GRADE LESS THAN ZERO

Our talking Pol Parrot was listening in around the Coffee Corner one cold morning this week and heard, or rather overheard, that one bright student of this University got for the first semester in his "military" work a grade of LESS than zero.

It can't be done, you say. Well, it was; and this is how it happened. Limping along last year with a mark of "C" for the first half, and dropping to a "D" for the second half, this unenergetic sophomore got three grades during the fall semester just past; a 56 on an hour test, a 16 on some written work, and a flat and phenomenal goose-egg on the next hour test. Add, divide by three, and the subsequent grade as averaged is the low and mighty total of 24

Now in the Military Department they are somewhat inclined to insist upon punctuality and attendance. It's a requirement in military circles. What's the use of having an army if it doesn't arrive on time, or doesn't get there at all, whether it is "out to fight the foe" or just to "put a little pepper to the Lord Mayor's Show." So, for each absence, they deduct 2 percent from the final grade. Sixteen absences tally pretty heavy, at 2 percent each, tally up to 32. Subtract the 32 from the grade of 24, and the result is eight less than zero.

NOTICE TO JUNIORS

Any junior who has not yet had a picture taken for the 1935 Ariel should do so before February 3. No individual pictures made after that date will appear in the Ariel. Portraits can be had at most of the downtown studios for $1.50. Juniors who do NOT plan to have individual pictures in the Ariel should notify the board as to whether they wish a grind, just their name, course, and activities, or nothing at all about them to appear in the 1935 Ariel. They are again reminded that they will have to buy the book anyway whether their picture is in it or not.

FINAL CARNIVAL PLANS BEGIN TO FORMULATE

Vermont's Winter Sports Carnival will be held if possible on the afternoons of February 23 and 24. G. O. Ricker '34, president of the Winter Sports Club, will have entire charge of the men's events in the competition, while Janet Woolley '36 will take charge of the women's events.

The ice races will be held on Chiott's rink on one afternoon, while the ski competition will take place back of Centennial Field and the snowshoe and ski events will be held on the back campus the next day. Prizes will be awarded by the Winter Sports Club.

Chairman Coughtry Expects Largest Turnout in Years

Elaborate Plans for Largest Winter Formal Dance of Season Well Under Way—Definite Plans to Be Announced by Posters—Reservations May Be Had From Committee Members

HOTEL VERMONT THE PLACE

Plans for one of the most elaborate Sophomore Hops in years have been announced by Chairman L. L. Coughtry '36. Music obtained for this midwinter frolic will, without doubt, be furnished by Noble Sissle and his famous band, one of the three foremost colored orchestras in the country. The dance will be held in the main dining room of the Hotel Vermont on Friday evening, February 2, 1934

Negotiations Made

At the present time Sissle with his band is playing at the Hotel Sherman in Chicago, but according to a statement made Wednesday night, he will travel East, playing different engagements on the line of travel, getting into Burlington in time to furnish syncopation for the annual Hop. Coughtry entered upon negotiations for the orchestra last month during vacation and feels certain that the famous leader will personally oblige in Burlington

In past years the band has been favorably received on stage, air and at hotels For years he played at the Embassy Club in London, and in the United States has played until recently in the Grill Room of the Park Central Hotel in New York. He broadcasts every week and has thousands of devoted listeners.

Reservations for the dance may be made from any of the committee members at the various fraternity houses or directly from Chairman Coughtry. The latter stresses the fact that as many tickets as possible must be sold to covet the cost of obtaining this orchestra

In past years the Sophomore Hop has comprised the only winter formal dance of the season, and it has been fairly well attended. The committee has under its own initiative secured permission to obtain such a well known orchestra for the occasion

On the committee in addition to Coughtry is H. E. Ruhmshottel '36 and I. J. Millett '36. The publicity committee is headed by B. J. Costello '36 and served by A. I. Levine '36, H. E. Williamson '36, W. H. Connor '36 and L. A. Dickinson '36. J. M. Bellows '36 is the chairman of the decorations and under him are H. H. Allen '36, C. B. Clarke '36, I. S. Swift '36 and V. G. E. WINNOWINGS STARTS SYSTEM OF EXCHANGES WITH OTHER COLLEGES

Exchange Editor Announces Reception of Literary Magazines From Other Colleges

With Dorotha Meader '34 as exchange editor, Winnowings From the Mill has inaugurated an exchange department. The purpose of this movement is to find out what other colleges are doing, how their magazines compare with the Winnowings, and how by friendly contact with said colleges the Vermont literary production may be improved.

Because heretofore this periodical has been carried on independently, it is hoped that this contact with other colleges from various parts of the United States will broaden its outlook and give it a more cosmopolitan viewpoint.

This fall fifty letters were sent to various colleges and universities stating that we were desirous of obtaining representative literary publications, and asked to be included in their exchange list. The response from these letters has been most cordial whether these colleges put out periodicals or not.

A second, larger group of letters will be sent out the next semester to another group of colleges. It is hoped by the end of the year to have a truly representative group of exchanges.

Before the fireplace in the Billings Library Miss Bates has placed a table for these exchanges. To date there are Opinion, a weekly literary of Smith College; Knox Smasher; Lantern, the Bryn Mawr quarterly; Harvard Advocate, a monthly magazine; Barnard Quarterly; Columbia Review, issued

ADAMS MAY MANAGE WINTER SPORTS TEAM

A drive for membership to the Winter Sports Club was inaugurated at a meeting last Tuesday evening, January 9. It was decided that membership cards, obtainable from D. G. Suitor '35, secretary of the club, would cost fifty cents, a nominal sum, "necessary to aid in the various expenses of the club, such as sending the team to the various carnivals, running the carnival later in February, etc.," according to President Ricker

Membership Privileges

Among the many privileges included on payment of the fee is the free instruction to be given in skating, skiing and snowshoeing. Members will also be permitted to enter the carnival at Burlington and participate in various hikes planned by the society. Invitations to the Norwich and St. Michael's Carnival have been received by Ricker. A women's team will be sent to Middlebury, provided enough co-eds are interested in forming a team and accepting an invitation received from the carnival directors at Middlebury College. Also, it is expected that a five-man team will journey to Dartmouth

At the meeting W. P. Pierce, instructor in botany, was named coach of skiing. He issued a general call for all potential ski men, both jumpers and cross-country men. W. M. Adams, '34 resigned his position of treasurer of the club, and K. D. Spaulding '34 was named treasurer in his place. Adams will act as manager of the winter sports team instead, it was announced, pending approval by the Athletic Council.

Will the following people please pay Philagon dues to Betty Brown '36 at Redstone: Helen Young '37, Catherine Babbitt '37, Molly Marshall '36, Jerry Haig '36, Esther Sinclair '36, Frances Whalen '35, Hilda Hoag '35, Ruth Lattimer '36, Cecelia Kremski '36, Carolyn Hill '36, Helen Workman '37 and Marie Black '36.

WOMEN'S DEBATE TEAM NOT TO COMMENCE SEASON UNTIL EARLY IN MARCH

Because of mid-years and the sorority rushing period the women's debating season will not commence until March According to Elvira Farman '34, the manager of women's debate, no definite debates have been decided on as yet

Philagon will hold its last meeting before mid-year this afternoon. The program will consist of a series of six-minute sketches. Several girls will be given the bare details of a plot to work out with conversation and actions. All members are urged to attend as those in charge say the program promises to be interesting

VERMONT FORENSIANS SOON TO SHAPE TEAM FOR SOUTHERN JAUNT

Schedule, Now Nearly Complete, Includes Number of Former Opponents

Directly following mid years the varsity debating squad will resume its activities on a large scale. There are several men out for the team and competition will be keen. Each candidate wants to be one of the four who will make the southern trip. A preliminary to the big trip has been arranged. Five meets are scheduled definitely and negotiations for several more are under way, to make up a campaign for February

The initial debate of the series is to be a decision debate with Clark University of Worcester, Mass., to take place here, Friday, February 2. The question that will be discussed is, "Resolved, That the powers of the President of the United States should be substantially increased." Clark University will uphold the affirmative

Wednesday evening, February 14, U. V. M. meets Rollins College of Winter Park, Fla. A non-decision debate will be held at the Essex Junction High School, U. V. M. having the affirmative side of the presidential powers question. This is the first of a group of three debates to be held on consecutive nights

The team will meet Hobart College of Geneva, N. Y., here in the First Congregational Church, February 15. U. V. M. will have the negative side

COURAGE—FRESHMEN

PRELUDE

We cannot help dwelling once more on the subject of examinations from the upperclassmen's point of view. From various sources we have received some very interesting viewpoints which no doubt are singular in some cases but not typical.

Certain upperclassmen in the Arts and Sciences College have expressed their extreme distaste at the amount of outside reading that has to be done in the period between Christmas and mid-years, the time of which is so short. We recommend that in the future professors, who require said reading allow a certain number of cuts that may be taken in that time. In other schools the period between vacation and exams is often termed the "reading period" and the student is not required to attend classes at all.

Last year an instructor (we do not know whether he is back in [illegible] college this year) in one of the courses required of the Freshmen announced at the beginning of the term that he thought that all examinations should be limited to a one-hour period instead of the customary two hours. While we had sympathy for such the greater majority of upperclassmen felt the Freshmen would be much the greater gainers if the examinations were given during the two hours. Of course, the exam period might be cut down to one hour, or in the winter months examinations could be held when the light was brightest. The physical and mental side of this question is well known to engineers and other experts, so that the exam period could turn out to be in two hours, relatively speaking, than in three.

From still another source comes the pitiful plea that proctors kindly refrain from wearing shoes with leather heels. We can think of nothing more disturbing than the unpleasant tattoo of heels upon a wooden floor during the course of a difficult test.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

"Come on, all you Northerners."

Skaters, skiers, snowshoers, hikers, and woodsmen, men and women, Northerners and Southerners (Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, etc.) are urged to sign up for membership in the first Winter Sports Club that the University of Vermont has maintained in years, and certainly the most active one it has ever had.

Membership in this club will cover many unique privileges which will repay to the utmost the moderate fee asked. Instructions in skating, skiing and snowshoeing represent only a part of the advantages to be derived from this membership. The opportunity to participate in many interesting hikes in the vicinity of Burlington and outside, requiring no skill or learning whatever, will be offered. Membership includes the right for anyone to participate in a gala winter sports meet to be on the latter part of February, the first of its kind the University of Vermont has had in many years.

What is a more pleasant feeling than returning to a warm fire after a day or an afternoon in the open air? Think of the many chances to experience this unique and utterly pleasant sensation which will be given. Are YOU going to join the Winter Sports Club? Why not?

The Catty Co-ed

The Catty Co-ed thinks that the girls who resemble Katharine Hepburn should form a club. There seems to be quite a group of them.

For the person who has an exam every day in the first week.

Just a little ray of sunshine, that's Ted Fox.

Do the coeds ever envy Bart Costello? He has such fine long eyelashes.

Our vote: Lloyd Cowdery at Grasmere.

In the greatest secret of the Catty Co-ed will whisper to our audience a secret. "Sue Wells doesn't know any women." It's about a local girls.

One day the Catty Co-ed went to the room of the Cynic and there she met Frances the queen behind the Cynic throne. She thinks everybody should know Frances. Ask any news editor.

Yank: "Gee! Em a break, girls!" item the white creek.

Campus House girls and the Phi Delta Boys showed poor appreciation of the good music rendered by the Wandering Troubadours last night.

Latest news flash! Just in time for publication! Just ask the Catty Co-ed where she was on the morning of Thursday the 11th at ten-fifty and what happened on the night of the murder. She'll blush!

W. D. WHITE IS ELECTED CAPTAIN OF THE 1934 CROSS-COUNTRY TEAM

The Athletic Council has announced that W. D. White '35 was elected captain of the 1934 cross-country team in the recent elections.

Dusty White has been a star on the cross-country team for the past two seasons. He ran on the freshman team in 1931 and won his numerals without difficulty. During the '32 season White was one of the mainstays of the team, running brilliantly at several meets. This year, as well as last, he won his letter by excellent performance.

JUNIORS UNDEFEATED IN CLASS LEAGUE SERIES AS THEY TRIM FROSH

Most Interesting Game of Season Results in Score 23-17

The class of 1935 still remains undefeated in the class league competition, although they had one of their closest calls Wednesday afternoon when they barely nosed out the frosh by a score of 23-17. The game was close throughout and more interesting than any game played thus far in the league, as far as the spectators were concerned.

Bob Bent, Roly Delfausse and Pete Joly led the juniors in scoring, while the play of Crandall, Reed and Gerow was outstanding for the frosh.

Windham County farmers recently entertained a group of about thirty dairymen from Litchfield County, Connecticut at a meeting in Rockingham, these men were making a tour of southern Vermont and New Hampshire, visiting the Bellows Falls Milk Plant, representative dairymen, orchardmen, and poultrymen. Their leader was Ray Atherton, former county agent of Windham County, A. R. Merrill, Connecticut Extension dairyman, also accompanied the party. They left a cordial invitation to Vermont farmers to visit Litchfield County, Connecticut some day. These men were having a couple of days of real vacation coupled with the gaining of information and new acquaintances.

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports' Editor

Certain complaints have been coming to our ears lately to the effect that this column is lacking in news. (Page Winchell Sussmann.)

That may all be true, but such a lack is due to the great dearth of varsity sports competition at this time of year. So, therefore, there is a lack of subject matter. Blame the Athletic Association and not us.

We have heard certain disturbing rumors lately concerning the selection of next year's football coach.

It would seem that if the Athletic Council is going to select a football coach at all, that they would select a man of proven ability, one who can turn out football teams which will bring credit to the University.

Vermont needs a coach who can win the confidence, respect, and admiration of the players.

We understand from our operatives that a number of applications have been received for the job. Surely it seems that it would be possible to select the right kind of coach from this group, even though finances are not too favorable.

If we have been misled about this coaching situation, we will apologize to the Council on the front page with a five-column spread.

Your humble correspondent favors Chick Meehan, personally.

Another thought for the graduate manager: After that press box is built, the next thing to erect is a field house.

As exclusively predicted in this column, St. Mike's got those scholastically ineligible basketball players back in time for the state series. We call 'em right once in a while, anyway, although it took no great bit of perspicacity to figure that out.

This goes to press too early to give a résumé of the basketball trip, but we think the change in the line-up should prove beneficial.

Happy mid-years to all and, professor, spare that athlete!

Mrs. Fall—I won't say he quit work. When he goes fishing he works harder than he ever does anywhere else.

Should We Adopt This Custom?

At a certain university an interesting tradition has evolved. Those girls who are heartbroken and wish to withdraw from circulation wear a yellow ribbon. Boys who are likewise entangled and do not wish to be pestered wear a black band on their sleeve. Are we to take that as meaning that the girls are bragging and the boys are mourning?

CRIPPLED SOPH TEAM LOSES TO THE SENIORS IN INTERCLASS SERIES

Myers Stars for Seniors in Loosely-played Game, Kirley for Sophomores

In an interclass game played at the gym last Tuesday the sophomores continued their losing ways and succumbed to the ancient and honorable seniors by the score of 41-23. However, the sophs had a first-class alibi in that nobody knew the game was to be played, and as a result the class of 1936 battled valiantly without the services of Big Jim Naylor, Eddie Fund, Es Mahoney and Bart Costello.

The seniors started fast and had piled up a 17-1 lead before baskets by Householder and Hart made the score at least resemble that of a basketball game. With Myers, Delfausse and Brislin leading the way the seniors started forging ahead and the outcome of the game was never as much as questioned by even that great doubter, Hub Trudeau. Stretch Kirley managed to drop around during the third quarter and his four hoops enabled the sophs to actually outscore the seniors in the last quarter—but that was all.

For the seniors, Myers was high scorer with six baskets. Brislin, Cogswell and Delfausse also figured prominently in the scoring feast. Kirley and Householder featured for the sophomores.

FROSH BASKETBALL TEAM ASSUMES PLAYING FROM UNDER CONSTANT DRILL

Team Shows Up Well in Scrimmages Against Varsity

The freshman basketball team is fast rounding into shape due to constant practices against the varsity. The Kittens should find no team giving them too much difficulty and the comparison should be a great help. The squad has been cut and the most promising combination has Duncan, elongated center; Tomassetti and Warden fast-cutting forwards; and Beattie and Munger at the guard positions.

This is quite effective since it combines speed with height. Duncan can be depended upon to get the tap most of the time and specializes in taking the rebound from the backboard. Al Tomassetti, brother of Mario, Catamount catcher of three seasons ago, captained the Meriden, Conn., High School team and has had much experience. Beattie, star of the 1937 football team, won all-New Hampshire State honors last year. The other members are experienced in the game, having played with various prep and high schools.

Graduate Manager Abell has not yet released the schedule but is negotiating for one more game to complete it. It is expected to appear to the waiting public by the end of this week. Games will probably be played with perennial frosh opponents such as Montpelier Seminary, Green Mountain Junior College, Burlington High School and various independent teams from the city. It will not be a very extensive one but will begin immediately after the mid-year examinations are over.

CWA APPROPRIATES SUM FOR EXTENSIVE WORK IN DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE

$7,500 Given for Repair and Betterment of Equipment Work Nearly Finished

The Civil Works Administration has extended its benefits to the University of Vermont by appropriating a sum of about $7,500 for the repair and betterment of equipment in the agricultural department. The CWA provides the money for the labor included in the project, while the University must furnish its own materials.

To date there has been quite a bit of work done in the University greenhouse, Morrill Hall, the Extension Service, the dairy, and the Farm Bureau. This work, which started December 15, will continue until February 15. Most of the wood has now been finished, much work having been done during the Christmas vacation and the mid-year exams. At one time there were 7,000 men hours working at one time. Later it was cut down to 3,000 and at the present time there are only about 1,000 men hours at work.

Under the supervision of Doctor Burns and Professor Cummings, the greenhouse has come in for quite a good deal of repairs. Up to the present, the entire inside where classes were held, has been repaired and painted and put in good order. The cellar was repaired, and the floor of the north greenhouse has a new coat of cement. The floors of the other greenhouses will also be recemented. There have been new cypress plant boxes put in the north and south greenhouses.

There has also been considerable work done in Morrill Hall. The dairy laboratory equipment was painted white and the room was blocked from public traffic by a partition forming an alley way. The whole building was painted from stem to stern and all the furnishings and woodwork varnished. A door has been put in at the back of Morrill Hall for the purpose of transporting dairy products exclusively.

Professor Smith remarked that the building is open to inspection if anyone cares to see the work being done.

KAKE WALK DIRECTORS ANNOUNCE APPOINTMENT OF COMMITTEE HEADS

Women Given Part in Direction for First Time. Assistants to be Appointed by Chairman

Appointments for the chairmanships of Kake Walk committees (subject to the approval of the committee on non athletic student activities) have been announced. They are:

D. J. Tobin '34, Kake Walking committee.
A. A. Ross '34, production committee.
Helen Jenkins '34, production committee.
D. W. Jenks '34, lighting committee.
W. P. Stetson '34, seating committee.
Alice McConnell '34, ushering committee.
K. D. Spaulding '34, program committee.
T. G. Cogswell '34, masquerade committee.
N. O. Wells '34, decorations committee.
W. Cohen '34, publicity committee.

Ever faithful to the one-word slogan "different" for the Kake Walk of 1934, the directors made known several more innovations when they announced their appointments for committee chairmanships last night.

For the first time in nearly four decades of Kake Walk history, the women have been given an active administrative part in this student function. It will be noticed that several new committees have been formed and that others have been done away with. Also a new and more democratic method of selecting committee members is announced. The committee chairmen will appoint their own committees this year.

"There was a time," says G. H. Burrows '34, "when University athletics were supported almost exclusively by the men. Today the co-eds' enthusiasm seriously threatens if not surpasses that of the stronger sex. What with their large attendance at games, their lusty cheering their own energetic cheerleaders, and finally with their historic invasion into the holy sanctum of a men's pre-game smoker last fall; it seems only fair that they be given an opportunity to assist in the production of Kake Walk, the only available channel for supporting their athletic teams in a financial way."

Arbitrary appointments to committees by the directors in the past were necessarily affected by personal and external influences. Countless members did the work at all and were not asked to do so. Under the new plan each chairman will select a group of assistants with whom he can work most efficiently. After outlining his new plan, G. H. Burrows said, "The complete cooperation of everyone is required in order to do properly the job before us."

OMICRON NU GIVES TEA FOR HOME EC FRESHMAN

The Omicron Nu gave a tea for the freshman home economics girls recently at Practice House, to explain the aims and purposes of the organization.

Velma Purinton '34 presented a silver loving cup to the club for the freshman girl who, in the second semester, shows the most advance in marks, leadership and promise of future ability. Miss Purinton and Ruth Johnston '34 were the hostesses for the tea.

The freshman girls were heard to say that they enjoyed the tea very much.

MUSIC TO BE FURNISHED BY SAM WOODING'S BAND

Change of Date Forces Committee to Hire Different Music—Orchestra is Direct from Kit-Cat Cafe in London

Plans for one of the finest Sophomore Hops in years are nearly complete, according to the chairman of the affair, T. J. Coughlin '36. Contrary to all former announcements, the dance will be held Friday evening, February 9, in the main dining room of the Hotel Vermont. Music for this festivity is to be furnished by the internationally famous English band of Sam Wooding and his Victor-recording orchestra. The change in date made it impossible to obtain the previously announced Noble Sissle and his band, but the present arrangements are considered even more fortunate.

Internationally Known

Sam Wooding has acted as an exchange band for Fletcher Henderson in the Kit-Cat Club in London. He is internationally known and has played before many of the crowned heads of Europe. He will arrive in this country on February 5. On February 6, 7 and 8 he will be in New York making Victor recordings, and working on Warner Brothers shorts. Thus Burlington will be his first American appearance. He will be playing at only the big hotels in the country, but because of the recency of his arrival, his dates were not all taken.

Reservations for the dance may be made at any of the fraternity houses through the fraternity representatives, or at Haves and Carney's.

Large Attendance Expected

In late years the Sophomore Hop has been the only winter formal dance, and it has been fairly well attended. The committee in charge this year secured permission to obtain such a well known orchestra for the occasion, with the hopes that the practice may be continued, depending on its success this year. This formal will last from 8.30 to 1.00. Tickets are $3.85, including tax.

The committee includes, besides Coughtry, H. E. Ruhmshottel '36 and J. J. Millett '36. The publicity committee is headed by B. J. Costello '36 and completed by A. I. Levine, J. F. Williamson, W. H. Connor and L. A. Dickinson. J. M. Bellows is the chairman of the decorations, and assisting him are H. H. Allen, L. H. Naylor, J. Swett and V. G. E. Ronca III, all members of the class of '36.

(3) [illegible] represented this [illegible] any other University for more than [illegible] in [illegible] previous baccalaureate degree.

(5) [illegible] shall serve in the [illegible] [illegible] meeting groups the various [illegible] [illegible] activities. With reference to the appointment of freshmen to [illegible] positions on the Green, it was said a limited allowance was made. However heads of the various organizations [illegible] being requested to sign a petition to be presented to the University Council, in favor the rule to permit freshmen to entrance to [illegible] [illegible] and clubs.

A step [illegible] from the discussion of eligibility in non-athletic [illegible] has been [illegible] received by the writer advocating the freshman rule. Among the other advantages of such a rule it was stated that the freshman [illegible] the many distractions of his new environment. That he may adjust himself to college life and the various activities in which he may [illegible] to take part. That he cannot [illegible] increasing amounts of time to [illegible] activities and decreasing amounts on his studies. That he [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] that participation in any [illegible] organized activity is a great incentive to scholastic [illegible] work.

Does this sound like the punishment which we had at first thought it was? It was also mentioned at the meeting of organization heads by the same chairman [illegible] opposition to any organization that participation in some form of outside activity at college was a good thing for the student. However, it was brought out that the maximum participation in a reasonable number of [illegible] activities is advisable and a valuable [illegible] in that it benefits the point of activity from studies to some [illegible] which I deem an important asset to any man, that habits of study and activity must be formed early in college career, that unless good marks are maintained the activity must be dropped, that the student is apt to acquire himself well with college mates and college mates many [illegible] than if he were a mere student.

At this [illegible] it was pointed out that all extra-curricular [illegible] give the matter their earnest thought and, if they desire a modification of the present [illegible] condition see that they will [illegible] their decision to the [illegible] [illegible].

Commenting on the [illegible] it seems to be [illegible] knowing to the powers that be in college professors throughout the country and those students who are well along in their college careers have by this time learned to respect this bit of knowledge. However nothing much is ever said about the professors who cram their students just before examinations. We [illegible] professors along this line concerning those professors who make it a point only a week to actively tutor their students before a mid-year or final examination and then charge them for their services.

It is a well-known fact that several professors at the University of Vermont make it a habit of charging their pupils when tutoring them before an exam. On the other hand, there are many generous professors who sympathize with the pupils and devote much of their time during the exam period to tutoring the slower students. We commend those professors who make it a point to unhesitatingly offer aid in their courses during the depressing and tense period of examinations, but we cannot praise those professors who are willing to offer help to their own students for a consideration, usually monetary.

First we are of the firm belief that such a procedure in teaching is unethical; second, we feel that it is a sign of greed on the part of some professors; and third, a result of poor teaching policies. Some professors are certainly busy during examination periods, but they should be willing to undergo a strain similar to that the students undergo at this period. Should a professor use college rooms and college teaching hours in order that he may make "a little extra?" Should he admit to the class that if the members have not learned sufficient in his course he can very easily teach them more, and in such a short time? Oftimes professors will imbue in a group of five or six students in a relatively short time a tutorial grasp what he has been striving all term to teach.

We are of the firm opinion that University of Vermont professors should lend a helping hand to their students at anytime during the course of the term, and should be willing to render this service gratis.

Reports from the University Store indicate that the circulating library instituted with the special purpose of giving college students an opportunity to read the latest books of the season has been so successful that a special price for the second semester of the current year can be had by those students who are not already members of the library. A price of seventy-five cents will cover the student's privilege to be a member of the library for the present semester.

Students are again reminded that despite the fact that many ventures in present day circles are money making ventures, the circulating library run by the Book Store is strictly not. All surplus accrued by the Book store will be used weekly to purchase latest works of fiction

Campus Comment

[illegible]

[illegible] Hoosier A. Prentice

February 1, 1934

To the Editor of the Cynic:

Dear Sir: Enclosed is a petition in order that the following rule in the University regulations be changed: No student shall represent the University in any capacity, or hold any office in any University club, team, publication board, dramatic activity or other student organization, if he has not been a resident student at the University for one year."

The rule applies to freshmen and this means nowhere.

I admit that there is such a rule, but since it has not been thoroughly enforced for a number of years, why should it be necessary for students suddenly to be restricted this year?

First, I should like to give what arguments I can in favor of the rule. First that the scholastic standing of the freshman is too low; second that they need time to study and to adapt themselves to a new environment; third that few freshmen take an active part in outside activities and that the enforcement of the rule would not affect a large percentage of the student body.

In refutation of these. First the scholastic average of the freshmen is no lower this year than it has been before; nor is not the proportion of high marks any [illegible] about the same among freshmen as it is among upperclassmen [illegible] in activities? Aren't those freshmen who do go out for activities the ones who take an intelligent interest in them and in their studies at the same time?

Secondly, if freshmen or any other students were released from student activities because of low marks, would they spend any more time on their studies? As an aside to this, it might be said that very many students have more time their fresh year than they have later, because the knowledge that they carry later is [illegible].

Third, in answer to the contention that it would affect comparatively few members of the class, still it is a sufficiently large number to be mentioned, and the proportion of the class is about the same as that in other classes.

This rule is in direct opposition to the recent policy of the University in urging all new students to try for some activity as soon as possible after coming to college. If the rule were enforced to its entirety it would preclude all participation in freshman teams, where men receive training for varsity teams, in glee clubs (hour a source of some small income to some students) in departmental clubs and general organizations where students receive training for further work in them.

It has been suggested that participation in the Cynic and Glee Club be allowed. These two organizations take much more time than some of the other clubs. It would be very difficult to draw a line between what could be allowed and what could not.

If it is still necessary for the rule to be enforced, might it not be possible for a scholastic limit to be set? If a freshman had less than an average of say 75, he should be made to drop his outside activities.

May these arguments not form sufficient basis for a consideration of the petition?

Very truly yours,
Katherine M. Babbitt '37.

CAT'S MEOW

BY SPORTS EDITOR

According to a well-authenticated rumor, our old pal and buddy, Ben Beck, brings his Middlebury quintet here tonight for Vermont's opening State series game.

Middlebury is no ball of fire and neither is Vermont, so it looks like quite a struggle.

Just what has caused Vermont's veteran team to fold up is a mystery. The failure of three of the men to return to last season's form may have something to do with it.

Like Frank Merriwell Ed Layden comes to Vermont's aid in her hour of need. We hope history repeats itself and that Ed will once again come through in the pinch.

Throwing all caution to the winds and forgetting all our previous reverses, we pick Vermont to win tonight. Watch our alibi in the next issue in case Vermont loses.

From a reliable source we learn that Mgr. Don Tobin of the court five is due to get his letter from Rensselaer for his valuable services as timekeeper in the recent Vermont-Rensselaer game. One never ceases to wonder at the amazing feats of this man Tobin.

Turning from basketball to football, we note that the identity of our next football coach is still a secret.

Evidently Yale and Vermont are having some sort of a contest to see which institution can stall the longer in naming its football coach.

We have decided to publish from time to time the names of those mentioned for Vermont's football coach.

From one who is in a position to know, we learn that Tom Keady, Chick Meehan, one Laird (not the Norwich coach), and a couple of local boys identity unknown, are being considered.

The New Haven Register has it that Albie Booth is in line and the Springfield, Mass., Republican asserts that Norman Crisp is the man. So what?

Peavy of St. Mike's has been suspended for ten days but, strangely enough, that suspension is due to be lifted in time for the Mikemen's next State series game. This incident is just another evidence of the harmony and good feeling existing between the St. Michael's faculty and the St. Michael's athletes.

We trust that Ben Beck will be greeted tonight in the manner he so justly deserves.

ARIEL SNAPSHOTS

The Ariel Board wishes to take this opportunity to thank all those who have turned in snapshots for the 1935 Ariel. The Ariel Board also wishes to send out a second plea for pictures: snow scenes, winter sports, faculty pictures, humorous pictures, and individuals—particularly individuals—will all be most gratefully received. The snapshot deadline is the middle of March so plan to get your pictures taken before then.

RETURNS TO TEAM

ED LAYDEN, M. '37

REGULAR TEAM OF VETERANS TO START

[illegible] to regain lost prestige [illegible] hoopsters open the [illegible] of their schedule against M[illegible] Friday evening at eight o'clock [illegible] gymnasium floor. Vermont, after [illegible]ning the opener from McGill, proceeds to drop every other contest by [illegible] amounts. Coach Burke experimented [illegible] different combinations but could never [illegible] to find any that would play a consistent brand of basketball. [illegible] teams have been used to date [illegible] loss of two regulars from last [illegible] championship array apparently was [illegible] much to overcome. At the [illegible] practice after mid-years prospects [illegible] to look much brighter as Ed "Jug" Layden, who played a stellar part [illegible] year's team, returned to the squad [illegible] may be a turning point in the [illegible] our hoopster aggregation. It will be remembered that this same Ed turned [illegible] mediocre club of 1932-33 to a [illegible] sharp-shooting outfit. A week of [illegible] work and Layden should be pronounced fit to engage in the Blue and White battle. Jack Morgan at the [illegible] Whitey Palmer and Ed Sowka [illegible] backcourt, and Capt. Johnny [illegible] teamed with the experienced [illegible] should present a vastly improved [illegible]tet. Then with Enos Ramon, Ed [illegible] Bob Grant, Andy Werner and [illegible] Steirn to round out the rough spots, [illegible] prospects for a victory Friday evening appear much brighter.

Although the Green and Gold have an improved combination, the Middlebury Panther must be given the edge on the basis of the previous games of the season the Blue and White, although their schedule has given but fair results thus far, have a much better record in the games won and lost column. The Middmen bank mostly on their elongated stars—Captain Sweet and Clonn.

Last Winter the Cats traveled down to the Panther band for the undoubted favorites to spring a big upset. Then with the State championship at stake Vermont garnered their second victory on the home court. If with the new combination Middlebury defeat should result it will place our athletes in good standing again. As the game in the first of a long [illegible] a victory is what the team needs and must get.

U. V. M.'S 300TH GAME TO BE PLAYED TONIGHT

Tobin Compiles Statistics on Basketball Showing Record Since 1900

The contest with Middlebury tonight, when Vermont's quintet opens its State conference basketball season, will be the 300th in which U. V. M. hoop teams have participated. Statistics compiled by D. J. Tobin '34, manager of basketball, show that Vermont has won 157 of the 299 games played since December 15, 1900, and lost 142, has scored 7,883 points against 7,427 for opponents, and has had ten winning seasons, nine losing seasons and two in which it broke even.

In its ninety-two games with Green Mountain Conference opponents, Vermont has won sixty-six games, lost eleven to Middlebury, ten to Norwich and five to St. Michael's. It has won seventeen from Middlebury, twenty-four from Norwich and twenty-five from St. Michael's. Rivalry with Norwich began in January, 1904. No games were played against Middlebury or St. Michael's until the season of 1917-18 when basketball was resumed at the University after a lapse of ten years.

Vermont's lowest score was made against Williston Seminary in 1901 when the University lost, 28 to 2. Three years later it defeated Dartmouth 12 to 3. Its highest total was compiled against St. Michael's in 1928 when the score was 61 to 21. Its greatest margin of victory was over Norwich in 1923 when the score was 57 to 8. A close second was the 52 to 11 win over Middlebury the following year. The highest scoring game in which Vermont has participated was in 1930 when Rensselaer won, 51 to 43.

BISHOP BOOTH BRINGS INSPIRATIONAL MESSAGE

"Only hope of the world today is spiritual education," declared Bishop S. B. Booth in chapel Wednesday January 31. He went on to say that "an individual should surrender himself to God and not try to seek any explanation for the mysteries. Take things as they come along and they will be explained ultimately."

He also stressed the fact that people shouldn't be afraid to pray. It is the [illegible] who pray that have the most respect for their fellow men, he said.

PRESS CLUB ADMITS 22 NEW MEMBERS

As a result of try-outs twenty-two new Press Club members have been chosen. The try-outs were very successful and all the new members have been doing very satisfactory work, announced Helen Mount '35, president.

The girls to be admitted as new members are: Elizabeth Boyd '36, Margaret Jenks '35, Madeline Davidson '36, Natalie Hilliker '36, Mary Casey '35, Hester Martin '36, Sylvia Munsil '36, Ruth Woodard '36, Marietta Marshall '36, Ruth Lattimer '36, Georgia Kreiser '35, Margaret Levarn '35, Sue France '35, Olive Puffer '35, Norma Lathrop '35, Viola Dragon '35, Sylvia Margulis '37, Doris Goodman '37, Mary Cunningham '35, Sue Sanborn '35, Harriet Gale '36, Gertrude Fishman '36.

FRESHMEN NOW SHOOTING RECORD COURSE IN RIFLE

Thirty-six selected freshmen commenced this week shooting in the indoor target range what is called the "record course" in small-bore marksmanship. For the next two or three weeks they will be making bull's eyes trying to win the right to wear the coveted silver qualification badges on their blue uniforms, visible testimony of their accuracy with the rifle.

Following are those whose scores over the preliminary course last fall have entitled them to this opportunity: L. H. Baker, R. A. Crandall, H. A. Donahue, A. R. Evans, J. R. Evans, C. J. Farr, C. W. Flint, A. W. Foote, G. W. Gray, J. G. Grimes, W. C. Haug, N. R. Heald, W. A. Humphrey, H. H. Hunt, R. A. Kenworthy, F. L. Ligouri, E. B. Meservey, F. H. Mudgett, R. V. Newcombe, W. P. Noonan, C. F. Picard, A. T. Reed, W. L. Reed, G. M. Rice, G. W. Rist, R. N. Saxby, H. A. Schoff, H. W. Sisco, D. I. Somers, A. C. Svigoon, W. L. Towers, W. Vilardo, C. J. Watters, D. W. Whitman, I. I. Wolfe and J. E. Woodhull. Eight of this number have already been picked to try out for the University rifle team and are making good progress on the competition targets.

Qualification targets are replicas of the regulation army targets used on the big outdoor ranges at distances varying from 200 to 600 yards, both the bull's-eye for slow fire and the silhouette for rapid fire. All shooting is from a point fifty feet from the target and the paper targets are sized exactly proportional to the reduced range so that the entire course is a miniature of the outdoor target shooting. A perfect score would bring the firer 350 points. To qualify as expert, the firer must make 330 points, which is good shooting in any man's army. It is believed by the military department, however, that the men selected have an excellent chance of making the qualification score.

All junior women who do not belong to fraternities will please meet me in the Old Mill Chapel at 1.30 on Monday, February 5.

SECOND RADIO DEBATE TO BE HELD TONIGHT WITH CLARK UNIVERSITY

Jenks and McCuin to Uphold Negative of Presidential Powers Question in WCAX Broadcast

The University of Vermont debaters will engage in the second of the season's radio broadcasts this evening at 7.45 with two representatives of Clark University at Worcester, Mass., over the Daily News radio station, WCAX. The question to be debated is: Resolved that the powers of the President of the United States should be substantially increased as a settled policy. The University of Vermont will uphold the negative while Clark University will affirm.

D. W. Jenks '34 of Burlington and R. F. McCuin '34 of Highgate will debate for Vermont while J. Francis O'Connor, captain, and Charles Johnson will represent Clark University. Prof. Leon W. Dean will act as chairman for the debate. This will be the second of the radio broadcast debates to be held this year and is sponsored through the courtesy of the Burlington Daily News.

Decision will be rendered by a board of three judges who will telephone in their decisions immediately following the debate.

12 VERMONT CLERGYMEN LEAD CHAPEL SERVICES DURING PAST SEMESTER

Twelve Vermont clergymen from ten different counties accepted invitations during the past semester to lead the mid-week chapel services.

The ministers who have led chapel are: The Revs. F. Wilson Day, Randolph; Sylvanus M. Duvall, South Hero; Harry W. Foote, Dorset; William F. Frazier, Burlington; H. S. Kennedy, Middlebury; A. Ritchie Lowe, Johnson; Duncan Livingston, St. Albans; John W. Barnett, Montpelier; P. C. Ladd, Burlington; George W. Pack, Rutland; Evan Thomas, Burlington; and Herbert T. Wallace, Orleans.

Ernest Johnson, negro tenor, sang negro spirituals at one chapel service, and the University choir sang Christmas music at another.

Monthly vesper services on Sunday afternoons have also been held in the chapel, with eminent clergymen from Boston, New York and Montreal as preachers and the University choir furnishing music.

FOUR NEW COURSES ARE OFFERED THIS SEMESTER

Especially Designed to Fill Requirements for Those Planning To Teach Languages and Math.

The new courses to be given at the University this semester include German 109, Latin 14, mathematics 14 and etymology.

The course in teaching of modern languages, German 109, is taught by Professor Carpenter. It meets on Tuesday and Thursday at 1.30, for one hour and a quarter, and gives three hours college credit. The course is designed primarily for those students majoring in a modern language and intending to teach.

Mathematics 14, under Professor Nicholson, is a course in the method of teaching algebra and geometry in secondary schools. Professor Nicholson says, "I intend to teach various methods of presentation from which prospective teachers may choose the one they prefer." The class meets Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 10.30 in Room 4, and to date has an enrollment of twelve.

Professor Lindsay of the Latin department is to teach Latin 14, a course in the teaching of Latin. No definite figures are available on the enrollment as yet. The Latin department is also offering a course in etymology. This course, taught by Professor Lindsay also, is a study of the derivation of words.

At present New York and certain other states require that candidates for teaching positions in public schools shall have taken at least a half-year course in methods of teaching the subject offered. The new courses satisfy this requirement. Under certain restrictions they may be counted as half courses in education. Apart from satisfying state requirements they are hoped to prove exceedingly valuable to the prospective teacher, in that they render him familiar with a variety of material.

Results of a survey at the University of Washington show that the average student carries more pocket money than the average professor. The professor's secretary, however, carries more than the two combined.

W. A. A. NOTES

An informal skating party, sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association, was held last Wednesday evening at eight o'clock on Lake Champlain. The affair was provided with music and the fun was increased by red flares, set off at various intervals.

According to the women's physical education department, the basketball teams will be chosen the last week in February. Meanwhile practice has been speeding up in anticipation and preparation for a long and hard contest for the championship of women's basketball prowess.

There will be four women representatives of the University of Vermont who will participate in the winter carnival at Middlebury on February 12, which is Lincoln's birthday. Tryout for the lucky individuals will be held very soon, the announcement of which date will be given at a later time.

During the month of February the women's physical education department will excuse all freshman and sophomore women participating in winter sports from one hour of physical education a week. They must, however, attend the other class.

Those women who are coaching skaters at Chiott's are as follows: On Mondays Lois Whitcomb '35 will be in charge from 4.20 to 5.20; on Tuesdays Barbara Wears '35 will coach at a similar time; on Wednesday Helen Mount '35 will take charge; Thursday will find Miss Frey of the physical education department at the coaching job; Marion Herberg '36 will be the coach on Friday also at the same time, and on Saturday Miss Frey will again assume the coaching rôle from 2.30 to 3.30.

Women's skiing groups leave every day promptly at 4.15 from Robinson Hall. Anyone who has not any skis nor snowshoes can get them from W. A. A. either at the gym or at the various dormitories. Leaders for each group will be posted on the bulletin board.

Badminton for women will be held from 2.00 to 3.00 daily in the cage under the supervision of Miss Frey.

Bowling will be held next Wednesday at the usual time. It had been omitted this week because of women's rushing.

Art is a luxury. Men attach importance only to self-preservation and the propagation of their species. It is only when these instincts are satisfied that they consent to occupy themselves with the entertainment which is provided for them by writers, painters and poets.—W. Somerset Maughan.

And from Lebanon Valley comes the story of the Scotchman who stood in the bread line so long that he lost his job.

Runners-up in these events were: Jack Willis, class of 1933, with a point score of 6,144.83, and J. J. Delfausse, class of 1934, with a point total of 6,054.97.

The competition consists of six events. The rope climb, 110-yard dash, running high jump, running broad jump, shot put, and mile run.

CHILLY WEATHER MAKES LAKE DON COAT OF ICE

Lake Champlain at last succumbed to the sub-zero weather which marked the appearance of so many ski suits and fur caps on U. V. M. campus. Tuesday, January 30, is the official date for the freezing of the water from shore to shore at the broadest place in the lake. It had a slight covering of ice on January 21 of this year but this was broken up by the wind within a few hours.

This is the first time the lake has been frozen since the last freezing date of February 11, 1931. During the past 119 years the lake has not remained open for so long a period, having failed to freeze over but six times.

Tuesday's freezing date was one day earlier than the average for the last 119 years, the average date being January 31.

MUSIC DEPT. SELECTS GILBERT AND SULLIVAN OPERA FOR PRODUCTION

"The Gondoliers" to Be Annual Classic of Men's and Women's Glee Clubs at City Hall

"The Gondoliers," or the "King of Barataria," by Gilbert and Sullivan, the opera to be presented by the men's and women's glee clubs this spring. The date of the production will be some time in April 30, and will probably take place in the City Hall auditorium.

Mrs. Wilna Sproul Taggart has been obtained as dramatic director of the opera while Prof. H. G. Bennett is to be musical director and Mme Elizabeth Patterson will be vocal director. All are specialists in their fields and prospects for a successful production are seen.

The opera is in two acts. The scene is laid in Venice in 1750. The plot revolves around the sudden appearance of one of two Venetian gondoliers as the rightful king of Barataria. The king had previously married Contadina, one of the country girls, and a further discovery follows that one had in infancy been betrothed to Casilda, daughter of the Duke of Plazza-Taro. Unable to discover which is king, both go to Barataria. The action of the second act, where they reign, shows a country where everyone is made the equal of everyone else. The humor is made by the typical Gilbertian device of changing babies, in which a surprising conclusion is rendered.

Try-outs for the cast will start next week, exact dates to be announced later.

The cast includes: Casilda, daughter of the Duke of Plazza-Taro, first soprano; Gianetta, Contadina, soprano; Guiseppa, Contadina, soprano; Vittoria, Contadina, alto; Tessa, Contadina, alto; Duke of Plazza-Taro, alto; Inez, King's foster mother, alto; Marco, gondolier, first tenor, Francesco, gondolier, first tenor; Luiz, attendant to Duke of Plazza-Taro, tenor; Guiseppe, gondolier, second tenor or baritone; Antonio, gondolier, second tenor or baritone; Duke of Plazza-Taro, baritone or bass; Giorgio, gondolier, bass; Don Alhambra, grand inquistor, bass.

Bailey, who telephoned in their decision after the close of the debate.

G. Sherwood Eddy is to be the principal speaker at the tenth annual Northfield Mid-winter Conference, to be held February 16-18 at the Northfield Hotel in East Northfield, Mass., according to recent announcements by the New England Student Committee. Undergraduate and graduate students, young alumni and faculty members who are interested in the Christian cause in the world are welcome. Anyone interested should apply to Mr. Powers at the Y. C. A. office for further information. Y. C. A. hopes to be able to supply transportation but no definite plans have as yet been made.

The conference will be under the leadership of G. Sherwood Eddy, an outstanding speaker, author and religious leader of the day. There will be many other speakers contributing to the program. Robbins W. Barstow, D.D., president of the Hartford Theological Foundation, will give an address, as will George Stewart, minister of the First Presbyterian Church in Stamford, Conn., and a prominent member of the National Student Committee. Other speakers will be Luther Tucker and Brewster Bingham, who are very much interested in the World Student Christian Federation, and who recently traveled around the world visiting many student centers; Dorothy Fosdick, president of the Smith Christian Association, and a representative of the American Student Christian Movement at this summer's Federation conference; Clarence P. Shedd, the professor of religion in higher education at the Yale Divinity School; and Katherine Duffield, the New England field executive for the National Board of Y. M. C. A.

This annual conference is of much real value, since it facilitates the exchange of student opinions concerning both the personal and social sides of the present religious situation. Last year it was attended by 125 delegates representing various colleges. All of them seemed to derive much of real benefit from the program, and also to enjoy themselves thoroughly. The theme of this year's conference is to be, "Personal Require-

VERMONT TAKES THIRD PLACE IN WINTER SPORTS CARNIVAL AT NORWICH

Norwich First With 31 Points; Middlebury Second With 12; Vermont Has 4

Last Saturday Norwich University won the annual Norwich Winter Carnival by a large score. Middlebury was second, with Vermont and St. Michael's trailing.

G. O. Ricker '34, forty-five seconds behind Captain Kelly of Middlebury, won second place in the two-mile snowshoe cross-country race, and A. H. Cass '34 was third in the ski jumping with a leap of ninety-four feet.

The score of the meet was: Norwich 31 points, Middlebury 12 points, Vermont 4 points, and St. Michael's none.

Members of the winter sports team are now looking forward to the meet to be held at Middlebury on February 12 while Coach Pierce has issued a call for men to try out for slalom and downhill races especially.

For the Vermont conference skating meet on Saturday, February 24, the University of Vermont has sent entry blanks to Norwich and Middlebury Universities. The meet, which will be held in Burlington, will be the only skating meet in the State this year and, according to McCrea '35, it will be one of the largest Burlington has ever seen. At this same meet Middlebury women will compete with Vermont co-eds, too.

The women will also compete in the Middlebury Winter Carnival on February 12. Helen Mount '35 tells the Cynic that time trials will be held this week to determine the personnel of the team.

All Gold Key members! Don't forget the Gold Key meeting tomorrow, Wednesday, February 7, at S. A. E. House. Very important!

DANCE COMMITTEE PUTS FINISHING TOUCHES ON SOPHOMORE HOP PLANS

Sam Wooding to Furnish Music —Scene at Hotel Vermont— Large Attendance Expected

The sophomore hop, now scheduled for Friday evening, February 9, will be held in the main dining room of the Hotel Vermont, to the strains of the internationally known English band of Sam Wooding and his Victor-recording orchestra coming direct from the Kit Cat Cafe in London. Because of the change of date, it was impossible to obtain Noble Sissle and his orchestra as was previously announced, but the committee considers the present arrangements even more satisfactory. L. L. Coughtry '36, chairman of the committee, states that plans are nearly completed, and a large attendance is expected, as the sophomore hop has been, for several years, the only formal dance of the winter.

Burlington will be the first American appearance of Sam Wooding and his band. After his arrival in New York on February 5, he will spend three days working on Victor recordings and Warner Brothers shorts before starting his tour of the country. He will be playing only at the big hotels in the country, but because of the recency of his arrival he had a few open dates. He is internationally known, and has played before the crowned heads of Europe.

Reservations for the dance may be made at any of the fraternity houses through the fraternity representatives, or at Hayes and Carney's. This formal will last from 8.30 to 1.00. Tickets are $3.85, including tax.

The committee includes besides Chairman Coughtry, H. E. Reimschottel '36 and J. J. Millett '36. The publicity is under the direction of B. J. Costello '36, A. J. Levine, J. F. Williamson, W. H. Connor, and J. A. Dickinson. The decorations are being planned by J. M. Bellows, chairman, H. H. Allen, J. H. Naylor, J. S. Swift, and V. G. F. Ronca, all members of the class of '36.

MASS MEETING PROVES A POPULAR PASTIME

The mass meeting on Saturday, February 3, under the skillful direction of D. J. Tobin '34 and J. L. Beckley '34, proved most popular. It was in the form of a "progressive rush"—first, to see how many persons could crowd into the hall of the gym before the words "No Mass Meeting" appeared on the blackboard in front of the V. C. A. office; second, an obstacle race to the library (no short cuts allowed), and third, a contest for those eliminated in the obstacle race to the library to discover the exact capacity of the Coffee Corner and the halls of the Old Mill. (Also the Cynic office.)

WOMEN STARTING LAST LAP IN RUSHING SEASON

Women's fraternities start the last lap of women's rushing tonight with the final rushing parties for the eligible freshmen and transfers. These parties will last a week. At the end of this time a neutral period will begin while the freshmen sign their preference sheets in Miss Patterson's office.

Kappa Alpha Theta starts first its party being held tonight. Delta Delta Delta will have its party tomorrow, February 7, Alpha Xi Delta, February 8, Kappa Delta, February 9, Alpha Chi Omega, February 10, Sigma Gamma, February 12, Pi Beta Phi, February 13.

The bids are to be in Wednesday, February 14 at ten o'clock, when the neutral period begins. During this time the following rules will be enforced:

1. Fraternity women and eligible students shall be permitted to exchange greetings of "Hello" plus the first name.

PWA BOARD CONSIDERS APPLICATION FOR LOAN

Thursday, February 1, Pres. Guy W. Bailey announced that the University of Vermont will begin construction this spring on the Mabel Louise Southwick Memorial. This building will be a women's student union building, and will be another advance in the development of a complete women's campus around Redstone on South Prospect Street.

This building has been made possible through the wish of the late John L. Southwick, editor of the Free Press, who left in his will a bequest for a memorial to his deceased daughter, Mabel Louise Southwick, a graduate of the University of Vermont, who died June 2, 1926. Miss Southwick's mother and sister, Mrs. Ethel S. Eastman, were to select the form of the memorial under the terms of Mr. Southwick's will. Mrs. Southwick's letter to President Bailey announcing the gift says in part: "Realizing the need of the University for a building which may be used as a women's student union building and as a center for the various activities of the women of the University, my daughter, Mrs. Eastman, and I with full confidence that we are carrying out Mr. Southwick's wishes, hereby pledge approximately $65,000 toward a fund to be used in erecting a Women's Student Union building on the property of the University known as Redstone, to constitute a memorial to Mabel Louise Southwick, of the class of 1905, and to be known as 'The Mabel Louise Southwick Memorial.'"

The finished building will not cost less than $175,000. In addition to the $65,000 Southwick gift, there is already available $74,200 from other sources. Included in this latter amount is $4,200 contributed by students some years ago toward the women's student union building.

Two other buildings are also contemplated for erection in the near future. President Bailey has applied for a loan from the Public Works Administration to help finish the Mabel L. Southwick memorial and to assist in contructing the two other new buildings, an engineering building and a women's dormitory. The dormitory will be a four story, 100 room structure to be built south of Redstone main building on an axis with Robinson Hall, at a cost of approximately $300,000.

ED SABA AND BOB BURNS FEATURE MASS MEETING

Bobby and Eddie to Fight Two Round Battle—Koffee Korner Khorus Added

Saba and Burns have at last come to a white heat and have decided to settle their disagreement publicly with a two-round battle at the mass meeting next Saturday morning. The affair came to a head quite rapidly culminating in a new brawl at the Razz Dazz Saturday evening. Bobby Burns told his own story to the press. "I was dancing along peaceably with a nice girl at the Razz Dazz when I waltzed by that big Turk. He passed a crack about 'what was the idea of a girl dancing around alone like that,' and it was only by remembering that I was a gentleman that I refrained from parting him. Maybe she was six inches or a foot taller than I was, but that wasn't no cause for shooting off his mouth the way he did. I'll pound him to a pulp." Bobby has retired to his camp on the roof of the Hotel Vermont and is actively training for the fight. Red Cook and Don Tobin are driving him in daily work-outs.

Saba, too, has his own version of the affair. "I'll admit," said the big Turk, "that I don't go for that shrimp Burns. But he has pulled too many wise cracks about my relatives, especially my uncles, and in my family that's a fighting offense. Besides the little mutt was dancing with my gal and walking all over her feet. What if they are large, that ain't no excuse." At this point the volatile Eddie blew up in a half dozen foreign languages. "I'll break him in little pieces," was his Proceeding from this basis, it is quite simple to decide, as Professor Warren has decided, that if the price of gold is changed from time to time, then the prices of other goods may be forced in whichever direction the government cares to drive them.

The great speed with which the prices of goods and wages had declined from the middle of 1929 until the banking panic of last March caused many people to feel that a rise in prices was absolutely essential to a return of prosperity. Consequently, Professor Warren's theory has been readily accepted as one which might result in higher prices and might bring about the much-desired recovery.

In the situation which existed last spring, the plan recommended by Professor Warren was clearly one of increasing the price of gold. The legal price of gold was then $20.67 per ounce but to apply Professor Warren's theory this price had to be raised.

The first difficulty encountered in attempting to put Professor Warren's theory into operation was the fact that the Treasury could not legally pay any more than $20.67 per ounce for gold. It was a simple matter, however, to have some other government agency purchase gold at higher prices, and Reconstruction

MEREDITH WRITES ON "NEW DOLLARS FOR OLD"

Finance Corporation was chosen to conserve the gold-buying activities.

This organization began to purchase gold newly taken from the mines of this country. From time to time, the price which R. F. C. offered for newly mined gold was raised until on December 18, 1933, the price reached $34.06 per ounce. Using the price of gold at $20.67 per ounce, each dollar contained 23.22 grains of gold. (There are 480 grains in each ounce. Thus 480 divided by 20.67 equals 23.22.) With the price of gold at $34.06 per ounce, each dollar would be equivalent to 14.09 grains of pure gold.

Every time that the price which R. F. C. was willing to pay for gold was raised it meant that the dollar became equivalent to a smaller number of grains of gold. The dollar was actually devalued while this process was taking place. Consequently all that the new law actually does is to write into the statutes the fact that the devaluation process which has been carried on by R. F. C. during the past few months has been completed.

The most important question which usually arises in the minds of many persons is: What effect will this new law have on the prices of bread, potatoes, shoes and other goods which every person must buy?

Persons who are worried about the immediate effects of the recent gold devaluation may rest assured that this process will probably have little or no effect on prices in spite of the fact that the primary purpose of the plan is to raise prices. Even though the gold content of the dollar has been reduced, this operation will not affect the public unless prices are raised, and it does not seem apparent that a price rise will follow.

It is more than probable that all effects on prices which are likely to result from the process of devaluation have already occurred.

It has been apparent in many quarters for some time that devaluation was actually approaching. If it had been expected that this operation would have a tendency effect on prices persons in well-informed quarters would have attempted to take advantage of their unusual information and their buying would have tended to send prices upward.

There is really very little difference between the present situation in which the United States has a new dollar and the situation which existed before the gold law became effective. Currency was just convertible into gold then it is not convertible into gold now.

No gold coins will circulate practically no gold will be coined by the Government and it is to be kept in bar form. The ruling of President Roosevelt tends merely to say that a dollar could be exchanged for gold a person would receive 13.71 grains of pure gold for each dollar instead of 23.22 grains of gold as was the case when the United States was on the gold standard.

In spite of the fact that gold cannot be obtained in exchange for currency, the United States is still essentially on a paper standard just as was the case before the new gold law was passed. For this reason, if for no other, this plan will probably have little or no effect upon the course of prices. This does not mean however that other factors in the situation such as reduced unemployment, processing taxes, elimination of uncertainty concerning the monetary system, and similar factors will not result in somewhat higher prices but no relation [illegible] to the devaluation of the dollar.

The new dollar will produce very few if any immediate effects on everyday business activities. People will buy bread and receive pay checks, will buy gasoline and will go to the movies just as they have been doing right along.

J. L. SOUTHWICK WILLS STUDENT UNION BUILDING

During a conference Friday in Burlington Harold Lockwood of [illegible] N. H., consulting engineer, the Vermont Works Advisory Board on the U. V. M. application for a loan of $1,057,700. No announcement was made as to what action was taken on the request.

The proposed women's student union building was designed by McKim, Mead & White of New York, who also planned the Ira Allen Chapel and the Fine Arts Museum. The building will consist of a basement and two stories above. It will contain a combined gymnasium and assembly room, capable of seating 400 persons. Near the gym will be locker and shower facilities. On the first floor, to the right of the main entrance hall, will be the physical director's office and offices for the hostess, a coat room, book store rooms, and a lounge on each side of the entrance hall. On the second floor will be the hostess' living quarters, committee rooms for committee meetings, and a large room for social activities.

EXPERIMENT STATION CONDUCTS RESEARCH IN 37 LIVE PROJECTS

Also Finishes Three Regulatory Services During 1932-33, According to Director's Annual Report

The Experiment Station of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College during the fiscal year 1932-33 conducted research activities in thirty-seven projects and furnished three regulatory services for the benefit of any citizens of the State applying. The annual report of Dean J. L. Hills of the College of Agriculture who is director of the Station, summarizes these projects.

Seven studies were made in agricultural economics affecting the dairy industry, certified seed potato growing, local taxation and utilization of land. Four studies of local milk markets, ice cream industry and [illegible] were made by the Department of Animal Husbandry. Plant soil and [illegible] studies were continued and there were other studies in forestry, genetics, human nutrition, home economics and horticulture.

The regulatory services for residents of Vermont were all those asked. The analyses of fertilizer samples sent in by farmers were few during the year, as calls for this service were few. Feeding stuffs sent in by manufacturers, dealers and farmers were analyzed, as were milk and cream samples. And agricultural seed was tested.

The total funds of the Station for the year amounted to $127,000 of which $15,000 was spent for teaching, under the College of Agriculture. Of the remainder $112,000 salaries and wages took $90,000. The station had a balance of more than $500 at the end of the year.

FRATERNITY MEN RANK HIGHER SCHOLASTICALLY THAN NON-MEMBERS

[illegible] ratings of fraternity men at the University of Vermont show a higher average than those of non-fraternity students, according to a survey just released by the National Interfraternity Conference, an organization of sixty-nine leading fraternities in the United States.

Not only does the scholastic average of the fraternity man rank higher than the non-fraternity in a majority of the 156 colleges studied, but the rating is higher than the all-men's average, which includes both unaffiliated and Greek-letter students. The group average of 59 percent of the fraternities exceeds the all-men's averages on respective campuses.

The total undergradute enrollment of the institutions in the report numbers approximately 250,000, of whom nearly 50,000 are members of the 2,104 chapter groups of the Greek-letter organizations in the Interfraternity Conference.

Outstanding among the facts revealed by the 1933 survey is that all-men's averages have risen in 79 percent of the institutions of the country, denoting an increasing amount of attention to academic objectives on the part of undergraduate men.

According to the report, the younger fraternities still outstrip the older, scholastically.

The committee in charge of the play, composed of Prof. W. F. Aiken, Mrs. Lucille M. Jenks and William M. ERUPTION OF KRAKATOA SHOWN AT THE STRONG THEATRE, FEBRUARY 1

By special request of the professors of the zoology department, a film showing the recent eruption of the volcano Krakatoa was shown at the Strong Theatre Thursday afternoon and evening, February 1. It was through the special efforts of Mr. Hutchinson, manager of the Strong Theatre, that the film was obtained.

The eruption of Krakatoa, located in the Sunda Seas which occurred in 1883 and subsequent cessation of all life [illegible] accompanied by animated diagrams [illegible] gave a clear idea of how the volcano appeared at the time. The film itself showed the actual latest eruption of the [illegible] how part of the land was submerged in the sea, and the destruction [illegible] brought on all existence on [illegible]. The picture has some bearing on the severing of the [illegible] and the consequent changes [illegible] surroundings which stimulate [illegible] species of plants to [illegible] to a great adjustment.

WINTER CARNIVAL AT DARTMOUTH FEB. 9-10

Dartmouth's Winter Carnival will be the scene this year of the championship meet of the Intercollegiate Winter Sports Union, February 9 and 10. A record number of winter sports enthusiasts and carnival guests will be on hand to watch the hundred and twenty competitors from American and Canadian colleges in the skating, snowshoeing and skiing events. An imposing list of officials will be headed by Dr. R. S. Elmer, president of the United States Eastern Ski Association.

The extravagant entertainment features are nearing completion. The campus decoration will be an architectural mass in colored ice, an innovation in snow sculpture technique. The plan, by George Metzger '33, who executed the winning fraternity exhibit last year, calls for a white bas relief against a central block of green ice twelve feet high, with jutting buttresses of black. The whole will be lighted internally in order to bring out the crystal structure of the ice, and will be reflected brilliantly in a surrounding ice pool. Fraternity dormitory snow sculpture will add to the gay campus winter scene.

"Arctic Antics" will be the feature of Outdoor Evening, the climax of the first day of carnival. Under the fantastic light of the aurora borealis, in a setting of igloos, icebergs and ice towers, the pageant takes place. Two Esquimaux villages, Nova and Lebbe, in traditional rivalry, are gripped in tense excitement in anticipation of a ski race to decide the possession of the Queen of the Snows. The Lebbians are confident of victory, for the Novans are suffering from a terrible malady which has afflicted their great skiers. Yet the Novans have not lost hope that the serum cure will be brought in time from the outposts of Canadian civilization. At the last moment the flaming shirt of a Northwest mounted policeman appears in the distance, and the joy of the Novans knows no bounds. They win the contest in a breath-taking race, and in gratitude give the Snow Queen to their benefactor. The impressive spectacle of the crowning of the Queen occurs under a bombardment of fireworks. Her court is brilliant with the celebration of the Novans, figure skating by Snaith and Surtees, intercollegiate stars. Roger [illegible] several times men's national champion, and the brilliant sisters, Estelle and Louise Weigel of Detroit, national figure-skating champions will [illegible] the evening.

Dickert and Sullivan's [illegible] "Iolanthe" presented by the Dartmouth Players, a basketball game with Yale, a swimming meet with Princeton and a hockey game with Harvard complete the program for the week-end.

EARS FORM STUDY OF INDIVIDUAL IDENTITY

Prof. H. S. Perkins Instructs Young Students in Studying Fine Points of Auditory Appendages

The shape of the human ear as a handier means of identification than fingerprints, is a new study which the Galton Fingerprinting Club began this month. The club consists of a [illegible] boys and girls, fourteen and fifteen years of age, who for a year and a half have been studying fingerprints under the direction of Prof. H. F. Perkins, curator of the Fleming Museum at the University of Vermont.

In beginning their study of the differences of human ears, the club is working on six major points of variety, two having to do with angle and four with shape. Later more minute differences will be classified.

The first step in the new study was to secure photographs of a number of persons' ears. These were taken one-half life size. To classify the divergences from the norm, these photographs are compared with a photograph of a typical ear.

The angle at which the right ear is attached to the head is noted. If the attachment is in a vertical line, it is said to be a 12 o'clock ear. If it is backward, it is an 11 o'clock or 10 o'clock ear, depending on the amount of divergence from vertical. The angle at which the ear protrudes from the head is also noted.

Of the four characteristics observed, one is whether the ear is [illegible] oval, triangular, square or round. Another is whether the rim is [illegible] medium or broad. A third is the presence or absence of Darwin's point. The fourth is whether the lobe is small, medium or large, and whether attached or free.

These major classifications as they occur 144 combinations of characteristics and when the angle classifications and the more minute differences are added the number of combinations becomes very large.

The purpose of the Fingerprint Club is not criminological. Its members have a plan for keeping on file a folder containing the identification of every person in the United States—fingerprints, handprints, possibly photographs of one ear and personal description.

The advantage in the use of the ear for identification is the greater [illegible] it offers. An observor can see an ear and note its main characteristics without himself attracting notice. This is not true of fingerprints in most cases.

The disadvantage in using the ear the club finds, is that many ears are very similar. About 15 to 25 per cent of all ears are typical in their major characteristics, and require more minute study to differentiate them. Another disadvantage is that ears change somewhat as a person grows older. But these changes in general, are predictable.

Members of the club have learned not only fingerprinting, but also photographing and are beginning to develop their films. They have made a number of talks on their hobby and have assisted at demonstrations. Their weekly meetings are carried out with parliamentary procedure.

17-WEEK SEMESTER FAVORED BY HOBART

By a 7-1 majority, the students of Hobart College and William Smith College voted in favor of adopting the seventeen-week unbroken-semester plan. Ninety-three per cent of the William Smith girls and 86 per cent of the Hobart boys voted in favor of the plan proposed by Hobart's dean, Dr. Milton H. [illegible] making an average favorable vote of 88 per cent.

The plan proposes two semesters, one to begin Labor Day and end about December 22, the other to start January [illegible] and close late in May. This would afford a longer and more satisfactory Christmas holiday, a much earlier commencement, and a more uniform program of study. The chief obstacle in the way of the new scheme is the fact that colleges are loathe to depart from the path of tradition.

The so-called "Hobart plan" went into effect at Hobart or William Smith until alumnae of both colleges, [illegible] members of the teaching profession who voted against the plan, faculty members have aired their views and all obstacles have dealt with in a manner which will insure success.

Doctor Turk accounts for the popularity of his plan by saying, "Reports from the topheavy favorable vote that the students have felt the waste of time involved in the old plan as do the administration and faculty members who work hard naturally like to see the full results of their labors. They do not overload their intelligence with the same impulse, perhaps more than ever. The 'Hobart plan' is drawn to meet the most of students' time, and evidently they like it."

HOOPSTERS TO BATTLE ST. MICHAEL'S TONIGHT

Bozek, Mike Forward, Out of School—Despite St. Mike's Impressive Record, Vermont is Favorite

Fresh from their glorious victory over the Middlebury Panthers which fully atoned for the football defeat last fall, the inspired Catamounts will engage the Purple of St. Michael's tonight in what should prove to be one of the feature games of the season. The Green and Gold, improved immensely since the return of Eddie Layden, who showed last week that he has retained a great measure of his old cunning, should dispose of St. Michael's in spite of that old jinx which has pursued them for some time in their contests with the Purple.

St. Michael's, meeting fewer high-class opponents than the Cats, have enjoyed so far a fairly successful season. Emil Bozek, who has scintillated in every game up to the New Hampshire one, has dropped out of school and this will be a big handicap for his aggressive playing was always an inspiration to his teammates. Earl Peavy, who has been under a scholastic ban, is free from it now and will start the Conference series at center. Capt. Phil Ruggiero and Bob Meade will start in the backcourt. This pair, originally teamed up as a sort of experiment, have turned out exceptionally well. Both are experienced, big, fast and both excellent long shots. Tracy is to start at right forward while either Lenney or Jukoski will hold down the other forward post.

The starting line-up for the Catamounts will be almost the same as that which faced the Panthers. Palmer and Beckley will start at the guards, Morgan at center with Layden and either Grant or Saba at the forwards. Grant, on account of his great shooting last week, will probably get the starting berth, but Saba, who has been working well with Layden in the forecourt, may get the nod.

Yesterday's drill was used mainly to correct the faults which showed up in last week's game and with the benefit of this the slow breaking offense, which was taken care of effectively by Middlebury's zone defense, should become more powerful. On their own floor and on the basis of their showing against the Panthers we are picking the Cats, but knowing the foolishness of trying to call them against St. Mike's, we are doing it with our fingers crossed.

IDENTITY OF VERMONT FOOTBALL MENTOR FOR 1934 STILL DOUBTFUL

The present University of Vermont football coaching opening has aroused wide interest throughout the East. Daily, the Granduate Manager's office receives scores of applications for the position and daily the rumor spreads that the position has been filled.

Sabin C. Abell announced several days ago that the coach cannot possibly be decided until the next meeting of the Athletic Council, scheduled for Monday, February 12. If the football committee has not selected its man by that date, the announcement will not be forthcoming until March.

In the meantime, telegrams, letters and clippings from nationally known publications already announced the Green and Gold gridiron mentor. First, Austin Tate, former head coach at Lehigh, was rumored to have landed the job; then Albie Booth, Yale's mighty atom, was reported as being headed for Vermont then William Sieblitz, Norman Crisp of Dartmouth, and even Tom Keady, the greatest coach in Vermont's athletic history, were mentioned in whispers as arriving on the hill next fall. Pat Holbrook, coach of Dartmouth freshmen, is another.

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports' Editor

For the first time in our career we had the satisfaction of predicting correctly the outcome of a game, and we don't intend to let our public forget it for a long while.

According to a statement issued by Manager Tobin, our boys weren't so good, they merely looked good because the Panthers were so lousy. We think Donald is perhaps unduly critical.

The boys clicked to a certain extent although the shooting was way off. Messrs. Morgan, Palmer and Layden were the balls of fire in the U. V. M. attack.

The game was considerably enlivened by a number of flying blocks and off-tackle slices. Both sides provided rugged interference.

Jack Morgan deserves credit for the improvement he showed, although still handicapped by his trick knee. A little lad by the name of Sweet was undoubtedly the feature of the Midd offense.

We were pleased to hear the rousing Bronx cheer which Ben Beck received. Apparently our plea in last Friday's issue was taken to heart.

The Kappa Sigs and SAE's pry off the lid in the interfraternity league tomorrow afternoon. This game looks like a natural for these two teams are close rivals. The Kappa Sigma boys have been practicing diligently while the Sig Alph aggregation is relying on their famous fighting spirit to pull them through.

Again we must consider the football situation. The latest candidates mentioned for coach are our Mr. Crehan, Rusty Yarnell, U. V. M. star of bygone days, and Eddie Tryon, all-American at Colgate some ten years ago.

The chief obstacle in the way of hiring a big-time coach is the financial one. The Athletic Council has a limited budget and the University authorities will not or cannot appropriate any more money for this purpose. It looks as if a few wealthy alumni would have to make up the difference. (Alumni Weekly, please copy.)

We are rather surprised to hear that St. Mike's has dropped football. Evidently the Winooski Park institution found it impossible to abide by any eligibility rules whatsoever.

Speaking of St. Mike's reminds us that their court five battles the Cats tonight. We will make no prediction for this game, having decided to rest on our laurels.

However, Prexy Tobin dopes Vermont to win by five points. We trust the eminent politician is right.

VERMONT TAKES ON NORWICH THIS THURSDAY

Game to Be Played on Their Court—Vermont in Great Hopes For Conference Title

Thursday night the Catamounts journey to Northfield to encounter the Norwich cadets, much improved over their mediocre level of last year. Led by Capt. Joseph Leddy, the Horsemen hope to avenge their two defeats by the Cats last year. To date, the cadets have played St. Michael's two games losing both by small margins. These were not, however, state games. Since then Coach Hartford's quintet has been slowly improving and a hot battle is expected on Norwich's own floor. The team is built around Leddy as it has been for the last two years, but the steady improvement of Bob Washburn has brought forth another star who, from all reports, will give Vermont plenty of trouble. The rest of the starting line-up is made up of veterans with Wagner the most outstanding.

Vermont's impressive victory over Middlebury, although the club was ragged at times, has aroused great hope among the Green and Gold rooters and they look forward with the steady improvement of "Jug" Layden towards his 1933 form to a victory for the Catamounts. The ever-dependable Whitey Palmer will team with Capt. John Beckley in the backcourt, Jack Morgan will be at center and Grant or Saba will pair up with Layden in the forecourt to give Vermont an all-veteran lineup.

BOB GRANT, HIGH SCORER WITH FIVE BASKETS

The state conference basketball champions the Green and Gold hoopsters of Vermont, stepped off in the right direction when they completely outplayed Middlebury Friday evening, winning by the score of 30-20. As was predicted the game was a real battle and the play was such that only arch rivals can produce.

Vermont, using a slow breakup offense, jumped into an early lead when Whitey Palmer dropped a two pointer through the net. Middlebury quickly retaliated to throw a short lead of 5 but the home team acquired the advantage soon after and very tenaciously held it throughout the contest. Then the Middmen led by that elongated center, Clonan fought hard but could not seem to tie the Vermont quintet. Ed Layden who was back in the game after confining the first half year to scholastic duties sunk a charity shot to start his scoring and placed the home club in an advantageous position. During the entire first half the two teams seemed well matched and they played hard for every score. As the period ended the scoreboard read Vermont 12 Middlebury 9.

Opening the second half the Green and Gold showed their superiority and began to pull away from their opponents. The game at this point presented a variety of basketball both good and bad. At times both teams were brilliant, but then they lapsed into spells when it seemed difficult to even start a play. The Blue and White although they had the advantage in height were at a loss after a shot was taken and rarely recovered the rebound from the backboard. Whitey Palmer, clad in an old uniform, was the Vermont mainstay in picking up stray balls and advancing them to the forecourt. As the play became more intense Jack Morgan took a spell which certainly upset him for a few minutes. At this point Clonan was ejected from the game on account of personal foul. Heelan was sent in for the Middmen.

ZOOLOGY CLASS MAKES ANNUAL TRIP TO NEW YORK MUSEUM DEC. 22

The fifteenth annual pilgrimage of students to the American Museum of Natural History was held Friday, December 22, 1933. The personally conducted tour began at 10:30 a.m. and continued until 4:30 p.m. with one-hour recess for luncheon.

"The sole purpose of these trips is to enable the students to see clearly all the exhibits which bear directly on evolution," said Professor Perkins, head of the zoology department and director of the University of Vermont trips.

It is also of special value to the students to be able to see first hand the specimens which are studied in the course of zoology only from illustrations.

The authorities of the museum cooperated with the Vermont expedition in a splendid fashion. The heads of the departments dropped their work to guide the visitors, who came from such a long distance, through the museum.

Darwin Hall was the first place investigated. Here the different classes of phyla are shown in detail. Next the Hall of Fishes and the Hall of Oceanic Life were visited and lectured upon. Following this, Doctor Gregory took the snowshoe seekers through the Hall of Dinosaurs. Then the class was led through the Hall of Comparative Anatomy (or Hall of Man and Animals) and finally through the Hall of the Age of Man.

The tour, under the direction of Dr. Clyde Fisher, head of the department of education, was run on a schedule. Doctor Fisher was the main speaker at the dedication of the Fleming Museum in 1931. Each director was allotted a limited time to discuss his subjects. At the termination of the period an assistant came up to inform the lecturer that his time had expired. By this systematic arrangement the other directors were not kept waiting.

As an added attraction of the journey the visitors had the opportunity of being able to enter Doctor Mueller's glass blowing laboratory and see the delicate glass objects in the process of manufacture. This is the first time in history that any class has been permitted to enter the portals of the laboratory.

Besides personally meeting Doctor Mueller, the Vermonters were fortunate enough to make the acquaintance of Dr. George Sherwood, director of the American Museum of Natural History and president emeritus, Dr. Henry F. Osborne.

A zoology student who went on the tour is quoted as saying, "I found the museum vastly interesting, and the supplementary information to zoology will prove invaluable. On the whole the journey was very worth while."

Next year Professor Perkins hopes to arrange to have the expedition take place on two successive mornings instead of having it entirely on one day.

BOBBY BURNS SEEKING FOR WORTHY OPPONENT

Eddie Saba Backs Out—Fritz Wegner Considered and Rejected—Koffee Korner Khorus to Furnish Howls

The master minds behind the "battle of the century," to be presented at the mass meeting Saturday, received a severe [illegible] when [illegible] the last [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] with the battle. It is rumored that the purse arrangements were not satisfactory, but the boys in the back room [illegible] that the experts on Democratic Row had a lot to do with the decision.

However, arrangements for the battle are going on apace. The champ, Bobbie Burns, is rapidly rounding into form and by Saturday morning should be down to his best weight of [illegible]. Promoters are busily engaged in finding a [illegible] opponent. Fritz Wegner was considered a possible until it was learned that he attended the Jazz-Daze [illegible] last Saturday night and hence will not be in condition for a month more. The promoters, with their reputation at stake, [illegible] to produce an opponent of suitable character to hold [illegible].

In addition there will be the added attraction of the Koffee Korner Khorus. In the interests of the greater Production by the University cows, rehearsals on the hill have been forbidden but rumor has it that a practice was held Wednesday evening in a fishing shanty, two miles southeast of the Burlington breakwater.

PLANTATION FROLIC TO FEATURE HEADGEAR

[illegible] attending the Kake Walk masquerade on the evening of Friday, February [illegible] will be required to wear [illegible] and [illegible] a release from the [illegible] stated today. Permission to hold the dance was obtained from the University Council when it granted the petition presented last Monday afternoon. In [illegible] announcement made public the following day the Council also ruled that the affair would be open to the public.

Variations to the remaining vacant places on the production and ushering committees were announced by the directors by the council chairman Helen Ferris and Alice McConnell '34. The completed committees list are subject to the approval of the University committee on non-athletic activities. This is the first time that women have served on the Kake Walk administration and the first time that the chairmen have appointed their own assistants.

Plans are now underway for the presentation of the masquerade in the form of a plantation frolic, gleaming razz-dazz, and lazzar[illegible]. The directors have planned that the masqueraders withhold their identity until later in the evening. For facilitating arrangement of dance programs they suggest the adoption by the dancers of cognomens appropriate to the costume worn. In a statement to the CYNIC today they disclosed their intent of organizing the masquerade about the theme of the classic Kake Walk song "Cotton Babe." The print of the cavalier coupled with the picture of a group of happy Southern negroes out on a spree is typical of the atmosphere we shall try to introduce at the 1934 Kake Walk masquerade, they declared. "Informality shall reign supreme. Formal costumes may be worn but we urge that old, shabby and colorful attires be substituted.

The directors further declared that it would add to gayety of the frolic for each participant to wear some sort of [illegible] headgear which would typify the informal air of a crazy cavalier occasion. They also intimated that perhaps a prize for an especially appropriate costume might be offered. "Patches, shabby, informal, informal are words describing the idea," one director declared.

A special rate for admission will be allowed students. The price has not been decided upon but according to the directors it will be low so as to enable students to buy individual tickets for the masquerade and attend the regular Kake Walk program the following evening. Lorraine W. Brown and G. Burrows have modified the usual form of enter-

Ada Ingalls, President of Pan Hellenic states that those sophomores who have not had pledging made before, but have now are to have the same bidding period as the eligible freshmen. Record of Women Medics Shows Eight at Present Attending—No Flunks Since 1920

About 5 percent of all medical students drop out of practice within five years of graduation. The proportion of women is probably much bigger. A good many women get married. Most of them who do, discontinue their practice. A few who have married doctors practice at the same time with their husbands.

The women who do continue in medicine seem to do better in laboratories. They do good work in bacteriology and pathology, and recently some have become interestd in institutional psychiatry. There have been two from the University who have gone into the field of medical missions. As a rule, women doctors who are practicing, do their best work in pediatrics or gynecology, rather than in general practice.

"Women are just as good students as the men, but they labor under certain disadvantages," said Dean Jenne. "Many hospitals do not favor women internes, although some women's hospitals, of course, prefer them entirely."

When asked about the type of girl who goes into medicine, Doctor Jenne said that they were progressive and modern, but he seemed to prefer to make no further statement.

WINTER SPORTS UP!

[illegible] of the Winter Sports Club urge college students to take [illegible] as much as possible. In this a great number of [illegible] have responded by the use of the rink and have joined in the [illegible] activities of the newly organized society. The latest [illegible] of the club's activity is [illegible] tournament. Only members will be permitted to participate in the events, the teams of which consist of [illegible].

Next Monday several girls' [illegible] will go to Middlebury to participate in part of Middlebury's [illegible] while others form a [illegible] representation at Dartmouth's [illegible] this week-end. The girls to be [illegible] by the instructors employed to put the University of Vermont on the winter sports map are deserving the whole-hearted support [illegible] member of the student body.

COLD COMEDIANS

When the ballots at the recent Coffee Corner Chapel to render popular melodies last Wednesday morning during the Chapel period [illegible] musicians were sadly disappointed. Some people really [illegible] the pleasure of harmony with their cup of coffee while others suggested [illegible] they would not be able to give the songsters "the hook." Still others felt a pang of disappointment because they were not able to witness prominent women musicians [illegible] of themselves. Now we must analyze the situation, and evolve a reason why this harmony [illegible] failed to give the usual song fest.

The general consensus of opinion may be remembered that it was too cold in the auditorium for the Girls Mid to render a decent chorus. In fact, it has been reported that Coffee Corner between classes that it is no unnecessary sight on a frosty morning to observe one's breath periodically [illegible] into the air. There is no doubt but an almost continuous draft is maintained by the opening of two doors at one time. We realize that this is not the fault of any one person, certainly not the janitor, nor the students who open the doors. As a solution to the problem we would recommend that the matter be referred to the heating and ventilating engineers. Possibly they could devise a remedy, perhaps a system of double doors, as at the library, a set of fire doors at the entrance of the Coffee Corner to the second floor.

PAUL CREHAN, FOR HEAD COACH

[illegible] interest to all football players at the University of Vermont but of sufficient general interest to warrant many hours of heated discussion among the various students is the question "Who is the best [illegible] coach for next year?" From many different sources [illegible] New England come different conjectures concerning famous men who were being considered for the coaching job. In fact the situation has [illegible] down to a point where one guess is as good as another.

[illegible] of normal interest in the matter, members of the football team who have worked under Coach Crehan drew up a petition and circulated it in varsity football circles, asking that he be chosen head football coach of the University. Men who signed the document based their decision on the fact that Coach Crehan had performed his duties as line coach in an efficient manner; that he had earned the respect and liking of all the men who worked under him and that he had the drive and personality to develop as good a team out of the material at hand as any coach who was being considered.

The other side of the story shows that there are those at Vermont who desire a man with a reputation to coach football at the University of Vermont and to let Crehan continue in his capacity as line coach of the football team. It was assumed that if a man were obtained who had made a big name for himself, he would naturally draw some better football material for the freshman class next year. It may be readily seen from this that the supporters of a man with a reputation are thinking more of the name of the coach than of the team he is coaching. In other words, if a famous man were to be signed as coach at next Monday afternoon's meeting of the Athletic Council, he would undoubtedly draw several men of qualified reputations in the freshman class next fall and they would undoubtedly go the way of many [illegible] football players who come to the University of Vermont with the firm intention of playing varsity football. In the majority of cases they become ineligible before the year is out, and are of no use whatsoever to the varsity team the following year.

On the other hand let us review the situation as it would be under the management of Coach Crehan, and one or two capable assistants (one of whom might be of famous calibre and could draw players). In his hands, the job of coaching would be merely one of taking up where he left off this fall in the development of an eleven. He would know the character and ability of each of the men on the field, and could whip the material at hand into shape as well as any man in his line. Furthermore, Coach Crehan's past experience and his drive dynamic is really not to be disregarded, and would greatly further the team's chance for the state title next fall.

Therefore, the CYNIC, with a liberal backing of students and that of the varsity football squad takes the liberty of suggesting to the Athletic Council the appointment of Paul Crehan as head coach of the University of Vermont football team.

Along this line may we further suggest the appointment of a capable assistant to Crehan to handle the backfield coach, someone of recognized ability and reputation, whose previous experience and connections would qualify him for such a position. Necessarily, he would have to be someone who was thoroughly familiar with every phase of backfield play and who could put it across to his proteges. This would have to be someone whose scholastic background as well as his previous experience would thoroughly qualify him as backfield coach.

THE NECESSITY OF ANARCHISM

By Everett Cook '34

[illegible] a scary coincidence [illegible] the murderousness of most ministers that Norman Maritime and others who resolved so mentally against lynching were at the [illegible] for [illegible] courts of [illegible] such men much more than the [illegible] upon us the [illegible] the value of Christians is to condemn completely such acts as killing, and not to merely discriminate as to who should do the killing.

[illegible] a member of men, lawmen as well as ministers, who are [illegible] government. There are people, and [illegible] but when Congress declares war, who represents them? Why be silly and cast a vote between Tweedledum and Tweedledee, or why cast a vote [illegible] wages? So at least Thoreau reasoned, and his "Civil Disobedience" is still readable.

Thoreau knew it was easy for a government [illegible] a Mexican War for the benefit of a few. Today historians agree [illegible] and some political economists tell [illegible] the chief [illegible] the slaveholding [illegible] It was not [illegible] government [illegible] the population [illegible] slaves—not Emersons, not Alcotts, not many others, let me add. On the contrary these men were head and shoulders above their country and are now the white redeeming features of what is otherwise a dark period in American history.

But you say, it is ridiculous to withdraw from society just because it has its bad spots. Is it so absurd, then, to be honest and stand for something positive? The least we can do is to cultivate an intellectual aloofness and keep our hearts clean even though our hands are dirty. And too, we underestimate the value of merely "being" on the right side of things. We are apt to think that because we don't do anything sensational we have no influence. But Thoreau's book resting in the loneliness at Concord was [illegible] across the ocean and is still being [illegible] by no less a man than Gandhi. And although Gandhi has no Daily Orange and carries no placards, he never goes to prison, never fasts, never holds the whole British Empire at bay with his soft-edged weapon of non-resistance, but individuals the world over thrill in sympathy.

From the Norwich Guidon Come These Words From One Who Knows

[illegible] Dear Entire Normal:

I want to tell you Cadets who think this winter is cold about the famous winter of '03 Z, when I was in service. Perhaps [illegible] but we aren't as bad off [illegible] as we think we are.

The [illegible] cold was record [illegible] in September [illegible] in October and snowstorms in November. Everything they wore was [illegible], and besides that the coach made them all grow enough hair on their chests to eliminate the necessity of chest protectors. The rest of the corps marched onto the field at the beginning of the game with a hot, baked potato in each hand, and ate them during the half.

The snow was quite deep. We had to use the cupola of [illegible] for a door. [illegible] was injured when he tripped over a telephone wire, so we put red lanterns on all poles and chimneys to avoid broken legs. The squirrels all grew discouraged and stopped digging down to find the trees. Professor Peach lost one of his prize bird dogs—the hunger-crazed rabbits got him. The rabbits and squirrels roamed about in [illegible] and killed off all the polar bears, timber wolves, and musk oxen. That is [illegible] there are none of the above animals in [illegible] now. We carried rifles to all [illegible] for protection and had constantly [illegible] the sky for swooping chickadees.

One cold day it snowed flakes the size [illegible] and we had a great snowball fight without any danger of breaking windows, since they were under fifteen feet of snow. That was the day the Central Vermont R. R. found they could put on the brakes at Burlington and slide clear to White River Junction with the flat wheels as runners. (I notice they are still using the flat wheels.) The virgin sturgeon at the Roxbury fish hatchery wiggled up to the caretaker's door and begged to be fried, but it froze to death in the frying pan. We wrapped my pet rattlesnake, Cleo, in a fur vest but we forgot about the armholes. I found her cold and stiff, in my economics book where she had crawled to keep warm. In order not to lose my other pet snake, I sent for a copy of Boccaccio's "Decameron," in which she nested warmly until spring.

A funny incident happened one night. There was a strong wind coming in the keyhole, which blew the stove all around the room. (Those were the days when there was a stove in every room.) So roommate and I took it to bed with us and nailed down the covers. Then about two o'clock I had to get up to shove in another log, but in the darkness I made a bad mistake. It did cure roommate of sleeping with his mouth open, though.

Campus Comment

[illegible] Editor of the Cynic:

Dear Sir: In a recent [illegible] CYNIC there appeared an [illegible] "Campus Comment" an article [illegible] trious member of our [illegible] mented on the subject of [illegible] commented at the Saturday [illegible] meetings. The writer [illegible] apathetic attitude of the [illegible] campus and offered several [illegible] as to the manner in which [illegible] be improved.

I think that our pedagogical [illegible] spondent has perhaps the wrong [illegible] the situation. With all deference [illegible] position I might offer a slight [illegible] To resort to a trite adage [illegible] deavoring to lock the barn [illegible] the horse has escaped for some [illegible] ago.

The second mass meeting [illegible] year was featured with the [illegible] shapely Jersey cow. The cow [illegible] the University farm, decked [illegible] dry raiments of bovine [illegible] escorted through the gymnasium. [illegible] Jersey's first public appearance [illegible] to serve a twofold purpose [illegible] arouse enthusiasm for the Bonfire [illegible] second, to add novelty and [illegible] the mass meeting program. [illegible] so radically differed from the [illegible] spondent's ideas of what the [illegible] morning programs should be [illegible] prime instigator of the farce was [illegible] suggestion, hauled up before the [illegible] sity council. Perhaps he disagrees [illegible] the spirit of the ludicrous stunt [illegible] he was aggravated because the [illegible] had not asked his permission to [illegible] cow into the domain where he [illegible] rules supreme. It is not for me [illegible] Now, he asks with apparent [illegible] cerity why the mass meetings [illegible] succeeding. The reason for the [illegible] success is really too obvious to [illegible] such an ingenuous query. The mass [illegible] ings have not succeeded because the [illegible] dents have no desire to enter the [illegible] nasium for another half-hour lecture [illegible] ing the course of a day crowded [illegible] other such lectures. The half hour [illegible] is now welcomed as a short period [illegible] termission when they can escape [illegible] what he is trying to stage in the [illegible] nasium.

I gather that the correspondent's [illegible] of what a mass meeting should be [illegible] group of sober-faced students [illegible] over by Cotton Mather or Doctor [illegible] son brought down to our own day [illegible] age. He deplores the fact that the [illegible] dents haunt the Coffee Corner [illegible] of attending the mass meetings. He [illegible] why is this so? He offers several [illegible] ficial suggestions for their improvement [illegible] and signs his name to the letter. It might as well ask why Pussyfoot Johnson is not popular with all liberals.

In conclusion, mass meetings defeat their own purpose when they [illegible] into a larger lecture hall with a [illegible] bag of wind presiding over a more [illegible] oughly bored audience. Horse play [illegible] out and boredom came in.

An 18th Century manuscript of the [illegible] national epic of Persia re[illegible] the legendary history of the Per[illegible] kings from the dimmest past ages [illegible] the Arab conquest in the seventh [illegible] era, a work enjoying such [illegible] repute as to be considered the model [illegible] poetry of Islam. It is a mas[illegible] one of the four great poets of [illegible] Firdawsi, who is ranked by many [illegible] the other three, Omar Khayyam, [illegible] and Hafiz. The poem is said to [illegible] consumed the labor of thirty years in [illegible] and was completed by [illegible] his eightieth year, A.D. 1010. [illegible] interest to English readers to [illegible] decorations in gold, green, and red. There are also numerous miniatures in strange but pleasing color effects, picturing most vividly all sorts of adventurous encounters usually involving bloodshed, whether of men, horses or wild beasts. The drawing of the animals in every case shows a high degree of artistry in depicting their characteristic and distinguished traits.

5. Another copy of the Koran written in the 19th century. This again is well decorated in the same general conventional style of the others with the usual colors, gilt, rose, green, and with elaborate designs executed on the end leaves.

Although there are few, if any, in this community who will be able to read these works, this small but representative collection will serve an important purpose not only in calling attention to the well night forgotten arts of the calligrapher and illuminator but also in affording something of an introduction to an artistic tradition very important in the world's cultural history, according to museum authorities. A few have a slight acquaintance with this tradition through their knowledge of Persian fabrics, notably rugs, but the limitations of medium employed in such products closely circumscribe possibilities, beautiful as many Persian fabrics are. The symbolism of color and pattern, intelligible as they are to the initiated, yet do not carry in carpets the same significance as they do when employed in pictorial representations of man's activities. In the latter instance act and symbolism combine to reveal the inner meaning; line and color together offer possibilities, as employed by the Asiatic artist, to express the inner spirit and not merely outward resemblance. Thus, yellow signifies the light of the sun and is a symbol for divinity; red signifies divine love and symbolizes royalty; green signifies resurrection; blue the infinite; and black, evil. As an example of the symbolic use of color one might cite one of the miniatures in the Shahnama representing an ancient Persian hero, clad in red, asleep on a patch of green, as if in a meadow, his head bowing in front of a kind of nimbus in black, while in the foreground his faithful horse protects his sleeping master from harm by engaging in mortal combat with a tiger.

Because Persian art is two dimensional, without perspective, and devoid of shading, many of the miniatures in these volumes will impress the beholder the first time he sees them as naive, not to say childish, but an examination of the skilful drawing, and the beautifully laid on color should soon disabuse him of this impression. He must understand that he is contemplating an art which has for its object not the outward resemblance merely, but the inner informing spirit, with an eye to decorative effect as well.

These new accessions, together with some sumptuous books, the History of Japanese Art, recently acquired, are valuable additions and aids to the Museum, which is doing so much toward the cultivation and appreciation of works of art. The whole community owes a debt of gratitude to those who so thoughtfully and generously furnish the means whereby all can obtain some first hand acquaintance with works which have "increased the sum of mind's delights and possessions."

Now That It's Over

[illegible] tribulations of college life. However many inexperienced freshmen who have [illegible] before, have suffered from many restless nights and days which have been marred by those shivers which travel so daintily up and down the spine. Upperclassmen particularly the sophomores, have delighted themselves by augmenting these needless fears.

We have noticed a few interesting incidents which have taken place during the examination period. When Professor Householder brought into his classroom those dreaded exams, the class greeted him with a resounding applause. It may even have reached the velocity of the noise that we heard while taking an exam in the large lecture room of the Williams Science Hall. We suggest noiseless seats next time.

There was the usual amount of blank stares and scratchings of the head, but our sympathy goes to that co-ed who bit her fingernails so much that she had to adorn the tip of each of her fingers and thumbs with a piece of adhesive tape.

Strange as it may seem, we have heard no one remark that any one of the exams was a cinch. Perhaps the professors didn't realize soon enough that the easier the exam, the more easily it could be corrected. We wish we had suggested it to them!

Now that these brain-teasers have passed, the second semester presents a cheerier aspect. Extra-curricular activities will be renewed at an increased pace. The Kake Walk, the sophomore hop, and many athletic contests are scheduled for the near future. Of course, we have all decided to do better this next semester, and in this way not be compelled to wear those gloomy faces at marking periods. May we succeed!

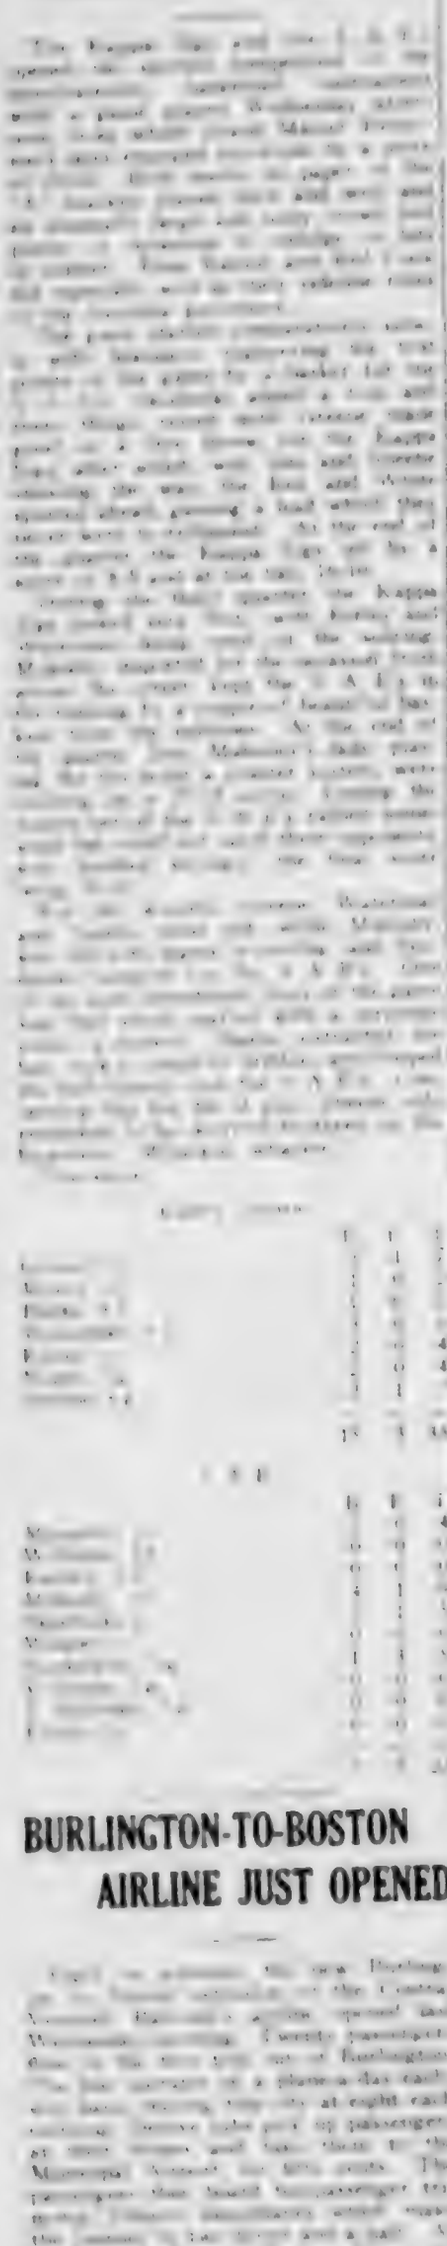
In choosing between a Phi Beta Kappa key and a varsity letter, 230 first-year men desired a key in preference to a letter, while 33 wanted both. One student said he wanted a key because "a key could be pawned," while another disclosed the fact that his girl had expressed a preference for a key instead of a varsity letter.

Two hundred and fifteen freshmen said that they did not drink, while 89 admitted "taking a drop now and then." There were 128 who smoked, while three said that they smoked only cigars.

"Mr. Olsen, Meet Mr. Johnson"



"Ole Olsen first met "Chic" Johnson (or should it be vice versa?) within a half mile of the spot where they now meet each Friday night on "The Swift Revue." All of this was nineteen years ago, back in 1914. Olsen, saxophone player in "The College Four," a vocal and instrumental quartet, had called at the offices of a Chicago music publisher in the old Garrick Theatre building in search of a new piano player. The publisher was mentally running through the list of possibilities when "Chick" Johnson strolled past the open door whistling the then popular "Oh, You Great Big, Beautiful Doll." "Chic" was drafted forthwith. Several weeks later he and Olsen, minus the others of the act, were in the Great Northern Hotel, then Chicago's most swanky spot. The floor show was short a number and they were pressed into service. A booking agent heard them and the "College Four" was short both a piano player and a saxophone player. The Chicago Civic Theatre, the setting for "The Swift Revue," broadcast each Friday from 10:00 to 10:30 p.m., E. S. T., over the WABC-Columbia chain, is only a few blocks from the Garrick.

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports' Editor

The palm this week goes to Don Tobin who missed predicting Vermont's margin of victory over St. Mike's by only three points. Donald is even more sagacious than we had thought.

A palm to Referee Olney also, if we take St. Mike's word for it. It would seem that the authorities would have two officials on hand for a game as important as the St. Mike's struggle.

To Whitey Palmer we express the heartfelt thanks of the student body for those three fouls he sank to win the game. Truly the blonde marvel is a money player of the first magnitude.

Substituting Enos Ramon for Gutsy Grant proved to be a wise move. Gutsy was having an off night while the Barre youth was enjoying one of his rarest evenings.

Jack Morgan continued to play the consistent game he has revealed lately, coolly ringing up high score for the evening.

As expected, Bob Meade was the spearhead of the Mikemen's attack. The well-publicized Earl Peavy also crashed into the limelight with a brace of spectacular circus shots.

Considering the circumstances, Kappa Sig's victory over SAE Wednesday was not surprising. The Sig Alpha boys needed something besides their fighting spirit to pull them through. In fact, they needed practice.

Gordon Sheehe fought hard to pull his opponents through, but the one basket he so kindly donated the SAE's was not quite enough. The rumor that the Sig Alphs are going to give him a letter is unfounded.

Red Negus must have thought he was playing hockey, judging from the stiff body checks and indiscriminate tripping he indulged in.

Catamounts Add Second Victory and First Defeat to Tally in Contest for Green Mt. Conference Championship

UPSET GIVES NORWICH EASY VICTORY

Spearheading a decided upset the Norwich cadets, who are cellar occupants in the Green Mountain Conference, defeated the favored Vermont Catamounts 25-16 at Northfield last night. It was a game featured by close guarding. Vermont being held to four twin counters while Norwich made eight baskets from the floor. Comi, Norwich center, was high scorer for the home team, making one basket and four fouls for a total of six points. Captain Joe Leddy was close behind with five points. High point man for the Cats was Ed Layden, who scored six points while Captain Johnnie Beckley, recovering from his slump, cashed in with four points. That Norwich's guarding was extremely effective is shown by the fact that Whitey Palmer failed to score. Either Vermont was suffering from over confidence or they were unable to accustom themselves to the large Norwich floor. It was the first time in two years that the Horsemen have been able to defeat Vermont.

LACK OF APPRECIATION

Wake Up—Don't Let the Good Things Pass by Every Time

The seeming lack of appreciation in our part as students, of the advantages and opportunities which are constantly being put before us here on our campus, is, at last, arousing the "reform" spirit in a certain few of our nobler minds. It is none too soon for this conscientious group to begin its never-ending task of reviving lost ambitions—for the annual attack on this problem is long overdue. We have been going gaily along forgetting all else save ego, and the chances for enriching and improving our selfish selves are being carelessly thrown behind screens and walls of excuses.

We excuse ourselves for non-attendance of everything held on the campus, from mass meetings to social gatherings, including religious services and class meetings. We cut them all, using no discrimination or forethought. We have hushed our consciences until they fail to remind us that there remain some services, some occasions, some entertainments, and some programs which are being given for us to which we should count it a privilege to be invited.

It is not necessary to call to mind the instances and occasions which have shown the sentiment of the student group, but it is important that this attitude and feeling be corrected. It is a group problem in which each individual should recognize and assume her share. It is a reflection on the whole group and each of its members, and it is OUR responsibility, both personally and collectively. Why shift the problem to a few? Why have a problem at all?—Alabamian

On Saturday, November 24, the varsity was defeated by Massachusetts State College by the score of 5-0 in a close and scrappy game. The margin of victory was due to a pretty field goal in the second half.

COACH BURKE

VERMONT FROSH TAKE FIRST GAME BY 40-31

The Vermont frosh took over Enosburg Falls last night to the tune of 40-31. Beattie was high man for Vermont, scoring 12 points, with Smith starring for the Falls with 8 points to his credit. Details later.

BASKET FIVE TACKLES SPRINGFIELD TOMORROW NIGHT IN FOURTH TILT

First Week Shows Victories Over St. Mike's and Middlebury, Defeat by Norwich and Contest With Strong Team Tomorrow

The Catamounts wind up their first hard week of basketball since mid-years when they engage the gymnasts from Springfield College tomorrow night. It will be the Cats fourth battle in eight days, having taken over both Middlebury and St. Michael's and then suffering a humiliating defeat from the Norwich Cadets. In last year's invasion of Massachusetts the Vermont aggregation succumbed to the physical education lads.

Springfield boasts of one of the better small college quintets in the East and are a ranking favorite. Of late they conquered Middlebury and a strong Amherst five. They are making a three-game trip into the Green Mountain state taking on Middlebury and St. Michael's before meeting Coach Burke's athletes. Due to Vermont's collapse last evening at Northfield the Gymnasts must be ranked the favorite. The Green and Gold, playing on their home court and capable of playing a good game may spring an upset.

Coach Burke will no doubt rely on the starting quintet of the Norwich game with Layden and Ramon in the forward positions, Morgan at the pivot and Palmer and Beckley playing the backcourt. Enos Ramon gave a flashy exhibition Tuesday evening to replace Bob Grant who has been the leading scorer to date. Morgan, too, has shown a decided improvement and his football injury is not causing him so much difficulty. Against the Cadets Ed Layden was high scorer and may show evidence of his last year's form. With Barker's offense—a slow one with a fast break—the forwards must be cutting fast and shooting quickly. Lack of practice has been the main drawback with Layden and therefore may click perfectly against Eddie Kirby's quintet.

In preliminary game the freshman team fresh from their conquest of Enosburg Falls H. S. take on the Fort Ethan Allen Post five at 7.00 p.m.

To correct their posture for "posture week," co-eds at Smith College were recently seen going about the campus carrying books on their heads.

VERMONT 28 AND ST. MICHAEL'S 26

Taking up the winning march once more the Catamounts won the sweetest victory of the season in taking over St. Michael's 28-26 Tuesday night in their second Conference game. The game was an especially good one to win because it meant the breaking of the string of victories of the Purple which had existed since last winter.

St. Michael's got off to a fast start and scored three points on a foul shot by Habnle and a basket by Iukoski before the Cats got going. Palmer and Morgan sank foul shots and then Layden looped in a long one from the side to put Vermont out ahead 4-3. St. Michael's took time out and on resuming play Layden made a foul shot but Meade got loose on a nice block play to tie the score at five all. Morgan made a clever follow up shot but Meade enabled the Purple to keep pace by tossing in a long one from way out. Enos Ramon on a beautiful block play threw in a step shot from way under the basket and fouled doing it adding another point to the total. Habnle sunk a foul to bring the score to 10-8 for the end of the first half.

The game began to get rough as the Cats began to pull ahead in this half. Morgan tossed one in from under the basket and Peavy began his scoring spree by sinking a great shot from the middle of the floor. Enos Ramon again took the ball on an individual jaunt and tossed in a spectacular heave from the corner but Peavy again breaking loose nearly evened the score making it 14-12, with the Cats still ahead. On an out of bounds play Jack Morgan then took a pass from Layden and with no one near him looped in a nice heave from the side. St. Mike's again took time out and on beginning play again, Beckley made a foul shot but Meade continued his scoring with a basket from way out. Here the Cats looked their best when Morgan made a follow shot and then Ramon battled in a loose ball to bring the score to 21-14. Meade then got loose in a pretty step shot which he followed with another from the foul line. Layden was fouled and made it. Jukoski added a point and then Lenney brought the Purple within one point, making it 22-21. Layden then took the ball from the crowd under the basket, dribbled to the corner and on one of his brilliant two-handed heaves caged a beautiful basket, putting the Cats ahead 24-21. Peavy then gave the Vermont supporters heart failure when he looped two in a row to put St. Mike's ahead and Habnle made it 26-24 with a foul shot. However a few seconds before the game ended Layden made a foul and Palmer three to give Vermont the winning margin.

The game was exceedingly rough and very bitterly contested. The great rivalry which has developed and the great goal the Purple was playing for made it apparent before the game started that the battle was going to be terrific. Both sides used a good deal of unnecessary roughness but St. Mike's seemed to be going to great extremes and playing very dirty ball. Meade was ejected from the contest on personals and all except Lenney had one or more fouls against him.

It is difficult to pick an outstanding performer for Vermont because everyone gave such a fine exhibition, but Jack Morgan with nine points, did a great job. Jug Layden showed that he is rapidly attaining his last year's form in picking up seven points and playing a great all-round game, missing shot after shot on hard luck. Enos Ramon, taking Bob Grant's place, tossed in six points and worked very well with Layden in the front court. Whitey Palmer again demonstrated that he is the outstanding guard in the State by breaking up play after play and scoring points from the foul line when they were very valuable. Peavy and Meade were outstanding for St. Michael's. Each accumulated eight points and were a constant source of worry to the men guarding them. The much reputed brilliance of Captain Ruggiero failed to shine forth for he did not score even though he was trying shot after shot all night.

NEUTRAL PERIOD STARTS TOMORROW FOR WOMEN

The neutral period for girls eligible to sororities will begin Wednesday, February 14, at 10:00 p.m. and continue until the following Friday at 4:00 p.m. During Thursday afternoon the girls will sign their preference sheets in the dean's office.

The final parties have been held every night except Sunday since last Tuesday and the last one, that of Pi Beta Phi will be tonight. The lads are to be in by tomorrow night at ten when the neutral period starts.

Imported Orchestra Enjoyed by Sixty Couples at Hotel Vermont

A group of fifty or sixty couples attended the Sophomore Hop last Friday night, February 9, in the main dining room of the Hotel Vermont. Sam Wooding and his fourteen piece orchestra from the Kit Cat Club in London furnished the harmony for the affair.

L. S. Coughtry '36, when asked about the success of the dance, replied, "The orchestra was good, and everyone appeared to be having a fine time."

In the receiving line were Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Braun, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Kiphuth, L. S. Coughtry and H. J. Mahoney '36. Refreshments were served to the dancers.

SKI-SUITS DENOUNCED BY FACULTY MEMBERS

Miss Nulty Objects to Co-eds Wearing Them to Classes—Meets With Disfavor

By reason of Dean Patterson's recent verdict that instructors may forbid girls wearing ski-suits to take advantage of their courses, Miss Nulty, head of the secretarial department, said that she would not allow co-eds so dressed to enter her classroom.

On one of the below-zero days last week two girls were present in class wearing ski-pants. Miss Nulty announced that she would no longer permit this in class and asked how the girls would like it if she appeared so in a ski-suit. She said that the suits are immodest, and that no one would dare appear in an office in one; that the girls might just as well get used to wearing proper clothing now as later; that there is a time and a place for everything, and the schoolroom is not the place for ski pants; furthermore, she wished all her girls to dress sensibly in cold weather.

One of the members of the class declared that she had to walk over half a mile to school and she did not want to freeze while doing so; she would rather be warm and sensible; and she commented in addition that as long as she could not wear her suit in an office, she wished to get the good out of it while she could.

Recently on account of the continuous below-zero weather Dean Patterson has allowed the girls to wear ski-suits to class, subject to the approval of their instructors. So far Miss Nulty is the only member of the faculty who has actually forbidden girls so clad to enter her classes.

CHAPEL ATTENDANCE NOT "SURVIVING VESTIGE OF PAST" SAYS REV. MYERS

The fact that church and chapel attendances have obviously declined is no proof that they have become merely "surviving vestiges of the past," declared Rev. Skillman E. Myers, who preached at the chapel last Wednesday morning. Nor does it mean that there is no further need of religion. In his rich and interesting experience in social service, Reverend Myers has found that the needs of the troubled world today are far from being "surviving vestiges of the past," but that they are permanent. The needs of the troubled world today are summed up in the words of Woodrow Wilson: "Civilization cannot be redeemed materially unless it is redeemed spiritually."

Life, however good, must be redeemed. In this lies the ministry of religion, for it enables "that which is godlike in us" to be realized. Theologians propound

TICKETS FOR KAKE WALK

Special strip tickets at $1.50 each will be available to students attending the two nights of Kake Walk, according to William Cohen, Chairman of Publicity. Individual admission to the masquerade dance has been set for $.75 each for students only, with tickets to the Saturday evening performance selling at $.85. The prices for the second evening's entertainment have been arranged for benefit of high school and university students alike.

Couple tickets only at $2.00 each will be sold to the general public for the masquerade, and admission to the Kake Walking will be $1.00 for a single ticket. A small section of reserved seats will be disposed of at $1.75 each. The remaining seats will be rush seats. The tax has been included in the prices of admission and it is urged that students buy the combination tickets so as to avail themselves of the opportunity of attending both nights at a reduced rate. Tickets will go on sale at the end of the week.

COBURN ELECTED PRES. OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS CLUB

W. N. Coburn, '34 was elected president of the Public Affairs Club at a meeting held Friday. Coburn, a Sigma Nu, was elected to fill the place of Chet Eaton, who was forced to leave school for his health. It is felt that Coburn will be a good man for this position, and that he will do much to further the interests of the organization. Another meeting will be held in the near future.

STAG SLEIGH RIDE IS PLANNED BY SPORTS CLUB

"The Winter Sports Club is expecting to start things rolling next Saturday, February 17, when the club will sponsor a good old-fashioned sleigh ride headed in the general direction of Colchester," states G. O. Ricker '34, president of the Winter Sports Club. At Colchester there will be a spread at one of the best restaurants in town. Mrs. Ray Collins is in charge of the supper. Corn chowder will be served with sugar on snow.

The price of 75 cents for tickets was decided upon by the committee which consists of R. W. Collins '35, Tessie Burns '35, H. H. Sabin '37, and Ruth White '36. Tickets for the affair will be released by Tuesday and can be procured from the committee. A deadline for the sale of tickets will be drawn Friday noon, February 16, since the committee must know how many to allow for.

First come will be first served as the supply of tickets will be limited. Fraternities may reserve an entire sleigh if time, but twenty-two tickets.

This affair is strictly a S.P.A.C. affair but couples will be tolerated. The committee promises to have everyone back safely late the same evening. If the weather will not permit the affair to be carried out ticket money will be refunded.

"It's a chance of a lifetime," says Chairman Collins, "for city-breds to enjoy a good old-fashioned sleigh ride and the outing joins is destined to be at Colchester, a place noted for good and plenti[illegible] eats."

SAYS, "CAN'T DRINK SELVES INTO PROSPERITY"

"Because of repeal, do we as we head on the future think that we can drink ourselves into prosperity," asked Dr. Robert McLaughlin of the audience that filled the Ira Allen Chapel last Sunday afternoon. Will a nation that lays her course in such a direction reach calm water? Before many months, the wind will blow stronger, the waves will run higher, and the ship will rock harder unless we come to our senses.

Doctor McLaughlin compared our lives to ships rocked in calm water by the gyroscope of our thoughts, impulses and purposes, throwing off words, acts and attitudes. He cited examples of people who shake the lives of others either maliciously or unintentionally, and said that the last five years has been the shaking that some people needed by reason of their manner of living in the last decade. He ended by outlining the life of Albert Schweizer, whom he called the "superman of the present generation."

The vesper service began at four o'clock. The Rev. Skillman E. Myers of the Unitarian Church of Burlington read the Scriptures and led the prayer. The choir, under the direction of Professor Bennett, sang "Lo! A Voice from Heaven Sounding."

Doctor McLaughlin was introduced by President Bailey. He has spoken here several times in the past years, and in 1923 received an honorary degree from the University. He is a graduate of Oberlin Divinity School.

A more detailed extract of Doctor McLaughlin's sermon follows:

He began by saying that his interest had been greatly aroused, about a year ago, by the news of the great Italian liner, Rex, being built. From the continuous advertisement of the huge stabilizers he became "gyroscope conscious." Since the ship sailed in December, it should have run into storms which would rock the ship. Instead, the first radiogram that brought news of the ship on her maiden voyage, announced that in the calm water off the Azores, the gyroscope had been started, and had set the ship rocking hard.

This reminded him, he went on, of the lives of people which were set rocking by others. Some persons shake the lives of others maliciously by their caustic words and cynical attitudes. Others have no malicious intent, but because of their timidity and hesitation, others are upset at a time when there is need for clear and immediate action. The third type of person who rocks the boat is well-intentioned but "lacks the tool" of the ship. Because of the maladjustment of his inner life, he has never mastered the technique of dealing with his fellowmen.

"However," Doctor McLaughlin continued, "there are times when people need to be jolted out of their smug complacency, and sometimes the rocking of the boat is inevitable. The last five years has been the shaking up that many of us needed. Now that we are heading into the future, do we think that we can drink ourselves into prosperity? If there were more thinking men we

WRIGHT AND EVEREST NAMED AS DELEGATES TO NORTHFIELD CONFERENCE

V. C. A. Representatives Appointed at Meeting Held Last Sunday

The Vermont Christian Association held its first cabinet meeting this semester at the Fleming Museum Sunday. Several matters were discussed, especially the coming Northeast Conference. E. S. Wright '35 and A. S. Everest '35 were appointed official delegates to the winter conference which takes place this week end from Friday to Sunday. There will be several others going, probably enough to fill two cars. The V. C. A. is undertaking to provide transportation both ways. Any interested in attending should signify their desire at the V. C. A. office.

At the cabinet meeting Sunday short reports of the Youth Conference held at the University last Thanksgiving week end were given by Wright and Everest the two delegates to that conference also. Arrangements were made for another meeting within two weeks.

PHI BETA KAPPA GRADS ACTIVE SURVEY SHOWS

During the last ten years 140 Phi Beta Kappa students have been graduated from the University of Vermont according to a survey made in the Alumni Office. Of this number 55 are women. 55 are men. Many have entered the teaching field than any other profession. Thirty-two of them are doing public and private school teaching and seven are doing college teaching. Twenty-three are graduate students, including two medical students, one law student with most of the other academic students. Only 15 of the 140 are unemployed despite the fact that the period covers the most recent graduates, and of this number only three are men. Of the 85 women, 26, or over one-third, are married. The group of 140 includes 13 who are engaged in some form of business activity, ten engineers, two social workers, one research worker, one librarian, one dietitian, one nurse, one lawyer and one farmer. One has died.

MIDDLEBURY CARNIVAL ATTRACTS STUDENTS

Twenty U. V. M. Students Participate in Winter Sports

Twenty students represented the University at the Middlebury carnival yesterday in various events. There were many people from different colleges taking part in the event. The program for the carnival was as follows: In the morning at nine o'clock there was a hockey game between Middlebury and Lake Placid and a baseball game played on snow. In the afternoon there was an intercollegiate ski meet, slalom, ski jumping, snowshoe dash, five-mile cross-country ski race, three-mile snowshoe race, downhill skiing and at 4:00 there was another hockey game, Middlebury vs. Alumni. From 4:30 to 7:30 there was a tea dance.

Originality Needed to Make Kake Walk Masquerade Ball a Success

Kake Walk, masquerade ball offers a wonderful chance for the budding geniuses on campus to burst into full bloom. Everyone of us has a suppressed desire to appear as Napoleon, or Cleopatra or Mickey Mouse; at any rate as something that we aren't. Here's an opportunity to uncover this desire and reveal one's hidden personality, if any.

There will be unlimited possibility for displaying originality, for the object in having this a costume ball is to do away with the expenditure of formal dress and to replace this conventional costume with something more economical, and at the same time, more unusual. Now ingenuity must come to the fore in order to avoid any banal and hackneyed garb. A ball full of Napoleons and Cleopatras would be no more interesting than one of co-eds and their escorts in ordinary evening dress.

A little exercise of the gray matter plus assorted materials, when mixed well together, can effect wonderful transformations. Imagine some of our campus co-eds in mob bonnets and satin pantaloons as Knights of the Round Table or some of our fair damsels as Alice in Wonderland, with her beribboned flowing hair. A few yards of inexpensive cloth and other cheap materials are all that is necessary to produce a costume that may be outstandingly original.

Of course, some consideration must be given to the general type of the person by whom a costume is being selected but with the large field of literature, history, contemporary times and imagination from which to choose in appropriate personages should be easy. So let's see a few of the best costumes a regular meeting at the Inn and then everyone find a garb that satisfies his innermost desire to express himself.

Also a Larry Bowers called Aristotle? Mr. Frank Solomon would be appropriate. . . . The Delts went calling the other night, stopping at the Theta House and Converse House. Bathing suits were the evening attire on this evening when it was 20 below. The group was chaperoned by Dean Coburn who stated that the engagement was not required to wear a bathing suit and the hospitality at Converse was suggestively deficient in cordiality. The group included such celebrities as Virgil Elkins prominent Boulder man, John Swett (Mr. Swett to you) and Mr. Robert Swan who packs an awful wallop. . . . Patterson, the Nudist, for Karnival Kin!

George W. Patterson '34 of Vergennes has thrown his hat in the ring and is waging a terrific battle for election as Karnival King. The acclaim which has greeted the announcement of his candidacy from all sides has stormed him, heaping oratorical and literary laurels on his head, greeting his speeches with boundless enthusiasm, and supporting the Nudist party. Patterson has already gathered about him a coterie of campus personal representatives known to their associates as the Nosey's but to the campus at large as the Nosey Nudists.

Do your part; vote for Patterson, the native Vermonter who brings the prince[illegible] Kalsom to our fair campus. He is a block off the old chip. Born a descendant of one of the original Minute Men, he has become the man of the hour. No one is so well equipped for the job as he! As Karnival King let him solve by calculus any little differences which might arise between you and your date. His study of physics and the theory of light enables him to know just when they should be dimmed to prevent shocks and how much they should be turned on outside. He has carefully figured out the problem of proper insulation of electricity so that they may not come in contact with any conductors of good cheer. His chemistry fitted him to run the Nudist handbook. Controlled [illegible] Just suppose elect George W. Patterson! This fighting engineer and his Nosey's will butt into your affairs and run them well.

Don't vote for Hubbard! Is that clear-cut enough? Wise wreck our good times with the headache and hangover and dark brown taste that this heroes' loathing heroes. Have you just got a nerve. Go Nudist and lose them! If you should elect Hubbard, things would turn out so horribly that the campus would wail: "Oh, if we only Nudist in the first place!" Be a Nosey now! Besides, the Bet-a-dime Bowers Gambling Agency is offering 10 to 1 that on Karnival night Hubbard will be in St. Albans debating the city fathers and the chief of police on the question, "Resolved that the bill of rights is taxation without representation."

As for Gillespie, what place has a crooner in an election for Karnival King? Put him in the orchestra and give him a parade. Voting for that certain party is like a leap in the dark. What a chump! Patterson is a surefire bet.

Next mass meeting the Nudists will bring their campaign to a whirlwind clothes. As Patterson says, "The Nudists could win anyway by a bare margin but after we make a few startling disclosures next mass meeting I wouldn't give one of my fig leaves for their chances." So, until then, "bare with us." Become a Nosey and take the Nosey oath. We'll win by George."

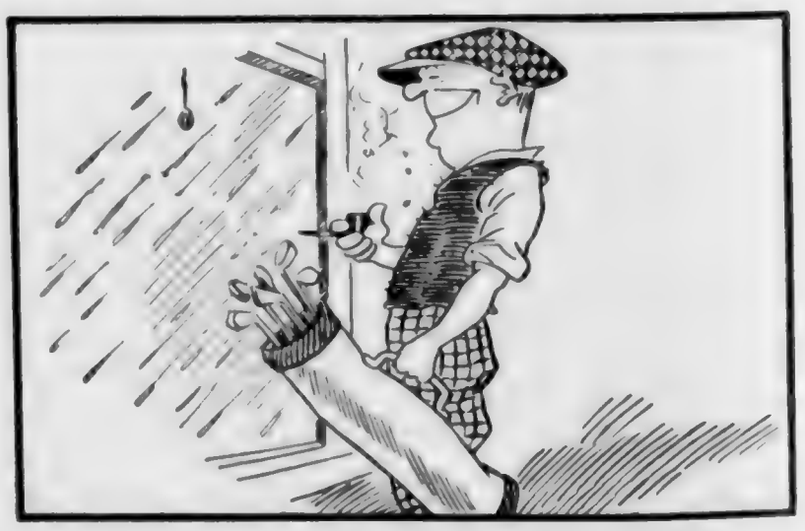
DEGREE OF M. C.

A college degree of M.C. [illegible] citizen for young college alumni who make good in public life was suggested by President Alfred H. Upham of Miami University in his opening address to Miami students, an address in which he deplored the lack of intellectual [illegible] on the part of college graduates.



"Through all this scathing criticism directed toward higher education," Doctor Upham said, "there runs an important thought which must come home to us. Are we sending out into life young men and women who use their brains in matters of public concern?

"To my mind the gravest indictment of our American education is the [illegible] small number of our graduates who continue to lead anything like an intellectual life. I am not asking for prigs with high brows, but merely for people who read good books and enjoy them, who have opinions of their own which go deeper than newspaper headlines, who have a responsibility for the welfare of their community and state which goes deeper than crabbing about the baseball team and taxes."

Miami this year opens its 125th year as an institution of higher learning.

FROSH OVERWHELM FORT ETHAN ALLEN BY 54-32

Fast Offensive Baffles Army as Shaw Collects Sixteen Points

The frosh defeated Fort Ethan Allen 54-32 Saturday night and repaid the soldiers for the defeat that they handed the Green and Gold men this fall

The Kittens developed an offensive that gave them a ten-point lead in the first five minutes. The Post took hold then and matched the Vermonters basket for basket, and in the closing minutes of the first half came within two points of the Kittens, but the '37 men dropped a few baskets of their own accord and the second frame ended 29-20

With Duncan getting the jump and Shaw and Tomasetti fighting for high score, the frosh went well ahead. The Post, with Stone carrying the burden of his team's attack, rallied, but could not catch the powerful Kittens

Shaw led Tomasetti and Beattie for the scoring, however, by getting 16 points to his credit. Duncan and Warden put in their great defensive work and this makes a well-balanced team, which should take the St. Mike's J. V.'s into camp Friday night.

Vermont lost its first rifle (N. R. A.) match last week to Army by the narrow margin of six points. The final score was 1,349 to 1,343. Ten men shot from three positions and only the five highest scores counted.

Next week the rifle team starts the Postal Telegraph matches, with New Mexico A. and M., Michigan State, New York Stock Exchange, Cornell, Creighton, C. C. N. Y. (varsity) and C. C. N. Y. (R. O. T. C.). These matches are shot from four positions, which include the four aforementioned and sitting. Last week they also started on the first stage of the Corps Area matches—that of prone and sitting.

The scores of the Corps Area matches have to be sent in to Corps Area Headquarters by February 28, after all four stages have been fired

The shoulder-to-shoulder match with Norwich, which had previously been scheduled for March 3, will be fired at Northfield on February 17.

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports' Editor

Last Saturday night's game revealed that the old-time Vermont fight absent which old grads crate so much, is still very much alive. Our boys unleashed a savage offensive in the second half which prevailed as spirited competition as has been seen this year

The Springfield delegates were just a little too fast for our boys, however. This speed coupled with an uncanny shooting eye overpowered the fight which the Cats revealed

Eddie Saba conclusively proved that he is just as shifty a broken field runner on the court as on the gridiron. Late in the game he showed that his eye for the basket is still undimmed despite the passing of time

Whitey Palmer played himself off his feet, keeping close watch on his man. His man, Palmer is in there all the time no matter what the occasion is

At this point we had intended to plug Bugs Ramon for the very hot game he turned in, but the modest stiff has requested that we mention his name no more in this column. And so it shall be hereafter

Peaky Flynn was all wet in his prediction, but he shouldn't take it to heart. Even your correspondent has called 'em wrong, yet lived to see a brighter day

A scattering of early-arriving customers were treated to the sight of the Kittens dishing out a merciless drubbing to the Fort Ethan Allen hirelings

This frosh team reveals a ray of hope for the future. Dick Duncan looks like a very worthy successor to Jack Morgan at center, while Al Tomasetti and Dave Beattie will no doubt be well up in the running for forward berths. And for guards, there will be Lefty Warden and George Shaw on hand

But there is always a fly in the ointment. Usually whenever the freshman teams possess potential varsity stars, said stars either become ineligible or flunk out. However, reliable reports have it that these Kittens are a little brighter than the average run

As a matter of record, let it be known that Messrs. Tomasetti and Shaw almost scored more points between them than the entire Fort team. When a thing like this occurs, the lads in question undoubtedly have something on the ball

Allie Shelansky, coach of the freshman team, showed that he has a very keen insight into the fundamentals of basketball coaching. This man has worked without any reimbursement whatsoever and deserves more than a rousing vote of thanks. He has been laboring unheralded and unsung long enough

We learn from reliable sources that one who is high in the circles of the Athletic Council is not particularly in favor of hiring Albie Booth for football coach

One who is quite an old campaigner around this institution has delved into the deepest recesses of his memory and brought forth the details of the suspension of two U. V. M. athletes about six years ago. The facts of this case bear a striking analogy to the case of St. Mike's Earl Peavey. We need add no further comment

Peaky Flynn, in a last minute attempt to save his face, asserts that his prediction was for the second half only

SIGMA NU'S BEAT OWLS IN FRAT BASKETBALL

Cogswell High Scorer in One-sided Victory Over Opponents

The Sigma Nu basketball team won its first game of the fraternity league by completely overwhelming the Owls 54-9 Saturday afternoon. Led by that flashy guard, Tommy Cogswell, they displayed a variety of shooting from all angles. Tommy was the high scorer of the afternoon, chalking up seven field goals to total fourteen points; he was closely followed by Ross with twelve points to his credit

At the start of the game Ross opened the scoring with a two-pointer from under the basket, followed by two goals tossed in by Biddie McGowan. It then became evident that the contest would be a walkaway. The Owls were able to tally but one field goal in the first half, and that a pretty one-handed heave from the side by Ed Mahoney. The Sigma Nu boys were all finding the hoop pretty regularly and the score at the half stood 26-6. A bit of the famous Bedell spirit was seen during this period when Jack, apparently becoming annoyed at the Owls' tactics, decided to end the matter for once and all by taking a swing at his opponent. Due to this excess enthusiasm Referee Prentice was forced to eject him from the game for the rest of the half.

The last half was a repetition of the first as the Williams Street boys scored at will and held their opponents in check at all times. The play was very ragged and neither team had much cooperation, but it was a case of the one having better scoring eyes.

VERMONT MEETS MCGILL IN RETURN GAME THERE TOMORROW NIGHT, FEB. 14

Team Will Be Without the Services of Layden, Who Will Be Unable to Make the Trip

An erratic Catamount team, fighting to regain some of its prestige lost against Norwich and Springfield, travels to Montreal tomorrow to engage McGill in a return contest tomorrow night. Showing flashes of greatness against St. Mike's and Middlebury, the Green and Gold slumped badly last week and are eager to get back into the win column. In the first game of the season McGill was vanquished in a close contest with the margin of victory being gained after Lewin, brilliant center for the Red and White, had gone out on fouls. This should show that the Cats will have a terrific battle on their hands to take them over on their home court. Vermont will probably be handicapped by the loss for this game of Ed Layden, that great newcomer to the squad who has pepped up the attack greatly. His studies in medicine will not allow him to make the trip. The line-up then for the Cats will probably be made up of Grant and either Ramon or Saba at the forwards. Morgan will be at center and Whitey Palmer and Captain Beckley will start at guards. Ramon and Saba will probably be worked together if the game becomes rough because of their ability to rough it up and their aggressive play. Jack Morgan should be recovered from his injured hand which handicapped him in the Springfield contest

Reports coming from Montreal are that McGill has been rapidly improving and are out to revenge their early defeat by the Cats. Their team is all veteran and is mostly built around Lewin, formerly a star at Dartmouth, who gave the Green and Gold plenty of trouble here. It is difficult to predict this game because it appears to be so close. However, the Cats have the power and seem to be about due for a win even at the Montreal court

STUDENTS TO ELECT KAKE WALK KING BY PRIVATE BALLOT

The Campaigners Will Present Their Platform Over WCAX on Friday Night, At 7.30

Students and political promoters at Vermont have decided that perhaps democracy (democrats and all other derivatives of Demos), is not the last word in governmental rule so they have swung back to the good old days of monarchy, of cabbages and kings and the rest. They plan to elect a real honest to goodness king—KAKE WALK KING.

This individual will preside at the masquerade ball on next Friday night and will be chief dignitary at the Kake Walking program on Saturday night. He is to be elected by student ballot that will take place in the corridors of the Old Mill next Friday. At the present time there are three candidates that have entered the political arena. From this trio the King will be selected in the election which borders on farce after the campaigners have presented their platforms and given their speeches in a campaign which is farce in itself.

The three parties in the field are The Nudist Party, supporting George W. Patterson, III; The Communist Petting Party, backing S. T. Hubbard, Jr., and the Prohibition-Vice-Suppression Party, in which T. G. Cogswell is the power behind the throne and the candidate is still in the offing. Dame Rumor has not as yet been able to pin the position to any individual definitely.

The campaign is to start directly and to continue a la Hyde Park as the candidates feel in the mood to divulge their views and news to the campus world. The wandering reporter has learned that the historic soap box method of campaigning will probably be used exclusively.

The campaigners will endeavor to augment the audience which they would reach from the soap boxes by short radio addresses tonight at 7.30 over a county-wide hook-up on WCAX, the station owned and operated by the Burlington Daily News. At this time fifteen minutes will be given up to the three candidates and their campaign managers in which they will endeavor to make their positions clear to the radio audience. Each candidate will be granted from two to three minutes for his political declamation.

Hard on the heels of Friday night's big broadcast comes the great campus caucus, to be staged Saturday morning in the gymnasium at the time allotted for the weekly Mass Meeting. At this time the three candidates with their managers will appear in person before the student body and have a few words for their supporters.

The campaign will come to a head a week from today as the people's choice is made known to the world following the student balloting. The position of Kake Walk King has been created in an effort to add novelty, fun and interest to the institution of Kake Walk itself.

SENIORS IN MILITARY SCIENCE COMPETE FOR LOYAL LEGION SABRE

Seniors enrolled in the Military Science Department at the University of Vermont, are competing for the sabre which the Vermont Commandery, Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States will award to the highest ranking male student at Commencement next June.

Work for all four years of military science is considered in making the award, but Lieutenant Colonel F. E. Black, professor of military science and tactics, and his staff, choose the winner on the strength of his ability at the end of the course, rather than from academic marks he has achieved in earlier years. This increases the competition during senior year when the men realize that the honor act as officers in the R. O. T. C. battalion.

The Vermont Loyal Legion first awarded the sabre in 1931, and since then other Commanderies of the order have taken up the practice in their states. At the University of Vermont the honor has always been won by Vermonters: Francis A. Bolles of Bellows Falls in 1931; the late Paul E. Westin of Proctor in 1932 and Lester L. Woodward of Richford last year.

The sabre is a regulation army sabre, usable by its recipient when he enters the Reserve Corps. It is suitably engraved and presented by President Guy W. Bailey at Commencement. The Vermont Commandery also makes a similar award to the outstanding student in military science at Norwich University.

VERMONT SENDS FIVE STUDENTS TO NORTHFIELD CONFERENCE THIS WEEK

Delegates Arrive in Northfield, Mass., This Afternoon

As far as was known late Wednesday night, five students represent the University of Vermont at the Northfield Conference in Massachusetts this week end, three men and two women. They are Edna Leach '36, Alberta Gove '36, W. P. Stetson '34, R. S. Wright '35, and E. L. Miller '34.

These delegates plan to arrive at Northfield at about 3.00 o'clock this afternoon, when a preliminary meeting will take place, although officially the Conference will not commence until supper this evening. The first address will be given this evening by Sherwood Eddy, the main speaker. Sunday evening will see the Vermonters back in Burlington.

This is the tenth Northfield Conference to be held under New England Student Y. M. C. A. auspices at Northfield Massachusetts, as the winter meeting. Several years ago the summer conferences were also organized so that now immediately after the closing of college two separate camps are held one for girls, the men and women to attend leaders at American and foreign and thought are united. Talks alternate with discussion and recreation at the winter Conference.

FEATURE MINIATURE SHOW AT MASS MEETING TOMORROW MORNING

Unusual Costumes Are Urged By the Directors to Be Worn At the Masquerade

At tomorrow's mass meeting a miniature style show will be staged to advertise the type of costume which will be worn at the masquerade. The directors have urged students attending to dress in unusual attire emphasizing the desirability of "crazy" attire as costumes such as pyjamas, turned out overcoat and the like.

The Program

An entire week-end of activities has been planned by the directors the printed program of which will be distributed at tomorrow's mass meeting.

A winter carnival will start the activities rolling at 9.30. Morning classes will be omitted. Interclass races under the auspices of the Winter sports Club will bring forth an obstacle race, relays, [illegible] and a snow fight between the juniors and sophomores. This will last until noon. In the afternoon, again with the sports Club taking the lead, an intercollegiate ice carnival will take place at Centennial rink. Norwich, Middlebury and St. Michael's will compete in the skating events which will be open to crowd. At 4.30 the Vermont Hockey Club will engage a St. Michael's team.

At 9.30 a.m. there will also be a meeting of the Alumni Council in Prof. Guy W. Bailey's office. At 4.00 o'clock the intercollegiate championship basketball game will be played in the gymnasium. At 5.00 o'clock informal tea dances are scheduled. At 8.00 the Kake Walk program opens with the University R. O. T. C. Band presenting a half hour concert.

Sunday noon the Hotel Vermont is offering a Vermont dinner at seventy-five cents per plate. Alumni may meet at the hotel from 12.30 until 2.00 o'clock.

At 4.00 a report of the Northfield student Conference will be presented in the auditorium of the Fleming Museum by student delegates.

Lack of student and public support has led to the abandonment of a three degree debate at Texas Christian University.

It may be that many may see the same higher identity and yet no two of them hold the same attitude of worship towards it. Two students in a room that looks out upon the mountain are found in strange quiet. The one feels himself nestling at the foot of a mountain surmounted upon which is the Cross. From the darkness of the city he rises above up to the whiteness of the snow, purity of love he murmurs; shrinks at the blotches of the rocks uncovered by the warmth of the sun, the Blood that was shed he sighs; hardly dares to lift his eyes to the radiant brilliancy of the Cross, if only I could be like unto He, he yearns. The other gazes at the Cross and thinks, "Ah, a symbol of humanity suffering for the world. Seen in its true light only by the few; set amid the beauty of the earth but apparently indifferent to it; standing high above all other things that matter; with a carpet to walk upon that is soiled by the cruelty of men, oh! when will they cease to persecute you?"

High up by the framework of the structure an engineering student stands wondering, "When will I be able to design a masterpiece such as that?" Yes for years he has aspired to be an engineer but try as he may he cannot seem to get on. Exams simply will not allow themselves to be passed and if he fails this year it will mean good-bye to any such hopes, as financial means are not forthcoming. He goes to the base of the structure and beats his hands against the steel in despair crying, "Yield me the secret!" From his frenzy he sinks down despairingly, his hands all bloody; while the student in the room below crumples exhausted with chest bared and scratched and the palms of his hands bleeding from fierce clenching.

All three have worshipped. All three have felt humble before the same object. All three have gained some inspiration with which they will face the morrow.

MORGAN '35 WINS MEN'S BADMINTON TOURNAMENT

As the climax of a badminton tournament open to all men students the first ever to be held at Vermont, W. B. Morgan '35 of Roxbury, was declared badminton champion of the University of Vermont, following his victory over the runner-up, F. L. Lagourt '37, who comes from New Rochelle, N. Y.

Badminton has been introduced here as a result of the enthusiasm shown at its début last winter, as an experiment. Both men and women are playing it, and there is a women's badminton tournament, as well as this for the men. The director of Physical Education for men, H. A. Prentice, states that this initial Badminton Tournament has been very successful and will probably be repeated in the future.

KITTENS PLAY ST. MIKE'S JAYVEES ON HOME COURT IN FIRST GAME TONIGHT

Team Wants to Revenge Defeat At Hands of Michaelmen in in Earlier Game

At six fifteen tonight, the Kitten basketball team will attempt to revenge a previous defeat at the hands of the St Michael's Junior Varsity quintet. Both teams are of fast enough calibre to make tonight's contest as exciting as the varsity combat according to spectators who have been watching the grey jerseyed frosh practice. Last Wednesday evening the freshman outfit overwhelmingly outclassed a strong Delta Psi Fraternity team in a practice game.

Tonight's game will be the last game with the freshmen for several of the first string men. Among the missing for the Green Mountain Junior College and Mineville High School trip next weekend are Al "Meriden" Tomassetti, forward; Stod "Le'fty' Marden, guard and Dave Beattie, forward. These three men will be in the starting lineup tonight as the team opposes the Michaelmen. Dick Duncan will jump center for the Kittens and George Shaw will fill in the other guard position. Coach Shelansky will draw from Baker, Munger, Parker and Kennedy for substitutions.

The Junior Varsity team is comprised of several St. Michael's varsity substitutes and has had a fairly successful season. Several of the men saw action against Middlebury the other night when the Winooski Park five took the Panthers into camp. Tonight's contest will conclude the Kitten brief home stance.

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports' Editor

[illegible] marks the closing appearance of the [illegible] basketball team at home. It will be the last chance for the majority of [illegible] to see Captain Beddie, Ed Leddy, Comi, Grant, Jack Morgan, [illegible] Sowka and Ed Saba in action on the U. V. M. court.

According to the schedule the up and coming Norwich five led by Capt. Joe Leddy will provide the stern opposition [illegible] Coach Ash will be the veteran Bob Washburn, while a bunch of new stars such as Red Karr, Dennis Drago and Doc Comi will form an able supporting cast.

The Cadet five is the big surprise of the season. At the season's start they were almost unanimously picked to land in the cellar. But apparently the dopesters forgot to tell the Horsemen about this so the latter went out and slapped down Vermont and St. Mike's.

Sort looks like a reasonably hot battle. But your correspondent takes the liberty of predicting a win for the Cats by a fairly close margin.

The prelim appears to be another classic with the Kittens tackling the St Mike's jayvees. It will be a grudge night, the Kittens having sworn to get revenge.

It will be your last chance to see the frosh in their present all-star form. For our statement in the last issue to the effect that these Kittens were more scholastically proficient than the average run of frosh athletes is incorrect. In fact, the reverse is true.

Noting the steely glint of determination in the Kittens' eyes, we pick them to take over their Winooski Park rivals.

By the way, the prelim game starts at 6.15 which is an ungodly hour as was proven last Friday. The time should be changed as a convenience both to the players and spectators.

This man Leddy, in his position as sports columnist of the esteemed Norwich Cadet has seen fit to quote a few of our remarks. Thanks, Joe; we didn't realize that our pearls of wisdom were appreciated in such a remote spot as Northfield.

In his column Leddy says, "They (Vermont) will need more than an A-1 coach next fall." Maybe so, Joe, but Vermont will need only a C-3 team to administer the traditional drubbing to the Cadets.

A solution has been found for Vermont's coaching dilemma. One who is in a position to know informs us that a man from the south wants to coach, guaranteeing seven wins in his first season. Not only that, but he will bring his own team with him. Unfortunately our inside man has forgotten the name of this miracle man. Otherwise, he swears to the truth of the story.

Latest hot tip concerning the coaching situation brought to us just as we go to press: Tuss McLaughry, Brown's famed coach, was interviewed yesterday by a member of our athletic council.

Help hint to younger women: Do not forget to be extremely suave and quite sophisticated at all times, even if you want to gush as you did at home. This is college; if you behave naturally, down to the basement you go, you Boop!

MCGILL EDGES VERMONT 20-19 IN AN OVERTIME CONTEST AT MONTREAL

Layden and Brown With Four Points Each Are High Men for the Cats

Playing in overtime contest and opposing the savage attack of a greatly improved McGill University basketball team, the Catamount quintet lost a heartbreaker last Wednesday evening by a 20-19 score. The game was closely fought throughout and until the final gun the result was in doubt. Tieing for the score 12-12 in the last few minutes, Morgan, Palmer and Layden each scored a floor basket to even up the count.

Layden's basket came with five seconds to play, but went to naught when the Redmen scored a basket on a foul shot in the overtime period. During the first half both teams played an exceedingly careful and rather slow game. At half time the score was five all. During the game Layden and Palmer were the outstanding players for the Vermont delegation, while Hemie Levin, playing his nth year of basketball rang up seven points for the Canadians.

Still later he was appointed to the British Legation at Teheran, Persia. As an author he has published a long list of biographies and volumes relating to Eastern [illegible]. Just before the war he was [illegible] Persian Gulf. He has written several books and numerous articles on Persia. His work is [illegible] and authoritative. His many articles and personal experiences have given him a notable success as a lecturer.

The lectures selected by the Committee on Lectures for this year cover the whole field from the Persian Gulf, a broad sweep to the Caspian Sea, the Russian culture around which the centuries of political movements has long been shifting to some of the rival claims and claims of the British Lion and Russian Bear. Persia has been a stamping ground for "The Bear which walks as Man" as well as for the world-wandering British Lion.

CAMPUS AWAITS START OF INTENSIVE CAMPAIGN FOR KARNIVAL KING SAT.

Mass Meeting at 10 A.M. to Mark Beginning of Hectic Struggle for Victory

With the campus a seething mass of excitement and speculation concerning the relative merits of the candidates in the race for the position of Karnival King there is every reason to believe that there will be an enormous turnout at the Mass Meeting tomorrow morning. At this time the three candidates and their campaign managers will officially open their short but intensive campaigns.

J. Luther Beckley, speaking in behalf of his candidate, George Patterson of the Nudist Party, will make announcement of his plans which will include a series of stump speeches at the fraternity and sorority houses and dormitories. Patterson declares that his party will have startling revelations for those present.

The Communist Petting Party swings into action with the return of its candidate, Joan Colburn. His manager states: "We have no message for the press and will maintain a discreet silence until Saturday. But then be prepared for the most unique campaign of the century."

The Dark Horses have suffered a severe loss in the withdrawal of their candidate, Jim Gillespie '37. Rumor has it that Manager Tommie Cogswell '34 has several successors under consideration, the most promising at present being none other than Peaky Flynn '35. However, Cogswell also declares that his plans will not be disclosed until Saturday.

VERMONT DEBATERS WIN DECISIONS OVER HOBART AND BOSTON UNIVERSITY

Victory Is Fourth Straight Win For Vermont Team—Season Prospects Bright

Vermont's debating team won its fourth straight victory last night when it wrested a decision from Boston University. This made the third unanimous judgment handed dwon to the debaters in their schedule so far this season. Last night's debate was on the subject, "Resolved: That the economic dictatorial powers granted to the President under the N.R.A. should be adopted as a permanent policy of the United States". Vermont supported the negative, with D. W. Jenks '34 as first speaker and R. E. McCuin '34 as second debater. This is the same team which, the previous evening took a similar verdict from Hobart College of Geneva, N. Y. on a different subject. Debating for Boston University were Joseph Connor, introductory speaker, and Herbert Stevens. William Pitt, the manager of the team also made the trip. Reverend R. A. Hall of Charlotte and of the University English department was the chairman of this debate which was given before the Charlotte Grange.

Thursday evening the U. V. M. debate team unanimously defeated Hobart College of Geneva, New York. The University team made up of Frank Hale and Realtus McCuin, with David Jenks speaking for Hale in the rebuttal, upheld the negative side of the question: "Resolved: That the United States should build her navy to treaty strength." The debate took place in the parish house of the First Church.

The visiting debaters were Mathew W. Gaffney and Arthur W. O'Brien. R. Raymond Stimets, Leon D. Latham, Jr., and Mrs. Clarence L. Smith acted as judges.

Prospects for this year's southern trip are most promising by reason of their splendid record of six wins and one defeat. The next debate on the season's heavy schedule will be a radio debate to be held next Friday evening over station WCAX. At that time, the University forensicists will meet the Boston College debaters on the same question. Vermont will again attempt to uphold the negative of the presidential powers question.

ASPIRANTS TO THRONE OF KARNIVAL KING GIVE PLATFORMS OVER RADIO

City Listens in, Thousands Wildly Cheer As Contestants Campaign Over WCAX

With Bones Burrows as chairman, the candidates for Kake Walk King presented the main planks of their platforms to the audience of WCAX on last week's University broadcast. The Communist Petting Party's campaign manager, F. P. Colburn, introduced the party slogan, "A full breadbasket", then Mr. F. Towsley Hubbard, CPP assistant to the treasurer. Mr. Hubbard's speech was beautifully embellished with nobility of purpose, pathos, and soft soap—truly touching. Aspirant to the throne of the Vodka Party, George Patterson III introduced Lowell, his manager being engaged in charge the Norwich quartet up to the game and his party's slogan and platform. "Bear with us" and have the satisfaction of helping those who would aid the cause of six pants sheets in summer and Grimsby," included roughly the salient features of his plea and the train of thought he followed. KITTENS MAKE IT THREE STRAIGHT, DEFEATING ST. MIKES J. V.'S 33-21

Yearling Outfit Plays Most Impressive Brand of Basketball to Be Seen This Year

Vermont basketball fans were treated to one of the prettiest exhibits of floorwork and teamwork, to be witnessed this season when they saw the Kittens drub the St. Michael's Junior Varsity five in the second game between the two teams this year. The first contest which resulted in a victory for the Winooski Park mens was fully avenged when the battering ram combination of Tomassetti Beattie, Duncan, Woodin and Shaw rang up point after point to gain a 33-21 decision over their hard and fast rivals last night.

Because the game was scheduled for 6.15 the crowd was rather meagre, but made up in enthusiasm what they lacked in numbers. Like the previous game played on the St. Michael's surface, the contest was closely fought throughout and the play was fast and hard.

Tomassetti scored the first points of the game making two field goals. The game, speeded up, was marked by a full and close checking on both sides for about five minutes. Tracy, forward on the Purple and Gold team, dribbled in twice to score, and started the parade of points. Beattie dropped a shot and Tomassetti capitalized on two foul throws. Then Duncan and Shaw added two field goals to put the '37 men well out in front. The lavvers picked up a few more points in the brief remainder of the half to make the score 16-11 in favor of the Kittens.

Remembering their jolt in the second half of the game at St. Michael's, the yearling put on a determined drive in order to keep their score out of danger. During the half they took no chances but worked their plays to perfection. Shaw leading the scoring for the half made a basket on the first tapoff, and quickly added another two points in less than a minute of play. Tomassetti made two baskets to put the Kittens far in the lead.

... to steal basketball, the game became one of unusual floor play. No one man stood out in any way for the Kittens, all playing stellar games. Passing and cutting throughout the entire half, the Kittens found themselves clearly the superior team and at no time was their lead seriously threatened.

FIFTY-ONE NAMES ADDED TO SORORITY ROSTERS

Pledging Ceremonies Held For New Members Last Night—Terminates Hectic 1934 Rushing Season

Last night marked the close of the sorority rushing period for the 1934 season during which seven sororities announced the pledging of fifty-one new members. Pledging ceremonies were held last evening and sorority groups attended the Norwich basketball game en masse. Of the newly pledged girls, thirty-nine of them were freshmen, eleven were sophomores and one was a junior. Latest reports indicate that over sixty-two per cent of the eligible freshmen were pledged to some sorority.

Alpha Chi Omega led the sororities in number of new members with a total of twelve pledged; Pi Beta Phi and Kappa Alpha Theta both pledged nine new members, while Delta Delta Delta was third with seven pledges, followed by Kappa Delta with six, Alpha Xi Delta with two and Sigma Gamma with three. Pledge banquets were held by all the sororities for their new members last night.

Of the number pledged thirty-nine are from Vermont, including eleven from Burlington alone, six are from Massachusetts, three from Connecticut, and one each from Rhode Island, New Jersey and New York. Comparison with ... figures show that there were more women eligible last season, and also more pledged. This year's rushing figures seem to prove that the sororities with the chapter houses have an advantage over those who have not.

At the time the CYNIC went to press there were several undecided women. Any new pledging will be announced in next Tuesday's issue. Ada Ingalls '34, president of Pan-Hellenic and other members of the inter-sorority council aided by the respective members of the various sororities join in the feeling that this year's rushing season was a successful one.

LEONARD GIVES RECITAL OF PIANO IMPROVISATIONS

Audience Expresses Enthusiasm for This Entirely New Idea

An entirely new departure in concerts took place at the Klubs Club, Wednesday night, February 14, at 8:30 p.m. Prof. Clair Leonard of the Department of Romance Languages at the University presented a recital of improvisations for the pianoforte on several themes in different moods. At the beginning of the concert Professor Leonard stated that the music which the audience was about to hear had never before been played, and probably would not be played again since it consisted entirely of improvisations of his own. Such a concert has never been attempted here before except once last winter, when Mr. Leonard gave a very ... program of improvisations. Opinions expressed be certain of the audience were very favorable and all expressed themselves as very much interested in Mr. Leonard's music.

INDEPENDENTS LOSE TO KAPPA SIGMA TEAM 33-30 IN CLOSE GAME

Winning Margin Is in Foul Shooting, Each Get Fourteen Baskets

In a hotly contested played last evening in the gym the Kappa Sigma basketball team managed to get around with the toughest obstacle that came in their way to the finals when they nosed out the Independents by a score of 33-30. The Kappa Sigs were decidedly weakened by the absence of Captain Eccleston who in the short space of time that has elapsed since his injury during the S. A. E. game, has been unable to get all the parts of his elongated body back together again. However, the Kappa Sigs made up of such stuff as the Delfausse brothers, Cassidy and freshman Crandall, looked like the better team for at least three-quarters of the game.

For the winners Piette easily starred while Sheehe and Negus played good ball. For the Independents the entire team played well as did Cassidy and Crandall.

—the abc of pipe tobacco

The best tobacco for pipes comes from Kentucky . . and it's called "White Burley"

WE use White Burley in making Granger Rough Cut. It comes from the Blue Grass region of Kentucky—ripe, mild leaf tobacco that just about tops them all for fragrance and flavor.

From the right place on the stalk we select the kind that's best for pipes. Then we make it into Granger by Wellman's Method and cut it up into big shaggy flakes.

Seven Women's Events Are In The Program For Winter Carnival

Each Class Will Have Team of Six or Eight Women; Physical Ed Instructors Are Judges

CHAIRMAN, MOUNT '35, PREDICTS GRAND TIME

The women will enter in seven events of the Winter Carnival which is being held this week-end in connection with the annual celebration of Kake Walk. These in skiing, snowshoeing, human ski-joring, ski obstacle racing and ski and snowshoe cross-country races will be the main features of the day.

Each class will have a team of from six to eight women. Captains will be chosen at the beginning of the meet. The judges are to be Miss Cummings, Miss Blanchard and Frederica Frey of the women's physical education department.

Four members from each class team will be chosen to compete in each of the first two events, skii relay and snowshoe relay. The human ski-joring race, the ski obstacle race, and the ski and snowshoe cross-country races will follow in the order named. The final event is the snowshoe obstacle race. The winning team will be announced and the awards made by Marguerite Millet '35, co-chairman of the Winter Carnival.

Women in charge of the various class teams are as follows: Seniors, Ruth Reynolds, juniors, Betty Rich; sophomores, Vivian Donaldson; freshmen, Virginia Riley. Ruth Lattimer '36 is in charge of the tags which will be sold for the benefit of the Winter Sports Club.

In the afternoon in conjunction with the men's skating races, two women's skating races will be conducted. All women who wish to do so may represent their class, provided they see Helen Mount '35, chairman of the women's sports of the carnival, before Wednesday, February 21.

"We predict a grand time and urge all women to compete to help their class win points towards the all-sports cup as well as to gain W. A. A. points," says Miss Mount.

MUSEUM IS PRESENTED CARNEGIE COLLECTION

The opening of the exhibit of the Carnegie art collection, postponed from last week, was held Friday, February 16, at 8:00 p.m. in the art gallery of the Fleming Museum.

A lecture entitled "The Artist Sees Differently," written by Duncan Phillips of the Phillips Memorial Gallery of Washington, D. C., was given by Mrs. Grace B. Shaw. The lecture was very informative and fittingly illustrated with slides.

The set of the 2,000 prints was obtained by Prof. H. F. Perkins as a gift to the Fleming Museum from the Carnegie Art Institute. Architecture, sculpture and painting constitute the collection. Supplementary to this is the gift of 200 books dealing in all phases of art. These books will be of great aid to art students, and for the present time the books will remain in the art gallery.

Valuable knowledge of architecture may be gained by studying the large, fine photographs of various arches and colonnades. A beautiful example of Engish style is shown by the picture of the interior of King's College Chapel in Cambridge, England. An interesting example of ancient architecture is depicted by the ruins of the Temple of Olympus in Greece. Italian, Spanish, Gothic and Roman are other types of architecture portrayed.

The set of colorful paintings attracts much attention. Reproductions of the old masters, and new, are realistically done. Every picture from the Egyptian and Roman periods of B.C. to the American period of the present is fascinating. A few copies by the famous artists are the Italian De Vinci's "Mona Lisa," the Flemish Ruben's "Garland of Flowers," the Dutch Rembrant's "The Mill," and the English Gainsborough's "The Blue Boy." American, Chinese and French artists are also represented. Included in this collection are numerous beautiful facsimiles of etchings.

Miniature models of sculpture from Italy, Germany, France, England, America, Assyria, Byzantine, Greece and Spain are effectively photographed.

The Babylonian, Egyptian, Ægean and Assyrian sculpture of the time B.C. is of notable interest.

NRA TO BE SUBJECT OF DEBATE OVER WCAX

Friday evening, February 23, the debaters will meet the Boston College team here, using the question: "Resolved, That the economic dictatorial powers granted to the President under the NRA should be adopted as a permanent policy of the United States." D. W. Jenk and R. E. McCuin will uphold the negative side of the question for Vermont. The debate will be broadcasted over the Burlington radio station WCAX at 7.45 o'clock.

This debate will be the fifth of a series which have taken place in the last two weeks. Vermont has won four consecutive meets, three unanimously. The team has been very successful this season, and everything points toward a winning trip south this spring. U. V. M. will debate fourteen colleges and universities on the trip which will take them as far south as the University of Miami.

WINTER SPORTS CLUB PROMISES A VIGOROUS AND UNIQUE CARNIVAL

Men's Events Run by Ricker; Mount in Charge of Women's

The Winter Sports Club, in charge of the Winter Carnival in connection with Kake Walk, is planning an extensive and vigorous program for Saturday morning from 9.30 to 11.30 and afternoon from 1.45 to 3.30.

In the morning there will be a competition between the various classes, each class being represented by a chosen group of its members. G. O. Ricker '34, president of the Winter Sports Club, is in charge of all men's events, while Twink Mount '35, vice-president of the club, will direct the women's events. The team captains are as follows: Freshmen, H. Sabin; sophomores, D. Suitor; juniors, G. Starbuck; and seniors, A. Cass.

The morning events to be held on the front campus are as follows:

9.30. Ski dash, 220 yards, men.
9.40. Ski dash, 100 yards, women.
9.50. Snowshoe run, 220 yards, men.
10.00. Snowshoe run, 100 yards, women.
10.10. Ski obstacle race, men.
10.20. Ski obstacle race, women.
10.30. Snowshoe relay, men.
10.45. Snowshoe relay, women.
11.00. Ski relay, men.
11.15. Ski relay, women.

This snow battle, under the supervision of the King of Kake Walk, is something new and unique on the campus. Ten men will be chosen from each class and placed behind ready-built snow forts on the back campus. On each fort there will be a flag and the object of the tussle is to be the first to knock the opponents' flag off. This decides the winner. Only soft snowballs are to be used—no ice or hard snow to be allowed. The "ammunition" for the fight will be made before the fight, so that the attention of each man will be focused directly on the job at hand. The fights are to last three minutes each and if the flags are still up, the judges will pick the winner, judging by closeness and by "casualties." The judges will be chosen by Bunny Prentice. The seniors will battle with the freshmen first and the winner of that fight will challenge the winner of the sophomore-junior battle to a duel. The winner of that will be the winning class. The teams for the fights are being made up now; there is great rivalry being shown among the students.

The big affairs of the carnival are the skating activities of the afternoon to be held from 1.45 to 3.30 at Chiott's rink at the foot of King Street. This is the intercollegiate ice carnival given under the direction of the Winter Sports Club with Norwich, Middlebury, St. Michael's and Vermont participating. Six men are to be entered by each college. The winning team will be presented a cup donated by the University Book Store. First, second and third place winners will receive prizes donated by various local merchants. McCrea, Ricker and Concannon and three others who will probably be decided upon by time trial will uphold the honor for Vermont.

The events of the afternoon are as follows:

1:45. Skate dash, 440 yards, men.
2.00. Skate dash, 220 yards, women.
2.15. Skate, 2 miles, men.
2.30. Skate, 880 yards, women.
2.45. Skate, 880 yards, men.
3.30. Skate, 1 mile, men.

After these events there will be a hockey game at 3.45 between the Vermont Hockey Club and St. Michael's College. The admission to Chiott's is fifteen cents.

BRADLEY-BIRT TALKS ON PERSIA FOR LAST UNIVERSITY LECTURE

British Diplomat Speaks on "Through Persia From the Gulf to the Caspian"

The Hon. F. Bradley-Birt, who has been secured for the sixth and final lecture in the University series, appears at the Fleming Museum tonight at eight o'clock. His address—"Through Persia from the Gulf to the Caspian"—will be illustrated with lantern slides.

In student days at Brasenose College, Oxford, Bradley-Birt took honors in history. There followed a long career in the Far East, spent partly in official positions, diplomatic services, and partly in extensive travel. Although the interest of the Western World in Persia has largely reflected the tensions and trends of the political field, Persia having long been a land coveted by both Russia and Great Britain, the life and the culture of the Iranians, and the people themselves are of great interest. The people display all grades and conditions of civilization from rude primitive nomadic tribes, living a migratory and pastoral life, to the highly civilized and intellectual classes, which in the past have produced gifted artists and architects, as well as such notable poets as Firdansi, Omar Khayyam, and Hafiz. Here also is the native home of Zoroastrianism, one of the great ethical and monotheistic religions, although Persia has long submitted in religion to the teachings of Islam.

The Persian is a human type of great intrinsic interest, to the making of whom various races have contributed. Although geographically difficult of access, Persia has been frequently invaded, notably by Alexander the Great and later by Mohammedan hosts. She has also been an intermediary in the silk trade between China and the West. Thus the blood of ancient Iran has mingled with Arab and other strains. Perhaps this blending of races and cultures has made the Persian "a specially gifted member of the human race," as Sir Dennison Ross considers him. Intellectually alert and quick, his mental tendencies lead him to prefer speculative thinking and artistic expression rather than the more prosaic and practical activities implied by technology and material progress. Persia is only recently beginning to build roads and to

WOMEN MARKSMEN SCORE 500 IN FIRST MATCHES

The women's rifle team began its 1934 season with a perfect 500 in matches against the University of Hawaii and the University of Montana.

The five girls shooting perfect 100's were: Christine M. Brown '37, Carolyn M. Cabot '36, Helen A. Miller '35, Marion P. Parker '35, and Esther L. Sinclair '36. Shooting was on regulation National Rifle Association targets from prone position.

Against Montana the other five girls shooting were: Janet H. Dodds '34, Carolyn F. Hill '36, and Katherine M. LeBaron '36, who shot 99's; Genevieve V. Hutchins '35, 98; and Mildred P. Vosburgh '34, 97. Misses Hill and Hutchins also shot in the Hawaii match as did Wilma J. Nelson '36, 99; Daisy M. Putnam '34, 97; and Roberta C. Thompson '36, 96.

CAST NOT LIMITED BY FRATERNITY BONDS

One of the most brilliant, ridiculously funny, racey and yet varied programs ever attempted by a Vermont student aggregation is the hint coming from authoritative sources regarding the Kake Walk entertainment which is to supplant the fraternity stunts of former years. The present Kake Walk King Kampaign is but a weak taste of what those men will be when at their best on Kake Walk night.

Where in the past each stunt producer was cramped by fraternity limitations in his choice of performers, the present eager committee under the direction of that weird genius, Fran Colburn '34, has the unbounded power to select from the very cream of student talent. The result will be stupendous. The acts, moreover, are skillfully formed to bring out the very best tricks of every player. There will be lightning action from start to finish. The committee defies anyone to catch all the subtle remarks and swift repartee that will fly back and forth like bullets in a machine-gun battle. Yet each discharge will be a whole act in itself. The stage will be flashing with rapid brilliant color changes and arrangements like the glass of a kaleidoscope.

Every student in the University who has been found with any specially good act has been cleverly slipped into the performance to scintillate for a quick second and then make room for the next. Through it all runs the master comedy of the greater artists. In these heterogenous flashes are found bits of true quality, of slap-stick comedy, of genuine art, local interest, striking color, but above all is the real collegiate humor and farce.

The thing will be modern. The jokes, the costumes, and the scenes will be quite up to the student taste of today.

Among the cast of this gigantic all star performance are such names as Robert Burns, William Brislin, Janet Wooley, Francis Colburn, Thatcher Hubbard, Rosemund Cahill and a score of others.

These startling revelations are all that the reporter could inveigle from the tight-mouthed committee. With twinkling eyes they bid us "Wait and see." The long, tedious preparations for this night have been carefully concealed beneath a dark cloak of mystery. Surprise features will keep the audience guessing at every turn.

The committee admitted, at last, that there will be women Kake Walkers.

OVER 200 ATTEND CONFERENCE AT NORTHFIELD

Over 200 college men and women attended last week-end's Northfield Conference at Northfield, Mass., to discuss individual or personal requirements for effective action on the post-college stage. This was the tenth and largest mid-winter conference that Northfield has ever seen.

Six Vermont students, three men and three women, represented the University there. Later announcement will be made concerning a meeting for those interested in hearing from this Vermont delegation what the essential points made by the various speakers were, and the important ideas brought out in the various discussions and fora. The next issue of the Cynic will contain a digest of the principal speeches, in particular a résumé of the talk by Sherwood Eddy on Russo-American problems and situations in comparison, with the final judgment in favor of Russia.

All the universities of New England were represented, save for Middlebury, Norwich, Maine and Colby.

KAKE WALK ISSUE TO BE PUBLISHED FRIDAY

The annual Kake Walk issue of the Vermont Cynic will be published next Friday. It will be the last issue under the supervision of the present staff. Its columns will be devoted as much as possible to stimulating as much interest as possible in the Kake Walk and the winter carnival, both to take place over the week-end.

a b c of pipe tobacco

The best tobacco for pipes comes from Kentucky . . and it's called "White Burley"

WE use White Burley in making Granger Rough Cut. It comes from the Blue Grass region of Kentucky—ripe, mild leaf tobacco that just about tops them all for fragrance and flavor.

From the right place on the stalk we select the kind that's best for pipes. Then we make it into Granger by Wellman's Method and cut it up into big shaggy flakes.

"Cut rough to smoke cool" is the way pipe smokers describe Granger—try it

NRA TO BE SUBJECT OF DEBATE OVER WCAX

Friday evening, February 23, the debaters will meet the Boston College team here, using the question: "Resolved, That the economic dictatorial powers granted to the President under the NRA should be adopted as a permanent policy of the United States." D. W. Jenks and R. E. McCuin will uphold the negative side of the question for Vermont. The debate will be broadcasted over the Burlington radio station WCAX at 7.45 o'clock.

This debate will be the fifth of a series which have taken place in the last two weeks. Vermont has won four consecutive meets, three unanimously. The team has been very successful this season, and everything points toward a winning trip south this spring. U. V. M. will debate fourteen colleges and universities on the trip which will take them as far south as the University of Miami.

Men's Events Run by Ricker; Mount in Charge of Women's

The Winter Sports Club, in charge of the Winter Carnival in connection with Kake Walk, is planning an extensive and vigorous program for Saturday morning from 9.30 to 11.30 and afternoon from 1.45 to 3.30.

In the morning there will be a competition between the various classes, each class being represented by a chosen group of its members. G. O. Ricker '34, president of the Winter Sports Club, is in charge of all men's events, while Twink Mount '35, vice-president of the club, will direct the women's events. The team captains are as follows: Freshmen, H. Sabin; sophomores, D. Suitor; juniors, G. Starbuck; and seniors, A. Cass.

The morning events to be held on the front campus are as follows:

9.30. Ski dash, 220 yards, men.
9.40. Ski dash, 100 yards, women.
9.50. Snowshoe run, 220 yards, men.
10.00. Snowshoe run, 100 yards, women.
10.10. Ski obstacle race, men.
10.20. Ski obstacle race, women.
10.30. Snowshoe relay, men.
10.45. Snowshoe relay, women.
11.00. Ski relay, men.
11.15. Ski relay, women.

This snow battle, under the supervision of the King of Kake Walk, is something new and unique on the campus. Ten men will be chosen from each class and placed behind ready-built snow forts on the back campus. On each fort there will be a flag and the object of the tussle is to be the first to knock the opponents' flag off. This decides the winner. Only soft snowballs are to be used—no ice or hard snow to be allowed. The "ammunition" for the fight will be made before the fight, so that the attention of each man will be focused directly on the job at hand. The fights are to last three minutes each and if the flags are still up, the judges will pick the winner, judging by closeness and by "casualties." The judges will be chosen by Bunny Prentice. The seniors will battle with the freshmen first and the winner of that fight will challenge the winner of the sophomore-junior battle to a duel. The winner of that will be the winning class. The teams for the fights are being made up now; there is great rivalry being shown among the students.

The big affairs of the carnival are the skating activities of the afternoon to be held from 1.45 to 3.30 at Chiott's rink at the foot of King Street. This is the intercollegiate ice carnival given under the direction of the Winter Sports Club with Norwich, Middlebury, St. Michael's and Vermont participating. Six men are to be entered by each college. The winning team will be presented a cup donated by the University Book Store. First, second and third place winners will receive prizes donated by various local merchants. McCrea, Ricker and Concannon and three others who will probably be decided upon by time trial will uphold the honor for Vermont.

The events of the afternoon are as follows:

1.45. Skate dash, 440 yards, men.
2.00. Skate dash, 220 yards, women.
2.15. Skate, 2 miles, men.
2.30. Skate, 880 yards, women.
2.45. Skate, 880 yards, men.
3.30. Skate, 1 mile, men.

After these events there will be a hockey game at 3.45 between the Vermont Hockey Club and St. Michael's College. The admission to Chiott's is fifteen cents.

BRADLEY-BIRT TALKS ON PERSIA FOR LAST UNIVERSITY LECTURE

British Diplomat Speaks on "Through Persia From the Gulf to the Caspian"

The Hon. F. Bradley-Birt, who has been secured for the sixth and final lecture in the University series, appears at the Fleming Museum tonight at eight o'clock. His address—"Through Persia from the Gulf to the Caspian"—will be illustrated with lantern slides.

In student days at Brasenose College, Oxford, Bradley-Birt took honors in history. There followed a long career in the Far East, spent partly in official positions, diplomatic services, and partly in extensive travel. Although the interest of the Western World in Persia has largely reflected the tensions and trends of the political field, Persia having long been a land coveted by both Russia and Great Britain, the life and the culture of the Iranians, and the people themselves are of great interest. The people display all grades and conditions of civilization from rude primitive nomadic tribes living a migratory and pastoral life, to the highly civilized and intellectual classes, which in the past have produced gifted artists and architects, as well as such notable poets as Firdansi, Omar Khayyam, and Hafiz. Here also is the native home of Zoroastrianism, one of the great ethical and monotheistic religions, although Persia has long submitted to religion to the teachings of Islam.

The Persian is a human type of great intrinsic interest, to the making of whom various races have contributed. Although geographically difficult of access, Persia has been frequently invaded, notably by Alexander the Great and later by Mohammedan hosts. She has also been an intermediary in the silk trade between China and the West. Thus the blood of ancient Iran has mingled with Arab and other strains. Perhaps this blending of races and cultures has made the Persian "a specially gifted member of the human race," as Sir Dennison Ross considers him. Intellectually alert and quick, his mental tendencies lead him to prefer speculative thinking and artistic expression rather than the more prosaic and practical activities implied by technology and material progress. Persia is only recently beginning to build roads and to

The women's rifle team began its 1934 season with a perfect 500 in matches against the University of Hawaii and the University of Montana.

The five girls shooting perfect 100's were: Christine M. Brown '37, Carolyn M. Cabot '36, Helen A. Miller '35, Marion P. Parker '35, and Esther I. Sinclair '36. Shooting was on regulation National Rifle Association targets from prone position.

Against Montana the other five girls shooting were: Janet H. Dodds '34, Caroline E. Hill '36, and Katherine M. LeBaron '36, who shot 99's; Genevieve V. Hutchins '35, 98; and Mildred P. Vosburgh '34, 97. Misses Hill and Hutchins were shot in the Hawaii match as did Wilma J. Nelson '36, 99; Daisy M. Putnam '34, 97; and Roberta C. Thompson '36, 96.

CAST NOT LIMITED BY FRATERNITY BONDS

One of the most brilliant collegiate [illegible] and yet carried programs ever attempted by a Vermont student aggregation is the hunt coming from authoritative sources regarding the Kake Walk entertainment which is to supplant the fraternity stunts of former years. The present Kake Walk King Kampaign is but a weak taste of what those men will be when at their best on Kake Walk night.

Where in the past each stunt producer was cramped by fraternity limitations in his choice of performers, the present eager committee under the direction of that weird genius, Fran Colburn '34, has the unbounded power to select from the very cream of student talent. The result will be stupendous. The acts moreover, are skillfully formed to bring out the very best tricks of every player. There will be lightning action from start to finish. The committee delays pause to catch all the subtle remarks and sweet repartee that will fly back and forth like bullets in a machine gun battle. Yet each discharge will be a whole act in itself.

The stage will be flashing with rapid brilliant color changes and arrangement like the [illegible] of a kaleidoscope.

Every student in the University who has been [illegible] with any especially good act has been cleverly slipped into the performance to contribute for a quick second and then make room for the next. Through it all runs the master mind of the greater artist. In these heterogeneous flashes are found bits of true quality, of slapstick comedy of genuine art, local interest, striking color but above all is the real collegiate humor and farce.

The thing will be modern. The jokes, the costumes and the scene will be up to up to the student taste of today.

Among the cast of the capacity all star performers are such names as Robert Burns, William Brislin, Janet Wesley, Francis Colburn, Thatcher Hubbard, Rosemund Cahill and a score of others.

These starting revelations are all that the reporter could inveigle from the tight-mouthed committee. With twinkling eyes they had to "Wait and see." The long, tedious preparations for the night have been carefully concealed beneath a dark cloak of mystery. Surprise features will keep the audience guessing at every turn.

"Where Vermont Men Meet"

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports' Editor

It is with pardonable pride that we remind our public of the fact that we picked two winners at once, and we extend our thanks to the varsity and freshman teams for saving us from the merciless jeers of the wise boys.

Unfortunately the varsity game Friday was not one of the memorable clashes that will ring down in history. The ball handling was sloppy, the passing inaccurate at times, and the shooting off.

The Cadets, while far above their standard of the last two years, nevertheless did not exhibit a particularly outstanding brand of ball. Capt. Joe Leddy was easily the Cadet ace and at times Bob Washburn and Red Kan looked impressive

The Vermont features were provided by Eddie Saba, who indulged in some more of his long-distance shooting, and Whitey Palmer, whose floor work was outstanding.

Incidentally, Whitey was the recipient of a tough break late in the game when he made a perfect stop of an attempted Norwich shot, only to have the referee call a foul on him. Palmer didn't even touch the man. The ref certainly missed one that time.

Our kittens exhibited the best team work of the evening while in the process of handing out a methodical and systematic pasting to the St. Mike's Jayvees.

No one man stood out for the frosh unless it was Al Tomassetti, who stood out at one time by being the sixth man on the floor.

'Tis sad to think that the kittens will be minus three first-stringers from now on. Just how the frosh quintet will make out henceforth will be interesting to the observers.

Tonight will see the varsity journeying over to Winooski Park where they will do battle with the clean-cut lads of St. Mike's.

It looks like a close tussle from here. St. Mike's, smarting from recent defeats, should be even more irritable tonight than ever.

We will make no prediction for this contest, knowing when to shut up. To attempt to dope the outcome of a game with St Mike's would be foolhardy

Regarding the interfraternity league, we feel obliged to say that the Kappa Sigs, ATO's, and Sigma Nu's look like the class of the league. The finals should be between Kappa Sig and either one of the other two.

The idea that the ATO's are invincible in all lines of sport has been dis-

VERMONT TIED FOR 4TH IN ST. MIKE'S CARNIVAL

The Dartmouth Indians were the winners of the St Michael's winter sports meet held Saturday at Winooski Park. The day was ideal for such an affair and a good-sized crowd turned out to watch the events. The lads from Hanover scored 18 points in winning and were closely followed by the Norwich cadets, who tallied 14. Middlebury was third with 11, while Vermont and St. Michael's finished in a tie for the cellar with one point apiece. Ricker scored U. V. M.'s one point with a third in the two mile cross-country snowshoe race. Suitor of Vermont was just nosed out of third place by Meacham of Middlebury in the two-mile cross-country ski race. The summary of events

Two-mile cross country ski race:

White (Dartmouth), second
Meacham (Middlebury) third
Time—11 minutes.

Two-mile cross-country snowshoe race:

REV. JONES OF FIRST CHURCH WILL SPEAK

The Rev. Mr. C. Stanley Jones of the First Congregational Church will conduct chapel services tomorrow. Mr. Jones is well known to many of the students as he has been intensely interested in young people and has done much to increase the college church attendance. It is hoped that there will be a goodly number present to hear his talk which is bound to be worth while.

Loading a pipe, son, is like building a fire

"NOW if you want to build a fire you've got to have the right kind of chimney, and you've got to have the right kind of wood, seasoned right and packed right in the fireplace. If you've got all this, it's easy to light up.

"It's pretty near the same way in smoking a pipe. Now if you've got Granger Tobacco—the right kind of pipe tobacco—any old pipe will do.

"And if you put in a pinch at a time and pack it down good and tight—the way to load a pipe—all you need to do is strike a match.

"Granger smokes sweet and cool right down to the bottom of the bowl.

"That's pipe comfort, I tell you."

VOLUME 52 — BURLINGTON, VERMONT, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1934 — NUMBER 36

KAKE WALK MASQUERADE MOST OUTSTANDING OF INNOVATIONS THIS YEAR

The Directors Have Exerted Every Effort to Make It a Colorful Affair

OLD, SHABBY, COSTUMES ORDER OF THE EVENING

The Grand Kake Walk Masquerade promises the most outstanding of the [illegible] appearing in the Kake Walk [illegible] 1934. There has not been a [illegible] to the full for years and it [illegible] was in accordance with the [illegible] administration which had ap[illegible] as to the behavior of revelers [illegible] masks. It is sincerely hoped that the conduct at the ball will warrant [illegible] in the future.

In a desperate effort to make it possible for every student of the University to attend this student function, the directors and committees have done everything possible to reduce the cost of the affair. They have procured an inexpensive, though first rate orchestra; they have not included the cost of refreshments and dances in the small cover charge; they have made crazy combinations and gaudy, colorful, home-made costumes the thing of the evening and, finally, so as to reach every student, they have made it the fashion for co-eds to buy their own tickets and come to the dance stag.

In purpose of urging everyone to buy his own ticket in this "dutch-treat" dance is to permit everyone to contribute his share toward the support of Vermont activities and particularly toward the procuring of a higher-paid football coach. All students are as anxious to help in this as the rest.

The masquerade will not be one of those pseudo formal affairs of the gay nineties. It is to be a crazy, carefree affair in the form of a happy negro plantation dance. It should have all the unrestrained genuine fun and good-fellowship of a drunken party, but with none of its undesirable qualities.

At intermission when, the masks, which must be worn until then, are removed, the winner of the Kake Walk King Kampaign will be announced and the pompous coronation will take place. Then the King-for-two-nights will roll the dice to select by chance his Queen from among all present. She will be presented with a gay Green and Gold Kake Walk cake.

The chaperones of the affair are Prof. and Mrs. L. L. Woodward, Prof. and Mrs. W. H. Behney, and Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Livingston.

The Floor Committee, appointed by Thomas Cogswell '34, chairman of the Masquerade, are G. H. Cook '35, chairman; I. M. Paul '36, G. W. Patterson '34 and W. J. Ryan '34.

The Barbary Coast Orchestra from Dartmouth will furnish the syncopating music for the dancing. This orchestra is [illegible] considered outstanding in [illegible] New England.

NO MASS MEETING FOR TOMORROW MORNING

The committee in charge of mass meetings has announced that there will be no meeting on Saturday morning, of the 24th of February. Because of the preparations for Kake Walk and the events of the Winter Sports Carnival which will take place that morning it was thought advisable to omit the mass meeting. However they will be continued in the future, and excellent programs have been planned for the weeks to come.

DEAN ECKHARD NAMES STUDENTS WHO AVERAGE HIGH GRADES FOR YEAR

Forty-nine Men Placed on Engineering College List—Seniors Highest

Forty nine members of the College of Engineering obtained an average high enough to make the Dean's list according to an announcement from George F. Eckhard, Dean. Thirty-seventh Annual Kake Walk to Start This Evening

KAKE WALK DIRECTORS

EIGHT FRATERNITIES TO PUT ON KAKE WALKERS NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT

Winners of First and Second Places Are Again in Competition

Once again the end of the long training grind of the participants in Kake Walk is in sight. Saturday night will decide which of the various fraternity teams is the most skilful in this business of walkin' fo' de kake, and incidentally, which is the longest winded. To be able to kake-walk successfully is no mean accomplishment, involving as it does an extraordinary amount of breath plus the endurance necessary to keep up such sustained activity and a sense of rhythm.

To the accompaniment of "Cotton Babes" representatives from nine fraternities will compete for the different cakes, garbed in all sorts of bizarre and striking costumes. Each team has managed to keep its costume a dark secret, so those who are curious must come to see for themselves.

The fraternities competing and their representatives are:

Delta Psi—W. L. Jenks '37 and H. R. Swift '37.
Phi Delta Theta—G. M. Sabin '35 and F. T. Churchill '35.
Alpha Tau Omega—C. M. Terrien '36 and T. H. Howard '36.
Kappa Sigma—E. A. Sowka '34 and W. M. Waterman '34.
Sigma Nu—A. H. Ross '37 and W. D. MacDonald '37.
Phi Mu Delta—A. A. Morrissette '35 and R. V. Newcombe '37.
Sigma Delta—B. F. Miller '34 and W. P. Stetson '34.

As was the case last year, all the classes are well represented by having some of their members participating in the walkin'. Some of the frats are putting up the same teams that represented them last year and other teams have only one member that has walked before, whereas a few are represented by men entirely new to the game. At any rate the rivalry is keen and the competition is sure to be an interesting one.

Last year Sigma Phi had the winning team and they have planned to enter the same one in the contest this year. However it is not yet certain whether they will be able to compete or not.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT TO GIVE PROGRAM FOR TEA

The second of the series of Thursday teas to be held this winter will be held Tuesday, March 4. The entertainment will be furnished by the music department. This will be announced at a future date.

ENTERTAINMENT AT KAKE WALK THIS YEAR TO BE OF A DIFFERENT TYPE

Stunts Are Eliminated in Favor of Original Entertainment Under Colburn

The Kake Walk Entertainment for this year will be vastly different from that of the preceding years. The old custom of having each fraternity put on a stunt has been abandoned as has that of the peerade of fraternity floats. In place of these time-worn events, novelties have been introduced, which, the directors hope, will reawaken interest in the Kake Walk, and once again make it the most important event of the Vermont year.

F. R. Colburn '34 is in charge of this entertainment, and he has the whole campus from which to pick his talent. Instead of being limited to the ability found in each fraternity, as was formerly the case, this year the stunts will include the absolute best in each field including the co-eds.

The introduction of co-eds into the Kake Walk program is a decided departure from the conventions of other years, but the committee felt that in view of the women's evident interest in athletics, made clear by their attendance at the smoker last fall and their lusty cheering at football games—they should be given a chance to support the athletic fund to the utmost, by participating in Kake Walk, the proceeds of which will be used to provide a football coach and to insure a better team than ever next season.

This year there will actually be women Kake-walkers, and besides taking part in the actual walkin' fo' de kake, they will be well represented in the specialty acts. The productions will be one whirlwind of snappy action from beginning to end; the scenery is colorful and modern; the lively humor at times approaches farce and at other times is hilariously satirical, and the specialties will be entirely the work of our talented students.

PROGRAM PLANNED FOR FEBRUARY 26

Prof. Clare Leonard, pianist, and Mr. Gabriel Du Pasquier, baritone, will appear in a musical program which is to be presented at the First Church parish house on Monday evening, February 26, at 8:00 o'clock. Both Professor Leonard and Mr. Du Pasquier are well known as Burlington musicians. Following the concert the First Church players will present a one act play, "Overtones," by Alice Gerstenberg, directed by Mrs. George Dedrick. Those taking part in the play are Mrs. Dykhuizen, Elizabeth Myers and R. C. Muldoon '37. This entertainment is sponsored by the Brotherhood of the First Church and is open to the public. The admission charge is 25 cents.

GRAND WEEK-END OF ENTERTAINMENT AND FUN PROVIDED BY DIRECTORS

For the first time in the history of the University of Vermont, students, faculty members, and guests will witness the combined Winter Sports Carnival, Masquerade Ball and Kake Walk. Nineteen hundred and thirty-four is the first time in the annals of the college that an event comparable to the festivities of Junior Week has taken place in mid-winter.

This year the Masquerade Ball, to be held Friday night, will open a week-end filled by exciting, interesting events, with a masked frolic. At this time the final choice in the election of the Karnival King will be announced, and as a climax to this evening of gaiety he will choose a queen to share his throne by rolling dice!

The next morning and throughout the afternoon the various events of the Winter Sports Carnival will be run off—the men's events under the direction of G. O. Ricker '34 and the women's in charge of Janet S. Woolley '36. The Winter Sports Club is sponsoring skiing, snowshoeing and skating contests for both women and men; and to top off a succession of races and relays, they offer a snow battle (the freshmen and the seniors against the sophomores and juniors and also a hockey game between the Vermont Hockey Club and St. Michael's College.

Later in the afternoon the inter-fraternity basketball championship game will be played at the gymnasium. Then several fraternities will give tea dances to while away the hours between the game and the opening of the Kake Walk itself.

This year's novel Kake Walk, modern in every detail yet carrying out the spirit of the original conception of walkin' fo' de kake to the letter, is under the direction of G. H. Burrows '34 and W. W. Brislin '34. The Vermont R. O. T. C. band will open the Kake Walk program with a concert and then to the classic strains of "Cotton Babes" the grand feature of the whole week-end will take place. History Shows Tonight's Fete is Different From Previous Walks

The Kake Walk to be held tonight [illegible] tonight, is radically different from any Kake Walk ever presented by students of Vermont. This year [illegible] staging a Kake Walk [illegible] the first one was [illegible] 1893 and 1894, the first [illegible] held in the old drill hall [illegible] chapel. [illegible] Walk has gone through four [illegible] a private affair which took place in the "drill hall," after that it became a public affair and was held in the armory, this phase was called the Armory days, next the stunts gradually came into being, and finally we have our present elaborate function.

For many years Walkin' fo' de Kake was the chief event of the entertainment. There would be a parade of all participants in the rudest personages and a stunt put on by any group of men who happened to want to do it.

Gradually stunts became the most interesting part of the Walk with the fraternities presenting them. In 1908 Clark C. Bragg '94 offered a cup to the fraternity which should present the best stunt. This competition from year to year is one of the chief factors of the steady development and improvement of Kake Walk as an annual event. The first fraternity to hold the cup was Phi

Every Lucky Strike is made from the finest tobacco and only the center leaves. Not the top leaves—because those are under-developed—not ripe. They would give a harsh smoke. Not the bottom leaves—because those are inferior in quality. They grow close to the ground, and are tough, coarse and always sandy. The center leaves are the mildest leaves, for which farmers are paid higher prices. Only these center leaves are used in making Luckies the fully packed cigarette—so round, so firm—free from loose ends. That's why Luckies draw easily, burn evenly. And remember—"It's toasted"—for throat protection—for finer taste.

The Directors Have Exerted Every Effort to Make It a Colorful Affair

OLD, SHABBY, COSTUMES ORDER OF THE EVENING

The Grand Kake Walk Masquerade on tonight, the most outstanding of the many innovations appearing in the Kake Walk of 1934. There has not been a masquerade on the hill for years and it was decided that this was in accordance with the wish of the administration, which had appeared as to the behavior of revelers hiding behind masks. It is sincerely hoped that the conduct at the ball will warrant reinstatement in the future.

In a desperate effort to make it possible for every student of the University to attend this student function, the directors and committees have done everything possible to reduce the cost of the affair. They have procured an inexpensive, though first-rate orchestra; they have not increased the cost of refreshments and favors in the small cover charge; they have made crazy combinations and oddly colorful, home-made costumes the thing of the evening and, finally, so as to teach every student, they have made it the fashion for co-eds to buy their own tickets and come to the dance stag.

The purpose of urging everyone to buy his own ticket in this "dutch-treat" dance is to permit everyone to contribute his share toward the support of Vermont athletics and particularly toward the procuring of a higher-paid football coach. The women are as anxious to help in this as the men.

The masquerade will not be one of those prim, formal affairs of the gay nineties. It is to be a crazy, carefree affair in the form of a happy negro plantation dance. It should have all the unsophisticated genuine fun and goodfellowship of a drunken party, but with none of its undesirable qualities.

At intermission when, the masks, which must be worn until then, are removed, the winner of the Kake Walk King Kampaign will be announced and the pompous coronation will take place. The King-for-two-nights will roll the dice to select by chance his Queen from among all present. She will be presented with a gay Green and Gold Kake Walk cake.

The chaperones of the affair are Prof. and Mrs. L. L. Woodward, Prof. and Mrs. W. H. Behney, and Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Livingston.

The Floor Committee, appointed by Thomas Cogswell '34, chairman of the Masquerade, are G. H. Cook '35, chairman, L. M. Paul '36, G. W. Patterson '34, and W. J. Ryan '34.

The Barbary Coast Orchestra from Dartmouth will furnish the syncopating music for the dancing. This orchestra has been considered outstanding in many New England.

NO MASS MEETING FOR TOMORROW MORNING

The committee in charge of mass meetings has announced that there will be no meeting on Saturday morning of the 24th of February. Because of the preparations for Kake Walk and the events of the Winter Sports Carnival which will take place that morning it was thought advisable to omit the mass meeting. However they will be continued in the future, and excellent programs have been planned for the weeks to come.

Thirty-seventh Annual Kake Walk to Start This Evening

KAKE WALK DIRECTORS

Winners of First and Second Places Are Again in Competition

Once again the end of the long training grind of the participants in Kake Walk is in sight. Saturday night will decide which of the various fraternity teams is the most skilful in this lusiness of walkin' fo' de kake, and incidentally, which is the longest winded. To be able to kake-walk successfully is no mean accomplishment, involving as it does, an extraordinary amount of breath plus the endurance necessary to keep up such sustained activity and a sense of rhythm.

To the accompaniment of "Cotton Babes" representatives from nine fraternities will compete for the different cakes, garbed in all sorts of bizarre and striking costumes. Each team has managed to keep its costume a dark secret, so those who are curious must come to see for themselves.

The fraternities competing and their representatives are:

Delta Psi—W. L. Jenks '37 and H. R. Swift '37.
Phi Delta Theta—G. M. Sabin '35 and F. T. Churchill '35.
Alpha Tau Omega—C. M. Terrien '36 and T. H. Howard '36.
Kappa Sigma—E. A. Sowka '34 and W. M. Waterman '34.
Sigma Nu—A. H. Ross '37 and W. D. MacDonald '37.
Phi Mu Delta—A. A. Morrissette '35 and R. V. Newcombe '37.
Sigma Delta—B. E. Miller '34 and W. P. Stetson '34.

As was the case last year, all the classes are well represented by having some of their members participating in the walkin'. Some of the frats are putting up the same teams that represented them last year, and other teams have only one member that has walked before whereas a few are represented by men entirely new to the game. At any rate the rivalry is keen and the competition is sure to be an interesting one.

Last year Sigma Phi had the winning team, and they have planned to enter the same one in the contest this year. However, it is not yet certain whether their men will be able to compete or not.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT TO GIVE PROGRAM FOR TEA

The second of the series of University teas to be held this winter will be held Sunday, March 4. The entertainment will be furnished by the music department. This will be announced at a future date.

The Kake Walk Entertainment for this year will be vastly different from that of the preceding years. The old custom of having each fraternity put on a stunt has been abandoned as has that of the peerade of fraternity floats. In place of these time-worn events, novelties have been introduced, which the directors hope will reawaken interest in the Kake Walk, and once again make it the most important event of the Vermont year.

F. R. Colburn '34 is in charge of this entertainment, and he has the whole campus from which to pick his talent. Instead of being limited to the ability found in each fraternity, as was formerly the case, this year the stunts will include the absolute best in each field, including the co-eds.

The introduction of co-eds into the Kake Walk program is a decided departure from the conventions of other years but the committee felt that in view of the women's evident interest in athletics,—made clear by their attendance at the smoker last fall and their lusty cheering at football games—they should be given a chance to support the athletic fund to the utmost, by participating in Kake Walk, the proceeds of which will be used to provide a football coach and to insure a better team than ever next season.

This year there will actually be women Kake-walkers, and besides taking part in the actual walkin' fo' de kake, they will be well represented in the specialty acts. The productions will be one whirlwind of snappy action from beginning to end, the scenery is colorful and modern; the lively humor at times approaches farce and at other times is hilariously satirical, and the specialties will be entirely the work of our talented students.

PROGRAM PLANNED FOR FEBRUARY 26

Prof. Claire Leonard, pianist, and Mr. Glanville Davies, baritone, will appear in a musical program which is to be presented at the First Church parish house on Monday evening, February 26, at 8:00 o'clock. Both Professor Leonard and Mr. Davies are well known to Burlington audiences. Following the concert the First Church players will present a one-act play, "Fourteen", by Alice Gerstenberg, directed by Mrs. George Dykhuizen. Those taking part in the play are Mrs. Dykhuizen, Elizabeth Myers and R. C. Mildram '35. This entertainment is sponsored by the Brotherhood of the First Church and is open to the public. The admission charge is 25 cents.

GRAND WEEK-END OF ENTERTAINMENT AND FUN PROVIDED BY DIRECTORS

For the first time in the history of the University of Vermont students faculty members and guests will witness the combined Winter Sports Carnival, Masquerade Ball, and Kake Walk. Nineteen hundred and thirty-four is the first time in the annals of the college that an event comparable to the festivities of Junior Week has taken place in mid-winter.

This year the Masquerade Ball to be held Friday night, will open a week-end filled by exciting, interesting events, with a masked frolic. At this time the final choice in the election of the Karnival King will be announced, and as a climax to this evening of gaiety he will choose a queen to share his throne by rolling dice!

The next morning and throughout the afternoon the various events of the Winter Sports Carnival will be run off—the men's events under the direction of G. O. Ricker '34 and the women's in charge of Janet S. Woolley '36. The Winter Sports Club is sponsoring skiing, snowshoeing and skating contests for both women and men; and to top off a succession of races and relays, they offer a snow battle (the freshmen and the seniors against the sophomores and juniors and also a hockey game between the Vermont Hockey Club and St. Michael's College.

Later in the afternoon the inter-fraternity basketball championship game will be played at the gymnasium. Then several fraternities will give tea dances to while away the hours between the game and the opening of the Kake Walk itself.

This year's novel Kake Walk, modern in every detail, yet carrying out the spirit of the original conception of walkin' fo' de kake to the letter, is under the direction of G. H. Burrows '34 and W. W. Bristin '34. The Vermont R. O. T. C. band will open the Kake Walk program with a concert and then to the classic strains of "Cotton Babes" the grand feature of the whole week-end will take place. High-steppin', gaily costumed fra-

For many years Walkin' fo' de Kake was the chief event of this entertainment. There would be a parade of all participants in the night's performance, and a stunt put on by any group of men who happened to want to do it.

Gradually stunts became the most interesting part of the Walk with the fraternities presenting them. In 1908 Clark C. Briggs '94 offered a cup to the fraternity which should present the best stunt. This competition from year to year is one of the chief factors of the steady development and improvement of Kake Walk as an annual event. The first fraternity to hold the cup was Phi

CHAPEL SPEAKER LEAVES CHALLENGING QUESTION

"Shall we take a second chance?" Rev. S. Charles Jones of the Burlington First Congregational Church left this question ringing in the ears of the students and members of the faculty at chapel service Wednesday morning.

Using the book of Jonah from the Old Testament as his theme, the Rev. Mr. Jones brought before his listeners the necessity of doing one's duty in small things and great things alike. He stated that when one fails to do his duty, follow his calling, that he fails in terms of character. When Jonah failed to answer God's call to arise and go to Nineveh and cry against its wickedness and instead took a ship to Tarshish, thinking that he would win absolution by paying his fare in his attempt to get away from the voice of God, he not only paid in terms of money, but in terms of character. Mr. Jones said. He paid in honor, the foundation of character, in courage, one of the great dynamics of character; and in conscience, the guide to character." He pointed out that when we are called upon by God we try to get away by "paying our fare," but as Jonah we pay in terms of character that we often fail, again and again. "But," he said, "God did not forget Jonah. He came with another call." This time Jonah answered, went forward with his work and then reaped his reward. In closing Mr. Jones asked, "Shall we take a second chance?"

STINK BOMB

Valerian, once a popular medicine that won the public confidence chiefly because of its bad taste and strong odor, now may be sold in New York only under restrictions as rigid and strict as those applying to the narcotic drugs.

This is not because valerian is a dangerous medicine, but because the offensive odor of the drug has made it a public nuisance. Valerian, once the chief constituent of "female tonics" and remedies for nervous and hysterical disorders, has come to be the chief constituent of "Stink Bombs" which racketeers use to drive customers out of stores in attempts to levy tribute or to coerce the store proprietors.—Science Service

LAST OF UNIVERSITY LECTURE SERIES GIVEN TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 20

The Hon. F. Bradley-Birt Accompanies His Lecture on Persian Life With Numerous Slides

The last of the series of University of Vermont lectures for this year was unfolded last Tuesday, February 20, in the Fleming Museum when a pageant of Persian life and country was presented by the Hon. F. Bradley-Birt accompanying his lecture with slides. Bradley-Birt described Persia as a storm center of international rivalries, as the home of a great people, as making notable contributions to art and religion, in literature and landscape gardening. He intimately sketched the ruggedness of its mountains and the wastes of its deserts as he took his audience on an imaginary trip through Persia from the Gulf to the Caspian Sea.

The lecturer stressed the fact that although Persia in the last few years has accepted the more modern ways of doing things, the country's chief characteristic is its extreme nationalism, "Persia for the Persians." Persia has thrown off the yoke imposed in years past by surrounding nations and has become a country independent in spirit and in government, the speaker, pointed out.

However, Persia like most of the Eastern countries has some unchanging features such as the gardens which, Bradley-Birt declared were considered the most charming in the world. Running water flowing over blue tile into a central pool is the most striking characteristic of the gardens which have a profusion of shrubs and flowering trees. Pottery, rugs, [illegible] and architecture that have stamped the Persian makers as great are still being made in the country.

The Persians themselves, Bradley-Birt said, disclose all the grades and conditions of civilization from the crude nomadic tribes living a pastoral life to the highly cultured classes. The Persian poets Firdansi, Omar Khayyam and Hafiz are quoted throughout the world. Some live in ease and wealth while others lead a life of discomfort and squalor.

CHIMNEY FIRE PROVIDES ENTERTAINMENT FOR A X O

Students started from their desks, pianists ceased their harmony, promenaders hurried toward Main Street, parlor athletes were interrupted, and all ran to gaze when three fire engines and the chief's car clanged their way speedily to the Alpha Chi Omega house in answer to showers of sparks caused by a chimney fire. No damage was done. The only result was a romantic, woodsy odor of smoke which pervaded the house. The gathering proceeded to continue popping corn and toasting marshmallows, and was the happier for having been entertained. And one Alpha Chi talked over the telephone midst the whirl of firemen and fire extinguishers through it all!

SECOND "COME AND SEE PROGRAM" TO BE HELD IN BOSTON MARCH 26-28

Visiting College Women to Witness Social Work and Social Agency As Conducted in Large Cities

GROUPS TO RESIDE IN SETTLEMENT HOUSES

Dean to Excuse Girls Qualifying For Trip Four Days Earlier—Scholarship a Prerequisite

The sub-committee of the Intercollegiate Council of Social Agencies has announced its plans for the second "Come and See" Program to be held on Tuesday, March 26, 27 and 28. The programs are designed for undergraduate college women who plan to enter social work as a vocation and for those who wish to gain a wider and more mature knowledge of social settlement work.

During the three day period the visiting college women will have the opportunity to know at first hand more about social work, how it is planned to meet the needs of a large city and what the social agencies are trying to accomplish.

As much time as possible will be spent in the observation of this field at work and in seeing the manner by which different specialists within the field handle their work. The group will visit agencies which will include work with foreigners through the International Institute, a settlement house with its classes and clubs, a general hospital, a children's agency, social work in the schools, and family welfare work. By attendance at staff meetings there will be opportunities to hear actual case discussions and there is the exceptional chance of meeting leaders in social work and personally discussing problems with them at luncheons and tea.

For the duration of the program arrangements can be made for a group to reside in settlement houses. The nominal sum of ten dollars will cover the cost of room, breakfast and dinner. There will be two luncheon meetings at moderate cost. Expenses will be slight as most visits will be within walking distance or within range of a ten cent car fare. Full time attendance is compulsory.

The University of Vermont is one of the New England colleges to receive an invitation to join the group and as the entire number of co-eds is limited to twenty, Vermont will be able to send only a very few girls. Upperclassmen will be given the preference. As the period of this expedition does not coincide with the Spring recess which begins here March 30, Dean Swift has consented to excuse the girls who qualify for making the trip four days in advance. High scholarship and a good attendance are included in the prerequisites. Anyone interested see Dean Patterson for further information as soon as possible.

NORMAN THOMAS WILL SPEAK AT MIDDLEBURY

Vermont Students Invited to Listen to Prominent American Socialist March 12

Complete arrangements have been made for a talk by Norman Thomas, prominent American Socialist, to speak at the Mead Chapel in Middlebury on March 12. Invitation has been cordially extended to Vermont students, who are interested and wish to attend. Admission charge will be twenty-five cents according to the committee in charge of the arrangements.

Mr Thomas has been very prominent in Socialist and liberal movements since 1918. Founding The World Tomorrow, a liberal magazine, in that year, Mr Thomas served as its editor until 1921. Then he was assistant editor of The Nation for a year. He still continues as contributing editor of both publications.

Mr. Thomas was a candidate for a major political office for the first time in 1924, when he ran on the Socialist ticket for governor of New York State. He has since carried his party's standard for mayor of New York City in 1925 and 1929, and for president of the United States in 1928 and 1932. His total of over 175,000 votes in the New York campaign of 1929 attracted nation-wide interest.

The latest books Mr Thomas has written are "As I See It" and "What's the Matter with New York?" both published in 1932. The latter volume was written in collaboration with Paul Blanshard. Earlier titles included "The Challenge of War," "Is Conscience a Crime?" "The Conscientious Objector in America," "What is Industrial Democracy?" and "America's Way Out."

Who says college students aren't getting smarter? At St. Thomas College the students gain both ways by taking out an insurance policy against being called upon in class for 25 cents. If he is called upon he may collect $5.

WHAT IS COLLEGE LIFE?

In raising the question "What is college life?" we may well stop and ask ourselves in the light of our own experience and the experiences of others, what do we want a university training to give us, what shall we consider its most important contribution to the planning out of our future lives, and how will it fit us for the life we shall enter after leaving the college gates which have so long enclosed us and sheltered us from the world of actuality and reality? No college career is worthy of mention if its only benefit to the student has been to fit him for college life alone. Its much more important function is to fit him for a larger society, a society with a broader meaning and one upon which the college bred man should be capable of bestowing a deep and significant purpose.

The college student who immerses himself in books from which he derives much pleasure and aesthetic enjoyment is not advancing unless he is able to apply the concepts and ideas of his reading to constructive and objective activity. On the other hand, the person who considers that meeting people and learning to adjust himself to them so that he may eventually win their favor and perhaps his own respect is not the better off. The college man and woman are living in an environment that is artificial because it is so completely removed from contact with the outside world. The individual has a large task before him to apply and organize and co-ordinate and doubt and question the masses of theory with which he is constantly confronted in his books in the classroom, and in the lecture hall. The student who successfully carries on the process of coordinating theory with actuality will wake up on the day of his graduation and stretching his feeble arms in every direction will find to his chagrin, amazement, and disencouragement that each direction represents an unknown quantity, that the pampering which he has received on behalf of his guides and sponsors and the pampering which he has allowed in all his own mental activity will not avail him now if he is to face the world and its problems honestly, frankly and openly. The only course open to the student who has allowed himself to evade every issue which has presented itself for solution is to follow in the path of other weak minded individuals (and there are myriads of them) and to start a career which is to be opened at the outset with a repetition of that pampering which was so often in order during his college days.

What one's college education is to do for one depends more on the individual himself than upon any man, book, movement, or group of ideas with which he comes in contact. The individual finds what he is looking for, or at least he will never find the things whose value he does not know nor the things to which his eyes are not opened in the search of self-development. Nothing is more deplorable, it seems to us, than that the function of a university be regarded as a finishing school of so-called sophisticated men and women. The college man or woman who has developed a suave manner and a large quantity of poise and self confidence still has not got enough from a university training. In addition to such attributes he must have the courage to face every personal situation and every social problem of society with honesty, frankness and an open, unbiased mind.

A certain faculty member has recently expressed her disapproval of slit skirts on the grounds that they are immodest. We would suggest that the situation be corrected, and would like all those who oppose the wearing of slit skirts by coeds to read a very interesting little volume of D. H. Lawrence's entitled, "Birds, Beasts and Flowers." In one of his poems Mr. Lawrence has expressed the sentiment that Eve in her fig leaf was more appealing and modest than is the modern woman in all her loveliness and nakedness. (Really Mr. Lawrence says it much better than we have, and if you find the copy on the shelf in the library.)

We have always wanted to know whether the men at Vermont stood for the ballot in which each cast so many years ago voted the women the privilege. We believe the issue is now indisputably proven since the ole boys allowed the girls to enter the hallowed ground of Kake Walk. The question now, since the women got hold of anything, whether or not the vote, involving tuxedos, at Kake Walk, there is apt to [illegible]

Things We Never Knew 'Til Now

Certain professors at U. V. M. give their students a cut if caught in the malicious act of chewing gum. More and more in every way we think this to be a secondary school instead of an institution of higher learning.

S. Thatcher Hubbard, IV, deems it an honor to be elected King of Kake Walk. If this be so may we ask why our so-called campus leaders are letting "our Thatch" muscle in.

It is strictly according to Hoyle to plug certain departments in this school. But it is a serious busch to take them for a ride.

The greatest Rotarians in this school hail from none other than that great railroad center of the east, Rutland.

Many people around this campus think that the Alpha Xi's have plenty of good football material.

I Henri (note the ee) Twohey is reputed to gargle about one blood stream from the Far West.

Realtus McCuin and Johnnie Vaudet think that Essex Junction is the "Paradise of America."

Jack Morgan earned the title of "Clark Gable" under very embarassing circumstances.

DIRECTORS' STATEMENTS

The two directors of the 1934 Kake Walk, W. W. Brislin '34 and G. H. Burrows II '34 have issued statements of their wishes that each student shall enjoy the coming week-end to the utmost. The statements follow.

Brislin's Statement

"Tonight and tomorrow night the students of U. V. M. will have an opportunity to enjoy the thirty seventh annual Kake Walk of the University of Vermont. This year the directors have given much time and labor to presenting a show which will be different. The Masquerade Ball tonight is something new to our campus and we hope that this affair will meet with much success. To our Production Committee we owe thanks for their work in building up what we predict will be a great show tomorrow night. The chairmen and members of other committees have worked hard to make this Kake Walk the best and we wish to thank them at this time. The student body is in for a real treat and we hope that no one will miss it."

W. W. BRISLIN
Director of Finance

Burrows' Statement

"In every aspect of the Kake Walk of 1934 we have endeavored only to follow the will of the students of Vermont in directing for them their thirty seventh annual mid-winter frolic which is also their yearly drive to raise funds for Vermont athletics. Whether or not we have done a good job we are confident that Vermonters will give the affair their complete support."

ternity teams will once more literally "strut their stuff" around the gym and this year in place of the various fraternity stunts and the peerade there will be specialty acts in which the cream of college talent will display their ability. As a final touch to this thoroughly different Kake Walk there will actually be women kake walkers!

On Sunday the spirit of good fellowship which marks all Kake Walk periods will be further expressed by the Vermont dinner offered by Hotel Vermont to students, parents and alumni. At three o'clock the Vermont Men's Glee Club double quartet concert will be open to out-of-town guests and alumni at the Fleming Museum auditorium. This will be followed by the report of the Vermont delegates to the Northfield Student Conference on "Personal Requirement for Effective Social Service" to which the public is invited.

These events bring to an end the official Kake Walk program for 1934 but massed together they make up a program unusual for the variety of its interest and for the good time which it will undoubtedly produce.

All Juniors who are interested in participating in the men's interclass ski and snowshoe races to be held Saturday morning are asked to report on the front campus early Saturday morning to W. Starbuck '35.

TRYOUTS FOR OPERA POSTPONED BY ILLNESS OF PROFESSOR METCALF

All arrangements concerning the opera will necessarily be postponed until the recovery of Professor Metcalf, according to an announcement of Professor Bennett of the Music Department. Professor Metcalf is in charge of the dramatic effects for the forthcoming opera.

Nothing is so much an issue in the University this year as the conflict between a calm realistic majority student body and a group composed of deans plus Big-Men-and-Women-on-the-Campus anxious to preserve the ancient rites and mummery of the once-powerful ghost, "school spirit." The depression has flung the larger part of the student body square against the wall, and a good half of us must work: leisure and its spurious enthusiasms seem far away and mostly stupid.—The Daily Texan

The proceeds from the Kake Walk usually go to the Athletic Fund. In the years 1929, 1930, 1931, the proceeds taken in were over $1,000 as compared to $165 taken in at the first few Walks. During the war the proceeds went to the Red Cross.

In 1912 the Sub-freshmen Week was originated for the purpose of introducing prospective students to U. V. M. Campus. They stayed at the fraternity houses on the hill, and attended the Kake Walk.

RACE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP OF GREEN MOUNTAIN CONFERENCE DRAWS CLOSE

Race Gets Closer as Season Draws Near Its Close

Up to last night the Panthers from Middlebury were leading the Green Mountain Conference. They had won one and lost one game. Vermont and Norwich were in second place with two wins and two losses apiece. St. Mike's brought up the rear with three losses and with one victory to its credit.

The second Norwich-Middlebury game scheduled for last Tuesday night was postponed [illegible] poor weather conditions.

The crucial game however from the St. M.'s point of view was the one last night which was played too late for publication of this issue.

If St. Michael's won we find Middlebury on the title and are still in the running. If Middlebury won they will almost certainly get the title.

Novel Meeting to Be Held in Children's Room of Museum At 4.30 Sunday

Reports by the Vermont delegates to the '34 Northfield Conference will be given by three of the six delegates, Sunday afternoon in the Children's Room at the Fleming Museum at 4.30.

The conference will be reported in three parts by Edna Leach '36, R. S. Wright '35 and W. P. Stetson '34. The other delegates who attended the conference last week-end were Alberta Gove '36, I. F. Miller '34 and Elsie Brace sp.

The meeting is open to the public and the V. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. are especially invited.

NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT AT 1934 KAKE WALK

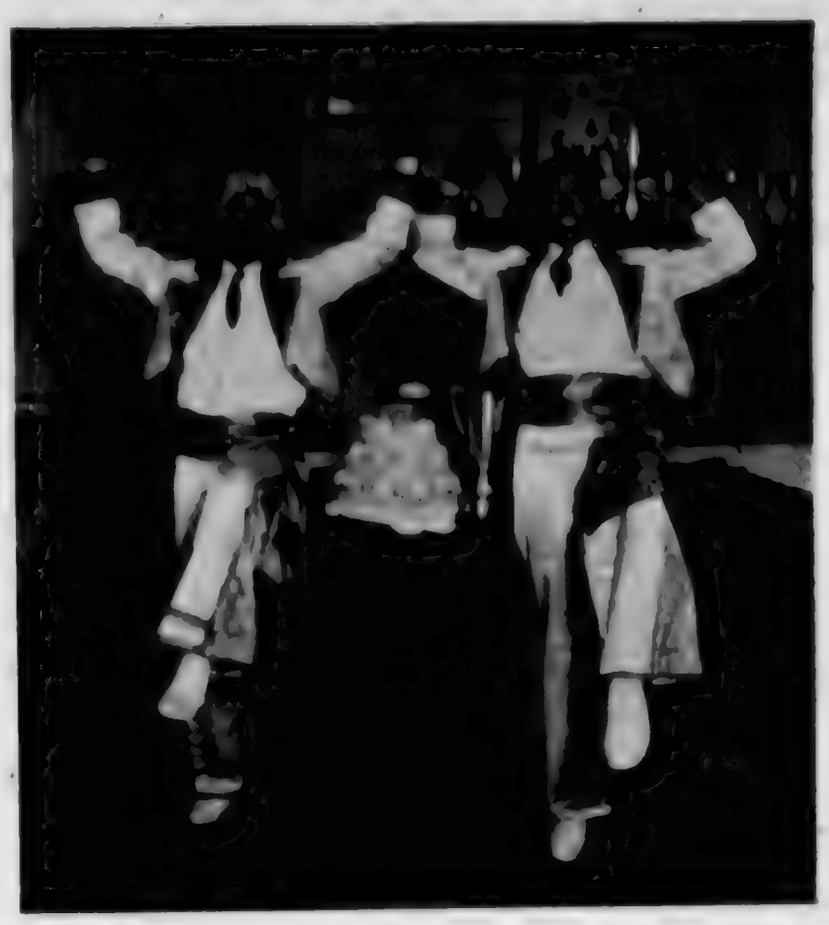
In making such radical changes in the make-up of the Kake Walk program, the directors had four definite aims:

1. To relieve the monotony of the long cold mid-winter term with a novel bit of southern sunshine.
2. To raise funds for the support of Vermont athletics.
3. To maintain the usual fine standard of a true Vermont Kake Walk.
4. To attain these aims by attracting the complete enthusiastic cooperation of the students of Vermont.

Too much stress cannot be laid upon the advantage of the replacement of the original fraternity stunts with a selection of the best talent from the whole campus. Whereas, formerly each frat was limited to a choice of its own members, now the chairman of the entertainment committee has the ability to choose only the cream from the entire school. Consequently it is anticipated that this year's stunts will be outstanding for their unusual productions and the variety of talent to be presented.

There has been a radical reduction in prices for this year's event in addition to the other changes.



The cast for the specialties includes the best of our humorous, singing and dancing talent. Such names as Robert Burns, William Breslin, Janet Woodley, Frances Colburn, Thatcher Hubbard, Rosemary Cahill, and many more equally well known, will be featured for a brief act, and then replaced by other talent in a speedy sequence of fun and talent.

In spite of these many and diverse changes in the old conventional Kake Walk customs, the fundamental spirit of the event remains unchanged. Such alterations as have been made, have been certified by the committee only after due deliberation and the decision that they would be for the best interest of the Kake Walk and the students, parents, and alumni attending it.

Once more the center of interest will swing to the actual ceremony of walkin' fo' de kake, and the teams participating in this event will be all important. The introduction of unusual specialties is for the purpose of adding to the interest of the occasion, and as has been said, the participation of women in this event will add a novel touch. In short, all that is possible has been done to make the annual Kake Walk of 1934 a success in every sense of the word, and an enjoyable affair to those attending it.

Cynic Style

(To be followed only by the rawest and and most innocent of scrubs)

Accuracy and promptness are nice to have, so never misspell more than six names in one story and never hand copy in more than three days after the deadline.

Use CYNIC copy paper when convenient, being sure to write on the side nearest you, using the other side only if you are sure you won't have enough copy paper left for tomorrow's Math.

Never fold paper just jam it into your pocket, when you think of it, it is generally good to hang said paper on one of those hooks in the CYNIC office.

Always use typewriter and double space when you have enough paper handy. Of course, if it's just a notice or if both of the CYNIC office typewriters are busy or busted, use a pen, pencil, soft pencil, or burnt match.

Leave one half (½) page blank at top of first page for headlines unless you don't think your story merits headlines.

Place guide line, or brief title in upper left corner with name under it. The latter is very, very important as it has something to do with credit inches and every scrub would do very, very well to gain himself many, many credit inches.

Number each page in upper left hand side, if there are more than just two or three pages, even in spite of the fact that some news editors are great mind readers.

Never write your own headlines as this work is especially reserved for certain people who just dote on being the ones to perform this little rite and who write the headlines frantically just before dashing home for supper. For some reason, the scrub is warned, at this juncture, that he must leave plenty margin on both sides of page.

The CYNIC does not like to accept short stories which are written more than one on a page, but it takes what it can get.

CYNIC STYLE.

Thou shalt steer clear of First and Second Person Pronouns, for they lend a homey air to writing, and that would never do.

Avoid Chronological Order and other big words.

Write voluminously. The CYNIC needs volumes, especially a dictionary, a U. V. M. Directory, a city directory, and a Bible.

Be sure your writing is mediocre. It would never do to waste literary genius on news writing.

Well now that the young women are sucking cigarettes openly on the boulevard and lingerie is no longer a dirty word about the only thing us old school romanticists have to cling to is the mystery of the complexion, and that calls for a dark night.

START ON TRIP THIS AFTERNOON AT GYM

In an attempt to keep their erstwhile record clean, the Vermont Kittens set out this afternoon from the Gymnasium in an effort to bring back their fourth and fifth consecutive scalps while on a trip embracing Green Mountain Junior College at Poultney and Mineville High School at Mineville, N. Y. Lack of adequate transportation on the poorly conditioned roads makes it necessary for the team to travel light with only seven players, a coach and a manager.

The team left this afternoon for the G. M. J. C. game at 8.15 this evening. In past years the Junior College has given Vermont freshman teams a good run for their money and are expected to furnish the same type of opposition tonight to a cocky freshman outfit.

Dick Duncan around which the team centers, will play the pivot position for his team, with Al Tomassetti and Letty Warden eligible until Sunday under the eight-day notice warning rule, will fill the forward berths, with George Shaw and Pete Baker playing guard. The team will miss the speedy cooperation of Dave Beattie, stellar forward, who has covered himself with glory during the past four games, but whose record scholastically made it impossible for him to continue.

At Mineville, the team does not feel so confident however. The town has a reputation of putting out some powerful teams, who seem to win consistently. The same freshman five are expected to function on the floor against the Mineville quintet. During the past week the team has had several practice sessions playing one practice game last Tuesday evening. Time has been devoted to studies more than practice in order not to overtrain the men and to keep their interest in basketball.

The Kittens play their last game against Fort Ethan Allen next Tuesday evening. Despite the fact the yearlings had little trouble in winning the game on the Burlington floor, they expect to strike a snag this time in that they will be minus two of their star forwards.

Dear Mary

Undoubtedly you will be greatly surprised to receive this letter from a member of the male sex but I assure you my position is most discouraging. At one of the recent fraternity dances I had the extreme pleasure of being introduced to a most delightful person, a young woman of whom I think very much. To my bitter disappointment I have been able to get acquainted. I have been able to get her telephone number and since that time I have been unfortunate late on other occasions. The reason I cannot figure out as I endeavor to act the part of a gentleman at all times and deem myself an interesting conversationalist. Now dear Mary Ann please do your utmost to enlighten me in my heart breaking situation. I am on the verge of desperacy. I am unable to keep up with my dad's routine. Please help me. Again I repeat I am desperate.

Dear Percival

Do not be misled because I receive many heartbreaking appeals from members of the stronger sex. As for the remainder of your letter I am dreadfully sorry to tell you that I cannot enlighten you. What can I, poor Mary Ann, tell you when even your best friends won't tell you.

WINNING KAKE WALKERS

Kake Walk Carnival Week-end Scores a Tremendous Success

First the Masquerade Ball, Then the Winter Sports Program Including Snow Inter-class Sports in the Morning and Inter-collegiate Ice Competition in the Afternoon, and Finally Kake Walk Itself Fill a Week-end Full of Fun and Healthy Pleasure.

MASQUERADE OPENS KAKE WALK EVENT COLORFULLY

Kay Mahoney Chosen Kake Walk Queen in Grand Rolling of Dice

The 1934 Kake Walk masquerade certainly fulfilled at least one of its aims—that of bringing a wide variation of crazy costumes onto the floor. In addition, there was a more-than-fair-sized crowd on hand. Soft lights, jazz, and the selection of the Kake Walk Queen topped a most successful dance.

The crowd began to trickle into the darkened gym early. Mickey Mouse and Minnie were there, Russians, toughs, many toughs, an Arab, girls in R. O. T. C. uniforms, London bobbies, a jailbird or two, the Invisible Man, pickaninnies and black boys, two rabbits, same height, Peter Pan, a goodly sprinkling of people in street clothes, various ensembles of night clothes, waiters and waitresses, farmers, bookies and gamblers, white wigs bobbed above costumes of Colonial days. The orchestra played from a semi-darkened stage, fast rhythm, "Carioca," cronned melodies, slow music, the ultra-modern, "Mood Indigo."

Of course, the choosing of the Kake Walk Queen was the high spot in the program. After Fran Colburn made his most magniloquent speech in which he announced that Thatch Hubbard was the choice of the college in the election that morning, the huge dice were dragged forth and the casting for the queen began. After the monstrous ivories had boomed across the rug laid out in a hollow square of spectators for several throws, the number was announced—"193." Each girl and woman fumbled for her ticket. (Just how the number—193—was determined has not been ascertained as yet, for the method of calculation is so involved that only those acquainted with Einstein can fathom it.) Then a ticket was held above the crowd and the holder of 193 came forward, Miss Catherine Mahoney '36. She was led straightway to the throne, where a beautifully decorated cake was presented to her. King Thatch and Queen Kay reigned supreme, and dancing was resumed.

The Barbary Coast Orchestra furnished very popular strains for the dancing. It has been considered outstanding in northern New England. Its novelties included vocal solos and xylophone numbers, one skilfully done with the musician blindfolded.

Spirits remained of the highest, and there was no exception to the evening's rule of good fun—a success in every way and a sign that Vermont's experiment with masquerades is worthy of perpetuation.

SNOW AND ICE CARNIVAL HELD LAST SATURDAY

Interclass Snow and Intercollegiate Ice Events Fill Both Morning and Afternoon

The snow carnival was held last Saturday morning in spite of the cold. In the women's meet the final score was: Juniors, 19; sophomores, 12; freshmen, 4; seniors, 1. The men's 220-yard ski dash was won by D. G. Suitor '36, followed by H. H. Sabin '36 and W. M. Burrows '37. Alice Wimmett '35 won the women's 100-yard ski dash, with Ruth Lattimer '36 second and Betty Rich '35 third. G. W. Starbuck '35 came in first in the 220-yard men's snowshoe run. G. L. MID-WINTER FESTIVAL ENDS WITH KAKE WALK

Jenks and Swift Win Walk for Delta Psi—Program Different From Former Ones

One of the finest and most original Kake Walks ever presented at the University of Vermont was brought to a highly successful conclusion last Saturday evening in the college gymnasium before a capacity audience. The feature of the evening, the walkin' fo' de kake, was won by W. L. Jenks '37 and H. R. Swift '37 of Delta Psi Fraternity against the stiffest sort of opposition. Preceding the walkin' an entertainment was presented under the direction of F. P. Colburn.

The originality of the entire program, coupled with the smoothness of performance, was in itself a tribute to the untiring efforts of the directors, G. H. Burrows and W. W. Brislin.

Entertainment

The program opened promptly at eight o'clock with a half-hour concert, the "Kake Walk Revue," by the band under Joe Lechnyr's direction. Following this was presented a performance of a type altogether new in Kake Walk history which met with the instant approval of the audience. With Fran Colburn acting as master of ceremonies, a varied, quickly changing, racy program of collegiate nonsense and good fun was offered. The King of Kake Walk was first presented after he had been slightly delayed at a meeting with his Privy Council. Following a few words of welcome by the King the cast swung into action. With lightning-like rapidity the scene changed as short, unrelated skits, each cleverly worked out and filled with humor and laughs, were presented in quick succession. The crazy antics of Fran Colburn and his assistants were well interspersed with several selections by a much-disguised double quartet and one of the evening's discoveries, the Barroom Trio, composed of the Jenkins sisters and Pid Barber. This combination was especially well received by the audience.

The chief episodes were: A scene laid in Fort Duquesne, a most unusual program of sleight-of-hand tricks, a tap-dancing scene by four Vermont co-eds, and lastly a lecture by the famed and distinguished explorer, Prentiss Howe. The grand finale came in the form of a final chorus containing the entire cast.

CAST ANNOUNCED FOR THE GONDOLIERS BY PROF. H. G. BENNETT

Opera to Be Presented by Both Glee Clubs at City Hall Auditorium April 19

The cast for "The Gondoliers" has been released by Professor Bennett. The opera, written by Gilbert and Sullivan is to be presented by the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs this spring, probably in the City Hall Auditorium.

The following cast, four of which are freshmen, has been chosen for the same opera to be presented on April 19.

The Duke of Plaza-Toro, R. S. Wright '35, bass; the Duchess of Plaza-Toro, Madeline Ainsboro '35, alto; Casilda, their daughter, Viola Long '37, soprano; Luiz, attendant of the Duke, S. Pierce, Jr., '34 tenor; Don Alhambra del Bolero, H. T. Bickford '36, bass; Marco, gondolier, A. R. Wilcox '35, first tenor; Guiseppe, gondolier, D. W. Jenks '34, baritone; Antonio, gondolier, R. S. Jenks M.-'35, second tenor; Francesco, gondolier, F. J. Nuissl '36, first tenor; Giorgio, gondolier, R. H. Treadway '34, bass; Fiametta, contadina, Edith Petrie '36, soprano; Tessa, contadina, Margaret Crane '35, alto; Fiametta, contadina, Marjorie Jenks '35, soprano; Vittoria, contadina, Joan Ripper '37, alto; Giulia, contadina, Pauline Bristol '37, soprano; Inez Girl, contadina, Augusta Caravatti '37.

The parts of Inez, alto, and the 1st girl have not yet been assigned.

The opera consists of two acts, the first of which is laid in Venice in 1750. The plot revolves around the sudden finding that of two Venetian gondoliers one is the rightful King of Barataria. Both had previously married contadinae, or country girls, and a further discovery follows that one had been married to Casilda, daughter of the Duke of Plaza-Toro. Unable to tell which is king they both go to Barataria, scene of the second act, where they reign jointly in a country where everyone is made the equal of everyone else. The climax is reached by the typical Gilbertian device of changing babies, which leads to a surprising conclusion.

The dramatic director of the cast is Mrs. Wilnetta Sproul Taggart. She has directed many presentations given by Vermont students, the most recent being the fall play, "The Torch Bearers." Prof. H. G. Bennett is the musical director and Mme. Elizabeth Bradish has charge of the vocal side. All are specialists in their fields.

Accounts for chorus will be announced shortly. Announcements of preliminary rehearsals of women's chorus soon will be posted on the bulletin board in the Old Mill.

Men who wear suits at the University of South Carolina are labeled as capitalists in the local argot.

ALUMNI COUNCIL HOLDS MEETING SATURDAY 9.30

The Alumni Council held a meeting last Saturday morning at 9.30 in the president's office in the Medical Building. Over twenty members answered to the roll call in person or by proxy. At the meeting, called to order by Henry B. Oatley '00 president, new members for the Board of Trustees were nominated and plans were discussed concerning the alumni festivities at Commencement.

SENIOR WEEK ELECTIONS HELD FRIDAY, MARCH 2

Commencement Speakers and Senior Week Officials Chosen

Commencement speakers and Senior Week officials will be elected by the class of 1934 this Friday, March 2. Ballots can be obtained and cast all day in the corridor in South College.

In the past, it has been customary to elect the commencement speakers in a meeting which was usually sparsely attended, and the choices have not always been the best. Thus this year speakers will be chosen only if they indicate a desire for the position. Anyone wishing to have his name submitted as a speaker should call D. J. Tobin (prexy) immediately. In case there are two or more applicants for one speaking position, this speaker shall be chosen from the candidates with the Senior Week officials on Friday.

The speakers are: Men—Lafayette Oration, Address to Ira Allen, Pipe Oration, Address to Undergraduates, Boulder Oration. Women—Ivy Oration, Class History, Campus Oration, Class Essay and Class Poet. The class marshal—a man—will also be chosen in this way.

The chairman and financial manager of Senior Week will be nominated by a committee and will be voted on Friday. The nominating committee will meet in the Old Mill Chapel Wednesday at 1.30 p.m.

NEW CYNIC BOARD

This issue of the CYNIC is the first to be under the full control of the newly elected broad. Since the new board has been systematically trained under the old, this change will doubtless make little effect in the general policy of the paper. For this issue, Allan Everest, is the news editor in charge.

JUNIOR WEEK COMMITTEES TO BE ELECTED TODAY

The elections for chairman and business manager of Junior Week will be held in the hall of the Old Mill tomorrow.

VERMONT WINS IN DEBATE WITH BOSTON COLLEGE BROADCAST OVER WCAX

Jenks and McCuin Successfully Uphold Negative Side of the Presidental Powers Issue

The Vermont debating duo defeated Boston College team here Friday evening, February 23, in a debate which was broadcast over the Daily News station, WCAX. This was the University's fifth successive victory, as the team has been victorious over St. Michael's College, Hobart College, Clark University, and Boston University.

The University team upheld the negative side of the question: "Resolved that the Economic Dictatorial Powers Granted to the President Under the NRA Should be Adopted as a Permanent Policy of the United States." D. W. Jenks '34, and R. E. McCuin '34 represented Vermont, while J. J. Hurley and J. I. Roach represented Boston, the last two being members of the Fulton Debating Society of Boston College.

The Boston men have had much experience in debating. Mr. Hurley has been an intercollegiate debater for four years, a member of the Marquette Debating Society for the first two and a member of the Fulton Society for the last two years. He has held offices in both societies and has taken an active part in other colleges activities.

Mr. Roach has participated in intercollegiate debating for a year and is also a member of the Fulton Debating Society. He took part in the annual oratorical contest at Boston College. He is also well represented in literary activities of the college.

The Vermont men have won the last five debates in which they have taken part and have been very successful, not only in debating but in numerous other campus activities.

Prof. Leon W. Dean was chairman of the debate and the judges were: Justice Sherman R. Moulton, Rev. H. O. Tatum and W. R. LeBaron, the last named being principal of Essex Junction High School.

DELEGATES REPORT ON NORTHFIELD CONFERENCE

Three of the delegates to the Northfield Conference, which was held at Northfield, Mass., over the week-end of February 16, gave reports last Sunday afternoon in the Children's Room of the Fleming Museum. W. P. Stetson '34 started the program with a report of the group discussions that were held Saturday morning and Sunday afternoon of the conference.

Following him, Edna Leach '36 continued with an account of the various activities which were held in addition to the meetings and a description of the hotel where the delegates stayed.

R. S. Wright '35 finished the program by giving a résumé of the speech of Sherwood Eddy, who was the guest of honor of the conference.

The other delegates to the meetings at Northfield were Alberta Gove '36, E. E. Miller '34 and Elsie Bree, graduate student.

After the reports were finished the delegates and the audience were invited to Miss Maddock's at five-thirty, where the reports were repeated and discussion was held on some of the ideas brought up.

Doyle's hurried consultation with his Press Council in the midst of the show.

The cooperation shown by President Davies in helping out the visiting magician.

The sudden craning of masculine necks caused by the four co-ed dances and the magician's assistant.

The well-trained performance of the Delta Psi entrants who declare that the coaching work of I. R. Simonds during their training period was of invaluable assistance.

Professor Carpenter's earrings.

POULTNEY, VT., February 23— Vermont freshmen conquered a speedy Green Mountain Junior College five here 34-20. Spectators were treated to a rare exhibition of basketball as the Kittens played one of their best games of the year to excel the G. M. J. C club in almost every department of the game although the game was well fought and closely battled until the end.

No one man on the Vermont team could be classified as outstanding unless it were lanky Dick Duncan, with his effective bottling up of the Green Mountain star, Ryan. The freshmen worked several of their tap plays to their advantage, completely mystifying Coach Heffernan's charges in many cases.

Coach Shelansky's men enjoyed a dance given in their favor after the game was over, and throughout their stay at Poultney experienced a warm hospitality. The victory was the fourth successive one under Shelansky's tutorage. The summary:

EXTENSION SERVICE COURSE OFFERED TO SENIORS

An informal course in extension service work has been inaugurated for seniors in the agricultural and home economics courses at the University of Vermont. The course is designed to acquaint them with the fundamentals of extension service work and to give them a basis for determining whether they might be interested in it as a profession. About fifteen members of this year's class have enrolled in the course, which meets once a week.

The University of California will start a class in ballroom dancing for the masculine population of the school if enough make known their desire.

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports' Editor

This Green Mountain Conference title has turned into a regular Panther Cat scramble. It looks like a battle to the finish in the feline world.

Ben Beck's boys took over St. Mi handily last Friday night. When the Panthers hit the fifty column, it's necessary to take notice.

We wish to follow the wishes of our predecessor by not forgetting to mention at least once in this column—good old Ben Beck. Greetings!

Once again the baseball team has an impressive looking schedule. We are proud to be the only New England college to send a team South in the spring.

It is interesting to notice that Dartmouth is an opponent of ours in the three major sports—football, basketball, and baseball.

As this column goes to press, the latest report on a football coach is one Koski of Notre Dame fame. Don't get excited—just be curious.

We shall try to attain the record of our predecessor in making predictions. Hold on until baseball season—then?

At this time we wish to compliment the retiring sports editor on his careful analysis of sporting news. We enjoyed those subtleties, too, Don.

With baseball succeeding basketball, we should expect to see a succession in captains. That is not the case, as Johnny Beckley takes the leader's reins on the diamond after concluding his hoop régime.

We shall have a surprise for our readers in the near future, appearing on this page. We hope they'll like it.

At this time we say farewell to Coach Johnny Burke, who ends his coaching duties at U. V. M. tonight. Best of luck for the future, Mr. Burke.

Starting with the next issue, we hope to give a more personal insight into the coming events in the sporting world.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB TO MEET NEXT FRIDAY

There will be a meeting of the Home Economics Club at the club rooms Friday evening, March 2, at eight o'clock. At this meeting announcement is to be made of the new junior members of the home economics honorary society, Omicron Nu.

Cats Play Season's Final Game Against Panthers Tonight

A Victory Tonight Will Mean a Tie for the State Championship— A Loss Will Mean a Tie for Second Place in That Race

PANTHERS FAVORED FOR CRUCIAL GAME

The Catamount hoopsters trek down to Panthertown tonight to conclude their most successful basketball season. Middlebury has developed greatly since losing to Vermont at Burlington as evidenced by their decisive defeat they administered to St. Michael's last week. The Saints had previously landed a licking to Coach Burke's athletes and their outcome with the Middmen apparently places Ben Beck in an advantageous position.

Kake Walk activities curtailed Vermont practices during the past week and so no definite prediction can be made as to who will start the game. Jack Morgan will certainly be used as the pivot and Whitey Palmer is a fixture at a back position. Eddie Saba, whose aggressive spirit has prevailed during the last four games, will no doubt be at the remaining guard position. In the forecourt, Ed Layden and Enos Ramon will probably pair together. Capt. John Beckley, Gutay Grant and Ed Sowka are also bound to see plenty of action against the Panthers. Tonight's game will be the last for many of the Cats, and Beckley, Morgan, Layden, Sowka, Grant and Brown will bid fond farewell to collegiate loop circles.

The Blue and White will be at full strength to try to clinch the Green Mountain championship with a win from Vermont. Backed by a record of four wins and one defeat, they are assured of at least a tie in case of a Vermont victory. Beck will use the same quintet that played at Burlington, with the probable exception of Lefty Hoehm whose injection into past games has netted many points for the Middmen. Captain Sweet, Clonan, Leete, Baumgartner and Martin will make up the rest of the team.

INTERFRATERNITY GAMES FINISHED THIS WEEK

The interfraternity basketball series which was postponed last week because of interference with Kake Walk will be resumed and concluded this week with the play-off of the semi-finals Tuesday afternoon at 4:00 and the finals at a later date.

Tuesday, Delta Psi and Alpha Tau Omega fight it out to the finish and its victor will play the winner of the battle between Kappa Sigma and Sigma Phi.

MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE HAS SORORITIES AGAIN

Were Abolished Three Years Ago by a Student Vote

For the first time in three years the sororities at Middelbury College again resumed their rushing activities. By a student vote three years ago rushing was abolished from the campus. The program is somewhat the same as that of Vermont.

Two Vermont students who attended the pledging party of the Tri Delta's at Middlebury were particularly impressed with the friendly spirit prevailing among the sororities. A sorority held their rushing party in another sorority's house. The two people who went were Barbar Whitney '34 and Frances Whalen '35.

The pledging took place on Tuesday afternoon, February 20.

DEBATE ON FRATERNITY QUESTION IN PHILAGON

Members Soon to Try Out for Spring Trip Through New England and New York

Frances Rowe '36 was elected secretary and treasurer pro tempore at the meeting of Philagon held Friday, February 23. The next meeting will be held Friday, March 2, in the auditorium of the Museum. It is hoped that there will be more members present than last time. A debate, Oregon system, with Ruth White '36, Ruth Lattimer '36, Frances Whalen '35 opposing Carolyn Hill '36, Marie Black '36 and Elizabeth Haig '36 on the question: "Resolved: That fraternities are detrimental to college," will compose the program.

Already some of the members are at work on bibliography for the spring question. Next week tryouts are to begin, to choose, on a purely competitive basis, the representatives for the trip through New England and New York during Easter vacation.

The Carleton Cup debate, which is in charge of Ruth Lattimer '36 will be held in two or three weeks.

All members of Philagon must be present either this week or next or see Elvira Farman unless they wish to be dropped. Anyone, unless a freshman, who is really interested in trying out for the spring trip is free to do so. However, she must be willing to work as the choice is made by competition.

DEAN SWIFT RELEASES HONOR LIST OF COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Five Students Have All A's Including Three Seniors, a Junior and a Freshman

Following is a list of students in the College of Arts and Sciences who have attained an average of B or better for the first half year.

In making out the lists an A is counted as 95 percent, a B as 85 percent, a C as 75 percent and a D as 65 percent. An A average means a record with no grade below A. A B is an average of 90 percent or the equivalent of a record in which half the grades are A and half are B or better. A B average is an average of 85 percent. Nothing below 85 percent is regarded as a B average. A student may, however, have grades below B, provided these are balanced by a sufficient number of grades of A, and still attain a B average.

FIVE MEETS FOR WINTER SPORTS TEAM IN FIRST YEAR ON THIS CAMPUS

Competes Against Dartmouth, Norwich, Middlebury, St. Michael's During Winter

RICKER TELLS OF PLANS OF WINTER SPORTS CLUB

Two Cabins, Ski Jump, Skating Rink and Ski Trails Projected for Enthusiasts

The past year witnessed the formation ... a new team ... the ... of the Vermont campus. This culminated ... in the field of winter sports and resulted in the formation of the Winter Sports Club. In fact, it was chiefly at the instigation of the officers and members of this club that Vermont was able to have a representative at the annual winter carnivals held at colleges in the vicinity. The support given by the women was unusual ... especially in connection with the Middlebury meet.

In its first year of intercollegiate competition, the winter sports team was entered in five meets and made a creditable showing in all five. Although no points were scored against Dartmouth, the team did well considering that only five of the fifteen competing schools placed in the events. In the meets held at Norwich, Middlebury and St. Michael's the members of the team scored consistently and made a creditable showing. Also, the skating team came off victorious in a collegiate skating meet held at Chiott's rink in Burlington.

The first year of activity was indeed a success, state directors, and, if interest is maintained, there are possibilities of developing a fine winter sports project behind Centennial Field. There is an excellent hill which can be utilized for ski jumping, slalom races, and downhill races. This, combined with the level expanse of Centennial Field, would offer an ideal location for a winter carnival which could compare favorably with the annual Dartmouth affair.

G. O. Ricker, president of the Winter Sports Club, in commenting on future plans, expressed the following hope. If the desires of the present officers are carried through, next year will see the construction of two cabins, a ski jump, a skating rink on the back campus, and ski trails. One of the cabins would be built back of Centennial Field, and the other on the lake front to be used as headquarters for distance skating in winter and for boating in the spring.

Activities for the present year are not yet finished for if the snow lasts and the cold weather continues, several hikes will be held for the benefit of students and faculty.

The financial condition of the club is very sound, for, although entirely self supporting, it has maintained a balance in its treasury.

The present officers, acting in behalf of the club members, wish to acknowledge the patient work of Mr. Prentice and Mr. Pierce and the cooperation of local merchants, who so kindly donated the prizes that were given away at the Kake Walk skating carnival. Thanks are also extended to the University Book Store for the trophy presented to the team winning the Green Mountain Conference skating meet.

If the student body cooperates with the club, President Ricker predicts, winter sports will be raised to the position of prominence on the Vermont campus which they so justly deserve.

DOUBLE QUARTET SOON TO SING IN NEW YORK

The double quartet of the University Glee Club is scheduled to leave Burlington for New York on the fourteenth of the month. In New York they will sing before the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Vermont Alumni Chapter at which President Bailey is also to appear as speaker of the evening. The double quartet whose members are R. S. Jenks '35 Med., S. Pierce, Jr. '34, A. R. Wilcox '35 (manager), L. J. Sensel '36, D. W. Jenks '34, P. M. Andress '35, H. T. Buckford '37, and C. B. Harwood '37 Med., will, in addition to singing before the alumni present a group of songs before a meeting of the Rotary Club of New York on their second evening in the city. There is a possibility of their presenting a program on the NBC network during their stay, but that plan is not yet certain.

Sherwood Eddy Speaks on Religion Here and in Russia

[illegible] the United States and [illegible] a tremendous [illegible] the needs of [illegible] the first [illegible] God with [illegible] all the heart and [illegible] all the strength is not enough [illegible] one must have a whole soul if he be [illegible] personal and social considerations. Most [illegible] took up Christianity [illegible] as it was lived since Christ. Jesus [illegible] the Master of it was a religion of [illegible] then under Constantine it became a religion of war with only Christians allowed to be in the battlefield. To the mind of that time this was in accord with Christian principles it was sanctioned by the Church. Even in the days preceding the Civil War, it was a religion of slavery in America it was sanctioned by the Church and when young Horace Greeley made a speech against it in Boston every church in New England closed its doors. People were blind [illegible] as in Christendom's time.

Now it [illegible] communism and is [illegible] as in the previous days [illegible] In this connection Mr. Eddy [illegible] Lala Lajpat Arora who died [illegible] 500 million dollars while at the same time a few miles from where he [illegible] ten thousand families were living on less than three dollars a week [illegible] Christianity is it humane and is it just?

These [illegible] have none of them the same philosophy, the same conceptions, the same [illegible] but they all love God with all [illegible] and their fellowmen [illegible] sacrifice and service.

Mr. Eddy spoke the earlier of the young Russians in the ceremonies taking place around the tomb of Lenin in which they pledge themselves to die if need be for the cause and principles he represented. In contrast to this he told of the Christian Endeavor Meeting he attended at which he was shocked by what he called the "lifeless, nothing spirit manifested there." He realized then the difference between the young Russian [illegible] pledging himself to the cause of his country, wide awake to conditions in his country and the world and the young American "Christian" with no idea of the evils and sickness of his country and of this world. He contrasted the zeal and interest of European students [illegible] and international affairs with the [illegible] and lethargy of the American students.

He concluded his talk with the burning question. As a climax to his rehearsal of the wrongs and sufferings immediately present to us as American students, he threw the question "What are you going to do about it?"

Coming at the end of his talk so concise and effectively organized and so utterly efficient in presentation, his talk which had held his audience of over 200 normal college students spellbound in their chairs, this direct question was made vital and personal to a stirring degree.

Closing Addresses by Prof. Thomas and Dave Porter

Prof. George Thomas of Dartmouth on Sunday morning summed up the group discussion of the previous day and gave four questions which seemed paramount and which he thought should be discussed in the second discussions following his talk. They included: Is it possible to be realistic without being pessimistic? Is putting away from spiritual discussion a retrogressive step? How much material goods shall we give up? What about missions at home and abroad?

In answer to the first question as stated by one of the groups as being the ending of faith, hope, and love. Other points brought out were as follows: Objections were voiced against missions as forcing the Christian religion on foreign peoples as a system of living rather than converting them by personal example of the followers of Christ. The emphasis here should be "happier than thou" rather than "holier than thou."

1. One should go back to the beginning and follow the Way the Truth and the Life—"I am the life as well as the way." One must make a decision as to which way he is going to follow. No one will get anywhere unless he makes an irrevocable decision to set his face in that direction.

2. One must go along that pathway taking one step at a time, one cannot see the third or fourth step until he has taken the second.

3. One must go into training as a preparation for other things. Personal daily discipline is necessary. There are many dear, delightful wrongs one must rid himself of.

4. There is sustaining value in fellowship

Work in Student-led Discussion Groups

A feature of this conference was the eight discussion groups into which the [illegible] ganizational channels now provided. (b) The need for men and women to work together in a campus-wide program in coeducational institutions and in intercollegiate undertakings demands a new strategy at this point. (c) The increasing interest of the administration in the religious life of students makes necessary a 'total' approach to the college which transcends sectarian and organizational considerations. (d) The concern of such groups as the Student Volunteer Movement to become an integrated part of an inclusive Student Christian Movement is also an important consideration. These are only a few of the straws in the wind which point to the fact that the time has arrived for all student Christian agencies to go forward together.

Enough progress has already been made [illegible] undertakings. With the assistance and guidance of Mr. [illegible] Yarrow and Mrs. Malcolm Taylor, and [illegible] with an able committee [illegible] representative group of church workers [illegible] met in conference at [illegible] Hall at Harvard on May 1 [illegible] discuss the function of the church in the campus. The findings of the conference would [illegible] and have been made available through the assistance and generosity of Mr. Yarrow [illegible] Foundation. A Continuation Committee was authorized to represent the interests of this group and to arrange for co-operation with others in this field.

[illegible] meeting the New England Field Council [illegible] to share the responsibility for the arrangement of the June Intercollegiate Conference. This is now in progress.

The Field Council at the same time went on record in favor of steps toward [illegible] movement in New England and appointed a committee to meet with a similar committee from the girls' council or any other group to determine the next step. The two committees, representing the girls' and the men's councils, met at the time of the Northfield Mid-Winter Conference.

Upon the initiative of Dr. George Stewart who since his student days at Yale has been one of the most devoted, untiring, and valuable leaders of the Student Christian Movement a group of Student Movement alumni, young parsons predominating, were called together at the Trinity Church Rectory in Boston on January 17 to discuss how they could associate themselves more closely with the councils and with the student religious life in the colleges. This group turned its attention to the discussion of a United Student Christian Movement and initiated an assembly, representative of all interested individuals and agencies, to meet at Hartford Seminary on February 22 for the purpose of taking definite steps toward an inclusive movement.

Two questions are to be considered:

1. What is the nature of the Christian message and task in the colleges today?

2. What kind of organizational structure is needed for the most effective discharge of that task?

It is becoming increasingly clear that the time is ripe for a united advance. This should not disturb loyalties to present relationships nor adherence to convictions and practices held valuable. Neither should it interfere with the development of the work in each college according to the uniqueness of its own situation. It would, however, insure a united front with an integrated approach providing for the complete cooperation of all Christian agencies in the interest of the most effective work in the schools and colleges.

In Greater Boston a "United Movement" is in operation. For more than ten years the Student Work Council has supplied an opportunity for the meeting of staff people in a bi-weekly luncheon meeting followed by a program. Last spring the Council of Christian Associations, made up of representatives of the men's and women's Christian associations, were reorganized to include also representatives from church student groups. This group, now called the Student Christian Council, together with the staff group, the Student Work Council, make up the "United Movement." Under this inclusive arrangement a vigorous program has gone forward which has influenced markedly the work in the constituent groups. Perhaps [illegible] perience will give guidance [illegible] similar plan suited for the [illegible] England area.

The Hartford meeting will [illegible] consider a flexible New Engla[illegible] dure or organization to carry [illegible] the development of this sort [illegible] sive Student Christian Movement [illegible] tions of message, methods, pr[illegible] organizational structure will need [illegible] and continuous study for some [illegible] come. But the conviction seems [illegible] growing that such study can be carried on most fruitfully under an arr[illegible] which will provide more ade[illegible] ganizational channels for the fu[illegible] mutuality which is already so [illegible] tic of those who work among [illegible] in New England.

Developments in New Englan[illegible] line with national trends and [illegible] tion taken by the representative national bodies of the two Christian Associations and other similar agencies.

KAPPA SIGMA DEFEATS SIGMA PHI, 30-21, IN BASKETBALL CONTEST

Waterman and Piette, With Nine Points Each, High Scorers for Winning Team

Playing a strong steady game to pile up a big lead in the first half the Kappa Sig hoopsters coasted into victory over the Sigma Phis, 30-21, on the gym floor Tuesday evening. The Sigs gained an early lead when Parker and Funk totaled four points before the red shirted combination of Green and Waterman teamed together to execute a series of brilliant shots and place their team in a commanding position at the end of the quarter 13-4.

Bent tallied a charity shot and Parker a fielded goal to open the second period but Negus dropped a two-pointer to retaliate partially. Crane sent another basket for the Sigs to end their scoring activities of the half. The last half found Bill Piette at his best to lead the scorers with four baskets and Jones topping the losers with five points.

The game was cleanly played and the performance of the winners points to a great battle when they tackle the defending champ, ATO, in the final bracket of play. Waterman and Piette were high scorers with nine points each. Eddie Funk was the spearhead of the losers' attack and kept them in the fight at all times.

LARGE NUMBER REPORT FOR BASEBALL IN CAGE

Last Monday, after St Powell and his faithful staff of assistants had attended to all the nets and paraphernalia in the cage, about thirty baseball candidates reported to Coach Larry Gardner. Due to limited space there have necessarily been only light workouts of a lumbering up nature all week. The batterymen are receiving a greater share of the attention with Captain Beckley, Sandy Burnell and Ed Skodinski already burning them in. Ed Swartz is working out easily as is Stretch Kirley with Ed Lavden, ace hurler of last year's staff reporting next week. These exercises will continue until next week when the intensive drive for the opening game begins.

No one leaves the team with as much respect and admiration as does Jack Morgan. He has held down the center post almost unrelieved for the past three years. It was his steadying influence and clean playing that inspired the others to work for victories.

All those who watched the skating events held in connection with the Kake Walk festivities last week-end, were treated with a fine performance of ice speed by Johnnie McCrea. Johnnie won the 440-yard, 880-yard dashes, and the two-mile race.

Larry Gardner assembled his first group of baseball candidates earlier in the week, and ordained a pepper session for the first workout. He has a good bunch of regulars as a nucleus, and with added material from last year's frosh corps, he should put out a team worth watching.

To save Ben Beck the trouble, we announce the all-conference team:

HEXATHLON CANDIDATES PREPARING FOR TEST, COMING IN GYMNASIUM

Athletes Exercising Daily in Gymnasium for Past Two Weeks

The University hexathlon championship will be held this year and will consist of six events as follows: The regular 440 yard dash, high jump, one mile run, shot put, and the broad jump. The events will be conducted on the point basis and the winner will receive the Donahue Trophy, in memory of the late James E. Donahue, a man intimately connected for many years with the athletic policies of the University, and who served as chairman of the Athletic Council. All events are to be held indoors. The purpose of such a series of competitions is to bring out the well developed, all-around athlete. The student winning such a championship can be considered the best individual, all around athlete in the University.

Every day for the past two weeks the real or fancied all-round athletes have been working out on the gymnasium running track, in the cage, or in the auxiliary gymnasium in preparation for that great mid-winter athletic competition—the Hexathlon. This will be the second year for the event as last year the James Donahue trophy, in memory of James E. Donahue, former chairman of the athletic board was put into circulation for the first time.

Last year's winner was J. Jezukiewicz '36 then a freshman, who outclassed the field. Jack Willis '35 was the runner-up with J. J. Delfausse '34, P. Caracciolo '35 and Rollie Delfausse '35 finishing in the order named.

This year a great field is in training for the competition and those expected to enter include last year's outstanding entries: Jezukiewicz, J. J. and Rollie Delfausse. Mannie Levine, outstanding distance runner and member of last year's freshman track team; John Woodrow, a member of the varsity track squad, Phil Andrus, and Doug Slater.

The interest shown in this series of events last year has strengthened its popularity this year and drawing a goodly number from the student body at large seems to be a good method of discovering the best all-round athlete in the school.

FIVE CATS' PLAYERS FINISHED LAST GAME

Vermont closed her basketball season in a poor exhibition of court play against a driving unrelenting Middlebury team last Tuesday evening when the Panthers outplayed the Catamounts to win 43-18. Four Catamount basketeers played their last in Vermont collegiate basketball and it seemed evident that they were resolving to end the season in no manner whatever.

Middlebury's offensive play which included accurate set plays coupled with speedy cutting and passing accounted for a large number of stepshots. If the Panthers had scored on all the short shots on which they had chances the score would have undoubtedly been larger.

First Half

Neither team made any score during the first few minutes of play although both baskets were under fire several times. Captain Sweet opened the scoring for his team by a long well placed shot. His team then proceeded to run up a score of 10-0. With the injection of Eddie Saba, versatile Vermont athlete, the morale of the team was noticeably bettered.

During the next few minutes of play Saba started the scoring with a shot from in front of the basket, and also scored on a free throw. It was Saba again, who sank a shot on a pass from Morgan. In the closing minutes of the half, Palmer sank a basket which tied the score at 14-14. It looked as though the team were back in the fight after a discouraging start.

And Then

Coach Ben Beck certainly instilled a new spirit in his team when they came out for the second half, because they started right in where they left off at the half and scored shot after shot. Teate and Hoehn were the big guns in the avalanche of shots and passes which quickly swamped Vermont under.

During the second half the Catamounts could score not a single floor basket and netted only four points on foul shots. Teate repeatedly broke loose for a score but missed often luckily for the Green and Gold Cat.

ENGLISH CURRENCY ON DISPLAY AT MUSEUM

A thirty shilling note is on display in one of the cases in the Shell Room at the Fleming Museum. The note about one-half the size of the present currency, is embellished with English crests and printed in old English type. The piece of money was issued by New Jersey in 1776 before she became a state. At that time each colony made and issued her own proclamation money. The thirty-shilling note which would have the value of $0.25 is engraved as follows: "This Bill, by an ordinance of the Provincial Congregational shall pass current in all payments within the Colony of New Jersey, for Thirty Shillings Proclamation Money. The 20th day of February, 1776." The three signatures of "John Hart," "Jameson," and "Sam Tucker" endorsed the bill.

Varied Exhibition of Art, Architecture, Sculpture and Travel Brings Delight to Visitors

The current exhibition in the art gallery of the Fleming Museum is an increasing source of surprise and pleasure to the people of widely varied interests who have visited the display of the Carnegie art reference collection presented to the museum by the Carnegie Corporation. Few have realized the vast amount of material and scope of this set. It is surprising even to those who have seen parts of it before. Artists, architects, designers, travelers and students of history and the development of all the various arts will continue to find here invaluable material. It is for use and enjoyment of everyone who want access to examples of the world's greatest art.

The exhibition has been so skillfully arranged that it avoids the feeling of breathless confusion frequently produced in the presence of so large and varied a display, resembling a hurried "Cook's Tour" of a great art center. Each group of pictures is a unit with a definite purpose, some phase of creative art as it may be studied later with the complete set. One may linger before the panel Oriental sculpture, or medieval architecture or modern painting, with the proper detachment from adjoining panels of different content.

On tables are many packages of prints and photographs tied and marked not to be handled. They give promise of future treats for exhibitions, for individual study or for groups devoted to courses in art appreciation.

In the southeast corner of the second floor of the museum is the splendid collection of art books, a remarkably fine library for study. The books, selected by a national group of art educators, were purchased in the capitals of the world by an expert employed solely to secure books and pictures which could not be obtained in this country. Some of the rarest books are slightly worn because they were out of print and could only be purchased by careful search to complete the needs of this collection. The wealth and quality of illustration in these books is a cause for astonishment and gratification.

The resources of the great Carnegie Corporation are dedicated to the diffusion of culture. The history of the world has proven that no real culture exists where the people have not the opportunity to know and understand the fine arts. The Fleming Museum has found through its art gallery the eager response of the people of Vermont to opportunities to enjoy and appreciate works of art. Through the gift of the Carnegie set the museum can give to its public opportunities that far excel the casual art observation of repeated trips to foreign galleries. Here we find the world's greatest art selected and grouped in such a way as to open endless channels into the appreciation of the fine arts.

In preparation for the next exhibit the Carnegie collection will be removed after March 8.

DEPUTATIONS PROGRAMS TO START NEXT WEEK MEETING IS ANNOUNCED

Director Asks for Students to Take Part in Semester's Journeyings

The call has just been issued by the Deputations Director of the Y. C. A. Cabinet for students to assist in this semester's deputation work. Anyone in college not under warning is welcome to help out in these weekly programs about the state, and R. S. Wright '35 assures anyone who comes out an opportunity of some sort to take part in the work in one way or another.

All those interested in helping out on any section of the program are asked to meet the director this afternoon at 1.45 p.m. in the Y. C. A. office, when an organizational meeting will be arranged by consultation with those present. It is very important, declares Wright, that all interested attend this brief meeting in order that he may find out the best time for a more extended meeting.

Last year, there were sent out to various towns of Vermont thirty-nine teams, whose members presented to country congregations musical programs, social programs, Sunday morning services, which included talks, musical solos, and complete charge of the service. This year a quite different methodology is planned, according to Director Wright, so that programs will include an entire week-end, beginning Saturday evening, and ending Sunday evening, along the line of similar programs in other parts of New England.

WIG AND BUSKIN HOLDS ANNUAL BANQUET AT THE HOTEL VERMONT

New Officers Were Elected and Four New Members Initiated—Others Initiated Later

Wig and Buskin, men's dramatic society, held its annual banquet and initiation at the Hotel Vermont Thursday evening, March 1.

H. H. Abbott '35 was elected president; P. M. Andress '36, secretary-treasurer; C. J. Howe '35 and D. D. Davis '36, co-business managers; and W. A. Rose '35, stage manager.

The initiation did not come off as originally planned, because only four initiates could be present. These men are C. H. Howe '36, G. W. Patterson '34, W. A. Ross '34, and D. D. Davis '36.

W. E. Cass '35, J. H. Twohey '35, C. H. Patnode '35, and C. A. Maxfield '36 all passed the requirements for Wig and Buskin, and will be initiated in the near future.

Professor Tupper spoke "On the Drama" at the banquet. "It was very entertaining and enlightening. Everyone enjoyed it. I know I did," stated Sam Pierce, Jr., the retiring president, who was in charge of the affair.

KINGSLEY PRIZE SPEAKING CONTEST TO BE HELD ON SATURDAY, APRIL 28

Freshman and Sophomore Speakers To Be Called Out Before Easter Vacation This Year

The annual Kingsley prize speaking contest will be held in the Fleming Museum auditorium on the evening of Founder's Day, Saturday, April 28. This contest is open to all University men of the freshman and sophomore classes. A call for those who wish to participate in the contest will be issued directly before Easter vacation instead of directly after as was planned, so as to give the contestants sufficient time for preparation. Those who are interested should see Mr. M. D. Powers, who has been in charge of the contest for the past few years.

The participants will be judged on their ability to deliver some selection of oratorical prose. One year original orations were used, but this year's contest will be carried out according to the general rule, that the addresses will not be original.

The contest was originated by the late Darwin P. Kingsley of New York, a graduate of the class of 1881. He offered the following prizes: First prize, $25; second prize, $15; and third prize, $10.

Last year's winners were: Stuart Wright '35, first; Carl Rogers '35, second; and Ray Greenmore '36, third.

TWENTY-NINTH ANNUAL TEACHERS' CONFERENCE

The twenty-ninth conference of the schools of Vermont and the Champlain Valley Teachers' Association will be held at the Burlington High school on Friday, March 16.

Professor Wallace of the Department of Education has extended a cordial invitation to any students who may be interested to visit any of the meetings.

A. S. M. E. RECENTLY ELECTS NEW OFFICERS FOR THE 2ND SEMESTER

J. J. Delfausse '34 Elected Chairman, J. M. Libby '35 Vice-chairman, P. E. Lanou,

VERMONT CHAPTER TO ATTEND MEETING APRIL 30

Sixteen Societies of A. S. M. E. to Meet at Springfield, Mass., to Discuss Topics of Interest

The Vermont chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers announces the officers elected for the second semester. They are: J. J. Delfausse '34 who succeeds F. H. Spear '34 as chairman, J. M. Libby '35, who succeeds M. D. Howe '34 as vice-chairman, and P. E. Lanou '34, who succeeds C. R. Saxton '35 as secretary-treasurer. The faculty adviser of the organization is Professor [illegible], the only Vermont faculty member associated with the A. S. M. E. and who holds the position of honorary chairman. Membership is open to members of the mechanical engineering department [illegible] at the sophomore, junior and senior classes, and at present includes twenty-four men. It is only during the last two years that student members have been actual members of the society, as formerly the student division was merely an organization sponsored by the A. S. M. E. At present there are four grades of membership open to the members: student, junior, which is attained at graduation; associate, which is received after suitable work in the field of mechanical engineering; and full membership, which is the highest distinction and can be attained only after the age of thirty-two.

The Vermont society is one of a group of sixteen forming a regional division of college societies as the A. S. M. E. Representatives of the sixteen colleges will meet together on April 30, probably in Springfield, Mass., to discuss topics of interest and submit papers on appropriate subjects. Prizes of fifty, twenty-five, and ten dollars, respectively, are offered for the best papers presented. Last year Vermont was represented at such a conference by six seniors and one junior, and it is hoped that as large a delegation may attend this year.

During the first semester seven meetings were held at intervals of two weeks at which time various speakers would discuss topics of interest on the subject of mechanical engineering. During the second semester, however, due to the conflict of schedules, it has been decided to hold only three meetings, to take place in the afternoon. The next meeting is scheduled for March 15, on which occasion the speaker will be D. A. Loomis of the Champlain Transportation Company who will talk about the mechanical equipment of the Shelburne Point Shipyard and the [illegible] in use there.

UNIVERSITY STUDENTS MAKE PRACTICAL USE OF ART EXHIBIT AT MUSEUM

It has come to the attention of the Fleming Museum staff that at least two members of the University faculty are making practical use in their class work of the pictures now being exhibited in the art gallery of the Fleming Museum. One class in French is to meet for its regular class exercise in the art gallery and the instructor is planning to give a lecture about the pictures in French. This will give the students two opportunities instead of one. They will learn something about art and will be introduced to a slightly different vocabulary than is ordinarily used.

Another group of students, this time in the department of English have had theme assignments on the basis of the exhibit. They are spending some hours studying the pictures and preparing reports on one or more of the sections covered by this all-embracing series of remarkable reproductions.

Of course, the students in the art department have for some time been utilizing the Carnegie set, especially the books on various subjects connected with art study and appreciation. The biographies of the most famous artists have been put to use ever since the books first arrived and the staff is increasingly gratified to the extent to which the various collections in the museum are being drawn upon as an aid to class instruction in many different departments.

Not only because [illegible] are at present talk [illegible] school basketball but [illegible] our readers are interested in the home town representatives.

Orleans beat Enosburg to win the county tournament. We heard a former Holy Cross athlete say that both of the above mentioned teams could beat any of the senior groups in the state. Intercollegiate basketball was displayed as were the [illegible] night.

The A T O's and Kappa Sigs meet tonight in the finals of the interfraternity basketball competition. The A T O's are favored because of their past record.

Next week Monday the Athletic Council meets again to decide on a football coach. We wonder if Professor Butterfield's candidate will win.

It is still a matter of doubt as to who the selection will be. Something tells us that the "mighty atom" hasn't been forgotten.

Whether the new coach will have spring football practice or not, is of course, unknown. Current gossip indicates that we shall not.

Winter sports have had their [illegible] day. Our newly organized team this year [illegible] be credited for their interest in competing against experienced opposition.

U. V. M. MEN'S RIFLE TEAM WINS FOUR OUT OF NINE

Defeat New Hampshire, Washington U., Columbia and Kemper—Lose to Wisconsin, Missouri, Alabama, Kansas State and Nebraska

In its third week of competitions, the University of Vermont rifle team scored 1,341 to defeat the University of New Hampshire in a National Rifle Association match by fifteen points. The score also won from Washington University at St. Louis, Columbia and Kemper Military School in postal matches, but was beaten by the Universities of Wisconsin and Missouri, and Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Kansas State, Nebraska University.

In the Corps Area match fired during February, the ten high men of the fifteen firing scored 1,979 out of a possible 2,000 on two prone targets each, and scored a total of 7,532 out of 8,000 including five prone targets, one kneeling, one sitting and one standing.

The standing of the individuals on the team thus far was announced by Capt. M. E. Craig, coach, as follows: M. E. Merchant, Essex Junction, 1,393; A. S. Darden, Townshend, 1,366; F. T. Churchill, Burlington, 1,354; W. A. Ross, St. Albans, 1,352; W. G. Gibson, Wells River, 1,350; D. E. Behringer, Richmond Hill, N. Y., 1,334; R. M. Donahue, Jericho, 1,330; A. L. Williams, Williamstown, 1,316; R. H. Treadway, Burlington, 1,315; J. W. Hopkinson, Derby, 1,303.

The annual shoulder-to-shoulder match with McGill University which was scheduled for March 17 has been cancelled since McGill reports there is no rifle team at the University this year. The open date is hoped to be replaced by a shoulder to-shoulder match with Army at West Point, N. Y. An encounter with the Cadets would be most desirable by the Vermont teams, who wish to avenge a six-point defeat they suffered several weeks ago by West Point in an M. E. A. postal match.

Any sophomores desiring to scrub varsity track please report to one of the following assistant managers on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday: W. P. Hebb, L. N. Hill, J. H. Twohey.

Fraternities Are Getting Relay Teams Ready—Exhibition Boxing and Wrestling Also on Schedule

Men's physical training classes are now well started in the preliminary games in preparation for a series of interclass basketball games, the final playoffs of which will take place after the Easter recess.

The various fraternity relay teams have been practicing for some time for the coming indoor relays which are to be run sometime next week. All but one of the fraternities have teams and there is a possibility of an Independent team. Incidentally, the Independents won last year's meet. Exhibition boxing and the wrestling matches will be held along with the relays.

LONG AND SHORT OF NOSES IS EXPLAINED

In adjoining rooms at Temple University recently, Dr. Albert Bricker demonstrated how to shorten the human nose and Dr. Robert Ridpath explained how to lengthen it.

Demonstrating upon a woman patient Doctor Bricker removed a bit of cartilage, made a few stitches, and the young lady emerged with a shortened nose.

In the next room, Doctor Ridpath was explaining that with two curved instruments it is possible to take a bit of cartilage from the abdomen place it in the nose and rebuild the injured member.

Why— Men and women say They Satisfy

FOR SOMETHING to "satisfy" you, means that it pleases you —that it's what you want. This applies to cigarettes or anything.

A cigarette has to taste right— not raw or too sweet. For a cigarette to "satisfy" it has to be mild —not strong, not harsh.

You can prove for yourself whether a cigarette is milder— whether a cigarette tastes better.

And it's because smokers can prove these things about Chesterfield that so many men and women say they satisfy. Try them.

KEY AND SERPENT ELECT SEMESTER'S OFFICERS

White, President; Reeves, Vice-President; Patch, Secretary; and Palmer, Treasurer

At the bi-weekly meeting of Key and Serpent Society, junior honorary society, held last Wednesday evening at the Delta Psi house at 7.30, officers were chosen for the last semester of this year.

W. D. White, Jr., succeeds G. H. Cooke, Jr., as president. White is editor of the CYNIC, a track and cross country man, and a former Gold Key man. He belongs to Lambda Iota fraternity.

For the office of vice-president T. M. Reeves succeeds F. J. Lanahan. Reeves was recently chosen a director of Kake Walk for next year, is manager of next year's freshman football team, a former Gold Key man and a member of Sigma Nu.

M. A. Patch succeeds J. R. Simonds as secretary of the society. Patch is business manager of the CYNIC and was business manager of the Ariel until he was forced to resign because of his studies. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

The position of treasurer, which is held for the entire year, is still filled by R. E. Palmer. Palmer, a member of Delta Psi, was a member of Gold Key, has won both numerals and letters in basketball and baseball and is junior class president.

Further business of the evening concerned a discussion of competition for the Traynor trophy. The Traynor trophy is offered by Key and Serpent each year to the fraternity ranking first in athletics, scholarship and other activities. It is offered in memory of Edward L. "Pie" Traynor a former Vermont student who was killed during his junior year in an auto accident during the Christmas holidays.

Following the recently adopted rule of holding meetings bi-weekly the next meeting will be held two weeks hence, the place and time to be announced later.

MUSEUM MURAL PORTRAYS ROCK POINT OVERTHRUST

The Rock Point overthrust, most famous geological formation in this vicinity, will be portrayed in a mural decoration which Raymond Pease is preparing for the Hall of Geology at the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont.

Visiting European geologists last summer pronounced the Rock Point overthrust worth a trip across the ocean to see. The overthrust, the rock from which Rock Point derives its name and a small area of Lake Champlain near the point have been photographed and sketched. Pease is now drawing up a sketch, including these features, which when approved by museum authorities, will be enlarged and prepared to occupy a large portion of the east wall of the Hall of Geology. The work is to be completed about May 1.

Pease is the son of Mrs. A. D. Pease, formerly of Burlington. He was graduated from the Yale Art School last June.

BISHOP BOOTH WILL GIVE ADDRESS AT VESPER SERVICE, SUNDAY MAR. 11

Speaker Is Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Vermont

The Rt. Rev. Samuel B. Booth, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Vermont will preach at the vesper service on Sunday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock at the Ira Allen Chapel on the University of Vermont.

Bishop Booth succeeded the late Bishop Arthur C. A. Hall as bishop of Vermont on February 25, 1930 having served as bishop coadjutor for the two years preceding. He was graduated from Harvard in the class of 1900, entered the Episcopal Church as a deacon in 1910 and was ordained a priest in 1911. From 1910 to 1914 he was a missionary of the church in Idaho, returning to Philadelphia his birthplace in 1914 to serve for four years as rector of St. Luke's Church, Kensington. He was chaplain of the American Red Cross at Evacuation Hospital, Number 9, in France in 1918. During the following year he was assistant at St. Mary's pro-cathedral in Philadelphia, and the remaining five years before coming to Vermont he was in charge of missions for Berks County, Pennsylvania.

As is customary at the monthly vesper services at Ira Allen Chapel the public is welcome. The University choir will provide music for the service.

MIDDLEBURY WOMEN HOLD PLAY DAY WITH VERMONT

50 Girls to Go to Middlebury for Basketball, Volleyball, Ping-Pong and Badminton

On Saturday, March 17, Middlebury and Vermont women will inaugurate what it is hoped will be the first of a series of annual Play Days. The two colleges will compete in basketball, volley ball, deck tennis, ping pong, badminton, shuffleboard, and folk dancing. There will be a chance for both girls to go, as the Physical Education Department has chartered two buses for the occasion.

There is a poster in the "Y" Room on which those who are planning to go are requested to sign up before Saturday, designating the sport or sports in which they will participate. This is in order that the various teams may be made up a little ahead of time so that no time will be taken up with mere mechanics after the girls get down there.

The sum of seventy-five cents will be charged to cover the cost of transportation and supper. The buses will leave Burlington at one-thirty Saturday, March 17, and will return to Burlington in time for the basketball hop at 8:30. Tickets for the trip should be purchased at the Physical Education Office before Saturday, March 10.

There will be some sort of getting game to begin the afternoon so that the girls can get acquainted. Then there will be series of inter college games made up of teams from the various sister classes. It is planned to have a demonstration of tap and interpretive dancing by some of the girls from Vermont as they have had several years of training and the Middlebury girls have only started this year.

They will serve supper for the visitors in the Gym. It is hoped that this will inaugurate a series of annual Play Days and will thus strengthen the good feeling between the two colleges.

FACULTY-STUDENT MEET TO BE HELD THURSDAY

Women to Have Novel Evening of Games, Entertainment, and Refreshments

On Thursday, March 15, the women members of the faculty will meet with the women student body at the gym for an evening of games and entertainment. At this time there will be a basketball game between several faculty members and a student team that is yet to be selected. It is felt that this evening of comedy, results, and the presence of various games will help to bring about a closer understanding and sympathy between faculty members and students.

The members of the faculty team will appear in the costumes that they wore in their undergraduate days. In addition to the pictures of the faculty members garbed in the clothes of a by gone day, will be shown and the student will try to guess their identity. Refreshments costing five cents will be served during the evening.

This slightly unusual gathering will undoubtedly do much to increase the good will between faculty and students and to further their already splendid relations.

IOWA SISTERS NAMED AFTER THREE VIRTUES

The county recorder's office here recently brought to light the fact that there are three sisters who are named after the three virtues, Faith, Hope and Charity.

Faith Hillman, Hope Kinsey and Charity Hanstine granted power of attorney to C. Lee for purpose of perfecting a title last. The sisters are married now and live in Nebraska, Iowa and Wisconsin, respectively.—Tribune.

CAT'S MEOW

The Kappa Sigs sprung a surprise Tuesday night by winning the interfraternity basketball crown, as they drubbed the ATO's in a slow game.

Now that basketball is over, our attention is turned toward the interfraternity relays which take place in the near future.

The latest dope on a football coach prospect is that one Sabo, of the University of Illinois is being considered. Sabo has been working under Zupke at U. of I. handling freshman elevens. This Sabo is not to be confused with the Fordham football player by the same name.

This afternoon the State senior hoop tournament opens with Proctor playing Rutland. We expect the ATO's will be there en masse even if we predict that Rutland will not be on top.

The proposed baseball game with Cornell here Commencement Day has been cancelled so reports say originating from the athletic office.

Sabo Abell has arranged a tentative contest with George Washington University to round out the southern itinerary. It confirmed the Catamounts will play George Washington U. on Monday, April 9, Princeton the following day and Army the succeeding day.

Congratulations are extended to Whitey Palmer and Ed Layden for being picked on the 1934 all-star Green Mountain Conference basketball team by the coaches of the four State colleges. Jack Morgan was selected as center on the second team.

DOUGLASS, REEDER, AND MISS HOLBROOK ATTEND CLEVELAND CONVENTION

Prof. B. C. Douglass, head of the department of education at the University of Vermont, and two other members of his department, Dr. E. H. Reeder and Miss Sara M. Holbrook, attended the meetings of the National Education Association at Cleveland, Ohio, this week.

Professor Douglass, with Superintendent of Schools Lyman C. Hunt of Burlington, attended the Department of Superintendence sessions of the Association. He took part in the forum on Education for the New America, leading the discussion on the contribution of social studies and science to leisure time activities.

Doctor Reeder gave an address before the elementary school division of College Teachers of Education.

DEPUTATION PROGRAMS CHANGED TO INCLUDE MUSIC AND DRAMATICS

New V. C. A. Program to Occupy Whole Week-end Rather Than One Day Only

The Vermont Deputation teams, a subsidiary of the V. C. A., are planning a program for this year that will be entirely different from that of last. Instead of the single service method formerly employed, this year the teams will present three separate programs; a morning and evening service, and a musical program.

Rather than crowding everything into one day the programs this year will extend over the week-end. Starting Saturday evening with dinner, there will be two hours of carefully planned games, music, and perhaps a one-act play. The teams carrying on this work will consist of between ten to twelve people, who will be entertained during their stay at the homes of various townspeople.

On Sunday morning the team will take entire charge of the service, which will consist of three ten-minute speeches by students, musical solos by members of the teams, Scripture readings, and prayer. In the evening the same form of program, only with a different theme, will be given especially for the young people. If the members of the church being visited wish it a short concert will be given Sunday afternoon.

Letters have been sent to all the churches within a radius of sixty miles, with the exception of those in the larger towns. Invitations will be accepted every week-end from that of March 17 until that of May 27. Invitations for the fall semester will be accepted for every week-end after the third Saturday in September.

Anyone who would like to try this sort of thing is entirely welcome, whether or not they know what they would specifically like to do, or whether they have any previous training for any particular phase of the program. Anyone who is interested should either get in touch with the director R. S. Wright '35 or leave his name at the V. C. A. office.

Students are needed to fill out these teams, and those in charge of this enterprise will appreciate the assistance of anyone able to play on any instrument or to sing, to help out with the social program or to talk on any given topic.

INSTRUCTIVE ART EXHIBIT ARRANGED FOR TEACHERS CONFERENCE ON MAR. 16

The Fleming Museum Art Association at the University of Vermont has secured from the American Federation of Arts an exhibition of 100 large colored prints, called "A Survey of Painting." This exhibit will be shown during the Champlain Valley Teachers Conference with the University of Vermont on March 16.

The pictures have been shown in many universities and art galleries in leading cities of the country and the Art Association states that they should be of much interest and value to visiting teachers.

THE HART HOUSE STRING QUARTET PRESENTED BY COMMUNITY CONCERTS

Four Noted Musicians to be at City Hall Auditorium Mon., March 12 at 8.15 p.m.

TO BE LAST OF THE SERIES OF CONCERTS

Program to Include Schubert, Haydn and Mozart—Founded by Hon. Vincent Massey in 1924

The third and last in the series of community concerts will take place next Monday evening, March 12, at [illegible] the City Hall Auditorium. The Hart House Quartet will entertain music lovers of Burlington with gems from such masters as Schubert, Hayden, Mozart, Beethoven, and the more modern Bridge.

The concert is sponsored by the Burlington Community Concerts Association which has already presented two very popular programs in the group of New English Singers last fall, and the noted young baritone, Wilbur Evans. This last of the series promises to be the best both from the program they will present and from the high degree of perfection of the four individual artists.

The quartet is Canadian and internationally known. It was founded in 1924 by the Hon. Vincent Massey and Mrs. Massey. They have played more than 500 public concerts in their career together. The quartet consists of Geza de Kresz, first violin; Harry Adaskin, second violin; Milton Blackstone, viola; and Boris Hambourg, violoncello. The first violinist, Mr. de Kresz, is a former teacher of Miss Charlotte deVoh of the University music department.

The program follows:

I

Quartet in D minor, opus posthumous ..... Schubert
Allegro moderato
Andante con variazioni
Scherzo
Allegro assai

II

Londonderry Air ..... Irish
Widdicombe Fair ..... Harrison
The Flowers of the Forest ..... Melrose
"Sir Roger de Coverley" ..... Bridge

Intermission

III

Variations ..... Haydn
Minuet from the Horn Serenade ..... Mozart
Fugue from String Quartet No. 9 in C major ..... Beethoven

An interesting sidelight is thrown on the idiosyncrasies of musicians by an advance release of the Association. According to statements there, artists of the first rank "do have nerves." Even Paderewski and Kreisler have them. For example, Paderewski was upset during his entire American tour a few years ago, when his personal barber from England could not accompany him on account of illness.

If the program he is to play is decidedly French in character, Milton Blackstone, viola of the Hart House Quartet must have his dinner at a high-notch French restaurant. "Atmosphere," he says. Geza de Kresz, first violin, plays best that night when he can have his afternoon siesta, while Harry Adaskin, second violin, eats a light, early dinner, and "fiddles away" until it is time to go on the stage. Boris Hambourg, 'cellist of the quartet, doesn't mind how long or heavy the program is, so long as he can have his daily hour of walking.

Temple asks a good question, and then proceeds to answer it. "Why is summer called pride?" "Because pride goeth before a fall."

PERFECT 500'S SCORED BY WOMEN'S RIFLE TEAM IN LAST TWO MATCHES

Team Shoots Against Washington State, Penn State, and University of Indiana

The women's rifle team of the University of Vermont continued to turn in bull's-eyes last week to score perfect 500's in two five-place matches and a 998 in one ten-place match. Sixteen girls fired in one or more of the three matches, nine scoring 100, six scoring 99 and one 98. All shooting was from prone position at regulation National Rifle Association targets. Washington University at St. Louis and Penn State were the opponents in the five-place matches. University of Indiana was the rival in the ten-place match.

Team members scoring 100 were: Carolyn M. Cabot '36, Elizabeth L. Collins '37, Genevieve V. Hutchins '35, Katherine M. LeBaron '36, Margaret Lockwood '37, Wilma J. Nelson '36, Marion P. Parker '35, Mary S. Poling '34, and Daisy M. Putnam '34. Those scoring 99 were: Christine P. Brown '37, Janet H. Dodds '34, Carolyn F. Hill '36, Esther L. Sinclair '36, Roberta O. Thompson '36 and Mildred P. Vosburgh '34. Helen A. Miller '35 scored 98.

Returns from earlier matches show victories over Massachusetts State, Northwestern and South Dakota Aggies women's teams who scored 467, 493 and 493 respectively against 500 for Vermont; and Kansas and South Dakota Universities who scored 977 and 980 against 998 and 997 for Vermont.

PHI D. E. FRATERNITY HOLDS FORMAL DINNER DANCE AND INITIATION

Chapter Beta Lambda of the Phi Delta Epsilon Medical Fraternity initiated the following men on Saturday afternoon, March 3, at the Hotel Vermont: A. Meister M '36 of Lawrence, Mass., J. Blier M '37 of New York City, H. Cohen M '37 of Burlington and H. Finks '37 of Portland, Me.

The initiation ceremony was followed by a dinner in the Banquet Room of the Hotel. Addresses were delivered by Dr. Herbert A. Durfee, professor of obstetrics in the College of Medicine of the University of Vermont, and Dr. Louis J. Bragman of Syracuse, N. Y., District Deputy Grand Council of Phi Delta Epsilon.

In the evening a formal dance was held at the Hotel Vermont Roof Garden. Dr. and Mrs. Durfee were patrons and Dr. Bragman guest of honor. The music was furnished by Willard Goldman and his orchestra.

THE SPORTING EYE

Through the medium of this column the Sporting Eye hopes to catch glimpses of inter-fraternity sports in action and report them to you. It is the purpose of this column to foster an interest in college sports elsewhere than on our campus. Thus we hope to be able to acquaint you with some inside news about other colleges many of whom are opponents of ours throughout the sports season. So—here we go.

The recent announcement that Mal Stevens, former Yale football coach, is to assume similar duties at New York University should be of particular interest to us. It has been reported that Mal is seeking the services of Albie Booth as assistant coach in charge of the backfield. Booth, it is remembered, has been considered a prospect for coaching football here at Vermont, and recently rumors led us to believe that he was still a leading candidate. Which job will he accept, if any? We are inclined to favor his N. Y. U. offer, as he was under the tutelage of Stevens at Yale for three years, and would probably benefit more as an assistant at N. Y. U. than trying to assume full charge of a team elsewhere. The "mighty atom" is as slippery in the news as he was on the gridiron.

Massachusetts State closed its basketball season in a blaze of glory. Worcester Tech was the last victim of the Statesmen, who had won twelve straight games. Such an enviable record cannot be ignored as many of the opponents played were supposedly out of the small college class.

The University of Southern California goes in for athletics in a big way. A week ago Saturday the Trojans had a basketball game, a baseball game, an ice hockey match, a tennis match, a rugby game, a horse polo game, a swimming meet, a water polo game, and a track meet. Their golf team did not have a meet, but practiced.

From the sublime to the ridiculous is seen in the versatility of several of the country's star athletes. Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette, best sprinter in the nation, is waterboy for the Hilltoppers during football season. A like position is held by Cotton Warburton, all-American football player at U. S. C., who totes the pail for the boys during basketball season. There is more than one way to get into the limelight.

BOXING AND WRESTLING BOUT BEGINS MARCH 14

The exhibition dates for boxing and wrestling are as follows: Wednesday, March 14; Friday, March 16; Wednesday, March 21; and the finals fall on Wednesday, March 28. The main stress this year is on wrestling, which will be conducted by elimination tournament. Boxing will take form in exhibition bouts, the participants matched according to weight.

The defending champions of wrestling are Bellino in the 115-pound class, Segur in the 145-pound class, Miller in the 158-pound class, and Guardi, unlimited.

As regards boxing, Alpert, Eddy, La Pierre, Mahoney, Kaplan, Pollard and Ricketson are among the contestants.

P. T. DEPARTMENT HOLDS INTERCLASS GAMES

The physical training department is planning to have a series of interclass basketball games in the physical training classes which will commence soon after Easter vacation. This was tried in the physical training classes last year and the department felt that it was a success.

CATS' BASEBALL TEAM ROUNDING INTO SHAPE DURING DAILY PRACTICES

Many Veterans and a Wealth of New Material on Squad This Year

The cage has been a busy place during the past week, due to daily baseball practice held there. Everywhere it is evident that spring and the baseball season are here. Under the directing coaches, Larry Gardner and Doc Newton, the team is slowly getting into shape. Pitchers getting into form with catchers receiving their offerings, batting and fielding practice all have their share.

Soon our old friend, Sol, will have dried the diamond, which holds in its athletic bosom fond memories of departed heroes. It will again hear the gay, care-free laughter of her ardent fans, who come to see fulfilled their expectations of a superlative Vermont team, battering down its opponents no matter what the odds may be.

Many veterans are returning from last year's nine to form the nucleus of this year's team. Capt. John Beckley and Ed Layden, who have just finished their duties on the basketball team, are ready to take up the pitching burden. Others slated for the mound are: Ed Swartz, Stretch Kirley, Red Negus, Babe Spicer, and Sandy Burnell. The catching is well taken care of by Larry Bowers and Al Cass. The appearance of Whitey Palmer at first base will strengthen the team considerably. Bobby Burns at second base is expected to retain his former speed. Degree has been working out at shortstop, but must work for that position. The outfield will probably be composed of Delfausse, Ramon, and who you will, while Andy Werner seems to be clicking at third base.

The freshmen have a player of exceptional ability in the character of S. F. Zukowski, who has been working out with the varsity and is showing remarkable capabilities.

TOURNEY SPONSORED BY ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

AFTERNOON

Hartford vs. Montpelier, 3.00 P.M.
Rutland vs. Proctor, 4.00 P.M.

EVENING

Burlington vs. Springfield, 7.30 P.M.
Spaulding vs. Mt. St. Joseph, 8.30 P.M.

The Memorial Auditorium this afternoon will be the scene of the opening act in that exciting, yearly series of contests, the high school interscholastic tournament. Interest is at a fever pitch and all day Friday enthusiasts will pour into the city from various parts of the State to support their respective teams. Eight teams have been selected by competent judges to compete and this year they are extremely well matched. When one attempts to pick a favorite from the field he immediately runs up against difficulties.

The teams representing the south are Rutland, Proctor, Springfield, Hartford and Mount St. Joseph, while Spaulding, Burlington and Montpelier uphold the honor of the north.

Springfield will undoubtedly be the big question mark of the tourney. They have a big, fast aggregation that has decisively humiliated Rutland and Hartford and has encountered little opposition anywhere on its schedule. Two weeks ago in the southern tourney they made a very poor showing and no one knows whether they are overtrained or what is the trouble.

Rutland has flashed brilliantly at times and with an attack built around Jim Cook, stellar forward and floor man as ever dangerous. Rutland has been known to spring surprises with the notable example being last year when given little chance, they came through to win the tournament.

Hartford and Proctor are outstanding in their districts. Proctor was defeated only once during the regular season and then went on to win the southern tourney. Hartford with a great pair of individuals in Falzarano and Rogosa are an offensive team and if they once get ahead in any game are almost impossible to be headed.

for Pipe Smokers

the pipe tobacco that's MILD
the pipe tobacco that's COOL

The method of preparing Granger Tobacco for pipe smoking is not like any other method now in use.

So far as we know, it is the best way ever found of taking out of tobaccos the oils that don't smoke right or taste right in a pipe.

Granger owes its extra fragrance and mildness to Wellman's Method.

The way Granger Tobacco is cut—in big flakes—helps it to smoke cool and last longer. Try it.

—folks seem to like it

Just about the nearest thing to a pouch that a package could be—it keeps the tobacco the way you want it.

A sensible package—10c.

PROFESSOR EVANS TO SPEAK WEDNESDAY AT CITY HALL AUDITORIUM

Subject of a World War in the Future Will Be Discussed by Head of History Department

Prof. Paul D. Evans of the history department of the University of Vermont will discuss the subject, "Is World War Imminent," at the City Hall Auditorium, Wednesday evening, March 14 at eight o'clock. There will be no admission charged and the public is invited.

This is the third and last of a series of lectures sponsored by the State Eugenics Survey, which was organized two years ago for the purpose of discussing world affairs.

Last Wednesday evening, March 7, Prof. L. W. Meredith of the economics department gave the second lecture on the subject, "Gold and International Affairs." In his discussion he gave a few facts about gold itself. It has always been a prized object. Indeed, at the present time all the gold in the world would make a sphere only forty feet in diameter.

Next the speaker discussed gold and silver used as monetary units, with the effect of the World War on gold. Before the war, the United States was a debtor nation, but during the war the countries of Europe bought so much food and armaments, and borrowed so much gold from the United States, that we became a creditor nation. When Europe tried to pay us back, she did not have the gold with which to do it, and we wouldn't accept produce. In this way he showed the embarrassing position into which we have been drawn.

When a country leaves a gold standard, and the value of its money depreciates, there is usually a business boom. England and France had left the gold standard, and so were able to undersell the American producers. President Roosevelt last year wanted higher prices in the United States, so he abandoned the gold standard. Since then he has depreciated the dollar to fifty-nine cents in order to keep prices up.

Professor Meredith then raised the question, "What will we do if the prosperity does not return?" He declared that we should not be too optimistic about the return of prosperity. He discussed a few policies that we might follow if our present "New Deal" does not succeed.

After the lecture an open forum was conducted. The fact that many questions were raised showed a keen interest in the subject. There will be an open forum conducted after the next lecture.

SITUATION OF GERMANY DISCUSSED AT MEETING

Mr. Hurlburt An Exchange Student to Germany Spoke at Miss Maddock's Sunday Night

At a young people's meeting at Miss Maddock's Sunday night, Rev. Roderick Hurlburt of Enosburg spoke on "The Situation in Germany." Mr. Hurlburt, who graduated from Hartford Seminary, had an exchange fellowship and spent a year in Germany attending a university in Marlborough.

In June 1931, Mr. Hurlburt was present at a celebration put on by the famous German fraternities. It was called the "celebration of the turning of the sun." The students of the different fraternities were dressed, some elaborately with plumed caps and ornate clothes, and some with colored bands on their hats and across their chests, and each group carried a fraternity flag. The groups met in a hollow square and were spoken to about the sufferings of Germany and in what way that they could help Germany regain its original power before the war. The gist of the speech was that the only way to do this work would be to have another war. Every year students gather together and are talked to in this manner. Their faces had a horrible look on them and he wondered if they would be cannon fodder.

Mr. Hurlburt then discussed the history of Germany to make clear the developments which have taken place. He mentioned the fact that Berlin is a combination of New York City, Washington and Harrisburg. He went on to say that an empire goes through three stages: (1) Nationalism, the nation of Germany over the states of Germany which is the meaning of their anthem. (2) expanding industrialism, established colonies in poor part of Africa and the South Seas and became to be regarded as a

BALLOTS WILL APPEAR IN CYNIC FOR FRIDAY

In accordance with the request to...quest of the Brown Daily Herald which is conducting a nation-wide peace poll ...American universities, the Vermont Cynic will hold such a poll on this campus Friday, March 16.

The request stated: "Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, recently stated that 'college students should take the responsibility for the direction of public opinion in international affairs.' We agree with Doctor Butler and believe that it ...absolutely imperative for college youth to assume this responsibility for their own self-preservation in these critical times when war may break out at any moment. Therefore, the Daily Herald is presenting what it believes to be a practical youth program to college throughout the United States for ratification. This program includes the following three points:

1. The immediate adherence of the United States to the Covenant of the League of Nations.

2. Nationalization and international control of the sale and manufacture of armaments.

3. Severance of all commercial relations with belligerant nations (so far as compatible with the League Covenant).

From the editorial of the Herald comes the following paragraph: "In confident prediction recently made by a leading Democratic senator that there would be a war between Russia and Japan before May 1, and that if the United States were not at it before the end of the year we would be so close to it that it would make little difference, added to the unrest caused by Nazi activities in Austria, making the probable action on the part of all peace advocates absolutely imperative. The time of crisis has arrived. We must not wait or be swallowed up in the universal holocaust that another world war, surpassing all others in horror and blood shed, would surely bring."

WOMEN FACULTY-STUDENT EVENING NEW FEATURE

Faculty Members to Appear Attired in Costumes of Their College Days

The women of the faculty and the women students will hold a joint meet Thursday evening, March 15, in the gym at 7:30. The feature of the evening will be a basketball game between the all-star faculty team and the girls' varsity team.

The faculty are getting ready their ...ments and are planning to don the costumes that they wore in the good old days when they were in college. They have also adopted the names of famous people so that the game will have more interest than otherwise.

As part of the evening's entertainment, the faculty members have all posed pictures of themselves in their ...ege attire, will be flashed on the screen ...r the members of the audience to guess ...o's who, and a prize will be given to the girl guessing the largest number of pictures correctly.

The society has also promised to entertain the girls by singing an old song that was popular among the co-eds when they were in college. There are also to be other interesting features of the evening which cannot be disclosed at this time. However, it is advised that everyone bring a pencil with her.

The finals of the girls' interclass basketball tournament will be played off as another feature of the evening. The preliminaries are being played this week so it is not yet certain which two teams will be playing that evening.

It may be of interest to some that there will be refreshments served during the evening. They will be appropriate to the occasion and will cost the small sum of five cents.

There is a great deal of enthusiasm among the faculty for this meet and it is hoped that large numbers of students will come out and enjoy the fun.

FROM THE NEWS

The Student Council at St. Lawrence last week heard the complaint from members of the faculty that students at recent house parties have shown a lack of respects toward their chaperones. Students have been careless about keeping quality exchanges, and in many cases the faculty and their wives have been forced to sit out several dances alone. Transportation has not been provided on all nights either. The injured ones threaten to strike.—Rotor.

Mr. Eaton was a member of the Alumni Council and one year was a candidate for trustee. In 1936 he received an honorary degree in civil engineering from Vermont. He also was a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Vermont's Problem in Housing Conditions

[illegible] Nearly one half of the college population at Vermont belongs to what some gentlemen chivalrously refer to as the fairer sex," there is a considerable problem involved in providing places where these 500 young women may procure lodging. This problem is more [illegible] the University administration would like to make it possible for all of these women students to live [illegible] owned by the University of [illegible] or related organizations. This, however, is not the case at present.

However two women's dormitories and three sorority houses now exist under this classification—Slade, Robinson, and Red [illegible] dormitories and the Pi Beta Phi [illegible] the Pi Beta Phi [illegible] Grassmount, the Kappa [illegible] House, and the Alpha Chi [illegible] house located across the college campus and the down town district.

[illegible] dining rooms for these [illegible] dining rooms taken care of [illegible] girls at two houses for this purpose; they are Grassmount and Robinson Hall. In each of these dining rooms a staff of student waitresses is maintained under the direction of Miss Helen B. Nichols, dietitian in charge of both these dining rooms.

At the head of both groups is a head waitress, who takes general charge of the details of management in the dining room and among the waitresses. In each group of waitresses there is also a faculty waitress whose duty it is to wait on the table which is reserved for the use of faculty members and the directors of the dormitories.

The rest of the girls are assigned each to a table; but the work is arranged so that one waitress can be spared to wash glasses and silver in the kitchen. In [illegible] each waitress spends a week in the kitchen.

Approximately one morning a week and every other Sunday morning are given each waitress as her mornings off. Sometimes the waitress is free Sunday night instead of Sunday morning. This year a new plan has been tried which gives all of the waitresses a chance to rest Sunday night. Sunday night supper is served in the respective dormitories instead of in the two dining rooms. The girls serve themselves and thus obviate the necessity of waitresses. Many dormitory residents find this picnic supper very agreeable.

The girls apply to Miss [illegible] positions as waitresses early in [illegible] preceding year before school closes [illegible] chosen to work for one semester. [illegible] they continue to work for the [illegible] semester, although this does not [illegible] follow. An attempt is made to [illegible] students more in need of [illegible] who are also the more efficient [illegible]

Girls who wish work in the [illegible] room for next year may now [illegible] plication for such work to Miss [illegible] the dietitian.

Invitation Given Public to Play Any Kind of Cards at Vermonters' Club House

All kinds of cards may be played. If anyone wishes to make up a table of four beforehand, she may. However, arrangements will be made for those who come alone. Club members are to arrange tables of four.

Each of the four classes in the Home Economics Club are putting on [illegible] for the benefit of the club. The sophomores have taken this card party as theirs. Esther Sinclair '36 and Marjorie Cook '36 have charge of it.

The last three dances of the year at Carnegie have had deficits. The last one, the Junior Prom, one of the two major formals thus far, was in the red more than $150. An editorial in the Tartan points out that there were twenty-three complimentaries and a total attendance of ninety couples. These complimentaries are not the ones given to chaperones etc. They represent a ticket sale loss of $92. Moreover, its seems strange to us at Bates that a college can afford to pay $325 for an orchestra for ninety couples.

SPAULDING VS. PROCTOR IN THE FINAL GAME

Spaulding 34—Proctor 30

Spaulding successfully stood off a threatening Proctor rally to win the senior tourney. The Granite City boys had been considered the "dark horse" of the tourney and due credit must be given them for coming through.

A huge crowd packed the large Auditorium hall to witness the final game. The crowd was very partisan and strongly booed and cheered the officials on several occasions.

John Angwin of Barre, who electrified both afternoon and evening crowds with his sensational shooting, was chosen by the committee for the award given to the player chosen as most valuable to his team.

GAME

Spaulding completely swept the smaller Proctor team off their feet in the first half, uncorking a dazzling offense and a strong defense to baffle the Proctor club. The score was tied, however, at the end of the first period, 4-4. In the second period Angwin got underway and began to drop in baskets from every conceivable angle of the floor. Barre jumped into a 19-9 lead as Angwin picked up eleven points. With the score 24-9 in the second half, Proctor began to go places. Illinski began to feed Olsen, the versatile right forward of the Marble Town quintet. He quickly made four baskets and at the end of the third period the Spaulding lead had considerably dwindled with the score 26-19.

The last chukker was a wild scoring battle with Illinski and Gyorfi of Proctor dropping in shots from the middle of the floor and George and Larson keeping pace with equally thrilling shots. The game ended with Proctor desperately attempting to close up the small gap of victory.

The huge crowd from Barre gave the team a terrific ovation as the game ended. The Barre team started the season slowly and rounded into form, reaching its peak during the two days of the tourney. Angwin's work on the offense and George's and Watson's play in the backcourt featured Spaulding's championship advance.

For Proctor Olsen was outstanding. He played aggressive ball and when not feeding found time to pick up thirteen points to take scoring honors.

Hartford 38—Springfield 32

Hartford, in winning the consolation contest, were in the lead all the way but several times Springfield threatened their lead. At the end of the first period the score was tied 7-7 but with Louis Falzarano playing brilliant ball the White River quintet jumped into a 21-12 lead at the half.

However, the fight of Springfield prevailed in the third period and with Walco and Krupsky leading the offense brought the score to 27-26 at the close of the third period.

Hartford came back and completely outplayed the larger Springfield team throughout the final quarter. Captain Regione dropped in twelve points and L. Falzarano fourteen to take honors for Hartford while Walco, Warnick and Krupsky played nice ball for Springfield.

The Barre team used a slow break combined with a blocking offense centered around Bottiggi and Angwin. The small forward threw in five baskets and one foul conversion for 11 points while Bottiggi dropped in four goals on perfect block plays. Ferraro, lanky center for the Rutland team, made two goals and four free throws for M. S. J. scoring honors.

Proctor 26—Hartford 20

Proctor, in repeating its southern tourney win over Hartford, completely upset the dope in outclassing the White River team all the way, being never headed. Proctor led 6-4 at the end of the first period and 14-10 at the half and maintained the lead, making it 24-15 at the close of the third period. Gyorfi of Proctor put on a brilliant shooting exhibition, throwing in goals from every angle of the floor and from every conceivable position. With Hartford leading 8-6 early in the game he got into action, dropping in three in a row from the middle of the floor before Hartford could pull themselves together.

In the final period Proctor slowed up a bit, nursing a nine-point lead and Hartford crept up a bit. Olsen, however, cinched the game in the final minutes when he slipped away for a one-handed shot from the side that took the heart from Hartford. The Spaulding High of Barre emerged the victor of the state boys tournament Saturday night. Proctor, the runner-up, did well in scoring so many points against a taller and heavier outfit.

Those who would have predicted last week that Spaulding would be the eventual winner, would have been jeered in their capacities as forecasters.

We were surprised to see the Hartford and Springfield quintets fall by the wayside.

Undoubtedly the SAE's were happy over the outcome. We're sorry the Rutland boys can't crow any more.

We believe we noticed a few Norwich spies at the tournament. Possibly Professor Butterfield had better compete for likely freshman hoop prospects.

This football coach situation is beginning to be a source of irritation. The last-minute story is that no one is certain as to what it's all about.

Although trodding on dangerous ground and leaving ourselves open to ridicule, we have the affront to predict that Saba will be the next football coach.

The boxing and wrestling tournament starts tomorrow. This type of sport has aroused quite some interest here in the past few years as was evidenced by the gallery present last year.

Vermont's former reputation as a crack rifle team contender is being upheld this year. The team is shooting its best record in three years.

DEAN JENNE SPECIFIES INDIVIDUAL INTERVIEW FOR COURSE ENTRANCE

Under the chairmanship and direction of Dr. J. N. Jenne, dean of the College of Medicine University of Vermont the Committee on Admissions to the Medical College is scheduling individual interviews to be held during the week of March 12 and the week following, with all applicants for admission in September, 1934. Applicants who apply later than March 12-24 will be considered and accepted so far as can be done, but it is desired that all students who intend to apply for admission to the Medical College next fall arrange at once for an interview with the committee to be held on some date between March 12-24, if possible. The schedule for the interviews during this period is being arranged by Prof. Hovey Jordan, secretary of the committee, to whom request should be made for an appointment. If it is impossible for any applicant not attending the University of Vermont to arrange for an interview during the period above it is particularly desired that he send his letter of application to Dean Jenne at once in order that provision can be made for an interview at some date in the near future. All applicants who are pre-medical students at the University of Vermont must register for their interviews on or before March 12 on a schedule posted in the Science Hall.

In selecting students for admission to the College of Medicine the committee gives preference to properly qualified students who are residents of Vermont, or who are pre-medical students at the University of Vermont, or to those whose parents are Vermont graduates. The preference accorded Vermont residents is not restricted to those pre-medical students who are studying at the University of Vermont, but applies to any Vermont resident who is completing his pre-medical preparation in an approved college. To date all students in these groups who, in the judgment of the committee, were properly qualified for the study and practice of medicine have been accommodated. If there are any vacancies after accommodating the above students, they are filled by non-residents from other colleges.

In admitting students to the Medical College the committee bases its judgment of the qualifications of the applicant upon his scholastic grades, which must be creditable, secondly, upon the mark he obtained in the medical aptitude test given under the auspices of the Association of American Medical Colleges of which the University of Vermont is a member; and, thirdly, upon the results of the personal interview. Dean Jenne states that this method of admission as judged by the records of students so admitted, seems to show that it is fully as satisfactory as any method yet employed by medical colleges.

ABELL ANNOUNCES FINAL CHANGES IN SCHEDULE

Baseball Team to Play Every Day Except Sunday for 12 Days During Southern Trip

Two final changes in the University of Vermont baseball schedule for 1934 were announced today by Graduate Manager S. C. Abell.

The open date on the southern trip, April 9, will be filled by a game with George Washington University, Washington, D. C. This game, on a Monday, will follow the contest against Navy at Annapolis the preceding Saturday, and will be followed by the Princeton and Army games, April 10 and 11, winding up the trip. From the time of the first game in the South March 31 the team will play every day except Sunday for twelve days.

The Cornell game, scheduled at Burlington as a part of the Commencement program, has been cancelled by Cornell upon insistence by the Cornell alumni that their team play at home at that time. If a game is played by Vermont on that date, June 15, it will probably be against a younger alumni team and the regular alumni game the following day will be against the old-timers.

Owls—L. Davis '34, D. White '35, P. Andress '36, H. Rubinbottel '36.

The defending champions are the Independents who won last year's contest with record-breaking speed while the Kappa Sigma team was the runner-up. The Independents should have an even better team this year than they had last year because they have lost only one man from their record breaking line up.

The Phi Mu Delta and Phi Delta Theta teams have not been chosen yet as they are planning to hold a trial before their first contest and pick their team then. The Phi Mu Delts will probably have Earl Morse on their team and possibly R. Edmunds, the captain of the freshman cross country team.

There is no possibility of recovery under NRA as now constituted.

Urge Law Barring Militant Uniforms

Washington, D. C.—A law to prevent militant societies and provocative bands from wearing shirts or uniforms to disturb the peace, was suggested this week to certain congressmen, following the example of Sir John Gilmour, British secretary of home affairs. Since Sir Oswald Mosley started his private army, numerous riots have taken place in England, eleven in the first six months of 1933 and twenty-two in the second half of the year.

VERMONT REPRESENTED IN N. E. MODEL LEAGUE OF NATIONS AT HARVARD

Burrows and Workman Attend Conference on March 8, 9 and 10—Topics Discussed

Vermont was represented at the New England Model League of Nations held March 8, 9 and 10 by G. H. Burrows and W. Workman. The model league was held at Harvard and Radcliffe colleges in Cambridge, Mass. Each college delegation represented the delegates of a member country of the real league. The Vermont representatives represented Uruguay, and were also members of the special committee on German refugees. More than four hundred delegates representing over thirty-five New England colleges were present.

Thursday night was devoted to the registration of delegates and assignments of rooms. All delegates were housed in the college dormitories and the Hotel Continental.

All day Friday was devoted to meetings of committees I, II, V and VI of the regular committees and the specially appointed committee on German refugees. Committees III and IV did not meet. These meetings were informal round-table discussions whose purpose was to draw up resolutions to present to the regular assembly. The committees are: Legal and constitutional questions, technical organizations, political subjects, general humanitarian questions, and the German refugee question.

Committee I, which discussed as its topic "Reorganization of the League," was headed by Irwin M. Tobin of Clark University. The technical committee, number II, was headed in its discussion of "The Economic and Financial Reconstruction of Eastern Europe" by Edward Geremia of Rhode Island State College. With Miss Barbara Meaker of Connecticut College as its chairman, committee V considered the "Opium Convention." Assembly committee VI, the political committee, took up two subjects, the first, "Administration of Mandates" with Miss Betty Locke of Smith College as its chairman, and the second, "Intellectual Cooperation Under Miss Margaret Thompson of Mount Holyoke College.

The Committee on League Reorganization submitted a program of five major points:

1. Position of Monroe Doctrine in league covenant.
2. To change equality of states.
3. Removing covenant from Versailles Treaty.
4. Revision of treaties which are no longer applicable.
5. Advisability of council appointing committee composed of representatives

JUNIOR WEEK PLAY TO BE DECIDED UPON NEXT TUESDAY AT MEETING

Dates for Tryouts Tentatively Set for March 26 and 27—Name Announced Later

Next Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock there will be a joint meeting of Masque and Sandal and Wig and Buskin to select a play for Junior Week. At this time various plays which have been read as possibilities for the Junior Week play will be considered. It is hoped that by a method of elimination a suitable play may be decided on.

The type of play which will be produced at Junior Week this year will be different from those which have been produced in the past years. There will be a departure from the light farcical comedy and in its place a play which contains a more serious dramatic characterization. The dramatic societies feel that this type of play will instill a better interest in dramatics at the University.

The name of the play decided upon will be announced in next week's issue of the CYNIC. It is expected that the cast will be large enough to allow students of both sexes a better chance to show their ability in dramatics. It is also hoped that by using a play which contains more dramatic appeal, a greater chance of individual characterization may be had. Thus, anyone who has any ability whatever in dramatics should not fail to try out for the play.

The dates of tryouts are tentatively set for March 26 and 27. It is possible that these dates will have to be changed according upon the time necessary to obtain the books. Definite dates will be announced in later issues.

New Mentor to Coach Two Sports in 1934

Former Backfield Coach at University of Kansas and University of Illinois Signs Three-year Contract; Begins Duties September 1, 1934; Has Had Much Experience

John P. Sabo, Illinois '22, former backfield coach at the University of Kansas and the University of Illinois, was appointed head coach of football and basketball at Vermont at a meeting of the Athletic Council, Wednesday. Sabo's contract runs for three years beginning September 1, 1934, during which he is to be head coach of football and basketball, assistant coach of baseball and an instructor in the department of physical education.

The appointment of Sabo brought to an end a search for a coach which has lasted over three months, occasioned by the resignation of John H. Burke, gridiron mentor here for the last two years, last December. During the past three months numerous candidates have been mentioned, but it was only last Saturday that the name of Sabo was circulated about as the likely prospect. Such names as Albie Booth of Yale, Austin Tate of Lehigh, Cannell and Holbrook of Dartmouth, Tom Keady of Western Reserve, Goff of Rhode Island, Koski of Notre Dame, and Laird of Norwich were seriously under consideration from time to time.

Sabo, a graduate of Illinois in 1922, had a distinguished career in intercollegiate athletics, playing halfback on the Big Ten championship eleven of 1918 and participating on the teams of 1920 and 1921. He also won letters in basketball and was a pitcher and infielder on the Illinois nine.

As a student of the four great systems of football, the Warner, Notre Dame, Zuppke and Michigan styles of play, Sabo has been closely associated with the leading figures in sportdom. After graduating from Illinois, he was appointed assistant football coach at the University of Rochester where, on arrival, he took direct charge of the eleven at the suggestion of Doctor Fauver, director of athletics. The team won five, tied two and lost two for the 1922 season.

Leaving Rochester, he took up the athletic reins the following year at East High School, Aurora, Ill., and then was named backfield coach at the University of Kansas for three years. Here he also coached basketball and baseball, working under Dr. F. C. Allen, leading hoop authority in the Middle West. As football mentor he was associated with Gippon, now assistant director of athletics and assistant football coach at Michigan.

In 1928 he was called back to his alma mater, the University of Illinois, where

VERMONT DEBATERS TO INVADE SOUTHERN STATES DURING EASTER RECESS

Trip to Include Sixteen Major Institutions, Nine States, and Cover 4,000 Miles of Territory

The University of Vermont debating team will leave Saturday, March 24, on its annual spring vacation jaunt into foreign territory this year, encountering sixteen colleges and universities and traversing nine states which will include the southernmost university in the United States, the University of Miami at Coral Gables, Fla. The team will consist of four debaters not yet definitely chosen and will be prepared on both sides of three propositions and will on three evenings meet two universities at the same time. The debaters will on these occasions divide into two teams of two each so as to take care of the heavy schedule.

The questions which will be handled by the Vermont debaters are (1) resolved that the powers of the President of the United States should be substantially increased as a settled policy, this question is known as the Pi Kappa Delta topic (2) that the essential features of the NRA should be adopted as a permanent policy of the United States Government, (3) that the United States should adopt the essential features of the British system of radio control and operation. The team will debate both sides of the NRA and presidential powers question but will uphold only the negative of the radio question. Two debates will be broadcast over the radio.

Leave Burlington, Saturday, March 24.
Saturday, March 24
St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y. Negative, radio question, three judge decision, to be broadcast over Station WCAD, Canton, N. Y.
Monday, March 26:
Pennsylvania State College, State College, Pa. Negative, presidential powers question, audience shift of opinion decision, to be held before local Order of Odd Fellows.

COLEMAN JENNINGS TO SPEAK HERE SUNDAY

Mr. Coleman Jennings of Washington, leader in the Toc-H Movement of America, is to be the guest speaker of the Young People's Society of St. Paul's Church Sunday night. Mr. Jennings [illegible] has time is lecturing in the various colleges throughout the country and [illegible] speaker at Burlington before. A cordial invitation is extended by the Rev. GASTRONOMICAL GAIETIES AT MASS MEETING

Comical Skit to Be Given by Thirteen Students at Weekly Get-together

The committee on mass meetings, in their effort to provide variety and to please the largest number of students, has secured the help of Masque and Sandal in preparing the program for tomorrow [illegible] March 17. Under the direction of its president Alice McConnell, this society is busily preparing a short and extremely light skit, entitled "Gastronomical Gaieties," which will be presented by a very competent cast, practically all of whom have had some previous experience in college dramatics. But this production is in no way similar to the regular college plays. One of the chief objections to the mass meeting programs that has reached the ears of the committee is that they are too serious after a solid week of lecturing, they say, one can certainly not be expected to hurry to the gym on Saturday morning to hear something dull and educational. As an answer to this objection the committee presents "Gastronomical Gaieties."

The cast:

Nerts, the messenger boy of the system ..... Thatch Hubbard
Cicero Jones, his the dirty work ..... Lenora Lattice, a delicate and refined young miss ..... Mary Casey
Liar Oyle, an old smoothie ..... Bart Costello
Paul Pickle, a sour and callow youth ..... Howie Abbott

A PROGRAM FOR PEACE

The [illegible] gentlemen recently made by a leading Democratic senator that there seems to be a war between Japan and Russia before May 1 and that if the United States were not in it before the end of the year we would be so close to it that it would make little difference. [illegible] aroused by Nazi activities in Austria makes immediate action on the part of all peace-loving countries imperative. The time of crisis has arrived. We must act now or be swallowed up in the greatest holocaust that another world war surpassing all others in horror and bloodshed would surely bring.

Mass protests and demonstrations against the futility of war will no longer be able to stem the militaristic wave that is spreading over the world. We are faced by stern reality and by a theoretical conflict that might contribute to the distant and hazy future. Rights [illegible] words and it is up to those who desire peace to offer a definite program. It is fitting that we, the college students, last youth of America who are our dreams and long cherished ambitions must be ruthless to smoke and powder, we who will have to bear the burden of another war, propose a clear and practical course of action.

Much of the blame for the present world crisis can be attributed to the failure of the United States to join the League of Nations. We who are to engage today can look back to the events of 1919 free from the partisanship and party political precedents that prevented the United States from supporting the first international organ for world peace. Although most citizens of the League structure has caused the League of Nations to be ineffectual in its efforts to preserve peace. The League of Nations without the United States is like an automobile without [illegible]. Japan [illegible] as it refused to flout the League's authority when the time arose, knows it has to fear. Russia and the United States were not members. Germany would have never dared to walk out of a League that included the United States. This same fundamental defect in the League's membership will undoubtedly prevent it from dealing effectively with the present crisis.

In strengthening the Good Neighbor Policy President Roosevelt removed one of the long-standing obstacles to American foreign policy. If the new deal in foreign relations is to be carried to its logical conclusion the United States should resume its rightful responsibilities as a member of the League of Nations and World Court, and thereby recognize the existence of that [illegible] world in which we live all [illegible] and that isolation is no longer possible. The League will not bring about a Utopian world, but it is the only organ of world government in the present international anarchy, and as such the United States should do everything in its power to increase its efficiency. The immediate adherence of the United States to the covenant of the League of Nations might not insure peace, but it would certainly do much to alleviate the present crisis by making the League machinery more effective.

It is almost unbelievable that in our present state of civilization human society [illegible] should still be an exploitable commodity. At the moment we [illegible] and subsequently halted all efforts to stop the public [illegible] at war. The vested interests—the private manufacturers of munitions and armaments—have wrecked more than one disarmament conference and have always been extremely active in encouraging war scares and fomenting war crises. Their propaganda has done much to prevent a settlement of the current conflict in South America between Paraguay and Bolivia. Although openly professing to be neutral patriots during the world war, these men sold arms [illegible] to both allies and central powers. British soldiers were shot down by bullets manufactured in their own country. The munitions ring knows no ethics and its only creed is that of monetary gain. Only a few weeks ago it was revealed that one company was realizing as much as 80 percent profit on the sale of supplies to the army. If the United States must have instruments of death and destruction, at least it should not allow anyone to amass a fortune by their manufacture and sale. As long as there are people who will profit by war, there can be no hope of even a temporary peace. The Roosevelt administration has not hesitated to regulate the banking and railroad industries, yet it has done nothing to check the insidious activities of the munitions ring. The ring must be destroyed at once by the immediate nationalization of the arms and munitions industry, and this step must be followed by an attempt to obtain some sort of international control of the manufacture and sale of the tools of war, if we are to have any hopes for peace.

In spite of these efforts a war does break out in Europe or Asia, there is still one hope of salvation left to the United States—the complete severance of all commercial and financial relations with the belligerent powers in so far as compatible with obligations incurred under the League Convenant. Fortunately, the United States is so situated both economically and geographically that it is able to do this. The embargo undoubtedly would be a source of great hardship to a few individual, but the benefit to the American people as a whole would be worth the sacrifice. Disregarding the loss of human lives and the morally disintegrating influence of war, another world war would place a far greater financial burden on the United States than the complete loss of foreign trade. Exclusive of pensions, the world war cost the United States 35 billion 500 million dollars in the two years between 1917 and 1919; in 1932 and 1933 American foreign trade was worth about 3 billion 300 million dollars. In other words a war costs almost twelve times as much as can possibly be realized from foreign trade. The danger of the United States becoming involved in a foreign war would be greatly lessened if her merchant ships were not left free to roam the seas.

American youth is no longer willing to die to make the world safe for J. P. Morgan and the Bethlehem Steel Company. Empty slogans and meaningless symbols will not again lure them off to war to protect big business. Inasmuch as the United States has no territorial ambitions, our only conceivable reasons for entering a foreign war are commercial ones. This type of war can be avoided if the President proclaims to the world that in the future the United States will have no commercial dealings of any nature with belligerent nations.

In a recent speech, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, stated that "The future of any international accord lies in the hands of the collegiate youth of the country," and he urged that "they take the responsibility for the direction of public opinion." Thus, then, is the program of youth: (1) The immediate adherence of the United States to the covenant of the League of Nations. (2) Nationalization and international control of the manufacture and sale of armaments. (3) Severance of all commercial relations with belligerent nations so far as compatible with the League Covenant. These preliminary moves in the campaign against war must be made at once. This is the foundation on which we must build our peace framework.

In matters relating to war the voice of youth should be supreme, for it is youth and youth alone that will have to carry the greatest load. By following this program which is neither unworkable nor utopian, the government would reassure us that it is willing to do everything in its power to prevent war. If the American government does nothing more than it has to date to stave off the impending catastrophe, it cannot and should not expect the cooperation of youth in any war that might arise from its criminal negligence.—Brown Daily.

GIRL RESERVE CLUB HOLDS MEETING

Thursday night Miss Maddock, Elizabeth Rich '35 and Ruth Barron '36, went out to Rock Point to attend the first meeting of the Girl Reserve Club. Temporary officers were elected and several projects were discussed. The girls are interested in dramatics and would like to do some work in this field. Just at present they are working on an Easter Pageant to be given Easter. At the meeting they decided that they would like some funny plays and the president appointed three people to take charge of three plays which Miss Maddock will send out to them. The three girls in charge of the plays have to read them and pick the cast. The work is to be done all by themselves.

The girls also like to sing and when the Y. W. C. A. students go out there they teach the girls new songs. Next week Miss Maddock and some other students will visit Rock Point to see how they are progressing.

WRIGHT OUTLINES PLANS V. C. A. DEPUTATION WORK

Purpose to Stimulate Personal Development of Members

Wednesday afternoon there was held the first meeting of students interested in deputation work, at which program plans for the semester were discussed. The next meeting will be held tonight at seven o'clock in the V. C. A. office. Anyone is invited who is at all interested in this work whether they have had experience or not.

R. S. Wright '35, this year's director, explained the purpose of the semester's schedules, and pointed out the various themes and methodologies that had been suggested. He quoted from the program of a similar organization which is operating in Boston, and is composed of students from Northeastern, Wellesley, Harvard, Simmons, Radcliffe and M. I. T. Their purpose he proposed to make Vermont's purpose, since their organization was well organized and successful. The plan follows:

To stimulate personal development of members through (a) fellowship, (b) criticism, (c) presenting one's ideas, particularly religious ideas in public.

2. To present to church and community groups the students' attitude on religion and questions which pertain to the creation of a new world.

3. To stimulate a new interest on the part of the local young people in (a) religion, (b) education, (c) the part that young people may play wherever they may live, in their own spiritual development.

Churches are visited on a week end beginning Saturday and running until Sunday evening. On Saturday night, dinner with the young people of the church (easily omitted if desired) with introduction of team members afterward and carefully organized program of games. On Sunday, entire charge is taken of the church services, with three ten-minute talks on the subject for the year. Charge is taken of the Bible School and sometimes of classes. In the evening, the plan of the morning is followed, with another subject especially for youth.

PAN-HELLENIC COUNCIL SPONSORS STUDENTS' DAY

With the hope that the students of Vermont will become better linked with the Fleming Museum, Pan-Hellenic Council is sponsoring students' day which will be held at the Fleming Museum Art Gallery Friday afternoon, March 16, from 3.00 to 5.30.

The exhibit shows the development of painting from Giotto to the present time and consists of specially selected photographs from the Carnegie art collection, a recent gift to the museum. At four o'clock Mrs. Mable Mills of the art department will give a talk, calling attention to the most worthy pictures and comment on their outstanding characteristics. During the afternoon tea will be served by members of Pan-Hellenic. Special attention should be paid to the fact that both men and women receive this invitation and that one may come at any time during the afternoon.

The interfraternity council, after having their attention called to the fact that a connecting link was lacking between the museum and the students as a whole, decided by this students' day to rouse the interest of the college students. This exhibit is a survey of art from its crudest beginnings to the highly developed art of today and is termed by the Art Association as very worth while and unusual. Members of the Art Association selected the pictures from the large Carnegie collection which is considered representative of the history of art.

"It is an education in an afternoon, the pictures are so well selected," a member of the faculty has remarked.

If this students' day is successful, others will be held during the year and next year. Pan-Hellenic wishes to make students' day a regular occurrence throughout the year and in the future.

ROBINSON HALL DORM RECEIVES VISITOR

Inmates Are Thrilled and Excited at the Opportunity

One night not so long ago the quiet precincts of Robinson Hall were thrown into an uproar by the visit of an inebriate. He was apparently a harmless sort of fellow, much muddled by drink, who had lost his direction, for certainly he would never have voluntarily visited a girls' dormitory in his condition.

The inmates of Robinson were just thrilled to death at all the excitement and they hung breathlessly from windows and raced up and down corridors to get a better view of the poor unfortunate. He knocked at the door, evidently to ascertain where he was, and although his knock was not answered he was greeted by a shower of dimes from the second story windows which must have frightened him, for he staggered around to the back of the building.

Immediately there was a grand rush, the front windows were deserted and everyone dashed toward the back of the house in an effort to see him again. (One would think that this were the first drunk these innocents had encountered by their actions.) The man, thus driven departed for Redstone, leaving behind him heads stuck from every window, and frantic cries of "Did you see him, girls?"

By this time someone had called the police force, and soon the man was taken into custody and driven off. That's all there is to the story, not very exciting in itself, but you should have seen the turmoil it threw Robinson into.

WOMEN'S RIFLE TEAM DROPS BELOW 500 FIRST TIME IN TWO SEASONS

For the first time in two seasons the University of Vermont women's rifle team dropped below 500 last week in its match with Sargent School of Cambridge, Mass. Its score was 499. In all other previous matches in which ten girls fired five high to count, at least five of the team have turned in perfect targets.

Against the University of Nebraska the same week, the Vermont girls scored 500, and in the ten-place match against the University of Wichita, in which fifteen girls took part, the score was 998.

Against Sargent School Carolyn Cabot, Woodstock; Wilma Nelson, Ryegate; Mary Poling, Hillsboro, N. H.; and Daisy Putnam, Springfield, shot 100's, and Elizabeth Collins, Brandon, shot 99. Against Nebraska, Christine Brown, Putnamville; Carolyn Hill, Shrewsbury, Helen Oliver, Dorchester, Mass.; Marion Parker, Essex Junction, and Daisy Putnam shot 100's. In the Wichita match, the nine girls above mentioned and Kathryn LeBaron, Morrisville, '99, made the total 998.

Other girls firing were Roberta Thompson, Colchester, and Mildred Vosburgh, South Burlington, 99; Genevieve Hutchins, Tupper Lake, N. Y.; Dorothy Coldfield, Burlington; and Esther Sinclair, Essex Junction, 97.

VERMONT WINTER SPORTS CLUB PRESENTS FILM OF 1932 OLYMPICS

BOOK EXCHANGE PROVES POPULAR WITH STUDENTS

Variety of Both Fiction and Non-fiction Available at the University Book Store

Since the lending library has adopted the new name of the "Book Exchange," there has been a 100 percent increase in the circulation. New books are constantly being added to the collection which are of interest to the students and the faculty at large.

Under the new system, by making the payment of seventy-five cents, one book may be taken which may be exchanged as often as desired. A fine of three cents on new books is charged for each day after the week. Old books may be kept as long as two weeks, after which a fine of one cent per day is imposed. For those not desiring to pay the seventy-five cent fee, books may be borrowed at the rate of three cents a day. From observation the payment of the regular fee is more satisfactory to the student.

The highest quality novels are selected by Miss Barney from the best of the latest novels. Biographies, travel books and a variety of non-fiction literature are available. There is a very complete list of the senior required reading. Any of these books may be reserved at the request of the student.

Many students are not aware of the opportunities presented in this exchange and are not enthusiastic about the idea. This defect is trying to be amended by urging the professors to recommend the books in his field which are excellent for outside reading. It is felt that once the students become aware of the advantages of the Book Exchange its popularity will be permanently established. Although many of the latter books are of a technical nature they are written in such a way as to be interesting to the average reader.

... is a large supply are the most interesting stories which are being written at the present time and are selected with the greatest care.

The success of this new enterprise depends upon the earnest cooperation of the students and faculty as they are the ones who are deriving the benefit. It ... of the unfortunate ... be overcome ...

RIFLE TEAM LOSES TO NORWICH CADETS

Merchant, Behringer, Darden, Ross and Gibson Shoot For Vermont

Last Saturday morning several cadets arrived in Burlington from Norwich, with their guns over their shoulders eager for the blood of the Catamount rifle team. And after an exciting afternoon, passed on the rifle range, they turned happily homeward with a narrow victory ... points. They shot a score of 1,330 points out of a possible 1,500 while the Vermont team scored 1,324 points. At noon the Norwich men were the guests of various members of the Vermont team at their fraternity houses.

This was an important match for both teams. Earlier in the season Captain Craig's team won in an intercollegiate postal match with the cadets with a much superior score. Later, on February 17, the Vermont sharpshooters invaded the military school but were unable to outshoot the determined Norwich team. The scores of this contest were 1,294 points for the Norwich men and 1,282 points for the Vermont team. Last Saturday's shoulder to shoulder match showed a decided improvement in the scores of both teams.

Seven men shot for each team and the scores of the high five were counted. The two teams were fairly well matched and there was much excitement throughout the afternoon as the two scores remained nearly even during the entire match.

The Vermont team has had the high scorer in each of the matches which she has shot with Norwich. Darden was high scorer in the match at Northfield and Merchant was high-scorer in the latter match, Saturday with a score of 247 points.

The individual scores of the contest were as follows:

A large number attended the meeting held in the large room in Morrill Hall. After the interesting address by Dean Hills the business part of the meeting was held in charge of the president W. A. Peters '36.

The evening was brought to a close with refreshments and discussion by the members.

CONSOLATION TOURNEY CANCELLED THIS YEAR

The proposed consolation ... basketball tourney to be held this week has been cancelled because of a lack of interest. The teams which were defeated in the preliminary games of the inter-fraternity league were to be offered an opportunity to determine the best of the worst. However since many of the teams were evidently indisposed the tournament has been called off.

SABO NAMED COACH FOR SEASON OF 1934

he coached the backfield in football acted as Zuppke's chief scout, instructed courses in football and basketball, both fundamentals and advanced strategy, and handled the freshman basketball and baseball teams for five years. During the fall of 1933 Sabo transferred his duties to Northwestern, where he was backfield coach under Dick Hanley.

Sabo has also had wide educational experience in sports, taking his B.S. from Illinois in education, majoring in education and physical instruction and, at the present time, has completed the resident requirements for a master's degree in education. He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa, honorary graduate educational society. He is thirty-four years of age, married, and father of a six-year-old son.

Highly recommended by his contemporaries, Sabo also comes here backed by Fritz Crisler, head coach at Princeton, and a number of learned sport authorities in the Midwest. "John has a good personality, high character and is the type which will work in harmony with his superiors," says Zuppke of Illinois.

Dick Hanley, coach of Northwestern, speaks of Sabo as being "particularly fortunate in having been associated with the Illinois football system under Zuppke, the Michigan system under Cappon at Kansas, and the Warner system with our team here. Consequently, I believe that he has as broad an experience with the various types of football taught in the country as any man with whom I am associated. This experience should enable him to select the system of play most adaptable to the material which he has on hand and to coach it efficiently."

FRESHMAN DEBATERS MEET MIDDLEBURY

Wednesday evening the freshman debate team met the Middlebury freshmen at Middlebury, in a non-decision debate. The question which was used is "Resolved, that instalment buying is detrimental to the American people." The Vermont team upheld the negative side of the question.

The speakers for Middlebury were Mr. C. Harvi, Mr. R. Pickard, and Mr. K. MacFadyen. Mr. Harvi opened the debate, defining the terms, and presenting the affirmative case. Mr. F. Timmerman, Mr. H. Stanley, Mr. A. H. Ross, and Mr. R. N. Saxby spoke for the negative. The debate was a close and interesting one.

During the week of April 15, the Vermont freshmen will meet the Dartmouth freshmen here. The Vermont team will uphold the negative of the Presidential Powers question.

RIFLE TEAM TO FIRE AGAINST WEST POINT

The University of Vermont rifle team leaves Friday night, March 16, by bus for West Point, N. Y., to fire a shoulder-to-shoulder match with the United States Military Academy, Saturday. The match will be fired according to NRA regulations. Men making the trip are: Donahue '34, captain, Merchant '36, Churchill '35, Behringer '35, Williams '35, Darden '35, Ross '35, Gibson '36, Gould, manager, Med. '37, Captain Craig, coach.

Women Rout College Doorman

New York, N. Y.—Four thousand Clark Gable fans battled Sidney Adler, collegiate doorman of the Capitol Theatre here. Adler was rescued by four squads of policemen. Clark Gable was here in person and the hero-worshipping females grappled with the doorman who is six feet four. The casualties numbered lost handbags, compacts, buttons, gloves, several chic French hats and gold braid from the doorman's uniform.

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports Editor

The appointment of John P. Sabo as head coach of football and basketball receives our hearty endorsement. We know of no other candidate who is as well qualified to accept the position as is Sabo.

We extend our sincere congratulations and wish for him support in Mr. Sabo the sports department of the Cynic will do all in its power to aid the new coach in renewing spirit and cooperation in athletics.

The opinion among those "in the know" is that if it is possible to return to Vermont the prestige in sports as it had decades ago, Sabo is the one man to do it.

Capt.-elect George Red Cook of football comments on Sabo as follows: "In my estimation he is by far the best man for the job. His previous experience should prove invaluable to us."

Here we wish to quote the Alumni Weekly on the situation which says "No coach is likely to rest easy on his pillow at Vermont until a new spirit takes possession of the men who play the game and not only irresponsibility towards training but fraternity jealousies, individual indifference, lack of cooperation with the coaching staff and a few other unsavory conditions go under the flatiron."

Although there will not be spring football practice this year, the boys will start training the first of September in order to be conditioned for the starting game.

We wish to correct a typographical error which appeared in the last issue. We predicted Sabo as the next coach. The typesetters thought it was Saba, student football star, whom we referred to. Thus not only was our prediction undermined, but Ed Saba was put in an embarrassing situation. Our apologies, Ed!

Although out of season in our references to football, we realize that such a situation will not be presented to us for another three years.

The Delts and Kappa Sigs were the victors in the first round of the interfraternity relays. We especially noticed the fine running form displayed by Foote of the Delts.

FIRST OF WRESTLING SERIES HELD WEDNESDAY

Fair-sized Audience Turns Out to Witness Grappling Exhibition Between Lower Classes

The first of a series of wrestling bouts took place Wednesday afternoon, March 14, in the gymnasium. Much interest was shown, a big male audience turning out, but the fair sex had but one representative.

The first two bouts were in the 125-pound class. Densmore and White tangled in the first bout. White had the height and reach over Densmore, but Densmore had plenty of fight and the bout resulted in a draw at the end of ten minutes. In the overtime period White got a fall on Densmore in 2 minutes 42 seconds of wrestling.

The second struggle in the 125-pound class was between Kaplan and Davis. Kaplan started out with a bang but fell into the clutches of the more aggressive Davis. The decision was in favor of Davis with a time advantage of 1 minute 33 seconds.

The next two bouts were in the 135-pound class, and the first of these consisted of Bristol and Peters. Throughout the bout Peters fell a victim to Bristol's body holds and as a result lost the decision. The time advantage of the victor was 4 minutes 27 seconds.

In the next 135-pound bout M. Levine was paired with J. Lightfoot. Lightfoot did not line up to his name when Levine made short work of him and pinned his shoulders to the mat in 1 minute 31 seconds.

Hale and Stetson started off the first of the two 145-pound matches with a bang. Stetson proved his experience over the smaller Hale by his use of a trick scissors hold. This hold caused Hale plenty of trouble and Stetson won the decision with a time advantage of 4 minutes 58 seconds.

The next 145-pound bout was the slowest of the day. From the very beginning to the end N. Eddy had Buley helpless with his unbreakable headlock. Buley could not move for 9 minutes 45 seconds of the bout, and the more powerful Eddy won an easy decision.

The last bout of the afternoon was in the 158-pound class between Wolk and Cass. Cass, the more aggressive of the two, threw Wolk down on the mat with a grapevine and pinned the latter's shoulders in 2 minutes 42 seconds.

All bouts were ten-minute periods.

SHAW DEFEATS BURNS IN HANDBALL TOURNAMENT

Burns Loses by Close Margin in Fast and Interesting Battle

In the finals of the handball tournament conducted by the physical education department, G. G. Shaw '37 won by a close margin in the championship defeating E. Burns '35. The first round was held the week preceding the finals of the tournament, Shaw taking the first game at 21 to 18. In the second game Burns by virtue of a splendid rally came from behind to nose out Shaw in a thrilling exhibition of handball, the score being 21 to 17. In the deciding game Shaw rose to great heights clearing evincing the fact that he was the superior of the two with a 21 to 11 score. Shaw and Burns easily triumphed over their opponents Segus and Guerin respectively in the semi-finals.

The tournament conducted under the auspices of the physical education department was intended to stimulate interest in the game of handball. This result was readily accomplished as can be seen by the numerous entries to the tournament. More and more of the fellows are trying their hand (or both their hands) at this energetic pastime. Why don't you give it a try?

PING-PONG, HANDBALL COMPETITION TO END WITHIN TWO WEEKS

The annual ping-pong and handball tournaments, which were commenced in December but which have been neglected because of the necessity of finishing the badminton competition before spring baseball practice in the cage, will be recommenced and probably finished during the next two weeks. The ping pong tournament has several stages left to be played. There are about eight participators remaining to play out of the thirty-six who began in December. The handball tournament, however, was finished as far as the finals, which will be played the first part of next week between Burns '35 and Shaw '37. Soon after the finish of this tournament the faculty will have their annual competition on the handball court. This tournament was won last year by Professor Carpenter.

ANNUAL HEXATHLON TO BE HELD TOMORROW IN VERMONT GYMNASIUM

Several Entrants Received to Date, for Contest to Be Held Tomorrow and Next Week

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 the gymnasium and the cage will be the scene of many activities. Several contestants for the honor of being the best developed all round athlete and consequently the strongest contestants of running, jumping, climbing and putting the shot will demonstrate the concept that one must have exceptional ability, speed and endurance.

The hexathlon tournament is an annual contest for the Donahue trophy with events held indoors for the purpose of discovering the person with the greatest all round athletic ability at the University. The scores are counted in points as follows:

Shot put—A throw of thirty feet gives a score of 1,000 points, while for each inch more or less than this distance 2.78 points will be added or subtracted.

Broad jump—A jump of seventeen feet gives a score of 1,000 points, while for each inch more or less 4.63 points will be added or subtracted.

High jump—A jump of five feet two inches gives a score of 1,000 points, while for each inch more or less 16.13 points will be added or subtracted.

110 yard dash—A time of fourteen seconds gives a score of 1,000 points, while for each second more or less 14.29 points will be subtracted or added.

One mile run—A time of five minutes thirty seconds gives a score of 1,000 points, while for each second more or less 3.03 points will be subtracted or added.

Rope climb—A time of ten seconds gives a score of 1,000 points, while for each one-fifth of a second more or less 10 points will be subtracted or added.

The shot put, broad jump and high jump will be run off tomorrow afternoon. Thursday evening the 110 yard dash, the one-mile run, and the rope climb will be decided.

Among the twelve entries the two lower classes have the greater share of representatives. There are several men competing who are of the track team and holder of third place in last year's hexathlon.

The entries are: J. J. Delfausse '34, O. I. Brown '34, C. F. Howe '35, W. D. White '35, J. J. Jezukawicz '36, E. Levine '36, W. C. Twatchell '36, P. M. Andrews '36, N. H. Ross '37, I. W. Barton '37, R. F. Kennedy '37 and J. T. Webster '37.

In bringing the country out of the depression, Congress must deal not only with the thieves of Wall Street but also with the subsidized press which apparently seems to be "Stop Roosevelt" — Congressman William T. Schulte, Indiana.

Not like others..

Even so.. you can say Chesterfields are "not like others"

NO two people in the world look alike . . . act alike. So it is with tobacco . . . just like folks.

No two leaves are the same.

And it's the same with cigarettes . . . no two brands are alike.

Furthermore, not only are the tobaccos different, but the way the tobaccos are handled is different.

This, you can understand.

You know just as well as we do that no two manufacturers use the same kinds of tobaccos, or blend them or cross-blend them or weld them together in the same manner.

We do everything that science knows and that money can buy to make CHESTERFIELD as good a cigarette as can be made.

We hope you like them. They are "not like others."

TEACHERS' CONFERENCE HELD IN BURLINGTON LAST WEEK, MARCH 16-17

Professor Long of N. Y. U. Main Speaker, University Faculty Members on Program

[illegible] Champlain Valley Teachers' Association [illegible] Thursday and Friday, March 16, at [illegible] Burlington High School. Prof. [illegible] Long of the New York University [illegible] Education was the main speaker of the day. He gave two addresses in which he maintained that the present method of educating secondary school pupils is too conservative in view of the changing social conditions.

Professor Long stressed the point that school work should be centered on individual needs and not on the age-old formal standards and requirements. He claimed that the tendency of emphasizing subjects of cultural value is now becoming greater than that of ordinary matters. The old-fashioned standards are not necessary to the modern day existence, "for," claimed Professor Long, "we have placed a halo around certain subject matter in our secondary schools, yet men have won success in other routes."

Prof. B. H. Wallace, president of the Champlain Valley Teachers' Association, and Francis L. Bailey of Montpelier, state commissioner of education, opened the general meeting which was held in the morning. The Burlington High School Band, under the direction of Adrian Holmes, conductor, gave a short concert as part of the opening ceremonies. After the meeting the conference divided into the secondary school section and the elementary school section.

At the elementary school meeting in the morning, Miss Anna M. Greve, science teacher of the elementary school of Bronxville, gave a talk on "The Teaching of Science in the Elementary School." She told of the interesting science projects carried on by the young sters and the valuable knowledge gained by such a study. Only simple equipment is used and according to Miss Greve,

Some of the more important committees are: Senior Prom, Class Day, Boatride, Invitation, Questionnaire, Music, Decorations, and Pipe and Cane.

Financial Manager Cogswell, in commenting on the financial condition of the present senior class states "The senior class treasury presents a favorable balance from last year. We only hope that the events of Senior Week will be as successful.

FACULTY MEET GIRLS IN NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT

Basketball Game, Songs by Faculty, and Virginia Reel Feature Thursday Evening Program

A new and very novel idea was tried for the first time Thursday night, when the women of the University faculty met the students in a thrilling game of basketball and, by the way, won an overwhelming victory. In spite of the impedimenta of 1867 bathing suits, hats, and other ancient obsolete articles of clothing and a lack of recent practice, the faculty by the use of overtime periods (for their exclusive benefit), "showed up" the girls.

The program began with a class basketball game between the sophomores and juniors. A song by the faculty—in fact several songs, both old and original—brought them into prominence for the first time that evening. They were masterfully directed by their cheer leader, Mrs. Willard. Following the musical part of the entertainment came the big event of the evening, the basketball game proper. After hilarious minutes of hard, fast playing, a loving cup (closely resembling a flour sieve) was presented to the winners, and as a consolation prize, a close relative of quart measuring cups, also called a loving cup, was awarded to the runners-up. An amusing, although somewhat baffling, array of pictures of well-known campus officials was next shown and there was much fun guessing who was who. The evening ended, as usual with dancing, every one entered the spirit of the occasion and all danced blithely and unrestrainedly. The faculty, juniors, and seniors received such a rushing as is seen at mixers, and a grand march plus a Virginia reel helped to loosen up limbs and reserve at the same time. Refreshments were served after the first dance for those who felt the need of sustenance after such strenuous exercise and such vigorous laughing.

From every standpoint the evening was a huge success. The faculty all re-

MRS. BROOKS AND PROF. PUFFER SPEAK AT WCAX

Planning of Flower Gardens and Condition of Early Roads Are Subjects of Broadcast

The two University of Vermont speakers on the world's radio broadcast over WCAX Friday morning were Mrs. Grace P. Brooks, [illegible] who spoke on "Our Flower Gardens" and Prof. L. B. Puffer, whose subject was "Early Days in American Transportation."

Mrs. Brooks advised [illegible] planning [illegible] first starting a garden. [illegible] types of gardens discussed were [illegible] flower gardens, [illegible] and [illegible] gardens, and rock gardens. Choice of flowers would include those that provide interest late summer and fall as well as early in the season, said Mrs. Brooks.

In his talk Professor Puffer stated that the extremely bad condition of the roads after the Revolutionary War stimulated two other means of transportation, turnpikes and canals. Before the coming of the railways, canals were the only cheap means of transporting heavy freight and in the early 1800's construction of canals flourished.

Professor Puffer told of the early handicaps of transportation and showed its early development and progress. The growth of railroads of the 1840's and 50's supplanted the unsuccessful turnpikes.

In conclusion Professor Puffer remarked, "It is worthy of note that the base theory of the turnpike or toll road was to collect the cost of construction and maintenance from the users of the highways which is what we do today by means of gasoline taxes and license fees. We pay our toll at the filling station instead of the toll-gate."

STUDENTS AND FACULTY GIVE OPINIONS ON POLL

The students of Vermont showed themselves to be firm advocates of peace, judging from the results of the W C A X poll held last Friday and Saturday. The count of the voting was 114 in favor of the peace program and 59 opposed to it. The total vote, only 173, was decidedly small.

The ballot was presented to the student body as part of a nation wide program being carried out in 730 American colleges in a movement to offer a practical and constructive program for peace by the youth of the nation. With this purpose in mind the Boston Daily Herald instituted this nation-wide poll, the results of which it is hoped may be announced on March 26.

The program called for three important steps:

1. The immediate adherence of the United States to the covenant of the League of Nations.

2. Nationalization and international control of the manufacture and sale of armaments.

3. Severance of all commercial relations with belligerent nations, as far as compatible with the League covenant.

The poll caused much discussion on the Vermont campus and brought forth statements from many of the leaders in college activities.

D. J. Tobin, in commenting on the ballot, states, "I am a strong advocate of the plan being by nature a pacifist."

A. C. Svigoon, of the freshman class, apparently holds a different viewpoint as he says, "I am opposed to the League of Nations and I believe the second point in the program impossible of fulfillment."

"The League is ineffectual for United State membership and would offer no benefit," is the opinion of R. R. Lowell.

W. D. White, editor of the Cynic, summarizes the arguments pro and con as follows: "The program was offered as a practical political program to be offered to President Roosevelt as an indication of the views of American youth. The plan is not practical in several respects, namely, it is too visionary and is a statement of ideals which we are not yet in a position to adopt. Under the present conditions the second point called for in the program appears impossible as a practical measure."

Professor Evans, in a recent lecture, stated that he doubted that the League is practical from a political point of view in the United States, that is, that it would be 'bad politics' for the Roosevelt administration. He also stated that Americans seem to have developed an emotional complex in regard to League membership.

However, in spite of the impractical nature of parts of the program, it was thought, endorsed by a majority of nearly two to one as another step toward the assurance of international peace.

The pictures, very good colored reproductions of famous paintings, were arranged in chronological order, thus presenting a visual conception of the difference between various ages in painting. In addition to this, Miss Mary K. Lanier '35 gave a short talk on the various schools of painting, stressing the fact that each school was representative of its age, and should be judged with consideration of this fact, rather than in comparison with other ages.

It is hoped that this exhibit will inaugurate a custom by means of which a deeper understanding and appreciation of art will spring up at the University. Dean Patterson says that Pan-Hellenic hopes to be able to put on several more exhibits of a like nature during the remainder of the year, and that these will be continued next year if the interest shown thus far continues.

Wages have got to come back in this country before we can say we have come very far out of the hole. The national recovery has been healthy. The policies of the administration are sound—or they would not have lasted.—Henry Ford.

PAN-HELLENIC ART EXHIBIT LAST FRIDAY

Dean Patterson Says Exhibit a Great Success, Others May Follow

The art exhibit sponsored by Pan-Hellenic at the Fleming Museum on Friday afternoon, was very successful, according to Dean Patterson in a statement. She believes that this exhibit will be an important factor in arousing the interest of the girls to a more thorough knowledge and appreciation of art. Dean Patterson says that nearly all of the girls seem to desire the ability to appreciate the artistic masterpieces of all time, and to be genuinely enthusiastic about this exhibit as a means to this end. The exhibit will be on display at

SECOND OF WRESTLING BOUTS HELD IN GYM LAST FRIDAY AT 4.10

Bouts Popular With Students When Good Wrestlers Show Their Stuff

The second of a series of wrestling bouts held under the auspices of the physical education department took place Friday afternoon, March 14, in the gymnasium. A crowd of over 150 enthusiastic spectators cheering their favorites on to victory was on hand. The officials were: Judge, Professor Carleton, former intercollegiate wrestling champion. Timer, Mr. Kiphuth. Checker, Denhoff. Referee, Bump Levine.

The first bout was in the 125-pound class between Giffin and Keeney. Giffin started the fireworks by throwing Keeney in one minute and seventeen seconds, which was quite an upset to the dopesters.

One of the most interesting bouts of the afternoon was that of the 135-pounders, the contestants being Schildhause and Buttles. It was a gory battle, Schildhause suffering a bloody nose and mouth, with Buttles injuring his knee. This did not interfere with the continuous action of the match. Schildhause was the stronger and better wrestler of the two, but could not pin his opponent's shoulders to the mat. When the ten-minute period was over he was given the decision.

In the other 135-pound match, which was scheduled, Meservey defaulted to Levine.

The best bout of the afternoon was that between Segur and Tasker, in the 145-pound match. In this bout the spectators were shown some real wrestling. Segur seemed to be right at home on the mat and showed that he had plenty of experience. Tasker was the taller of the two, but gave way to the powerful scissors of Segur in a fall of six minutes and forty-eight seconds. It was a great display of scientific wrestling and both the boys were given a great hand when they departed from the mat.

In the next 145-pound bout, Stetson was paired with Ricketson. This was a comparatively tame bout with Stetson throwing Ricketson in five minutes.

In the final bout of the 145-pound class Eddy was matched with Shelc. Eddy had the height and reach over Shelc, but Shelc had plenty of fight, with the result being a draw at the end of ten minutes. Eddy, however, seemed the better wrestler of the two. In the overtime period Shelc came back full of fight and got a fall on Eddy in two minutes and fifteen seconds.

The next bout was in the 158-pound class, between Milleree and Craig. This match was full of action while it lasted. Milleree finally got the fall, ending a spectacular two-minute rally.

The last two bouts of the afternoon were in the 175-pound class, and the first of these consisted of Nekos and Brosseau. Brosseau made fast work of this match, getting a fall in two minutes and fifteen seconds. Brosseau won by virtue of his superior strength over his opponent, although Nekos did well also.

In the following 175-pound match, Trottier struggled with his opponent, Hunt; Trottier overcoming Hunt in three minutes by his superior holds. A spectacular show of brawn and muscle was similar to a professional bout. A good display of grips coupled with the experience of both men proved worth while to the fans.

BASKETBALL HOP LAST SATURDAY IN GYMNASIUM

Annual Event Sponsored by Gold Key Scores Success, 250 Couples Present

The annual basketball hop was held Saturday evening under the sponsorship of Gold Key. The dance took place in the gym with Sid Carsley's orchestra playing.

The hop lasted from 9.00 until 12.00 p.m. and was very well attended, about 250 couples being present. The music hits of the evening seemed to be the rumba "Carioca" and the Casa Loma numbers, "White Jazz" and "Casa Loma Stomp."

E. D. B. Kane, chairman of the committee in charge, is a member of the CYNIC board, the Kappa Sigma Fraternity, and Gold Key.

"Hot cha!" contributed one impressed student. "—and hot cha!" agreed the professor.

REBOUND IS THE PLAY SELECTED FOR ANNUAL JUNIOR WEEK PRODUCTION

Play Is Three-Act Comedy By D. O. Stewart—Cast Includes Seven Men and Five Women

MRS. TAGGART TO COACH COLLEGE PRODUCTION

Tryouts to Be Held Monday and Tuesday—Work to Start For Possible Production May 11

At a joint meeting of Masque and Sandal and Wig and Buskin Tuesday afternoon, "Rebound," a three-act comedy, was chosen as the Junior Week Play. The play is written by Donald Ogden Stewart and was produced originally by Arthur Hopkins at the Plymouth Theatre in New York. The cast consists of seven male and five female characters. There are two interior scenes and modern costumes are worn throughout the play.

Tryouts for the play will be held Monday and Tuesday afternoons, March 26 and 27, at 4:00 p.m. in Room 3, North College. All those who have tried out for college plays in the past as well as others who are anxious to show dramatic ability are urgently requested to try out at that time. The larger the turn-out at tryouts, the better selection can be made of the cast. Tryouts are next week in order to pick the cast before vacation, and in order to get the play under way immediately after vacation.

In making the selection of "Rebound," the dramatic societies tried to choose a play which could be ably produced by the students of U. V. M. The play, moreover, has nearly an equal number of male and female parts, thus allowing both men and women a good opportunity to be in the Junior Week Play.

Mrs. Wilnetta Sproul Taggart, who is to coach the play, thoroughly recommended it as a suitable play to present. The play is ultra-modern and is the type of play which it is believed will interest the student body.

Heywood Broun, of the New York Telegram, says of "Rebound." "It is the best light comedy written by anybody hereabouts in ten or twenty years."

H. H. Abbott '35, president of Wig and Buskin, says: "We have picked this play in the hope that this type of play will attract a greater number of students to try out than ever before. The play was chosen after many others had been eliminated and I feel that the selection was a good one."

Junior Week is by far the outstanding social event of the year at Vermont. The activities of the week-end open Thursday afternoon with the peerade, the purpose of which is to advertise the Junior Week play held the same evening. The peerade consists of floats appropriate to the subject of the play which are entered by the fraternities, sororities and dormitories. Individual entrants are also a feature of the peerade. The program Friday will include a baseball game with Boston University here as well as the biggest event of all, the Junior Prom. It has long been a custom to import some well-known orchestra for this dance and this precedent will be followed by this year's committee. One of the many features of the dance is the selection

The University of North Carolina debating team will meet the University of Vermont team on March 26 as part of its northern trip. The team is composed of three men, D. R. Sewell of Chapel Hill, a graduate student, F. S. Lanier of [illegible] and W. R. Eddleman of [illegible] law students.

The schedule for the northern trip is as follows: March 19 at George Washington University, Washington D. C., negative, resolved that American people should boycott German goods; March 20 at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, affirmative, resolved, that the powers of the president be increased; March 23 at New York University, noon debate, resolved that the American people should boycott German goods; March 26 at Vermont University, affirmative, resolved that the powers of the president be increased; March 28 at Boston University, humorous debate on the affirmative of the query, resolved, that the higher education of women is detrimental to the best interests of society.

Professor Olsen of the North Carolina faculty declares that he regards debating as a medium of training for public life. He says, "The University considers debating a means of training young men for the active participation in public life and as a vehicle for giving the public a discussion of important questions. It urges the debaters to seek the facts and speak what they believe. It does not consider debating a mere game of winning or losing. Most of its debates are non-decision. Concentration on judges and [illegible] usually means artificiality and [illegible], and is fast getting out of date.

Without vacuum tubes, Long Distance telephony would hardly be possible. But with these little tubes placed in "repeaters" or amplifiers at 50-mile intervals along the line—even a whisper carries from coast to coast!

With many tubes used in tandem, individual performance must be almost perfect—or cumulative distortion would render speech unintelligible. That today's Long Distance connections are so reliable and clear, is a tribute to the skill used in making Western Electric tubes.

EASTER VACATION IS BUT SIX DAYS AWAY

Review of "The Winnowings"

By Benjamin B. Wainwright

[illegible] issue of "Winnowings" is goodly fare. The [illegible], of course, some [illegible] than the rest, but the menu is varied and [illegible]

[illegible] instance, are appropriately has selected for important topics and [illegible] clarity and incisiveness defends and recommends students a skeptical, [illegible] attitude; she invites Winnowings a literary free expression of their [illegible] "Are We Responsible?" [illegible] barbarians" to depart at least for intervals, with a mature outlook. [illegible] barbarians," even if [illegible] to hear, would look [illegible] a challenger, but at [illegible] editor has thrown down the [illegible]

[illegible] the editorials, we pass [illegible] numerous contributions, [illegible] considerable assortment. [illegible] poems, three short stories, [illegible] historical article, and a [illegible] article should provide [illegible] varying tastes.

[illegible] spring bursts upon us, [illegible] writers to whom the season [illegible] the poets. Do they, like [illegible] styles, awaken melancholy [illegible] us from the bleakness [illegible] landscape to a delectable [illegible] which our hearts are [illegible] exercising the critic's prerogative, I must confess that [illegible] songs, it is true, have [illegible] charm, intensity, and lyric [illegible] at the blight of prettiness with [illegible] blemish of triviality is on [illegible] yet there are exceptions. The [illegible] Miss Roberts' "The Plea of [illegible] Soul" and its effective diction [illegible] the triteness of her subject, [illegible] Winged Thing" Miss Watts [illegible] successfully a somewhat intricate [illegible]; "Summer Love" has the [illegible] that most of its companions [illegible] and Miss Whitcomb's "Quest" is a [illegible] of verse.

[illegible] City Quatrains" plunges like [illegible] into this company of myths. To [illegible] it, I doubtless should praise [illegible] has power, in which I have [illegible] other poems deficient. It undoubtedly contains raw material for a [illegible] but the author has not [illegible] able to fashion it into a [illegible] product. After one has read it, [illegible] a hurricane has passed over [illegible] him gasping and wondering [illegible] all about. It is "full of sound [illegible] conveying"—what? "The frenzy [illegible] existence of current metropolitan life," its author would probably reply, and there are some spectacular phrases to bear him out, but one cannot help feeling at times that the poet is a candidate for the "cult of unintelligibility."

The stories impress me more favorably. Any one who likes "Penrod" will enjoy "The Dutch Hair Cut," and any one who likes humor will laugh over "The Great Badminton Mystery" except for its author's irritating habit of underscoring the jokes. Mr. Sternbergh's "Head Work" with its ingenious use of a scientific method of making a fire and its natural, straightforward style, is a very readable story.

The essays can now be served as a dessert. Both of Mr. Cass's are good. "Once a Lady" is an admirable description of an abandoned ship notable for its familiarity with technical terms, and his "Scallops and Scalloping" is even more entertaining. Mr. Libby's "A Memory" is a masterpiece. I will leave it at that for it is folly to rub the bloom off a flower by handling it.

I do not wish to omit from comment Mr. Hoberman's "This Proud Country of Ours." Herein the author shows us our country in the making—or shall I say the taking? Entering dim, obscure historical closets, he drags therefrom skeletons to leer at us when we thank God that we are not as other nations. After he has so emphatically and accurately exposed our weakness, however his conclusion surprises me. He finishes his article thus: "—if we must be intensely nationalistic, let us be so with all the kindness of our hearts and all the wisdom of our brains." I believe that he has demonstrated irrefutably that it is not easy to reconcile these qualities.

The reader of this magazine, by the way, will be interested in the appropriate illustrations provided for some of the contributions by different students.

It must be obvious that much enterprise and ability have gone into the making of this number of Winnowings. I suppose, therefore, that it is invidious to cavil at omissions. Nevertheless, I wish to point out a lacuna that I have noted in other issues of the magazine: There is no literary criticism. I believe that this is a serious lack. In glancing recently at exchange college periodicals lying on a table in the Billings Library, I noticed a "Book Nook" in "The Depauw Magazine" containing reviews of current books, and I observed in The Tuftonian an estimate of Conrad Aiken's work accompanied by his photograph. Such articles lend so scholarly an atmosphere to a magazine and are so indicative of an interest in the world of letters that I should like to see Winnowings in this respect vie with its contemporaries.

GEORGE SELDES TELLS WHAT FASCISM WOULD MEAN IN U. S.

From "Sawdust Caesar," Forthcoming Book by George Seldes

[illegible] Fascism in America we would have to conscript certain manufacturers' associations, a part of the [illegible] class, a considerable Ku Klux Klan, the aristocracy, Henry Ford, General Motors, that part of the American Legion which did not fight and which still wants to kill human beings, in fact, all sadists, degenerates, lynchers, censors and snoopers and [illegible] who believe in suppressing something or someone. The American Fascist party, having hired ex-officers, racketeers and gunmen, would smash the American Federation of Labor, rob and burn its headquarters. If the Democrats controlled the new movement, it would smash the Republicans, and vice versa, because only one party is permissible.

The offices of the New Republic, The Nation, the American Mercury, the Baltimore Sun, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and other faintly liberal journals, would go up in flames the first day. Half the newspapers (Republican or Democratic, depending who dominated Fascism) would be suppressed. The United Press would be [illegible] and the Associated Press [illegible] the liberal [illegible] the American Mercury [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

FRESHMAN HOP TOURNEY PROGRESSES RAPIDLY

Teams Will Be Picked From Each Section for Elimination After Easter

The class basketball tourney is well under way in the physical education department. The various freshman classes have been playing among themselves for the past three weeks. Each class contains at least two and in most cases four team, each consisting of from six to ten players.

By Easter vacation the best team in each class will have been determined and after the vacation these teams representing their respective classes will play in an inter-class series for the championship of the freshman class.

The standing of the respective teams to date are as follows:

In the Monday-Wednesday two o'clock sections the "Pansies," with R. P. Lawton as captain, and J. M. Bellows' "Dwarfs" have each won one game. The section at three o'clock on those days is led by the "Blackbirds," captained by L. P. Massucco and they have won two games. Wimett's "Stooges" are tied with Zukowti's "Bluebirds" and by the one victory to their credit, while Barbieri's "Jailbirds" trail with two losses. Most of the Tuesday-Thursday sections are further advanced in the number of games played due to the fact that these sections have completed the hygiene course which is now occupying one period class every week in the other sections.

Kenworthy's "Wolves" are setting the pace in the eight-thirty class, having two victories credited to them. Perkins' "Pansies" and Schoff's "Lillies" each have won one victory. Moore's "Sharpshooters" failed to live up to their impressive title and cease to be sharp with two losses. The nine-thirty section is led by the good old "Aggies" under the most able direction of E. C. Rice. The magnificent team is undefeated, having won three games. La Belle's "Shrimps" hold the second place with two wins and a single defeat. Tiny Thorne's "Pirates" are credited with a victory and two losses and Pond's "Panthers" are wallowing in the ignominy of three losses.

The "Hawks" and the "Orioles," captained by Truax and Rosa, respectively, are tied for top place in the ten-thirty section, while the "Eagles" led by D. I. Somers, and the "Gorillas" by D. H. Tetzloff, are tied for second place, with a victory and two losses for each.

ARTICLES ON BANKING BY MEREDITH APPEARING IN THE BANKERS' MAGAZINE

Dr. L. Douglas Meredith, assistant professor of economics at the University of Vermont is the author of a series of eighteen articles on "Merchandising for Banks, Trust Companies and Investment Houses" which is being published monthly in The Bankers Magazine. The functions and development of financial merchandising, advertising media and advertising copy, and the testing and analysis of merchandising methods are among the topics to be discussed in the series.

Professor Meredith is also the author of an article "Customers Want More Facts," appearing in the Rand McNally Bankers Monthly of January, in which he points out how banks in making their annual reports can supply the facts essential to the banks clients. And in the current number of the American Bankers Association Journal he has an article explaining stock exchange control as proposed in recent federal legislation.

Professor Meredith, in addition to his teaching duties at the University, has served on two committees of the Vermont Bankers' Association.

THE SPORTING EYE

Boston University has just appointed Pat Hanley of Northwestern as football coach for next year. Pat, who is the brother of Dick Hanley, head coach at Northwestern, coached the line there for six years while our new coach, Sabo, directed the backfield. The B. U.-Vermont game next fall will be a match of wits between two men who formerly coached on the same team.

By the way—Tom Keady, former Vermont coach and lately of Western Reserve, who had been mentioned as a prospective coach at Vermont again, was considered by B. U., and recently was reported to be a leading candidate.

Rhode Island State College and Providence College have patched up a twelve-year athletic breach. They will meet in football, baseball and basketball next year. With Harvard and Princeton also resuming relations next year, it appears that former sore spots have healed. Incidentally, one notices that Vermont does not play Holy Cross in any form of athletics.

The Massachusetts Collegian of Massachusetts State College has recently conducted a survey of New England College gymnasiums and has published its findings. It reports on the inadequacy of gymnasium space, number of lockers, visitors' quarters, age of gym, etc. Nothing is mentioned about Vermont, except that improvements could be made in the fourth oldest New England college gym.

As Spring nears, the football team is losing by graduation Three stars of the past season will be lost, two of them having run parade and the other one ineligible for practicing out of season. He used to make an end run outside the [illegible] limits.

The baseball team of Ohio University had a real off practice the other day because of the flooding River. The Ohio diamond is located on a low field on the banks of said river, at this particular time there was no field just river. So the ballplayers decided to rest and allow the water polo team the use of their field.

FOUR TRACK RECORDS UNBEATEN IN 22 YEARS

Although University of Vermont track athletes during the past fifteen years have broken old records in eleven of the fifteen track and field events, some of these records since the remaining four records, set by an "old-timer" back in 1911 and 1912, still stand.

The old-timer is Albert J. (Al) Gutterson, who came to the University from Springfield, Vt., in the class of 1912 was an Olympic broad jumper in 1912 the summer after his graduation, and now a resident of Mittineague, a suburb of Springfield, Mass.

In 1911 Gutterson made a mark of 10⅘ seconds in the 100-yard dash and another of 24⅘ seconds in the 220-yard low hurdles. The time for the hundred has been tied twice since, but neither mark has been bettered.

The following year Gutterson set a record in the 220-yard dash at 22⅘ seconds, and cleared 24 feet 2 inches in the broad jump, a [illegible] record.

Interfraternity Track Meet

Tomorrow afternoon the fifth event in Brayton trophy competition will be held, that is, the interfraternity track meet. So far, the Delta Psi team is the only one to have entered a complete list, and Mr. Post requests that all entries that are possible be made tonight.

Several new records should be established this year with such a wealth of athletes on the campus. Archie Post predicts that either Red Cook or Charlie Parks will break the record in the 35 pound hammer throw event of 34 feet 7 inches, held by Peep Parks '30, brother of Charlie Parks. Johnnie Woodruff should make a new record in the two-mile run, which is held by O. T. Wood '25. Manny Levine and J. Woodruff are favored to cop the 880-yard run in record time.

The meet will begin at 1:45 p.m. and with the competition so great this meet should be one of the best in the annals of U. V. M. interfraternity competition. The order of events and their respective records are as follows:

DELTS AND INDEPENDENTS WIN THEIR RELAYS

They Defeat Sigma Nu and Sigma Phi in Semi-finals

In the semi-finals of the interfraternity relays held Wednesday in the gymnasium, Delta Psi and the Independents triumphed over their opponents, Sigma Nu and Sigma Phi, respectively.

The Delta Psi team was made up of Foote, Swett, Woodruff, and Collins, while the opposing team, Sigma Nu, was composed of Merchant, Wheeler, Shaw and Haug. Foote, lead-off man for Delta Psi, took an early lead over Merchant, first man of Sigma Nu, passing it on to Swift, who increased the lead. The remaining two men of the Delta Psi team finished the race in fine style, winning the race in the good time of two minutes and fifty-one seconds. Collins, anchor man of Delta Psi, did not have to exert himself over Haug, last man of Sigma Nu, because of the lead handed him by Woodruff.

The feature race of the day, however, was that of the record-breaking Independents and the Sigma Phi.

The Independents were represented by [illegible] Wesoly, a coming track star. Jones, star cross-country runner and winner of the mile in the Hexathlon competition; J. Delfausse, winner of the Hexathlon trophy this year; and his brother Eddie, who was following closely in their footsteps. The Sigma Phi team was composed of Conners, Crane, Duley, and Estes. The race was easily won by the Independents. The first three men gained consistently, and when Delfausse, anchor man of the Independents, crossed the wire a lap ahead of Jones, lead man for Sigma Phi. The time, however, two minutes and fifty-one seconds, was not as good as expected from this great combination.

KAPPA SIGS DEFEAT MIDDLEBURY FRAT

The Kappa Sigs journeyed to Middlebury Wednesday evening to play a return game with the Midd champions, Alpha Sigma Phi, and defeated them a second time, by the score of 31-25. By reason of this victory, the Alpha Lambda boys claim the State interfraternity title, being undefeated in their schedule.

Because of difficulties en route, the Kappa Sigs were forced to start the game with a makeshift line-up, which included one Middlebury spectator and, even with this handicap, they held the Midd champs to a 20-19 lead at the time their regulars arrived and entered the game. Starting slowly, the Kappa Sigs could only hold their own until the end of the third quarter which ended 25-22 in favor of the Alpha Sigs. After warming up in the "rest period," the champs put on the pressure in the last period and, while holding Midd scoreless, dropped in nine points in quick succession.

The Kappa Sig team which rode the kill in the last quarter included Piette, Baker, Duncan, Waterman and Kelley, which worked as a beautiful unit with no one outstanding. Howe starred in the starting line-up.

THREE PLAYS PRESENTED TONIGHT BY DRAMATIC CLUB IN THE MUSEUM

PLAYS DONE ENTIRELY BY STUDENT HANDS

Members of Casts and Scrubs Automatically Become Members of Dramatic Club

[illegible] Museum will be crowded tonight when the class plays are put on in competition for the Dramatic Club cup. Freshmen, sophomores and juniors are each presenting a play, the three to be given tonight at 8:00. Tickets are on sale from members of Dramatic Club.

The junior play, "The Burglar," by Margaret Cameron, as played by an experienced cast, all except one of whom have taken part in college plays before.

Marjorie Howard, a transfer this year from Jackson College, has taken part in plays there. Mary Cunningham was in the class plays last spring and in Dramatic Club her second and third years. Jane Parsons was in the group play this fall. Anita Kittell, a member of Dramatic Club for two years, took part in the class play last year. Frances Whalen is the only one who has not had previous experience here. The play has been coached by Elvira Farman '34.

"The Burglar," a one act play, tells of the excitement in a summer colony, after there has been a burglary. The five girls, who had together, hear noises and set out to investigate.

The sophomore play, "The Piper's Pay," also is by Margaret Cameron, deals with the difficulties of several society women who have taken up the hobby of collecting restaurant spoons. Their endeavors to avoid paying the piper make up the play.

Mary Whitney, one of the members of the cast, was in the class plays last year and is therefore already a member of Dramatic Club. Elizabeth Haig was in the group plays last fall and got into Dramatic Club by scrubbing make-up last year. Frances Rowe was in the group plays both this year and last and was in the cast of the class plays last year. She is a member of Dramatic Club. Ruth White was in the class play last year and took part in Kake Walk this year as did Sylvia Jarvis. Ethel Barber has had no previous experience in dramatics at Vermont but she was in a play given by the "Collegium" several weeks ago. Barbara Whitney '34 has coached this play.

The freshman play, "Our Aunt from California," by Madeline Barnum, is the story of three nieces who try by various methods to get a trip to Europe with their aunt from California." The cast follows: Marguerite Bean, Elizabeth Gallup, Pauline Bristol, Barbara Redding, Elizabeth Burn and Ruth Quinn, none of whom has had any previous experience in plays at U V M. The coach for this play was Elizabeth Woodward '34.

Under the direction of Elizabeth Baker '34 costumes and Frances Rowe '35 properties, various girls have been scrubbing for the "back stage" part of the play. Those who do the most work according to Frances Rowe are those who are most likely to make Dramatic Club. The members of the various casts enter the club automatically.

MARY SIMPSON ADDRESSES MASS MEETING ON HER EXPERIENCES IN SENATE

Speaker is Director of Women's Relief Work of the CWA at Montpelier

Miss Mary Jean Simpson, director of women's relief work of the CWA at Montpelier, spoke of her experiences in Washington at Saturday's mass meeting.

Miss Simpson, who graduated from the University in the class of 1913, taught school several years before going to Washington. There she was employed as clerk in the Senate office building during the last three Republican administrations.

Miss Simpson immediately captured the attention of everyone by delegating two gentlemen in the audience to stand up when the time came for her to stop. (Be it said here and now that this was not done. Evidently the two appointed were either too interested or too bashful to make the move.)

The most striking thing about Washington, said Miss Simpson, is its physical beauty. One duty of the Department of Agriculture is to preserve the natural scenic beauty. As a result of this, Washington is often called "The City of Beautiful Trees."

Washington was planned to be laid out in the shape of a wheel, with the capital as the hub and the avenues from it as the spokes. Eventually, however, the city grew up in a hit-or-miss fashion. During the last few years an attempt has been made to restore the city to its original plan.

Miss Simpson then told of the very beautiful quince and cherry blooms. The early cherry blossoms are pink and white. They surround the tidal basin and were given to the United States in the Taft administration by the Japanese Government. The later cherry blooms, also given by the Japanese, resemble small roses. These trees are set out in shape of Japanese characters. This was done at the request of the Japanese ambassador. When the Potomac overflowed its banks recently the Japanese Government replaced the trees that were destroyed and very soon they will be as beautiful as before.

Washington is the home of the diplomatic corps. Members of exquisitely dressed men and beautifully gowned women may be seen downtown nearly every day during the congressional season.

One morning while crossing the park to her office Miss Simpson saw a sheep tied to a lamp post. Time and no money can be decided it must be a decoy for some new advertising stunt until the sight of the horse in the front seat of the car drew the attention. She asked a guard about it. Even he [illegible] the coincidence that a cowboy who had come [illegible] the senators at voting the President [illegible] was wrong with the government had sudden the steer all the way from Texas. Later in the day when she heard a jangling outside her office Miss [illegible] went out to see what was going

WORK ON "GONDOLIERS" PROGRESSES RAPIDLY

Work on the opera, "The Gondoliers," is progressing rapidly now that rehearsals for the Easter concert are out of the way. According to statements by various members of the cast, this opera should prove generally successful.

R. S. Wright '35, who takes the part of a pompous old Spanish grandee, sums up the consensus of the cast's opinion, when he says, "In my estimation, this year's opera is as good as 'Iolanthe.' The variety of music is unusual; it ranges all the way from a stately old gavotte that might have been written by Hayden to a six-eighths hymn tune. The opera is reflective of sunny Naples."

Everyone in the cast is most enthusiastic about the opera and the work thus far accomplished on it.

Pageants Being Written by Catherine Starbird, Lois Whitcomb, Eluned Roberts and Dorothy Kennedy

Mortar Board, with Claribel Morris '34 in charge, is sponsoring Lilac Day on May 26.

Three pageants will be handed in shortly before Easter vacation. These pageants are being written by Lois Whitcomb '35, Catherine Starbird '37, Eluned Roberts '37, and Dorothy Kennedy '35. Rehearsals will start soon after vacation, but plans are still tentative. There will be choral dancing and several solos it has been decided.

Lilac Day is sponsored yearly by Mortar Board. It was started by Dean Pearl Wasson, when she was dean of women, and has been given in her honor ever since. This pageant takes place on Redstone campus and all the women of the University are urged to take part. Last year there was no such pageant, but the year before it was written by Gladys LaFlamme '33 and was directed by Mrs. Dallas Pollard.

An annual feature of Lilac Day is the planting of the lilac on the Redstone campus. This is done in an endeavor to make the women's campus more and more beautiful.

British Peer Appeals for Nazi Victims

New York, N. Y.—At a student rally, in the New School, Lord Dudley Marley, former British war minister, made an appeal for aid of victims of German fascism. Lord Marley said: "Many people have settled down into the comfortable belief that the grip on the victims has been relaxed. I am in a position to give countless facts to prove the contrary. Nothing I can say can possibly exaggerate the sufferings of those who have fled from Germany, or more particularly those who are still in Germany subject to the brutalities which are being inflicted by the Hitler régime.

TELEGRAPHIC MATCHES FEATURE RIFLE TEAM INTERCOLLEGIATE MEETS

Vermont Women Shooters Maintain High Record Among Intercollegiate Sharpshooters

By means of a unique postal service, the Vermont women's rifle team has and will continue to meet various and distant teams. Their method of carrying out the matches is this: The match is scheduled for a certain date and the teams in their respective stations shoot, informing their opponents of the scores by means of the postal service. In this novel manner the Vermont team has met a few teams, coming through so far with an unmarred record. The coach predicts for the future a continuation of this good work.

On February 10, our team met successfully the University of Hawaii with a score of 500-490. On this same date we met again with success the University of Montana with a score of 500-492.

On February 17, the team met successively:

Massachusetts State College 467, University of Vermont 500.

University of Nevada 592, University of Vermont 500.

On February 24 the team shot with Northwestern, coming out again victorious with a score of 500-403. On the same day we shot with:

FINAL ROUNDS OF WRESTLING TOURNAMENT TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Awards of Medals, Cups, Etc., Will Be Made After the Tourney Is Over

The final bouts in the wrestling tournament which has been in progress at the gymnasium for the last two weeks will be held Wednesday, 4.10 p.m.

On the first match of the day Bellino, champion in the 115-pound class will meet Ronca. As there were no other entrants in this division, these two will automatically enter the final round. Incidentally these two men were finalists in the same class last year.

In the 125-pound class, Morse and White will wrestle for the 1934 supremacy. Each has won two matches in preliminary competition.

Much interest has been shown in the 145-pound class. Segur will grapple with Stetson. Stetson was last year's champion and has thrown both Hale and Ricketson in preliminary bouts. Segur, a clever, scientific wrestler, has taken Tasker and Sholes over with little difficulty.

In the 135-pound class, Leone and Bristol will vie for the honor. Leone has conquered Lightfoot, Meservey and Schildhaus. Bristol has beaten Peter and Giffen. Both are first rate wrestlers and a real contest is anticipated.

The 175-pound match between Brosseau and Trottier should be a battle royal. Brosseau, a finalist in last year's bouts, meets Trottier a freshman backed by many campus dopesters. A display of wrestling comparable to a professional match should be seen in the bout.

In the final bout of the day Gould and Nuttal will meet in the unlimited class. There were but three entrants in this class, Gould, Dunham and Nuttal. The Gould-Dunham and Nuttal Gould drew a bye in the preliminary drawing and Dunham defaulted to Nuttal because of injuries. The final between the heavyweight champion and a real battle is expected.

The awards, in the form of cups and medals, will be made after the tourney is over.

The officials are Professor Carleton Judge, Mr. England, timer, and Bruce Lester, scorer.

The Public Affairs Club will meet on Thursday, April 12, in Room 4, North College at 8.00 p.m. Mademoiselle Brée will talk on France, Miss Laura Johnson '33 on Germany, and Dustin White '34 on the Balkan countries. Following the talks there will be a discussion of the European question. Everyone is invited and encouraged to come.

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports' Editor

Tomorrow noon the baseball squad starts on its annual southern trip. During the next two weeks the team will play ten games against some of the strongest teams in the Southland.

For playing conditions one need go no further than the mud puddles. Not since last April has the team had such a chance to get in shape. Consequently the lack of practice handicaps Vermont in a college series against a number of good baseball teams.

The optimistic spirit Vermont has displayed this year, New England college baseball prospects are not so good. We expect to win our share of games, but we expect to be surprised by a good number of ball players when the final score is tallied.

Last Coolidge has a team composed of many veterans and other prospective material. The handicap which the net leaders have to run contending with is usually overcome after the first few days on the road. His strong pitching staff this year carries us to believe that a successful southern season.

Wednesday evening there is to be a pep meeting and pep rally in the gym. No better wish of success could greet the team than a large turnout. Wednesday evening. Let's be on deck and do our part.

We are sorry that we neglected the team in our last issue. Some of the boys were quite indignant about it we hear. Our apologies, fellows. We promise you that you'll have your share in the limelight the rest of the season. O.K.

At any time now we expect to have the tennis and track teams on our mind. Records goes to show how we hate to be neglected.

Without further comment we extend our wishes to the baseball team for a profitable Easter vacation. A full report of all the games played will be published after the spring recess.

Sigma Delta announces the pledging of A. L. Williams '35 of Williamstown. On Monday, March 19, A. T. Reed '35 of Chatham, N. J. was initiated into the final degree.

NOTICE

Immediately following the finals of the wrestling bouts on Wednesday, March 28, medals, trophies and cups will be awarded the winners of the various intramural activities which have been held throughout the winter.

Cups will be awarded in the following events: Interfraternity basketball, interfraternity winter sports, interfraternity indoor track meet, and interfraternity relays.

Medals will be awarded to the winners in each of the various weight classes in wrestling.

The Donahue trophy will be awarded at the same time, to the winner of the 1934 Hexathlon contest.

The winners in the handball, badminton, and ping-pong contests will be announced.

An announcement of the Traynor trophy points to date will be given out at this time.

Presentation will be made by H. A. Prentice, director of physical education for men.

Gov. Bill Murray Denounces Silver Shirts

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Writing in the newspaper The Blue Valley Farmer, Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma denounced the Silver Shirts and similar anti-Catholic organizations as "the most pernicious organizations . . . known in existence." "I do not approve of any political organization and especially do I object to this organization of ours where fear is made a basic principle and religious persecution and religious intolerance are encouraged by the Constitution," Governor Murray said, but he said he would urge some unknown source of financing and as well as secret Silver Shirt lists. He said he would return the contents to the post office.

Delta Psi Wins Interfraternity Indoor Track Meet Saturday

Delts Won by Virtue of a Well-rounded Team Which Won Places When They Were Not Expected

INDEPENDENTS SECOND WITH 28 POINTS

Last Saturday afternoon the Delta Psi track team won another five points toward the Traynor trophy by defeating nine other fraternities in the annual indoor track meet. The competition was not great and the winners barely vanquished the Independents, the success of both teams was due more to their wide participation in the various events, than to any individual stars.

Trudeau of the A. T. O's was the outstanding trackman of the afternoon, netting his team eleven points, and breaking the high jump record by a beautiful jump of 5 feet 8¾ inches.

The S. A. E.'s also had a one man team, namely Jezukawicz, who took seven points for his club. The mainstays of the Independents were Joe and Rollie Delhausse and Wesoly who all captured several points. Shaw of the Sigma Nus collected six points in the half and quarter-mile runs, and Haug won the broad jump for that team. to add something to the taste

So important is Turkish tobacco in the Chesterfield blend that we maintain a modern up-to-date tobacco factory in the far-off city of Smyrna.

Turkish tobacco adds something to the taste and aroma of a cigarette that no other tobacco can give.

It means something that Chesterfield always has in storage upwards of 350,000 bales of this aromatic Turkish leaf.

This Turkish tobacco is blended and cross-blended with ripe mild home-grown tobaccos to give Chesterfields a taste and aroma that is not like other cigarettes.

Everything that money can buy is used to make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.

BOULDER TO SPONSOR ANNUAL SPRING FROLIC THIS COMING SATURDAY

Carsley and His Band With Several New Melodies to Furnish Music

Boulder Society will sponsor its annual Spring Frolic in the gymnasium this Saturday evening, April 14. Sid Carsley and his band, with a variety of new arrangements and a galaxy of new melodies, will furnish the music for the function.

Each year senior honorary group inaugurates the spring informal social season with a dance. This year's event comes at a time when weather and students are in a mood to welcome an informal dance. Co-chairman Ross expresses his opinion in the apt words, "Spring comes but once each year, and there are plenty of fellows who have been feeling stuffy all year, because of the unusual mount of frozen rain which has prevented them from enjoying their leisure time to the utmost. We hope that as many couples as possible will attend."

In an attempt to reiterate the type of acoustics which were so successful at the Gold Key dance before vacation, the orchestra will be placed at the head of the gymnasium with enough curtains surrounding it in order to make the harmony sound best. Carsley's orchestra has had a supremely successful season this year playing at some of the year's biggest and most successful dances. He made his 1933-34 debut at the Inter-fraternity Ball last fall, and has been gaining in popularity ever since.

C. J. Libby '34, the other co-chairman of the frolic, in accord with Ross in every respect, hopes "that everyone will take advantage of Saturday's opportunity to celebrate spring's arrival."

Chaperones will not be announced until Friday's issue of the CYNIC.

U. V. M. DEBATERS RETURN FROM SUCCESSFUL TOUR OF SOUTHERN STATES

Team Wins Three of Four Judged Decisions, Traveling Through Eleven States Which Covered Over 4,500 Miles

The University of Vermont debating team returned Sunday evening from a spring vacation trip into the sunshine of the South with decisions from three of the four judged contests. The team left Saturday, March 24, and twelve debates were held on consecutive evenings throughout the two following weeks. Judged decisions were won over St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y., St. Petersburg College, St. Petersburg, Fla., and Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va. One encounter was dropped to Juniata College at Huntington, Pa. The four men who made the two teams were G. H. Burrows, 2nd, Exeter, N. H.; D. W. Jenks '34, Burlington; W. W. Workman '36, Essex Junction; and R. E. McCuin '34, Highgate.

The first debate was held over the air at Canton, N. Y., with St. Lawrence University. Three judges rendered a unanimous decision in favor of the University of Vermont debaters. The debate was held in the afternoon between three and four o'clock. The question on which Vermont upheld the negative side was: Resolved that the Essential Features of the British Radio System Should be Adopted in the United States." Jenks and McCuin debated for Vermont.

The second evening of the trip was consumed with two debates, one at Penn State College at State College, Pa., and the other at Juniata College, Huntington, Pa. The team divided and Jenks and McCuin debated at State College while Burrows and Workman made up the second team which debated with Juniata College. Burrows and Workman handled an Oregon style debate on the affirmative of the NIRA while Jenks and McCuin debated the negative of the presidential powers before the local order of Odd Fellows of State College. The critic judge awarded the decision to Ju...

NOW THAT SPRING IS HERE

The exhilaration and wonderment of last winter is gone now. All is the deep snow and cold the ice. The grounds, so bare and brown, are just beginning to show green. You can walk abroad without any danger of freezing if your ears or nose. Spring is definitely coming upon us.

Everywhere is beauty in the springtime. But there is one place is need of spring. The campus. Not that that place is ugly in the spring. The campus is a home seeking one's target. The bright sun, balmy weather and a weekend ahead with a southern exposure is so much. It is easy to be confident in excess of or to excuse.

But go skating now and the weather, the college work goes right along. At the end of the school year approaches and the work will become heavier and exams pressing must be done in preparation for the final examination period. There is always studying to be done but there are times to do it and times to play other. It is one thing to admit that one must study and another to really get that studying done. For spring is here and everyone loves to loaf in and study. Now is the time when courses are passed. It is up to you.

AS FOR BASEBALL

The baseball team is having its usual luck in the annual southern training trip. The fellows had no outdoor practice before the trip and the lack of practice is a heavy handicap to overcome. Further they are playing a much too game schedule against the best teams in that region.

The trip is supposed as a training trip and is valuable only as such. The won and lost figures on the trip will not give any true indication as to the real playing ability of the team nor will it predict the outcome of the league games.

TENNIS COURTS

With the arrival of spring comes the usual mud and the usual desire to start using and pummel sports at once.

Lovers of tennis however are bewailing the sad state of the courts and no less must for being shot by the unfortunate men who must spend their best executive effort to keep the courts in good repair. A glance will show the many footprints of those who risk being permanently injured in the substance peculiar to tennis courts (those courts are privileged to possess cement carpets). We cannot put all the blame upon careless athletes for the carelessness for authority tells us that college students are no worse the offenders as are outsiders.

Some an appeal to college students to think before cutting through the courts but, with little effect, shall we make the plea in a more simple and material form. Wear white shoes.

RADIO HIGH LIGHTS

The most critical fans of Ted Fiorito's broadcasts over Columbia from the Palmer House are Ted's own family (now all grown up) in Livingston, N. J. His father was a former's a symphony orchestra leader, his mother used to sing in light opera in Italy and his sister Dick an expert saxophonist has her own orchestra.

Johnny Green and Ted Straeter who all appear on the same program twice weekly could put on a pretty good dance act as part of the program if television were here. . . . Straeter started her professional career as a single time dancer in Chicago. Ted used to teach tap dancing and Johnny learned his dancing from Jack Haskell, the English musical comedy star.

METHOD

As the complexity of human affairs ever increases, and as the extent of knowledge grows ever broader, so systematization of procedures and collocation of facts and ideas become more essential. To the college student of the present day who may hope to get at best merely a survey of knowledge and of human activity, until later years afford him time for specialization in a definite field, the subject of method pertains particularly.

The many demands upon a college man's time for academic, extra curricular and social activity must impress upon him at an early date the urgency of method in his labor. We doubtless all agree that his primary function as a student is to succeed scholastically. But what about his participation in outside activities? We may rate such participation as secondary to formal study in importance, but it is no less strongly instrumental to rounded development. In a college like Trinity, where, in the majority of departments, high scholastic attainment does take up so much time, we hear the lament often voiced of the impossibility of preparing thoroughly for a twenty-three-hour schedule and of doing at the same time much of anything besides grinding at courses. To many of us the answer to the question arising from such a lament appears as difficult to hold to in practice as it is easy to phrase in statement. The answer is simply to impress upon oneself a methodical routine which will decrease the time necessary for study, thereby leaving time for other important things. Authority says that it can be done.

A high degree of method in our college days has effects on our mental attitude even more advantageous than the scholastic and extra curricular success which it makes possible. It develops or at least largely obscures, our sense of futility in facing this world of confusion and discouragingly extensive knowledge. It may well bring out of the ivory tower of futility, but of the heart's desire mentioned so frequently by Hawthorne.

The team will lose four members by graduation. Janet Dodds, Daisy Putnam, Mary Poling and Mildred Vosburgh, all of whom shot consistently at 100 or 99 throughout the season and whose total score in the final was 399.

— what it means — to store 70 million dollars worth of tobacco

— 4½ miles of warehouses

Everything that Science knows about is used in making Chesterfields.

One thing we do is to buy mild, ripe tobaccos and then lock up these tobaccos in modern storage warehouses to age and mellow like rare wines.

It takes about 3 years to age the tobaccos for your Chesterfield, for Time does something to tobacco that neither man nor machine can do.

It means something to keep 70 million dollars worth of tobacco in storage. It means just this:

We do everything possible to make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.

INDEPENDENTS WINNERS IN FRATERNITY RELAYS

Defeat Delta Psi in Finals—New Relay Record of 2 Minutes 46⅗ Seconds Established

The Delta Psis and the Independents were the competitors in the final heat for the interfraternity relay cup award Wednesday afternoon, March 28, in the gymnasium, having eliminated all the other fraternities in competition.

The two lead-off men were Collins for Delta Psi and Wesoly for the Independents. Both men ran pretty even and finished practically simultaneously.

Collins passed the baton to H. Swift and Wesoly to E. Levine. Immediately Levine opened up and took a lead of about ten feet over the Delta Psi man, Swift. He kept this up and gave Joe Delfausse, the anchor man of the Independents, quite an advantage over Foote, Delta Psi's anchor man.

Joe seemed to be taking it easy, probably saving his speed for the "special 440" which was to come later in the afternoon. Regardless, Joe gained over Foote and finished well ahead of the latter.

The Independents established a new interfraternity relay record by breaking the old record of 2 minutes 49 seconds with a new record of 2 minutes 46⅗ seconds.

The Delta Psi also did well, having covered the grind in 2 minutes 49⅘ seconds.

RIFLE TEAM CLOSES THE MOST SUCCESSFUL SEASON IN MANY YEARS

Won First Corps Area Match by Wide Margin—Shot Consistently Higher Than Last Year

The University of Vermont rifle team closed its most successful season of National Rifle Association shooting with the end of the winter term. During ten weeks of competition it fired consistently above the highest score attained by the rifle team of a year ago; it was awarded N. R. A. medals for winning the First Corps Area match by a wide margin; it won three and lost three of its N. R. A. league matches, and improved its standing over past years in weekly postal matches with college teams from all parts of the country.

The five high men of the squad were new to varsity shooting this year and only one of these, W. A. Ross of St. Albans, will be lost to the team next year. Of the other five men, three will return to squad next year. R. H. Treadway of Burlington and R. M. Donahue of Jericho will complete their R. O. T. C. course this year and will be ineligible for national matches. Fourteen freshmen, who have qualified as expert riflemen and have had training this year, although ineligible for firing with the varsity, will be called out when the season opens next fall. Capt. M. E. Craig, coach, plans to start practice next year with these twenty-two experienced men and select ten or a dozen of the best for his team.

The team this year shot its best about halfway through the season, and then slumped. Captain Craig said, because of too much shooting. Next year, firing from sitting position will be eliminated in as many of the matches as possible to meet this condition.

The military department of the University will present medals to the ten high men of the team. M. E. Merchant of Essex Junction, whose score was highest for the ten weeks of shooting, will have his name engraved on his medal.

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports Editor

Now that we are on the final lap of the college year, we expect to find interest in sports at a highet pitch than during any other season of the year.

The track and tennis teams have got under way and in a few weeks will be ... operation. Both teams have a good nucleus on which to build strong outfits.

Baseball has already begun. After the southern trip, which serves as a training camp for the team, our boys will be seen in action on the local diamond.

We are not commenting on the baseball trip at this time because we would rather wait until the schedule has been completed.

For the same reason, there is no report on the games played thus far. In the next issue a complete résumé of the southern encounters will be published.

Through the medium of this column, we wish to thank Coach-elect John Sabo for his kind letter of appreciation. We welcome such extended cooperation.

Our omission of sport news in this issue will be compensated Friday. Thus we ask you to observe the ancient proverb.

THREE EVENTS STILL OPEN FOR TRAYNOR TROPHY COMPETITION

Baseball Tourney, Military Drill Squad, and Junior Week Peerade Float Still Left

The standing of fraternities in competition for the Traynor Trophy was officially announced on Wednesday, March 28, at the wrestling tournament. Delta Psi leads with a total of 19 points gathered by means of an ability to place consistently in the various events. Firmly entrenched in second place are the A T O's, who trail the Delts by four points.

With only three more events open to competition the struggle for supremacy will be decided by the abilities of the contenders to come through in the baseball tournament, the drill squad competition, and the peerade float for Junior Week.

The winners of the events held to date are as follows: Scholarship (standing was the same for both semesters); first (5, 5) Tau Epsilon Phi, second (4, 4) Sigma Delta, third (3, 3) Delta Psi, fourth (2, 2) Alpha Tau Omega, fifth (1,1) Kappa Sigma; touch football: first (5) Alpha Tau Omega, second (3) Sigma Alpha Epsilon; winter sports: first (5) Phi Delta Theta, second (3) Alpha Tau Omega, third (1) Kappa Sigma; Kake Walk: first (5) Delta Psi, second (3) Sigma Delta; basketball: first (5) Kappa Sigma, second (3) Alpha Tau Omega; relay races: first (3) Delta Psi, second (1) (a play-off between Sigma Nu and Sigma Phi will be held); track meet: first (5) Delta Psi, second (3) Sigma Nu, third (1) Kappa Sigma. These seven events together with the three not yet held comprise the competition among the fraternities for the much-coveted Traynor Trophy which is at present in the possession of Phi Delta Theta. This cup, offered in memory of Edward Pie Traynor '32, is held for a year by the fraternity which acquired the most points in the competition the preceding year. The first year it was taken by Kappa Sigma, followed successively by Sigma Phi and Phi Delta Theta. This, the fourth, will undoubtedly see still another house gain this much-desired trophy, emblematic of campus supremacy.

LOCAL HIGH SCHOOLS USE VERMONT'S CAGE

While Vermont athletes were either enjoying their trip through the sunny Southland or vacationing at home during the past week the local high schools took advantage of the idle cage. Both the Burlington and Cathedral High baseball squads put in several strenuous workouts there under the direction of their respective coaching staffs.

The Burlington High School track team had the use of the indoor running track and the jumping pit. An inter-home room relay race was staged during the week.

Winter Sports Club Elects Officers at March Meeting

D. G. Suitor '36 Selected President for Next Year As Club Ends Busy Season Under Leadership of G. O. Ricker '34, Retiring President

The Winter Sports Club held its final meeting of the season Tuesday, March 27. Election of officers for next year was held and plans for the future were discussed.

The newly elected officers are as follows: President, D. G. Suitor '36; vice-president, Elizabeth Rich '35, secretary, Helen Mount '35, treasurer, G. E. Ranslow '35; and corresponding secretary, J. F. Syne, Jr '35.

The termination of the first year of the Winter Sports Club, under the leadership of G. O. Ricker '34, shows a successful record. The club participated in five intercollegiate meets this winter, competing against Dartmouth, Norwich, Middlebury, St. Michael's and the Kake Walk Karnival. The club teams made an impressive showing in all of these contests. Also, the Winter Sports Club sponsored a college sleigh ride which was an innovation this year.

Plans for next year include a membership campaign early in the fall. One of the new features will be the awarding of letters to deserving sport enthusiasts.

In the rear of Centennial Field are excellent possibilities for a ski jump, a skating rink, a snowshoe and ski cross-country course and a slalom course, according to Ricker. The club plans to take advantage of these opportunities and is to make the projects a reality. With these facilities the association is scheduling an intercollegiate meet to be held here. Vermont will compete once more against Dartmouth, Middlebury, Norwich and St. Michael's. Tentative plans for a meet in Canada also are in view.

Ricker, the retiring president, expressed his best wishes for the continuation of the young sports club. "We all hope that the officers of next year will enjoy carrying on the activities where we left off and we appreciate the hearty cooperation extended to us which helped make the new project a success," exclaimed Mr. Ricker.

The first group of officers elected and who are now the outgoing officials are: President, G. O. Ricker '34; vice-president, Janet S. Woolley '36; secretary, Douglas G. Suitor '36; and treasurer manager, Kenneth D. Spaulding '34.

POSTURE QUEEN TO BE CHOSEN DURING HEALTH WEEK HERE

Tag Day, W. A. A. Indoor Meet Featured—"Winged Victory" to go to Queen

Next week, April 16-21, is Health Week. The Women's Athletic Association, particularly its Health Council, is making a campaign for healthier bodies and minds.

Seven major topics have been selected and posters are being made in connection with these. The posters will appear in the several dormitories throughout next week. In this way the Council hopes to remind Vermont women of those points of personal health habits that are often forgotten or at least neglected in the hurry of college life. It is the hope that this campaign will do far more than suggest; that it will bring careful consideration.

Thursday, April 19, will be "Tag Day." Members of the Health Council and Posture Committee will sell tags for a small amount of that money that everyone cherishes so dearly. The proceeds from the sale will go to swell the Health Council Loan Fund, which has been gradually diminished this year through many loans to various women students.

The final day, Friday, April 20, is the date of the W. A. A. Indoor Meet. At this time Health Council will announce the winner of the "Winged Victory," which is to go to the woman on the Vermont campus who excels in posture.

The Posture Honor Roll will appear in the Y room early next week. The name of the Posture Queen will be among those names.

MANUSCRIPTS FEW IN TRI-STATE COMPETITION

Manuscript in poetry, essay and short story are now being considered by the English department for the tri-state contest. Not as much material has come in this year as usual. Prof. Leon Dean stated that they are depending on the underclassmen for the most of their material, since the lower class seem to be lacking in literary genius.

The judges have not as yet been chosen for the contest. They will be announced in a later CYNIC.

FRESHMEN ANSWER CALL FOR BASEBALL PRACTICE

Last Tuesday afternoon thirty-eight aspiring baseball men answered Coach Doc Newton's call for freshman baseball candidates, and with such a wealth of material prospects look good for the 1934 season. The afternoon was spent in batting practice and general conditioning in an effort to get the men into good physical shape before serious practice begins. The roster includes nine pitchers, three catchers, sixteen infielders and the remaining men trying for positions in the garden. Several former prep school stars were among those reporting. Kenworthy's work behind the plate assured Doc Newton of a first class receiver to hold up his pitching staff.

Until the squad is weeded out, no prediction as to the success of the season is possible. However, with nine pitching candidates together with the abundance of other players, and the athletic ability shown by the freshmen this year, an optimistic outlook is held by coach and players alike.

The candidates were:

Pitchers: Gerow, Walter, Parker, Turner, Truex, MacMillan, Wolfe, LaBelle, Reilly.

Catchers: Kenworthy, Evans, Hosking.

Outfielders: Holliman, Woodhall, Newcombe, Lumberg, Buttles, Vilardo, Rice, Duncan.

REV. MORGAN ASHLEY SPEAKS AT WEEKLY CHAPEL SERVICES

The Rev. Morgan Ashley of Rutland conducted chapel services Wednesday, April 11. He chose as his topic for discussion, "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes Unto the Hills." He declared that as was the chorus of the pilgrims on their way to Jerusalem in the past centuries so it is today with college students. It is their ideal to reach greater heights and to gain strength and power by their own hard thinking. He said that although one must return to daily life after the contemplation of an ideal, the boy that he had seen something besides dirt and filth of life enables him to do better when he has returned.

MIDDLEBURY-VERMONT PRIZE DEBATE TO BE HELD FRIDAY, APRIL 27

Event is an Annual Affair Which Will Be Held on U. V. M. Campus This Year

Culminating the debating activities of the year will be the annual Middlebury-Vermont prize debate scheduled for Friday evening, April 27. Arrangements have been completed for the debate which this year closes the debating season for the University of Vermont. The debate this year will be held on the Vermont campus.

Three prizes are offered to the best three debaters as a result of the debate. A board of three judges will select the three best speakers in order of rank and the prizes are $25, $15 and $10 each. The group of prizes were established in the memory of George Edwin Lawrence, Middlebury College '67, and their purpose is to promote debating between the two state institutions.

The subject finally selected for the debate is the question on presidential powers on which the University of Vermont will defend the negative. The Vermont three speakers have not as yet been definitely decided, although D. W. Jenks and R. E. McCuin, both seniors who have won nine decisions on the negative of the same question, will probably do duty. The third speaker will be selected from W. W. Workman '36, F. W. Hale '36, C. A. Rogers '35 and C. H. Burrows '34.

MRS. HAND TO SPEAK AT HOME EC. MEETING

Mrs. Hand will speak at the home economics meeting tonight on "Hardy Flower Gardens." The meeting will begin at seven at Professor Terrill's house.

Margaret Lockwood '37 is in charge of the meeting and will introduce the speaker. All the girls are required to attend.

VERA FUNDS AVAILABLE FOR NEEDY STUDENTS IN PART-TIME WORK

Work Offered U. V. M. Students in Clinical, Library, Research, Manual Fields

The sum of $1,800 per month has been granted needy students at the University of Vermont for part-time employment under the Federal Emergency Relief Administration funds. The University's quota is based on this year's enrollment [illegible] 1,242. The rate to be paid a student is not less than thirty cents an hour. A student may not work more than [illegible] hours a week or more than eight hours a day and may earn amounts not to exceed $30 in any one month. The allotment is to provide work in addition to what is now being supplied by the University.

The work must be of the nature of that customarily done by students working their way through college, such as clerical, library, research, work on buildings and grounds, dormitories and dining halls. It excludes regular class instruction. The institution is made the final judge as to the acceptability of the work, and all jobs are under the direct charge of the college.

Selection of students to receive the aid is to be based on the need of the student for the financial assistance. The need must be such that it would be impossible for the student to attend college without aid. Scholastic standing and character are also taken into consideration in giving students work. The regulations further provide that the work shall be distributed between the men and women students according to their proportion to the total enrollment.

ADVANCED MILITARY STUDENTS GET RAISE IN PAY

Rate of Commutation Raised From 20 to 27 Cents Per Day

Information just received by Lieut. Col. Frederick F. Black from headquarters in Boston brings to advanced course students in military science and tactics the good news that payrolls for the remainder of this college year will bring in more money to seniors and juniors. Effective April 1, the rate of commutation of subsistence, which has been twenty cents per day, will be increased to twenty-seven cents per day. The old rate of twenty cents was subject, under the "Economy Act," to a deduction of 15 per cent. The new rate, under the newly passed "Independent Offices Act," will probably be subject to an "economy" deduction of only 10 percent.

REDSTONE GIVES TEA ON SUNDAY, APRIL 15

Both Men and Women Students Invited—Program to be Presented by Music Department

Another tea, in the series of University teas, will be held at Redstone, Sunday, April 15 at 4:00 p.m.

Miss Viola Long '37, a mezzo-soprano, will sing three selections. The first is "Nostalgia" by Kathleen Lockhart Manning, then "Nur Wer Die Sehnsucht Kennt" by Tchaikowsky. This selection is perhaps better known as "Only the Lonely Know." Miss Long will conclude with "Che Saro Senza Eurydice" by Gluck. She will be accompanied by Mme. Elizabeth Bradish.

Miss Dorothy Ball accompanied by W. H. Myers '35 at the piano, will play several violin selections. At the time we went to press Miss Ball had not chosen her selections.

All men and women are cordially invited.

BOULDER DANCE TO BE TOMORROW EVENING

Track Manager Writes on Inter-Fraternity Indoor Track Meet Records

By G. W. Patterson, Track Manager

(Records Follow Story)

These records are the best performances in the annual interfraternity indoor track meet which was instituted in 1926 by E. R. Latty, former track coach. The one held March 24, 1934, was the ninth in succession, one having been held each year.

It should be noted that the term "interfraternity" as used at Vermont and many other institutions includes such bodies as the independents. The term differs from intramural in that the latter includes interclass competition, wrestling tournaments and other competition in which only U. V. M. people compete.

These records, therefore, are not U. V. M. indoor records, since indoor interclass meets have been held since the days of antiquity, probably beginning about 1903, the year after the gym was built.

Considerable research will have to be done to establish these interclass records which cover a period of about 1903-1925. They would probably be poorer than the interfraternity records in most cases but several are ties or better. One instance is the 30 yard dash which was run in 3⅘ by Prof. H. I. Williams '12 of the engineering faculty, in the 1910 indoor interclass meet. This ties the interfraternity indoor record held jointly by Costine, Bond, Billings, Smith and Wesely. A tenth-second watch would probably eliminate a few of these co-holders.

Other interclass records which have come to the attention of the writer are as follows: 440, Granger, 58.0 seconds, 1920; 1 mile, Shepard, 4:48, 1921; broad jump, Bellerose, 20 feet 3¼ inches, 1920; 880, Shepard, 2:15⅘, 1920. These have not been checked and accuracy cannot be vouched for without further investigation.

These two sets of records could be combined as "U. V. M. Intramural Indoor Track Records" without, however, losing the identity of the interclass and interfraternity records. There are a few records of a special nature such as Joe Delfausse's recent 440 race against Ray Collins which the former won in 57⅘. In the opinion of the writer this is in the nature of a "track" record rather than an intramural record as it was not run in regular competition. There is no question of its being a record, however.

The interfraternity indoor track records are not indoor records as it has been explained, neither are they interfraternity track records. The latter term implies outdoor records which of course have nothing to do with the records under consideration. A few outdoor interfraternity meets have been held under Coach Latty's regime or thereabouts. These records are obscure and considerable research would be required to put them into adequate shape for publication.

When examining the above records a few facts having considerable bearing on the subject should be noted. When the event was inaugurated, varsity men were eligible to compete in the events in which they specialized. At present they are barred from such events. Just when the change was made is unknown as it can only be determined laboriously from internal evidence as the eligibility rules are not generally published, but it was apparently about 1929. Further research should be done to establish this point. Of course, whether or not a record was made by a varsity man does not make any difference in the validity of the record because the rules must have permitted them to compete at that time. However it would seem that records held by varsity men should be indicated in some manner as the rules do not allow this form of competition at present.

Another factor bearing on the races held on the gym track is the resurfacing of it in the fall of 1930. In the opinion of Prof. H. A. Prentice, the replacement of the old felt-padded canvas with

Catamount Baseball Nine Returns From Annual Southern Training Trip

The University of Vermont Baseball Team Returns to Burlington with a Record of Two Wins, Seven Losses and One Tie—Four Members of the Squad Batted for Over .300 During the Ten-Game Trip—Results Augur Well for Current Season.

By Fred Turner, Jr.

Decisive [illegible] Vermont athletic authorities opened hostile yesterday and took part in an intensive baseball training trip [illegible] competition by Graduate-manager Sabin C. Abell, and [illegible] coaches, scores defeats, one tie and [illegible] a great inadequacies to find a base where the touring Catamounts compiled two victories and lost six in their trek through the sunny Southland.

More than the gospel of triumph, however, was preached to the ball nine in its annual tour. There was a glorious trip, ideal educationally, and ideal, too, not only in the development of material for the long spring schedule with New England nines but in the development of good sportsmanship and friendship with the outstanding teams of the East. The squad returned early yesterday morning. Coach Larry Gardner, Graduate-manager Sabin Abell, Manager Max Powell, Jr., Captain Johnnie Beckley, Ed Layden, Larry Bowers, Enos Ranon, Whitey Palmer, Sandy Burnell, Stretch Kirley, Bobby Burns, Andy Werner, Eddie Funk, Bob Degree, Rollie Delfausse, Tommy Cogswell, Marchie Swartz and a Free Press correspondent.

A review of the ten-game training period uncovers decided promise for the season just ahead. Standout in the early contests was the uniform fine pitching of the mound's corps, uniform in the latter games was the consistent hitting of the squad. Only in fielding and there badly, did the Catamounts bow to their opponents. This particular lapse was due to two things, primarily, lack of sufficient practice before departing for Dixie and the presence of two untrained men in the left side of the infield.

Survey the pitching staff for a moment. Captain Johnnie Beckley pitched three games, allowing Washington and Lee just three hits for the route, holding Princeton to two in the seven innings he toed the mound and defeated William and Mary for the first victory. His work on the slab more than justifies his selection as captain of the nine. Eddie Layden and Marchie Swartz were both effective on the mound. Eddie lost the only game to William and Mary 6 to 5 when the teammates had nothing at all and [illegible] to V. P. I. Virginia Intercollegiate champions last year by the score 8 to 6 as the team [illegible] when the ball came on errors. Against Army Eddie retired with the score tied 10 to 10.

Swartz started just one contest, against Navy, and held the Middies to six hits [illegible] Vermont lost 6 to 5. At one stage the Green and Gold commanded a 4 to 0 lead but five errors again caused their downfall. Burnell was knocked out of the box by a strong Virginia team but came back strongly to hand George Washington an 11 to 9 defeat and Kirley, starting one game, retired when Vermont trailed V. M. I. 7 to 6.

In fact, with the exception of the Virginia and Virginia Military contests, all the games were decidedly close. Two games, the Navy and the Army, were dropped by one run, and two more, the V. P. I. and Washington and Lee games, were written in the lost ledger by the margin of two. Princeton was tied 8 to 8 after the Catamounts had amassed a 3 to 0, 7 to 3 and finally an 8 to 7 advantage. Poor fielding again paved the way for the deadlock. In that melee, the Vermont stickers hammered two pitchers for 12 hits while the Tigers collected just five off the combined slants of Beckley and Swartz. George Washington bowed to Vermont 11 to 9 and William and Mary dropped the second game of the double-header to the Green and Gold for the two victories of the trip.

Surprising strength with the willow after early inertia gave the Green and Gold a final batting percentage of .232. Captain Johnnie Beckley and Stretch Kirley, both pitchers, led the list with marks of .500 and .444, respectively. Bobbie Degree, who started the trip at third base and later retired in favor of Eddie Funk, hit for .333 while Funk batted at the .364 mark with a .909 clouting percentage. Funk, incidentally, was voted the most valuable player, leading his team in batting for those who played all the contests, with the most hits, 12, and for the most doubles, three.

A conspicuous feature of the batting troops was the fine performance of Tommy Cogswell, who was promoted from the job of general utility man to regular right fielder and Larry Bowers and Andy Werner. The latter duo found their eye in the last few contests and each hit a brace of triples. Eddie Layden maintained his usual high average and clouted a screaming home run out of the park at Army in the final stand of the voyage.

Poor fielding and numerous errors in judgments cost Vermont just five games. The left side of the infield, Degree, Werner and Funk, in the final games committed the majority of the miscues but wild pitches, passed balls and sorry headwork were other prominent reasons for those losses. Whitey Palmer and Tommy Cogswell each fielded perfectly. Bobby Burns was a defensive tour of strength at the keystone and Enos Ranon played errorless ball in the outfield.

Surveyed from a won-lost point of view, the annual itinerary was not particularly successful. From every other standpoint, it was eminently so. Both Coach Larry Gardner and Graduate-manager Sabin Abell commented on the fine sportsmanship and the spirit of the team, the entire squad benefited physically and mentally from the trip and the University, splendidly represented, may well be proud of its emissaries in this field of sport.

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports' Editor

The baseball team has returned from the South with a none too enviable record but nevertheless worthy of comment.

Although only winning two and tying one several of the games were lost by the margin of a single run, the winners by a shade luckier.

Vermont would have won many of the games had not a deluge of errors spoiled their chances. Navy's 6-5 triumph was a thriller.

The 8-8 Princeton tie and Army's 10-9 victory were heartbreakers. We must not judge the team by its victory column solely, as good baseball was displayed in many of the losses.

Capt. Johnny Beckley lost a tough game when he allowed the opposition but three hits. The failure of the rest of the team to hit, as well as sloppy fielding caused Johnny's downfall.

Ed. Degree, the new third-sacker, gave a good account of himself. His batting power was beyond expectations, and although at times erratic in the field, he promises to develop into a good ball player.

Elmer Layden, who has the rare combination of being both a good pitcher and batter, gave the ball a ride for a home run at West Point—a mighty sock.

Larry Bowers closed his part of the trip with a triple in each of the last two games. Bobby Burns and Whitey Palmer played a steady brand of ball during the whole trip.

The University of Virginia nine gave our boys the only decisive walloping. The Charlottesville pitcher struck out nineteen Vermont men and allowed no one to score, while his teammates knocked off a grand total of fourteen runs. A ball team, what?

We are confident of better luck now that the team has reached native soil. They should beat B. U. and Tufts next week, and we think they will.

There will be a meeting of John Dewey Club Wednesday evening, April 18.

Next year's officers of Bluestockings are to be elected at the meeting of the club to be held Friday evening, April 20.

U. V. M. TENNIS TEAM PRACTICING IN CAGE FOR LONG SCHEDULE

The University of Vermont tennis team which tackles a schedule of six matches at home and six away between the third and twenty-sixth of next month has had a fortnight of warming up practice in the cage and will go on to the outdoor courts as soon as the weather permits.

Heading the team are Capt. Norm Myers of Burlington and Hugh Wilson of Montpelier, last year's captain. Each won one of the two singles matches in intercollegiate competition last spring and they were undefeated as a doubles combination in ten matches. As the team usually plays four-man matches, Myers and Wilson form a strong nucleus. The chief problem of Prof. F. D. Carpenter, coach, is to develop men for No. 3 and No. 4 positions. Bernie Malmedy of Barre, a member of last year's team, is again a candidate, although his first year's work in the College of Medicine may prevent him from playing. John Swift of Burlington and Bart Costello of Rutland, of last year's freshman team are prominent candidates.

The annual tourney of Provincial Conference of the University of Maine and Colleges in the New England states is again tentatively set for May 14-16. Vermont has not sent any men to this tourney for a number of years but the prowess of some players, both in singles and doubles, last season has caused them to be entered for that event this year.

Vermont will play St. Michael's, St. Lawrence, Springfield, Middlebury, Colgate and Tufts at Burlington and Albany Teachers College, Rensselaer Union, Middlebury and St. Michael's [illegible].

Providence, R. I.—A 50 per cent increase in reading has been observed here at the John Hay Library within the last three years according to a report by Dr Clarence E. Van Horsen, university librarian.

Protest Athletic Tax

Washington, D. C.—The 10 per cent admission tax on college athletic events was protested here before the Senate finance committee by representatives of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. They claim that the tax is driving away spectators and crippling self-sustaining college sports.

Conducting the fight are Frank McCormick, director of athletics of the University of Minnesota; D. H. Harrison, University of Pittsburgh athletic director and C. P. Miles, athletic director at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

They state that the athletic associations at Notre Dame, Southern California, Army and Navy are the only ones in the nation now making money.

The 10 per cent tax was collected first in 1930 and brought in $900,000 instead of the anticipated $3,000,000, the N. C. A. A. men claim. The Government will take in only $132,000 this year.

This is a collection of [illegible] subjects such as the physicist's relations with the Prussian Academy, the rise of Hitlerism. Professor Einstein will shortly sail for Europe.

THE TRI-STATE LITERARY CONTEST WAS CLOSED AT END OF LAST WEEK

Results of the Contest Will Be Announced Some Time in the Month of May

Entries for the tri-state contest closed last week-end. The results will be announced some time the last of May.

This contest began in 1926 at the suggestion of the University of Maine. In that year Vermont won all the short story prizes. The students winning them were Florence Smith, Bertrand Chapman, and Elizabeth W. Morrill. In 1927 Paul Sullivan won the first prize in short story and Merta Monroe won the third prize. In essays the second and third prizes were taken by Lewis Leary and Janice Goodrich, respectively. Miss Goodrich also took second place in poetry. In the following year first places were taken by Vermont in all the events: Miss Monroe first in the short story, Ann K. Perkins first in essay, and Wilmond Parker first in poetry. In 1929 all the Vermont student placed third: Mary Turner in the story, Marjorie Rice in essay, and Miss Goodrich in poetry.

Miss Goodrich won the first prize in the short story, and second in poetry the following year. The first in poetry was taken by E. J. Fitzgerald. In 1931 Frances Frost took the first prize in poetry and tied for third place in the short story. Miss Rice placed second in the essay, and Constance Stone received second in the story. E. J. Fitzgerald tied for third place in the story. The next year William Cass '35 took second place in the essay, Eleanor Gates second in short story, and Fitzgerald first in verse. Last year Dorothy Kennedy '35 placed second in poetry and Frances Sinon '34 took third prize in the essay.

As the points stand now between the three colleges, New Hampshire is considerably ahead of the others. It has 106 points, Vermont 84½ points, and Maine 55 points.

In a summary of the contest it is found that Vermont placed first in the contests in 1927, 1928, and 1931; second in 1926, 1930, and 1932; third in 1929 and 1933.

New Hampshire won in 1929, 1930, 1932, and 1933. Placed second in 1928, and third in 1926, 1927, and 1931.

Maine was first in 1926; second in 1927, 1929, 1931, and 1933; third in 1928, 1930, and 1932.

A student at Ohio University voiced the opinion that marriage should be given much thought, saying, "It is almost as serious as joining a fraternity."

OBSERVANCE OF HEALTH WEEK STARTS NOW WITH GENERAL HEALTH DAY

One Special Phase of Health Contributions to Be Emphasized Each Day

Attention, co-eds! This week is health week and all the girls are urged to make note of this fact. The Health Council is striving for good health habits among the students. Starting Tuesday, April 17 and to be carried through Friday, April 20, each day is to be in observance of some special health factor.

Tuesday is general health day and health posters are being distributed in all the dormitories. Wednesday is included with general health, prevention of disease, and mental hygiene. The Health Council members will give out literature on these subjects to all the dormitories.

Thursday will be nutrition day and the home economics department will have charge of this project. Also, the members of the Health Council and the posture committee will sell tags for the benefit of the Health Council student loan fund which has aided several women students this year.

The indoor meet to be staged Friday evening at 7.45 p.m. will bring the activities of health week to a conclusion. During the day good posture and care of the arches will be stressed. Dr. Katherine McSweeney will be in the gym office all day for general consultation with the co-eds.

At the meet the posture committee of health week will go into a conference with the judges and they will announce the "Posture Queen" and will present to her the beautiful, streamlined statuette of "Winged Victory." For the past few weeks the posture committee has been appraising the carriage of all the women students. The posture honor roll will be posted this week in the "Y" room.

Another innovation of health week will be that on Tuesday, April 17, the girls will be given health cards to keep through the week. No names are required on the cards for these will serve the purpose for checking up the daily routine and health habits of the girls. The Health Council is to go over all the cards at the end of the week to see in what way students fall down in daily health habits, also to see in what the women excel.

Y. M. C. A. SWIMMING POOL MAY BE AVAILABLE FOR AQUATIC INSTRUCTION

New Building Will Be Opened to Public in the Early Fall When Members Will Be Admitted

The Y. M. C. A. building is rapidly taking form and will be finished by September 1. This will be, when completed, a modern and well-equipped building with facilities for all kinds of indoor recreation. Without doubt it will be the best "Y" building in the State, costing approximately $168,000.

The swimming pool promises to be a popular feature of the new building. The new pool will be twenty feet wide and sixty feet long, with a depth of nine feet at one end gradually decreasing to a depth of one foot at the other end. Accommodations for 200 spectators along the side of the pool and regulation equipment for diving and swimming meets are to be a part of this new feature. A chlorinating system, kept constantly at work will render the water practically germ free at all times.

The University officials hope to make arrangements with the Y. M. C. A. committee to hold swimming classes for Vermont students.

His membership fee has not yet been decided upon. However, all interested persons will be admitted as members from "nine to ninety." A program of gymnasium and handicraft classes are planned for boys and girls to be given under expert instruction, which is covered by the regular fee.

The new building will contain in addition to other things a large auditorium, five bowling alleys, reading and social rooms, and twenty-six private rooms available for rent.

There will be a meeting of the Dramatic Club Friday, April 20, at 1.30 in Room 3, North College. This meeting is for the election of the officers.

Colonel F. F. Black To Leave Vermont

Col. Black, Here Since 1927, Goes to Fort Williams, Me., Where He Will Be Promoted to Grade of Colonel—Successor Is Now Chief of Staff of First Corps Area—Change to be June 30

COLONEL BLACK

COL. FRANK W. ROWELL TO REPLACE COL. BLACK

[illegible] Col. Frederick F. Black, professor of military science and tactics at the University of Vermont is to be succeeded on June 30 by Col. Frank W. Rowell who at present is chief of Staff of the First Corps Area, United States Army.

Lieutenant Colonel Black, on the verge of being promoted to the grade of colonel, is to go to Fort Williams, Me., where he will take command of the Fifth Infantry and of the harbor defenses of Portland, Me., and also of the First District of Civilian Conservation Corps.

At the president's office it has been stated that the Colonel's years of service at the University have been exceptionally successful. Arriving in Burlington in 1927 Colonel Black has been at the head of the military department since that year. During this time the University corps of cadets have always received the coveted "excellent" rating awarded by the war department to the most efficient units.

Six of the seven prizes now being awarded annually to outstanding members of the cadet corps were instituted during Colonel Black's years at the University and largely through his initiative and influence. One of these, the four medals given annually by the Sons of the American Revolution to the most efficient member of each of the four college classes, was originally brought forward by Colonel Black. Now it is in effect at numerous other universities and colleges in the United States.

Before he came to Burlington to take up duty here Colonel Black had been on duty with the 97th Division at Bangor, Me., and with the 13th Infantry in Boston Harbor. He is a graduate of West Point, 1901; Signal School, 1913; Infantry School, 1921; School of the Line (distinguished graduate), 1922; General Staff School, 1923; Army War College, 1924.

Colonel Black's successor, Colonel Rowell has long acquaintance with matters pertaining to reserve corps. Colonel Rowell was born in Idaho. He was first commissioned from civil life in 1898 and was promoted to the grade of colonel in

O'NEIL DISCUSSES CURE OF ALCOHOLIC PATIENTS

Dr. J. C. O'Neil, professor of psychiatry, gave a lecture over WCAX the local station at Burlington, Friday evening, April 13 on the subject, "Mental Maladjustments." He presented a brief, clear and enlightening survey of a few of the most interesting facts about the State Hospital at Waterbury.

One topic he stressed particularly was the manner in which they attempted to cure inebriates. When they first receive the patient they eliminate the alcohol from his diet, then they try to remove his craving for the drug. This is usually accomplished in a very few days. Then they build up his body, and later, through psychological chats, try to find out the cause of the drinking habit. However, permanent cure depends entirely upon the patient. He must have will power, and the power to say "no." If he does not have these abilities the treatment is useless.

Prof. M. B. Cummings of the horticulture department will speak at the next University program, Friday evening, April 20. His topic will be "Spraying." A program of music will also be included.

GREY AND BLACK COVER FOR APRIL WINNOWINGS

The third issue of Homecomings from the Mill will appear the last of April in grey and black cover. At this time the contents are not complete. This will be found in a later issue of the Cynic.

Editor-in-chief Dorothy Kennedy '35 and Prof. Leon W. Dean will soon appoint the board for next year. This board will put out the fourth issue of Homecomings. All contributions for this issue are requested to be in by May 10, as this date is set aside as the deadline.

Cynic Reporter Tries to Climb the Chapel Tower

[illegible] viewed with curiosity [illegible] Ira Allen Chapel, rising [illegible] the sky, an ambitious [illegible] determined to find out [illegible] the University failed [illegible] of the fine view which [illegible] obtain from this [illegible].

[illegible] the head janitor could [illegible] to the question the [illegible] out in search of him [illegible] and he proved a most [illegible] but was firm in his [illegible] students were not allowed [illegible] tower. When pressed [illegible] this ruling he said [illegible] was kept closed most of [illegible] a sufficiently good view [illegible] the Old Mill Tower.

Discouraged in this attempt the reporter was about to give up in despair when someone suggested that perhaps special permission might be obtained from President Bailey. With this last hope the weary reporter turned his steps toward the administration offices, when admitted to the president's office the reporter explained his mission and with his heart in his boots asked for permission to ascend the apparently inaccessible tower. However, the reporter was due for one more wait before receiving an answer as the president decided to deliberate the matter for a day or two.

So, as matters stand now, students can mount to the tower only if President Bailey allows it and then by special permission alone.

COLONEL BLACK

Lieut. Col. Frederick E. Black, professor of military science and tactics at the University of Vermont for seven years from 1927-34, has been transferred to Portland, Me., as announced in another column of the Cynic.

The Colonel has completed seven successful years of service at the University. The R. O. T. C. has won the right to wear the star denoting rating of excellent during every year of his service here. Six of the seven major prizes given to students for good work in the department have been inaugurated since his arrival and one at least has been widely copied by other units.

The R. O. T. C. at Vermont has been relatively popular during his term of service. The R. O. T. C. band has enjoyed a period of prosperity. New capes and hats have been provided and the band makes several trips each year with the football team. Also three years ago new uniforms were provided to replace old olive drab with a snappy blue and white combination.

Objectors to military training here may be divided into two classes: First, real conscious objectors, and secondly, people who dislike classes early in the morning. The second class includes the vast majority of the objectors. If the others are present they keep their heads under cover.

To Colonel Black, much of this popularity is due. The only people on campus who disliked him were those few who were behind in their work in his department.

The Cynic wishes him success.

A COOPERATIVE HOUSE

During the last few years students here, as everywhere else, have adopted as possible ways of economizing on living expense. A large number of women now provide their own food and do their own cooking at a very low cost. For the most part these people live in private homes or similar rented expense. In this way they miss the very valuable experience of living in a group, and since one's college life provides about the only opportunity for group living, it seems that that opportunity should be taken advantage of if it is at all possible to do so.

The much-discussed point of proper diet is an equally important factor which may be lacking in this system of boarding. Not by any means do we say that students are incapable of knowing what constitutes good food or that they do not have it, but it is quite evident that in the hurry of college activities it is considerably easier to eat "sketchily" than to prepare a regular meal.

We admire wholeheartedly the energy and practicality of the women who are successfully living at a minimum expense while they pursue an education, and because of those qualities the plan for a cooperative house which is now being considered for use at Vermont next year we believe would be most acceptable. A cooperative house where women could divide work and responsibility and still live very inexpensively would provide for a vital part of college life—living in a group. It would reduce extracurricular work. It would ensure a high standard of living, and, in particular, it would make for good health.

Princetonians Oppose Wilson War Memorial

Princeton, N. J.—Suggesting that a new town library or the cleaning up of local slums would be a more fitting memorial to Woodrow Wilson, Princetonians in an editorial opposed placing a marble shaft to the late President in the traffic circle at the west end of Princeton's business section.

Free Trade vs. Free War Real

Columbia University, N. Y.—The Columbia University debating team will oppose Oxford University on May 5, on a radio-wide Atlantic debate on "Resolved that Steadily Increasing International Trade Between Nations of the World is the Best Means of Securing Prosperity and International Peace." Columbia will take the negative.

Slogans---

A dynamic growth of the advertising business has been accompanied by an extensive use of the slogan. Advertisers [illegible] the slogan. These mottos, besides being profitable for the advertiser are interesting. Some have been repeated more often than others but they all have that striking quality which is characteristic and necessary to a motto. Whether they have anything to do with "art" is something else. [illegible] a good ad and a good ad is sometimes used with good art. Some of the more "pounded" slogans we have listed below, the most of them you will easily be able to identify with the advertised product. All are not mottos, but many are simply [illegible] which instantly call to mind the articles associated with them. How many can you identify? A very incomplete list is as follows.

"How's Your Breath Today?"
"King of Bottled Beer"
"Now B O Is Gone"
"How I Stepped Into A Big Pay Job"
"What A Fool She Is!"
"Hasn't Scratched Yet"
"Doesn't Scratch"
"Her Face Was Covered With Pimples"
"It's The BEST ENGINEERED Car In The Low Price Field"
"Look For The Date On The Can"
"Brush Your Teeth Twice A Day And See Your Dentist, etc."
"Happy' .. 'Snappy' .. 'Pleasin'' .. 'Reason'"
"Not A Cough In A Carload"
"Smoke . . And Still Keep A Fresh, Cool, Happy Mouth"
"There's Sleep In The Palm Of Your Hand."
"It Floats."
"Fifteen Minutes A Day."
"They Satisfy"
"Do You Have Athlete's Foot?"
"Boys! Win This Bike."
"The Mystery of Room 1177."
"Costlier Tobaccos."
"Eat Soup And Keep Well."
"Next Door To The Irvin Theatre"
"The Day That Was Years In The Making."

BICKFORD EXPOUNDS LIFE IN STRANGE INTERVIEW

The Cynic has the great opportunity of presenting the following interview on "Spring, Summer, and Opportunity, and the Future" which was conducted by one of the reporters. The victim of this interview (his replies are labelled "A.") was the renowned Pappa Booper Bickford. The following is an exact account of the encounter, as related by the reporter:

With some trepidation I approached the split-panelled door of Room 45 and knocked gently. A voice within growled, "Wat in hell you want?" Taking that for an invitation, I entered. There, with one foot on the window sill, stood a largish person with black hair, dusting off his black and white shoes. Gaining heart I explained the purpose of my visit. We began forthwith.

Q. Nice day, isn't it?

A. H-r-r-r-umph.

Q. Have you guts enough to gamble three cents for proof in seven days that you can have a body like mine? (I got that one from an ad in a magazine on the table.)

A. Does the face go with it?

Q. Is it true that the Owls are planning to buy a school bus?

A. Some are thinking of taking a flyer on the Rutland Railroad.

Q. Stock market, eh?

A. Young man I never discuss the corporation's affairs with out-siders. Consult our quarterly bulletin.

Q. What do you think of interviews?

A. White flannels should be coming in soon. Pepper is beginning to loosen up a bit; maybe we'll get some real inside dope.)

Q. And beer?

A. I'm agin' beer-ocracy.

Q. Can you explain why the east side of the chapel clock is always four minutes slower than the south?

A. Burlington is not yet ready for daylight saving time.

Q. Well, I'll not keep you longer. Just one more question. The future?

A. Add "bi—" plus personal endings to the present stem of the verb. My day's work complete, we departed fast friends.

Mrs. J. D. Rockefeller, 3rd, a Socialist

New York, N. Y.—Society here was shocked when it learned that Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, 3rd, née Blanchette Hooker of Greenwich, Conn., daughter of Elon Huntington Hooker, former Republican candidate for Governor of the State of New York, was found enrolled as a Socialist voter. Mrs. Rockefeller is known to have been a liberal before her marriage. She wrote well-informed articles on Soviet Russia, which she had visited.

BURROWS APPOINTED COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN IN RIOTOUS MEETING

[illegible] could be handled at once! The question must be settled by those six who are concerned. I suggest that those six appoint a committee to settle this problem. The meeting is now open for nominations." Professor Carrol stood looking expectantly over the serious audience.

A strange silence fell over the room. The twisting of craning necks was the only sound as the entire audience looked first at one of the bewildered five and then at another (one was absent as usual). The right wing looked jealously at its three representatives of the six, the center at its one, the left wing at its one, secretly hoping its absentee would walk in any moment. The right representatives grew red, the center, a woman, looked at her pink fingernails; the left wing's representative balanced her chain glasses on her nose and looked severely at the blackboard.

Suddenly a weak titter ran through the conference; it grew louder, threatened to burst.

Professor Carroll, hopefully, "No candidates!"

Angus Thorne, Jr., led the laugh. "If no nominations are forthcoming," said Mr. Carroll, "I appoint George Burrows II as chairman of this committee."

Mr. Burrows grew red. The rights glowed; the center snickered; the lefts sighed.

Professor Carroll continued, "Mr. Burrows is from Exeter, New Hampshire. He is a senior (laughter). I am sure he will be efficient (hurrahs). Mr. Burrows is well known throughout the college (more titters). He has been competent in numerous activities (grunts from the audience as a whole).

Applause and silence, then Mr. Carroll directed his commands to the new officer. "Mr. Burrows, now it is up to you to get these six together and decide on a time for that make-up exam."

BULL-SESSIONS

Not in my roommate's Webster's, nevertheless, bull-session plays an important part in the lives of male dormitory and fraternity inmates of every college from Adelphi to Milligan, from Millsaps to Yankton. Bull-sessions can last far, far into the night—and they don't need mixed drinks to make them loud, lively, and lucid. The range covered by these impromptu discussions is truly appalling to the uninitiated. At one sitting as many as forty distinct topics are mulled over, not with the slightest regard to their significance in relation to world affairs or middle-class standards of living, but in accord with the whims of the group of fellows, lanky and bulky, sprawled all over the available furniture. The fact that one fellow is irked slightly by the stuffiness of the room may cause him to interrupt a discussion on the relative merits of silk and wire lines for deep trolling in fresh water and swing the talk over to Prohibition, or Jewish persecution, or Ripley, or Professor Gibbet's stiff marking in Hogandhominy 29. The air will grow tangible with smoke, the hours will enfold the room unnoticed, and Red will forget his Math, Pete his German, Lou his Botany drawings. And then one will call out "Sufferin' mackerel! Eleven-forty and I got a class at seven-thirty tomorrow." And Red will recall his Math, Pete suddenly recalls German and thinks of that D, Lou dashes off to the neglected drawings.

But is this time wasted? Is health ruined by such irregular hours, so much nicotine? Are morals degraded by the free discussion of rape and beer and burlesque shows? I think not. I believe these bull-sessions are half, if not more, of college life. They strengthen friendships and understanding. They develop a sense of proportion and a realization that this world is not a beautiful and understanding place where one may do a deed and live happily ever after. They breed in future engineers, authors, Presidents, educators, and bankers and bond salesmen a respect for the opinions of others, a fear of being mistaken in their own. And what is there to do about it if some obstructionist, moralist or blind man wishes to make the college lads think decent thoughts? Make them live in monastic cells, police them carefully? Such methods do not prevent the girls in this dorm or that from smoking surreptitiously in their rooms or reading Dr. H. W. Long's book on sex and eugenics (endorsed by the courts). So it looks as if the bull-session will continue for a long time to come to be a major factor in college education.

In this crisis of depression [illegible] schools are considering art [illegible] so-called fads or unnecessary parts of a school's curriculum, Vermont [illegible] from the grades up have kept it nourished it as an essential part of individual's education.

Vermont has not, as a rule, given much attention to art as other [illegible] but she has kept what she has. Art is still taught in all the [illegible] and at the University. RARE MEDICAL VOLUME SHOWN IN BURLINGTON

Under the auspices of the Osler Medical Society of the medical college of the University of Vermont a rare old medical book has recently been shown in Burlington. The book is the "Fabrica" or Anatomy of Andreas Vesalius, published at Basel, Germany, in 1543, now a part of the Osler Library at McGill University. The volume was brought to Burlington by Dr. W. G. Ricker of St. Johnsbury, secretary of the Vermont State Medical Society and former student of Sir William Osler at Johns Hopkins. Doctor Ricker was in Burlington to address the members of the Osler Society.

Historically the book, written in Latin, with 824 pages of text and 380 illustrations done by Van Calcar, a pupil of Titian, under the personal supervision of Vesalius, is of much importance as it records the first accurate observations of the anatomy of the human body. Prior to the time of Vesalius physicians relied on the writings of Galen, who lived in the second century after Christ, for their knowledge of anatomy. Unfortunately, Galen had received his knowledge of anatomy from dissection of dogs, pigs, apes and oxen, and in his works described the human liver as divided into many lobes like that of a hog, the breastbone as segmented like that of an ape, and the hip bones to be flared as in the ox. Such was the hold that Galen's work obtained upon the physicians of the Middle Ages that when Vesalius, in the sixteenth century, showed that Galen's description of the hip bones was wrong, the excuse that was offered for Galen's error was that man had changed his shape through wearing tight trousers. Vesalius actually dissected the human body and made accurate observations unblinded by veneration of Galen. He obtained a human skeleton by surreptitiously removing it from the town gallows, thereby peojardizing his own life, as he himself would have been executed had he been detected.

Vesalius, when he was but twenty-three years of age, was appointed professor of anatomy at Padua in Italy. During the next six years he conducted painstaking dissections of a number of human bodies, and in 1543, when he was barely twenty-eight years of age, he published his great work on anatomy. As might be expected, the first correct demonstration of the anatomy of the human body was met with a storm of violent protest. In a fit of temper over the opposition to his work, Vesalius burned all his manuscripts, became court physician to Emperor Charles V, gave up anatomy and became a courtier.

COOPERATIVE WOMEN'S HOUSE PLANNED FOR VERMONT NEXT YEAR

Different Systems to be Published in Cynic; First Given Herewith

A plan for a cooperative house for women is being considered for use at Vermont next year. In order to better acquaint students with the systems used in other colleges and to determine which plan they believe would prove most satisfactory here, the CYNIC will print a short series of outlines on cooperative houses in existence elsewhere. The first of these comes from Kansas State College, Manhattan, Kan.

Arrangements whereby students may obtain board and room at less than the usual rates of dormitories and still live with a group have been in effect at various colleges for a number of years. At the present time twenty-five colleges and universities in the country have them. The plans in use vary widely in detail but the general purpose of all of them is to reduce living expenses of the student while at the same time maintaining health standards and contributing values in the field of social education. The plans under consideration are those most comparable to what would be necessary for this University.

Suggested Outline From Kansas College

General Policies:

Rent unfurnished house near campus.

Plan budget to cover good standard of living for college women.

Cost to student to be based on rates charged by local college residence hall operating on a non-cooperative basis, same percentage usually allowed for regular and student labor.

Group under the guidance and direction of a home economics faculty member or graduate student preferably one who has had either teaching or institutional experience. Board and room furnished in return for services.

Upperclass household economics or institutional economics major to act as assistant director.

Remainder of girls divided into four or five groups, rotating weekly. Free from work duties one week in the cycle. Suggest that they take turns acting as hostess during that week.

A co-ed bobs to the surface, clinging to the lower deck of the boat. Two students remove her helmet. "Ooooo," she chokes. "I'm petrified!"

"Whassa trouble?"

"Eels!" she said. "Nasty, yellow eyed, slimy eels!"

This has nothing to do with the futility of co-ed hysteria over bringing up formaldehyde-treated worms in a northern laboratory. For in the Gulf Stream there are eels, venomous eels with barbed tails, rattlesnakes of the Atlantic, which poison fair co-eds. So the class quickly moves on to another spot.

This weird course belongs to the University of Miami at Coral Gables, Fla., and is the only course of its kind in the world.

STUDENT OFFICERS GIVEN MARKSMANSHIP TRAINING

The twenty-nine juniors and four seniors from the University of Vermont who will go to Fort Devens, Mass., this summer for R. O. T. C. training, began a course in rifle and pistol marksmanship this week.

All are enrolled in the pistol course, and the twenty-one who have not previously qualified are firing the qualification course for small-bore rifles on the indoor range. When weather permits all will fire on the 300-yard outdoor range with the larger calibre rifles.

PUBLIC AFFAIRS CLUB MEETING LAST THURSDAY

Four Members of the Class in Current History Give Talks to the Group

The Public Affairs Club met in Room 3, North College, at eight o'clock Thursday night, April 12. C. J. Kilburn '34, president of the club, read a letter from Clark University requesting the University of Vermont to send two delegates to the conference to be held there this spring. One of these delegates is to be a senior and the other one a junior. The latter will be on the executive committee next year. The registration fees are very low. Registration must be completed before April 28. The features of the conference are discussions of the topics "America Must Choose" and "The Far East." There will be round-table discussions. Formerly this conference was exclusively a business meeting, lasting only a few hours. The initiation this year of discussion of international topics should prove popular.

Laura Johnson, a post-graduate at U. V. M., gave a discussion of Germany since the World War. She explained why and how Hitler got into power, and then discussed the economic reforms attempted since 1918.

Elsie Brée, a special student at the University of Vermont from France, discussed some of the topics which are of current interest in her country. She said that the feeling between France and Germany is not nearly so antagonistic as is generally believed.

Helen Jenkins '34 compared the present Union of Socialistic Soviet Republics with the old Russia. She showed how old Russia had been isolated and did not keep in contact with the outside world. The U. S. S. R. tries to maintain friendly relations with all countries, yet it avoids entangling alliances.

W. D. White '35 presented a description of the Balkan States. He gave brief sketches of the past history of some of these states, and showed the important rôle they played as trade routes. Then he discussed each country in relation to the World War, considering especially the results.

The next Public Affairs Club meeting is scheduled for Thursday, April 26. Plans are being completed for a program equally as interesting as the one presented at this last meeting. One important topic to be discussed is "America Must Choose." Any college student or faculty member is invited to come and enjoy this splendid opportunity to keep posted on world affairs.

Wesleyan Uses Press Instead of Books

Middletown, Conn.—The only textbooks in the courses at Wesleyan University on the governments of Great Britain and the United States will be newspapers, is the announcement of Prof. Frederick M. Davenport.

THE SPORTING EYE

The Holy Cross Tomahawk reports in its column the following: "A few years back most of the leading eastern colleges journeyed southward to engage teams of that sector." This year the University of Michigan is sending a baseball team east, and the University of Vermont is the only eastern team with many contests scheduled for down Dixie Way." Others know about it, too.

Dave Dunn, former coach of football at the University of Vermont, has been elected mayor of New Britain, Conn., on the Democratic ticket. The possibilities of football technique in running a city government are intriguing. Probably the city council will go into a huddle before acting on matters of importance. Perhaps Dave will teach the politicians some new plays.—Free Press.

Lanny Ross, who croons various types of tunes over a national radio network for Maxwell House Coffee, was once a track star at Yale. For a time Ross held an eastern intercollegiate record in the half-mile. Lanny decided it was better to boast "Good to the last drop" than "Good to the last lap," so gave up his running career.

Did you ever stop to think how much ground a basketball referee covers in a game? A referee in the Mid-west officiating at a high school tournament of eight games wore a pedometer in each game. At the conclusion of the tournament he found that he had traveled twenty-four miles, an average of three miles a game.

DePauw University's basketball team claims a national title, as a result of an undefeated season of seventeen consecutive wins. This quintet has one of the finest records of any small college in the nation, winning thirty-three of their last thirty-four games in the past two seasons.

Just forty-two years after he played on the Ohio Wesleyan eleven, the Rev. Frank Gillet was awarded his "W." This bit of news should be consoling to those who failed to make the grade during their undergraduate days. The "V" in 1976 should be quite futuristic in design.

A new world record for the 16-lb. shotput has just been made. A few weeks ago Jack Torrance of Louisiana State heaved the iron ball 53 feet 6 inches. Fame diminishes rapidly, for only last Saturday John Lyman of Stanford tossed the same weighted ball the exact same distance.

Princeton to Have Dinghy Regatta

Princeton, N. J.—Lake Carnegie, hitherto used by crews and rowboats alone, this spring will be the scene of a series of dinghy races under the auspices of the Princeton University Yacht Club.

The dinghies, designed for use in shallow water, will be able to complete the three-mile course without difficulty despite the fact that the lake rarely exceeds a depth of six feet in any place.

Twelve dinghies have already been ordered and the yacht club expects additional orders totaling the same number during the course of the spring.

Mexico U. Will Play Birmingham

Mexico, D. F.—The University of Mexico and Birmingham-Southern football teams will play at Birmingham early in October, Mgr. Manuel Estanol Arestegui announced.

This will be the first visit of the University of Mexico football team to the United States since 1931.

MEDALS AWARDED FOR RIFLE MARKSMANSHIP

At battalion formation last Friday, April 13, a number of medals for rifle marksmanship were awarded. Twenty-five freshmen received either expert rifleman or sharpshooter awards. Gold medals for having won the intercollegiate rifle team match from the other senior college and university units of the First Corps Area were presented to each of the following advanced military training students: M. E. Merchant '36, 776; F. T. Churchill '35, 760; A. S. Darden '35, 764; W. G. Gibson '36, 755; J. W. Hopkinson '35, 754; W. A. Ross '35, 753; D. E. Behringer '35, 753; R. H. Treadway '35, 751; A. L. Williams '35, 751; R. M. Donahue '34, 746.

The men listed above placed Vermont first with an aggregate score of 7,599 points, leading the nearest college by a large margin. Other competing schools and their scores follow: University of New Hampshire, 7,473; M. I. T., 7,430; Rhode Island State, 7,412; University of Maine, 7,407; Connecticut State College, 7,337; Norwich, 7,230; Yale, 7,186; Massachusetts State, 6,936; Boston University, 6,157. Scores for the colleges in such matches are based upon the total scores of the ten highest men on teams of fifteen men each. Firing, on home ranges, is extended over a considerable period, at the end of which the targets are sent to Washington for official scoring.

BECKLEY SPEAKS BEFORE MORNING MASS MEETING

The main topic of the mass meeting Saturday morning was baseball. Johnnie Beckley, captain of baseball, acted as chairman. Beckley first introduced Larry Gardner, who briefly reviewed the team's southern trip, and expressed his confidence in the team.

Beckley next presented Mr. Oakley, an alumnus, and one who is interested in Vermont athletics. Mr. Oakley stressed the fact that the teams need the backing of the students. He stated that the students should especially support our new football coach when the football season begins next year.

Life is like a cigarette,
It makes you cough, it makes you choke,
And just when you get used to it,
The whole damn thing goes up in smoke.

WOMEN'S DEBATE TEAM COMES BACK FROM ITS ANNUAL SOUTHERN TRIP

Upsala, Rhode Island and Middlebury Are Met on Various Subjects

The women's debating team of Vermont has just completed its annual southern trip. The first debate was with Upsala at East Orange, N. J., a Swedish institution which has been founded only recently. The subject was concerning the NIRA policies, and there was no decision. The American system was used, with three speakers on each side, a five minute intermission, and then two refutations. Elvira Farman '34, president of Philagon, women's debating society, commented enthusiastically on the wonderful hospitality offered to the team at Upsala.

The second debate was with Rhode Island State on the Navy. The Oxford system was followed and the decision was awarded to Rhode Island. Although Rhode Island is a comparatively small college (it has about one thousand students), there is much interest and active participation in debating. Debates are held between the different fraternities and sororities and the final winners represent the college. There is a chapter of Tau Kappa Alpha located there, and the college as a whole seems to be genuinely enthusiastic about debating. After the debate a reception was given by one of the competing fraternities and here, too, our debaters were very well entertained.

At Bates the Oxford style was again used. The subject was the NIRA and there was no decision. The arguments of the Bates team were expressed in witty sayings, in a style more sparkling than can be found in the usual debate. Here there is a special room set aside for the use of the debaters, well equipped with files and a typewriter. The walls are decorated with pictures of the teams of foregoing years, and with posters of past debates among which are several advertising forensic contests between Bates and Vermont.

At Middlebury the subject was again

NEW MAGAZINE TO BE FOR COLLEGE GREEKS

Formal, the new men's magazine for college Greeks to be published early this fall, invites student writers, poets, humorists and cartoonists to submit their work for consideration.

Formal is reputed to be a high-type magazine of personal interest to sorority women and fraternity men. It is not to be another humor magazine. Its editorial content is to be of excellent caliber featuring undergraduate writers in addition to renowned professional contributors.

Students wishing to submit manuscript on fiction, non-fiction, poetry, prose, humor or cartoons are requested to send this material to Formal Publishing Company, 505 Fifth Avenue, New York, accompanied by an addressed stamped envelope to insure return of material not accepted. All manuscript accepted will be paid for on date of publication at a rate based on the merit of the material and becomes the property of the publication.

Undergraduates wishing to act as campus representatives for Formal on a liberal commission basis are requested to get in touch with the publishers. In most cases, there is only one representative to a school.

Mortar Board Dance Saturday

"Knock 'em down and drag 'em in, girls, and when they awaken to the strains of Carsley's melodies, they will think they're in paradise.

"Rule this world of men! Sign them up! If you know they have a toe-trodding mania, let them sit out awhile. Be your own boss!

"The men are at your mercy. Don't let them down. We can't allow them to sit at home next Saturday night and twiddle their thumbs—they might get inferiority complexes. Think of the future of the nation! A country of pitiable men—able in body but broken in spirit. Let us rise to the occasion and meet this situation with real determination.

"If they're shy and say 'I'll write and ask my mother,' call mama yourself and tell her!"

The above statement refers to the Mortar Board dance to be held Saturday night, April 21, in the gym. The dancing begins at 8.30 and the tickets are a dollar per couple.

LETTER FROM FLORIDA ALUMNUS COMMENDS MEN'S DEBATING TEAM

Alfred C. Krayer '19 of St. Petersburg Highly Praises Fine Work of Team

In a recent letter to Mr. M. D. Powers, general secretary of the Y. C. A., Alfred C. Krayer '19 of the Krayer Insurance Agency, St. Petersburg, Fla., praised very highly the Vermont debating team that took the southern trip. He said that he had received "fine words of commendation" from many college men about the team and enclosed clippings that he declared were read by people from every part of the globe." The letter read as follows:

From Mr. Powers:

You will recall that you wrote to me a few weeks ago in reference to publicity on the Vermont debating team.

The extent of the publicity that I was able to obtain is shown by the enclosed clippings (seven in number) and also one direct from the editorial page of the St. Petersburg Times. You may use these as you see fit. Incidentally these clippings were read by people from every part of the globe and by more than eight hundred scientists, who were here attending the convention of the American Chemical Association.

I am sending a copy of the letter to President Bailey as all Vermonters here have been talking over the splendid type

YOU MUST CHOOSE NOW

The time to start frowning over when all Juniors, Sophomores and Freshmen must hit out Group Requirement Books with their choice of courses for the coming year 1934-35. All students except Seniors in the College of Arts and Sciences are required to fill out these sheets and file them in the Dean's Office before May 1.

It is not necessary to dwell at any length on the mere mechanics of filling out the sheets. However Dean Swett has set apart certain hours at which he will be free for this purpose. Other advice necessary may be obtained from the enrolling officer in the course you are studying.

Some students know what they want, others do not. The former, as a general rule, follow a carefully planned course, nearly all of which is required; they have few electives and the ones they do have are often the five soft courses. For instance, the pre-meds often take a second year of psychology that is almost a requirement. The latter group of students, those who do not know what they want, have the big problem at the time.

When a man goes to a university with no particular courses in mind he does one of two things. First, as is often the case, he finds some course of lectures which he becomes intensely interested. We see many men who change courses during their four years at school. The other case is the one in which a man tries to get a general education all the way through.

A person may study those things which he would like to know. He might take astronomy for instance. Yet in our country, the great majority of us must study to know what goes on about him. The new deal has drastically changed the course of governmental policy. The acceptance or rejection of it now lies in the hands of votes of our fathers, but the future, the attitude toward new deals in years to come lies in the hands of the men and women in school. They must study so when the time comes they can vote intelligently.

This editorial is not intended as an advertisement for the Social Sciences. The Natural Sciences all science has its place. The University offers courses in science that no intelligent man can afford to be without. And in a choice course of some science you may find the key to your life work.

A man's major must be well rounded. Are you? If you take Philosophy 4 it will need a grounding in history, ancient and modern, in natural sciences, physics and in psychology. Other courses would prove useful in attaining a full understanding of the subject matter.

Remember that the world is not like college? It is harder. But if a man is strong he will succeed.

TENNIS CANDIDATES WORK IN CAGE IN PREPARATION FOR BIG SEASON

First Trip to be to Albany, Troy and Schenectady Early in May

Tennis under the direction of Prof. L. D. Carpenter is well under way with the candidates for the team anxiously awaiting the opening of the courts on the main campus. At present most of the practice has been confined to the base ball cage though Capt. Norm Myers and Hugh Wilson took a trip to Fort Ethan Allen Tuesday afternoon and practiced on the lenient courts there. Stevens and Costello also tried their shots Thursday on that place.

Professor Carpenter's problem is to find number three and four positions on the team, the first two being held by Captain Myers and Wilson. Bart Costello, H. L. Gray, R. H. Treadway, P. R. Stevens, J. S. Swift, R. B. Hart, and J. Mulcahy are in keen competition for these two places.

All of the candidates have had wide experience in tennis circles. Captain Myers beat Hugh Wilson in the finals to win the fall tournament conducted on the courts last autumn. P. R. Stevens of Hartford and Bart Costello, a promising Rutlander, were in the semi-finals of that tournament. Swift, Costello, and Gray were on the freshman team last year.

The team will leave for New York state around the first of May to take on the New York State Teachers' College at Albany May 3, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy May 4, and Union at Schenectady May 5. Mulcahy is eligible, but Professor Carpenter is not sure of his making the trip, as his studies at the college of medicine will keep him busy, though he might come out later in the season.

The tennis team has a good schedule this year, but according to Professor Carpenter tough opposition will be found in Union, the only team to beat the University of Vermont's tennis team last year, Tufts, and Colgate.

Campus Comment

Norwich University,
April 13, 1934.

The Editor of THE CYNIC.

Dear Sir:

I am availing myself of this opportunity to pass on to you a bit of information re our forthcoming Junior Week festivities and to extend to the students of Vermont a sincere and cordial invitation to get together with us.

Our program will be initiated when we engage and trounce your baseball team at 2 p.m. on May 3. That evening there is the Junior Prom which I would particularly recommend for a rip-snorting time.

On May 4, the first event scheduled is a formal guard mount on the Upper Parade at 10 a.m., followed by the rope pull at 10.45. The afternoon session calls for the horse show, which, incidentally, is going to furnish plenty of entertainment, diversion, and thrill. At 4.15 there will be the Skull and Swords election together with another parade. At 7 p.m. the Dramatic Club will present a three-act drama, "Outward Bound." To cap the climax for that day the fraternities will hold "open house" with dancing and plenty of WHOOPEE until 2 a.m. Again I would say "Don't for Pete's sake miss them!"

Saturday morning has been set aside as a rest period for the halt, the lame, and the blind, and those the worse for wear, but Saturday afternoon the ball gets under way again with tea dances, parades, and exhibition drills. The high spot of the week comes Saturday evening with an informal hop in the Armory which is the epitome for those fortunate and rugged enough to be still carrying on at that point.

We wish to emphasize particularly the fact that you all are absolutely welcome—it's OPEN HOUSE so make yourselves at home with us and we'll guarantee results—PLENTY!!!!

Sincerely,
HARRY O. SMITH.

MORTAR BOARD PROFITS GO TO COLLEGE WOMEN

Tutorial Bureau and Women's Dormitories Are Part Recipients

The profits which Mortar Board receives not only from the dance but also various things all go back to the women in college.

Part of the money goes to the Tutorial bureau which maintains free tutoring for any women in college at any time. Some goes to the dormitories in awards for the neatest girl during the year. Also a prize is given the junior girl who is working her way through college and also attains the best scholarship.

Mortar Board is sponsoring Lilac Day and it is hoped that it will be the best yet, and every woman in college should feel that she is a part of it."

The English broadcasters are imitating our popular radio comedian. There's the monocle-wearer who asks his audience: "Could you, perhaps, be interested in purchasing a web-footed, short-legged water fowl?"

MRS. W. B. MELONEY TO LECTURE AT WOMEN'S STUDENT CONFERENCE

Magazine Editor of New York Herald-Tribune to be at Conference at Redstone

DISCUSSIONS TO BE IN SESSION APRIL 27

Representatives From Ten New England Colleges to Take Part

Mrs. William B. Meloney, editor of the magazine section of the New York Herald-Tribune, will speak here on April 27 during the New England Conference of Women's Student Government. Representatives of ten New England co-educational colleges, including Vermont, will take part in the conference. The names of the delegates will be published in a later issue of the CYNIC.

Before the talk by Mrs. Meloney there will be a formal dinner, for which girls are to sign up, held in Robinson Hall, and afterwards there will be an informal discussion group in the Wilbur Room of the Fleming Museum.

After registration of the delegates, two from each college, there will be dinner and coffee at Robinson Hall, after which cars will take the delegates to the performance of the "Gondoliers" at the City Hall. "We hope that the women who attend the opera will dress formally," stated Catherine Durick '34, president of Student Union. "We should like to have more formal functions at Vermont" Seats will be reserved for these women.

On April 27, after breakfast at Robinson Hall, the conference will hold its opening discussion at Redstone from 8.30 to 11.00. At twelve, luncheon will be served at the Country Club and the discussion will be continued afterwards on various topics.

From 4.00 to 5.30 p.m. Miss Patterson, assisted by the Vermont Student Union, will give a formal tea in honor of Mrs. Meloney at 262 South Prospect Street. House presidents, house committees, house directors, members of Bluestockings, Winnowings, the CYNIC, and Joint Council will be invited to this tea. Members of Mortar Board will pour. In the receiving line will be Kay Durick, Grace Harris, Betty Rice, Madeline Ainsboro, Dean Patterson and Mrs. Meloney. Frances Rowe is in charge.

A list will be posted Friday on which girls are to sign up to eat at Robinson Hall, for the formal dinner on April 27, which will precede Mrs. Meloney's talk. The first seventy-five or hundred that sign from all dormitories will eat at Robinson. Grace Harris '34, chief justice of Student Government, will be the toastmistress. Mrs. Meloney will speak a few words of greeting, and toasts will be given by representatives of five colleges.

At 8.15 Mrs. Meloney, of the New York Herald-Tribune, will speak on "Beginning Life in Hard Times." All students at Vermont and faculty are invited, but townspeople will be excluded. Immediately after the talk an informal discussion will take place, and people may meet Mrs. Meloney in the Wilbur Room.

The next morning, after breakfast at Robinson, a group picture will be taken, and the final discussion held at Slade at 8.15. Afterwards the delegates will go to the student mass meeting.

TRADITION OF LILAC DAY DEVELOPS FROM IDEA OF DEAN WASSON

Lilac Day, which is to be on Saturday May 26, unless the weather forbids, was established by Pearl Randall Wasson, the first dean of women. She wished that the beauties of the Redstone campus might be increased by a hedge of lilacs, and that the planting of each bush might be a day of festival and beauty, giving to the hedge the same haze of tradition which surrounds the commencement ivy on the library.

The first Lilac Day was carried out quietly under her guidance. At the second she was no longer with us, but Alkraia chapter of Mortar Board, aided by the student body, kept the day in her memory. A pageant was held on the lawn back of Redstone. Then the retiring president of Student Union spoke briefly on the purpose of the day as the vice-presidents of each class cast her shovelful of earth upon the roots of the lilac. The classes sang on the steps of Redstone, and then dispersed. Thus was established in rough outline the plan of Lilac Day. Under the careful guidance of Mortar Board, it has grown in perfection and meaning to be one of the finest expressions of the beauty of college life.

IOWA STATE GIVES GOOD OPPORTUNITY TO STUDY COOPERATIVE HOUSES

In order to better acquaint students with the system used in other colleges and to determine which plan would prove most satisfactory here, the CYNIC will print a short series of outlines on cooperative houses in existence elsewhere. The second of these comes from Iowa State College at Ames, Iowa.

Suggested Outline From Iowa State College

General Policies:

A copy of each quarterly financial report shall be presented to the head of the institution management department.

The hall director shall pay for board at the popular rate charged to the students.

A sinking fund of $360 shall be maintained.

At the close of the spring quarter, after provision is made to meet all outstanding bills and for any needed replacement of equipment, the surplus shall be prorated to the students in residence and refunded in the hall during the current year.

Replacement of large equipment, such as a range, shall be made by the college. Replacement of breakage, loss or wear of utensils and tableware shall be made from the income from board.

It is understood that the hall director shall have direction of the hall and for the supervision of the housing. She shall also be responsible for the supervision of these students assigned to duties on cleaning committees.

Plans of Organization

1. Committee Organization.
   1. The girls resident in these halls are grouped into ten committees.
   2. These committees rotate through four divisions or work with every fifth week a rest period, then they are free from any duty in the house. The cycle is completed every five weeks.
   3. The personnel of each committee remains the same for a quarter.
   4. Two committees function in the same division at the same time.
   5. Each committee is headed by a chairman who serves for a period of six weeks.
   6. The chairmen are selected at the

INDOOR MEET TONIGHT ENDS HEALTH WEEK

Posture Queen to be Named From List of Twenty-six on Posture Honor Roll

With the indoor meet tonight the activities of Health Week will be brought to a close. During the week health posters have been distributed in all the dormitories and the necessity of good health and posture has been in the limelight. Tuesday was general health day; Wednesday, prevention of disease and mental hygiene day; and Thursday, nutrition day; tags were also sold for the benefit of the Health Council student loan fund. Today Dr. Katherine McSweeney will be in the gym office for consultation, and the women students are urged to make use of this opportunity to find out and correct their ailments.

The election of the "Posture Queen" has aroused much interest in the student body and the anticipation for Friday evening when she will be announced is great. The posture honor roll has been posted and the "queen" will be one of those listed. "The Book of Honor" containing the honor roll is on the bulletin board in the "Y" room. The book was made up by the Health Council and is attractive in gray and black. The following are the members of the posture honor roll: Margaret Lockwood '37, Abby Howe '37, Helen Taylor '37, Christine Brown '37, Helen Jenkins '34, Ruth Lattimer '36, Carolyn Cabot '36, Velma Purinton '34, Claribel Morris '34, Marjorie Hayden '34, Susan France '35, Betty Woodward '34, Natalie Richardson '35, Mary Augustenovitch '36, Peg Mc... Cracken '35, Ruth Dawson '34, Tessie Burns T.T., Ada Ingalls '34, Marie Black '36, Helen Bellows '35, Glenna Wright '37, Natalie Hilliker '36, Edith Whitcomb '37, Betty Beckvold '35, Birrie Creagh '35, and Barbara Taylor '35.

SHIP TOURNAMENT TO BE PART OF INDOOR MEET THIS EVENING AT GYM

Battle Between Frosh and Sophs to Offer Fine Program and Keen Competition

Today, April 20, at 7.45 p.m. the much-heralded ship tournament will take place with the freshman class as the crew of the Bremen and the sophomores as the crew of the Mauretania.

"This is the first time that we have combined Health Week and indoor meet, and we feel that the arrangement is a good one," stated Miss Cummings, while Miss Blanchard nodded assent. The Health Week posters made by the members of the Health Council and those issued by the Tuberculosis Association will be on exhibition in the gymnasium at the meet.

"The selection as to the Posture Queen has not been an easy one to make, and the members of the Council have considered most carefully their decision," said one member of the Council.

A detailed account of this phase of Health Week will be found elsewhere on this page.

The program of the tournament is:

There will be twenty-four members of the good ship Bremen in the competitive dance, "Three Bells," while twenty of the Mauretania crew will compete with "Sailors Beware."

Next, an interesting program of deck games between the two ships will be played through. Dorothy Oldfield and Ruth Groat will defend the honor of the Bremen against Louisa Gallup and Gladys Sussdorf of the Mauretania in pingpong. Shuffleboard will be played by Ruth Quinn and Catherine Newcomb '37, versus Helen Carpenter and Mary Reeves '36. Virginia Riley and Lois Hammond will battle with Harriet Gile and Ruth Barron for victory in badminton. The games will come to an end after Doris Goldman and Sylvia Margulis of the hosts and Carolyn Cabot and Ruth Lattimer, guests, have it out in deck tennis.

MENTAL HYGIENE DAY OBSERVED AS PART OF HEALTH WEEK

Wednesday, April 18, mental hygiene was stressed for Health Week. The physical education department has put out for that day some very interesting literature, part of which is quoted from the Philosophy of Study by H. Addington Bruce.

At this time of year, when most students in school and college are beginning to work harder in view of the approach of the examination period, it is well for them to be reminded of certain physiological facts. Otherwise some among them are likely to study to great disadvantage.

Of special importance is the fact that attention power and memory power are directly and appreciably conditioned by the state of the bodily organism.

This means that when a student plans to do an extra amount of mental work throughout the interval between Easter and his examinations, he should at the same time take extra pains to keep himself physically fit. Many students neglect this precaution.

Many, for that matter, the moment they begin to "plug" at their studies, become strangely careless with regard to personal hygiene.

They cut down the time they usually devote to physical exercise. Perhaps they no longer exercise. Also they eat their meals hastily and irregularly.

As a consequence, being poorly nourished and physically soft, they fatigue easily. Nevertheless they compel them... to keep grinding away.

Inevitably their power of brain control becomes lessened. Then they find it increasingly hard to concentrate attention and to remember what they read.

In many cases failure to pass examinations may be fairly attributed to this same neglect of the need for nourishment, exercise and fresh air.

Because of the difficulty in arranging a satisfactory program at this time, the mass meeting for Saturday, April 21, has been cancelled. Classes will meet at the usual Saturday hours. There will be a mass meeting on April 28.

'37, Abbie Howe '37, Thelma Gardner '37, Patricia Stanley '37 and Lois Hammond '37. The tragedy was four-fold, resulting in the death of all the cast, the chief point of interest was the rate of speed at which the acts were performed, naturally, in slow motion, and at break-neck speed.

The Pi Phi stunt given by Ruth Wright '36, Rosemary Cahill '36, Elizabeth Boright '35, Barbara Belcher '34, Ruth Dawson '34 and Mary Bennett '34, consisted of the dramatization of two poems by A. A. Milne, "James James Morrisson Morrisson" and "The King's Breakfast." Both were cleverly presented.

The prize-winning stunt was the Grassmount presentation, written by Elva-Mae Jenkins '36 and Marion Waite '34. "Marshal's Follies" or "Thwarted on the Steppes of Russia," consisted of the adventures of Popeye, the sailor man, played by Marietta Marshall '36, with Nuts, Louisa Gallup '36, Cream Puff, Ruth White '36, Mae West, Marjorie Cook '36, Spinach Fredrica ... and Castor Oil ... FROSH TRACK CALL BRINGS OUT FORTY PROMISING MEN

Progress Being Made in Work for Meet With Montpelier Seminary May 5

Over forty ambitious track men answered the call of Coach Art Ladlaw freshman track coach. Among the candidates are many experienced men, which should bring a successful season to the team. During the past week the work has been mostly conditioning and it is expected that all will be in fine shape for the first meet with Montpelier Seminary on May 5.

For the dashes, Duley, who has done 10 1 in the hundred yards while in preparatory school, will be the outstanding man, while Sabin and Wood are also developing very well. Webster former captain of Burlington High School track team, is also making a fine showing in both the 100 and 220.

Shaw, Noyes and Hunt should be able to take care of the 440 with comparative ease. Shaw is an experienced man and much is expected of him.

The half mile has a host of candidates, all of whom appear to be very good material from their showing in practice. The outstanding ones are Dopp, MacIntyre, Swift, Thibault, Belmaire, Albert, Kershner and Evans. Most of these men have run cross-country and should be in fine shape.

The mile run will be very well equipped with Lehrer, Daigneault, MacIntyre, Kennedy and Jenks.

Lehrer, Connecticut school boy mile champion and holder of various other records, has run a mile in 4.38 and the half in 2:04. It was feared that Lehrer would not be able to run this spring because of an appendicitis operation in the fall, but it is now expected that he will be in shape for the first meet. He will not, however, be able to participate in the interclass meet on Saturday, April 21.

Daigneault, MacIntyre, Kennedy, and Jenks, all star cross-country runners last fall, will also aid the mile considerably.

The pole vault has but two candidates, Kennedy and Trudeau, but both are experienced and should make a good showing.

Trudeau, record-breaking high jumper, will lead his colleagues, Hoag and Webster, in the high jump. All are capable high jumpers with plenty of experience.

The hurdles are shy of candidates but all are good material. Pierce, Hoag and Trudeau are the mainstays of this event.

The outstanding men in the weights are Cannon, Trombley, Ross, Herr and Barton. Cannon and Herr both have had considerable experience and should be able to capture this event.

Others on the squad include Rice, Schoff, Wheeler, Adams, Bedell, Duncan, Hoag, Macdonald, McMillan, Munger, Reed and Shuttleworth.

The schedule is as follows:

May 5—Montpelier Seminary, Burlington.

May 12—St. Johnsbury Academy, Lyndon Institute (dual meet) at St. Johnsbury.

May 18—Green Mt. Junior College at Poultney.

There will be a Gold Key meeting Sunday, April 22, 7.30 p.m., at the Kappa Sigma House. This will be an important meeting. All members are requested to be present.

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports' Editor

At time of writing, we have not received word of the Vermont-Boston University game, so are unable to give you a report on that encounter.

If comparative scores can serve as an estimate B. U. should have been an easy victim. Tufts took the Terriers over to-2 last week.

Today the Catamount nine faces Tufts. The Jumbo team has started off on the right foot this year. They will be out to avenge the 2-1 defeat administered by Vermont last year.

Tufts lost a great twirler in Felix Andruskiewicz by graduation. However, they have an able pitcher in Roy Woodworth and reports say that Coach Ken Nash plans to use him against Vermont.

The Elephants play Harvard later in the week so may save Woodword for that game. If that is the case, Bill Stafford will be used, and Woodworth will be used in center field.

It is possible Larry Gardner may use Jug Layden in the Tufts game. He limited them to three hits last year. Beckley however, may be the logical choice.

Tomorrow the team ends its Massachusetts trip by journeying to Springfield. We have not much dope on the Indians so are reluctant to comment.

Our feeling is that Vermont should find its greatest opposition from Tufts, Boston University and Springfield should be added to the victory list. We'll see.

The first chance to see the varsity in action on the home diamond will be a week from tomorrow, when they meet our buddies, the Middlebury Panthers. It's always a good game because of the rivalry, if nothing else.

Middlebury is on a four-day trip this week-end. They are playing Union, Upsala, Panzer and Army. If they return successfully, watch them crow. This Panzer outfit, by the way, has beaten Princeton this year.

REV. A. W. HEWITT BRINGS PERSONAL MESSAGE TO CHAPEL SERVICE WED.

Rev. A. W. Hewitt of Berlin was the speaker at Wednesday morning chapel. Using three words, "Remember Jesus Christ," from the second letter of Timothy, Mr. Hewitt developed four topics dealing with the need of remembering Christ.

He said in part that people are cheered by remembering those they love, and that often thoughts of such loved ones will give them strength to meet a crisis. He repeated, "As a man thinketh, so is he." He also stated that what one makes of his life depends largely upon what type of person he takes as his ideal.

At the close of his address Mr. Hewitt summarized the four occasions when one should remember Christ. "(1) When we wonder what God is like, remember Christ. (2) When we are selecting dominating influences of our life, remember Christ. (3) Remember Christ when we are facing decisive crises of our life, and lastly, when we want to test and judge ourselves, our life, remember Christ."

AGGIES VICTORIOUS IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION CLASS TOURNAMENT

Frosh Team Defeats Soph Champs to Claim Class Title

Wednesday afternoon the Aggies, freshman physical education class champions, defeated the sophomore physical training champs by a score of 23-13. The game was rather slow but at times the smooth teamwork of Aggies thoroughly baffled the sophs.

McCum, of the frosh, took away the scoring honors of the afternoon, garnering 12 points for his club while the sterling defensive playing of Letty Warden kept the sophs well in hand throughout the encounter. Davis, sophomore center, led his team with 6 points.

The Aggies hold a record as an undefeated team this season, their success is due to splendid teamwork and their impenetrable defense rather than any individual stars.

The box score:

CATAMOUNTS INVADE MASSACHUSETTS THIS WEEK FOR 3 GAMES

Primed by Southern Trip They Prepare for B. U., Tufts and Springfield

Coach Larry Gardner and his Catamount diamond aggregation returned from the annual spring trip in the South this week with their batting eyes much improved, ready for a three game invasion of Massachusetts next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

In ten games, the team collected eighty-two hits off opposing pitchers for sixty-four runs. Ed Layden, pitcher and fielder, made the only home run, against Army in the last game of the trip. Bowers, catcher, and Werner, shortstop, each chalked a brace of triples, while nine two-baggers were secured. Funk made twelve hits in thirty-nine trips to the plate to lead in number of hits and keep above the .300 average. Degree, who played in fewer games because of poor batting, batted for .333 while two pitchers, Beckley and Kirley, led the list with .500 and .444 averages, respectively. The team batted for .232.

The sophomore infielders, Degree and Funk at third and Werner at short, showed much promise, especially at bat, but evidenced a need of seasoning. Whitey Palmer, steady first sacker, accepted 120 fielding chances without error, but was next to the bottom of the list in his batting average of .140. Lack of outdoor practice was a factor in the loss of seven of the ten games to teams benefiting by a warmer climate.

The Catamounts will play Boston University at Boston next Thursday, Tufts at Medford next Friday, and Springfield College at Springfield next Saturday. Layden, Beckley and Kirley will probably do the twirling in these contests. The home season will open at Centennial Field April 28 against Middlebury.

All sophomores wishing to scrub the business side of the spring plays should report at once to C. J. Howe or D. D. Davis, business managers.

Cornell Sports Curtailed

Ithaca, N. Y.—With a grim determination to fight the depression the Cornell University Athletic Association is going right ahead with its spring sports schedule, in the face of an impending cutback. With home curtailment in sporting expenditures and athletes financing their own games and meets, Cornell will be represented in baseball, track, crew, golf and tennis.

Curtailments include withdrawal of financial assistance to the baseball team for a spring training trip to the South, withdrawal of support for the track team for the Penn Relays at Philadelphia and withdrawal of the junior varsity crew at the Poughkeepsie regatta.

Absinth makes the heart grow fonder.

Conn. College's Course in Marriage Hailed as Success by Students and Parents

A course in marriage established at Connecticut College this year, is proving successful and has met with the approval of parents as well as students.

The course has attempted to treat the subject of marriage as comprehensively, broadly and usefully as possible. A course was worked out which includes preparation for marriage, adjustments in marriage, the anatomical, psychological and physiological aspects of reproduction, birth control and care of children, and education for parenthood. Miss Lynn White came to Connecticut College from Mount Holyoke to conduct the course. Certain aspects of the subject could be handled by the college physician, psychology department, etc. Dr. Dorothea Jameson, resident physician, was consulted on many the physiological and hygienic aspects of marriage.

"There is a great deal about the problem of boy-girl relationships that we don't know and they are interested. Actually they are quick to see the value of all matters pertaining to marriage, as the course contains things, concepts and relationships, that are personal.

Many of them have gathered their personal knowledge from novels, advertisements and magazines and sophisticated friends.

Each girl wants her marriage to be successful and happy. It needs scarcely to be said that she plans to be glamorous. She intends to exploit that success in marriage that success in any other career. As in every career she must give her efforts and her intelligence, patience and fairness with which she is prepared to meet its problems.

Pope Rebukes Race Prejudice

Vatican City.—In a speech last week, interpreted as a rebuke to Nazi Germany, Pope Pius XI said: "An exaltation of racial pride, . . . can lead only to haughty hatred which is absolutely contrary to the Christian and human spirit."

We are fortunate to be host to present to the conference and to ourselves here to prominent a speaker on so timely a topic. We are eager to have a Vermont student preside over the conference. We are anxious to participate with neighboring colleges in student government. We shall profit in sharing our university to other students.

The members of the Vermont rifle team met last Saturday morning during the period from ten to ten-thirty to elect new officers for the ensuing year V S Darden '35 was chosen to succeed Capt R M Donahue '34, who has guided the team through a most successful season This has been Darden's second season on the team and he has been the high scorer during several of the meets this year N Gould '37 was re-elected to the managerial position and W. H. Van Wyck '37 was elected assistant manager

Afterwards the officers of the rifle club were chosen This club is composed of the members of the rifle team and the coach The club is organized as a component of the National Rifle Association The officers who were elected were President, F T Churchill '35 vice president, J W Hopkinson '35 secretary A L Williams '35, treasurer W A Ross '35, executive officer, Coach Craig, assistant executive officer D F. Behringer '35

Captain Craig announced that the members of the team should read the list of the freshmen who qualified as expert riflemen and try to get each of these to try out for the team next year He also described the improvements which were going to be made on the range before next year The outer range is going to be enlarged to include five firing points instead of four The inner range is going to be greatly enlarged As it is there are three firing points there for the prone position These will be enlarged to include six from which one can shoot in all positions Other improvements are also being made before next season

This will make it possible for eleven men to fire at the same time so that it will not be necessary for the men to spend as much time as they have had to in the past as there will probably be an empty firing point at any time they are wishing to fire

Lettermen announced by Captain Craig for the past season Captain Donahue '34 Churchill '35 Hopkinson '35, Williams '35 Ross '35, Merchant '36 Broadway '35 Behringer '35 Captain-elect Craig '35 Darden '35 Gibson '36 and Mgr M Gould med '37

ENGLISH COLLEGE DRAWS AMERICAN STUDENTS

that education in foreign countries appeals to American college students is proved by figures compiled in a recent survey at University College Exeter England Since the inauguration of a special course for American students concentration of Americans has more than tripled

This may be because of three things a record international spirit special courses offered Americans or to the cost of travel the attraction of the Prince of Wales president of the college council the survey suggests

American men and women have registered in courses as divergent as music and horticulture leading to professions as varied as government research and settlement work In addition to the regular session of three terms of ten weeks each many of them attend the holiday courses for foreign students held for four three and a half weeks at Xmas Easter which will be repeated at Exeter this summer

Some also have studied at Exeter a year or more plan to continue their studies at the Universities at Oxford and Cambridge with which Exeter is affiliated In the way they are exempted from one year of the usual residence required by the universities

All of the college courses in arts science economics and commerce law music education and horticulture as well as the use of the 140 acre campus of woods and grassland in Streatham in southwest England are extended to these Americans

6 _about Cigarettes

As to the cigarette paper on Chesterfields

THIS reel of cigarette paper is sufficient to make 42,000 Chesterfield Cigarettes. It is of the finest manufacture.

In texture, in burning quality, in purity, it is as good as money can buy.

Cut open a Chesterfield cigarette. Remove the tobacco and hold the paper up to the light. If you know about paper, you will at once note the uniform texture—no holes, no light and dark places. Note also its dead white color.

If the paper is made right—that is, uniform—the cigarette will burn more evenly. If the paper is made right—there will be no taste to it and there will be no odor from the burning paper.

Other manufacturers use good cigarette paper; but there is no better paper made than that used on Chesterfields. You can count on that!

In the second game A T O won an easy victory over Sigma Nu. Hebert Trudeau's great mound work was outstanding as he limited the losers to five well-scattered hits on which they only tallied one run. Jack Hart, Bell Brislin and Freddie Lanahan all had a field day, rapping the offerings of Beattie for nine hits between them and each having a perfect day at bat. One of Lanahan's hits was a terrific home run drive, doubtedly the longest ever seen on the back campus.

Dave Beattie, brilliant frosh athlete, was unsteady and a victim of poor support during the first two innings, but settled down after an eleven-run barrage and pitched a fine brand of ball, bluntly refusing to throw his "gopher" home run ball.

10,000 STUDENTS APPROVE OF ANTI-WAR PROGRAM

An anti-war program calling for immediate adherence to the covenant of the League of Nations, nationalization and embargoing, control of the manufacture and sale of armaments, and severance of commercial relations with belligerent nations has been approved by a majority of more than [illegible] students voting in the nation-wide poll sponsored by the Student Union, it was announced today from Harold Stedman, managing editor of the Brown University undergraduate newspaper. Student[illegible] in thirty-three colleges and universities participated in the referendum.

A copy of the results of the "peace program" together with a letter urging immediate action, will be forwarded to President Roosevelt, Vice-president Garner, [illegible] Hull, Senators Nye and Lundeen, and Speaker Bankhead.

In endorsing this program, which in [illegible] the students declare that it is [illegible] willing to do everything in its power to prevent war. Secretary stated: "If the United States Government does nothing more than it has to date to stave off the impending catastrophe, it cannot and should not expect the cooperation of youth in any war that might arise from the present [illegible]."

The program to nationalize the arms [illegible] munitions industries was carried by a large majority in every college in which it was voted upon. In thirty-[illegible] colleges [illegible] students favor the measure, while [illegible] oppose it. No dissenting votes were registered at Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., and at [illegible] College, Hollins, Va.

Students in twenty-seven colleges are in favor of ignoring commercial relations with belligerent nations according to the Oxford pledge. In four colleges, Dana, Coe, Hollins and St. Lawrence, the undergraduate body voted against such a policy. The total vote was recorded that 6,305 undergraduates approve this part of the program while 1,847 are against it.

Student opinion is quite evenly divided concerning the entry of the United States into the League of Nations. A majority of the students in twenty-one colleges feel that the United States should join the League of Nations at once. Students in twelve colleges are against such action. Battle Creek, Bowne, Hartwick, Hiram, La Salle, Middlebury, Oregon, Penn State, Rhode Island State, Scott, Iowa St. Bonaventure, and Wagner. The vote shows that 5,710 students advocate adherence to the covenant, and that 4,528 are opposed. No votes against adherence were cast at Carleton College.

Fifty more measures were proposed by the Literary Digest as a constructive youth program. The Brown University undergraduate newspaper in a recent editorial stated that mere protests and demonstrations against the futility of war will no longer be able to stem the militaristic wave that is spreading over the world. We are faced by reality not by a theoretical conflict that might eventuate in the distant and hazy future. Reality demands a constructive action, not words and it is up to those who do see fears to offer a definite program.

The following thirty-three colleges and universities participated in the poll: Anna, Battle Creek, Bennington, Boone, Brown, Carleton, Coe, Colby, Colorado, Davis and Elkins, Goucher, Grove City, Hartwick, Haverford, Hollins, Illinois, James Millikin, Kalamazoo, Keuka, La Salle, Middlebury, Oregon, Penn State, Rhode Island State, Rochester, Seth Low, Southern California, Springfield, St. Lawrence, Vermont, Wagner, Western Union, and Williams.

Students Face Changing World, Says Dewey

Cleveland, Ohio.—At the Educator's convention here Prof. John Dewey of Columbia University, noted philosopher and pioneer in modern education, emphasized the need for making college students and secondary school pupils "realize the kind of change which is now taking place in the world."

Army Baseball Captain Elected

West Point, N. Y.—Cadet Wright Hutt, of Winchester, Ind., was elected captain of the Army's baseball team for next year.

Gene Tunney prated of Shakespeare. He hobnobbed with college professors and lectured before undergraduates. Here was a new type of mauler, a chap with cultivated brain as well as educated fists. More lately, Jack Dempsey joins the exodus parade and lectures before a group of Columbia professors. But even these fighters of the new tradition must yield the palm to the young heavyweight just out of the South, Irving Ashkenazy. Ashkenazy has been called by many prominent critics one of the best of the young crop of box fighters. Yet he is already a poet of such promise that his verse has appeared in an impressive list of magazines and newspapers, including the supercritical New York Times. This poet-pugilist graduated last June from the University of Florida where he starred on the gridiron and was editor of the Florida Review, the campus literary magazine.

pupil of Mademoiselle Nadia Boulanger (Juilliard Graduate School, New York City), who have heard him play attest to the fruit of his many years of study. Professor Leonard will play a group of solos and will also join with the orchestra in a very intimate number.

The program is miscellaneous and interesting. A challenge to the skill of the musicians and a treat for the listeners is included, numbers by Glinka, one of the Russian Five, Ketelbey, Debussy, Lalo, Auerbach, and by special permission the first movement of "Grand Canyon Suite" by Ferde Grofe, which is hailed as distinctive among others seeking expression in an American idiom.

Miss Charlotte deVelt is a member of the first string sections of the orchestra, and Miss Freda Harris is on the 'cello section. The University is further represented in the following students: Jean Potter, pianist; Hollis [illegible], violin; [illegible], trumpet; Hollis [illegible], trombone; Harold Brown, tympani; David Jenks '34, bass; Doris Brown, sp., David Jenks '34, [illegible] Morse, sp., P. FRATERNITIES DRILLING FOR RIFLE TEAM PRIZE

Competition Keen—Contest to be Held During Military Inspection

Seven fraternity squads are drilling daily in preparation for the squad competition for the reserve officers' cup. The Phi Delts, who won the cup last year, and the Delta Psi's, who won in 1932 and also for the preceding four years, are again entering drill squads. The members of the Phi Delt squad last year were: O. H. Clarke '36, G. A. Smith '36, J. S. Caughey '36, R. B. Billings '36, M. H. Carlson '35, J. F. Churchill '35, G. M. Sabin, Jr., '35, P. M. Howe '35. Of these, all of the 1936 men are eligible to participate this year, and all of the 1935 men are taking the advanced course and so are in a position to drill the new squad. The Delta Psi's have four eligible men from last year's squad, and one advanced student. The Sigma Phi Fraternity also has four men eligible from the 1933 squad, and three men of the squad taking the advanced course. The Phi Mu Delts have only three eligibles and three advanced men from last year.

The competition will be very sharp, for the Phi Delts are determined to keep their hold on the cup, while the Delta Psis are exerting themselves to make up for last year's defeat. The other fraternities seem to feel as if it were their turn, and their squads are drilling constantly in order to be faultless.

The contest is to be held the first day of military inspection, May 15. Placing in this drill counts points toward the Drayton trophy.

VERMONT-MIDDLEBURY DEBATE TONIGHT

It is hoped that as many students and townspeople as possible will attend this debate. The public is cordially invited, and no admission will be charged. The rivalry between Vermont and Middlebury, and the excellent debaters who will speak, will provide for a good evening's entertainment. It will be interesting as well as educational. Because this is the last and best, of the men's intercollegiate debates, a large crowd should turn out to see it."

The University entertained the debating representatives of Rhode Island State College in a debate last evening at Essex Junction High School. The subject for debate was "Resolved, that the essential features of the NRA should be adopted as a settled policy." Vermont took the negative with Rhode Island on the affirmative. Speaking for Vermont were I. Zimmerman '37, F. Sawby '37 and R. McCann '34. The Rhode Island speakers were Edward Geremia, captain, Matthew Faerber, and Owen Birtwistle.

The Middlebury debaters are J. Steele '36 of Rockaway, N. J., C. A. Deedman '36 of Rockaway, N. J., C. A. Deedman '36 of Rockaway, N. J., and I. F. [illegible] '37, New Rochelle, N. Y., and I. F. Darrow '37, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Coach Perkins and Mgr. E. B. Akley will also accompany the team to Burlington.

Silver Shirts Doomed, Says Humanist

New York, N. Y.—The Silver Shirts and kindred organizations will fail, is the view of Seward Collins, humanist, editor of The American Review formerly The Bookman. In a recent interview here Mr. Collins said: "Pelley can not succeed because his movement is essentially anti-Semitic and embraces none of the constructive elements required to improve the economic and political status of the country."

Men Who Wed Dumb-belle Yellow

Mexico City.—Smart men wed inferior women because they can shine before their friends and relatives, is the result of a questionnaire by El Nacion here. They prefer the nitwit because they're yellow, said a number of young women who were questioned. A girl's college voted that true intellectuals select better halves who're their mental equals.

MEETING AT FLETCHER FARM TO BE HELD IN MAY

Representatives of Six Colleges to Discuss Campus Life in Relation to Community Life

A conference sponsored by the students of the University of Vermont, will be held at Fletcher Farm during the week-end of May 18 with representatives from Middlebury, Bennington, Dartmouth, New Hampshire State, and Norwich.

Fletcher Farm is an old New England homestead on the road between Rutland and Bellows Falls. It was given by Mrs. Allen M. Fletcher to a board of thirty-six trustees who conduct series of conferences here along lines of current interest to men and women. The goal of Fletcher Farm is "to lay aside the duties of study and to pursue its pleasures."

At the college week-end there will be discussed the adjustments of students to community life and the enrichment of campus life. A splendid opportunity will be afforded for exchanging ideas with people from other campuses. It is expected that Doctor Leigh of Bennington will be there and also Elizabeth Herring.

Any student who wishes to go is invited. The group will leave Burlington Friday afternoon and will return Sunday night, May 20. The board and room for the three days will be $2.50.

The committee in charge consists of Miss Patterson, Miss Maddock, C. H. Patnude '35, Eluned Roberts '37, Madeline Ainsboro '35, R. S. Wright '35, and Edna Leach '36.

Profs Choose He-man Books for Desert Isle

University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.—A Boy Scout Manual, the White House Cook Book and Robinson Crusoe, were some of the tomes chosen by University of Chicago professors for reading on a fabled desert isle. The outcome of the questionnaire shows, said a campus wit here, that the faculty would like to be invited to the White House, to travel dangerously with Defoe in a dressing grown and slippers before the fire, and to eat out of doors with a Boy Scout knife.

Y. W. C. A. INITIATES NEW ACTIVITIES DURING YEAR

Discussion Groups and Trips Feature Activities—Next Year to Repeat With Additions

Y. W. C. A. has, during the past year, initiated many new projects with trips to Rock Point, discussion groups of students being organized, and invitations being issued to girls from outside the dormitories each week.

At Rock Point children were helped with sports every Friday until Christmas when they were taught how to make gifts. This spring a Girl Reserve Club was formed and plays are being rehearsed under the direction of Elizabeth Rich '35 and Ruth Barron '36. These productions will be given in May and it is hoped that college girls will attend.

The discussion groups met at Miss Patterson's and Miss Maddock's homes to discuss whatever subjects seemed the most interesting at the time. There was a meeting about once a month to which all who were interested might come.

In addition to the new projects there was a drive for membership to make people Y. W. C. A. conscious; two representatives were sent to a week-end conference at McGill, and the organization helped with the youth conference in Burlington during Thanksgiving vacation.

The program for the ensuing year will be a repetition of the past with even more improvements and additions. Work is already started on the Freshman Handbooks and plans for a conference at Fletcher Farm are under way.

Vassar Votes Student Self-help

Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—Vassar will continue its cooperative housing plan, which permits students to earn money. Girls in the dormitories earned from $50 to $300 or more in the school year by cleaning rooms, waiting on table, and managing the kitchen. More than one-third of the undergraduates earn money toward expenses in this way.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS HOLD MUSIC FESTIVAL WEEK-END OF MAY 4-5

Three Concerts to be Given on Friday and Saturday—Twenty-five Schools Participating

The seventh annual music test of Vermont High Schools will be held Friday and Saturday, May 4 and 5 in Memorial Auditorium. It is a Vermont affair with approximately twenty-five schools and 1,400 students participating. Three concerts will be presented: the first, on Friday evening which will consist of numbers by fifteen glee clubs; the second on Saturday afternoon, will be a concert by the bands and eleven orchestras; and the Saturday evening, will be a concert by the all-state orchestra, with 250 members, and the all-state chorus with 400 members.

Harry C. Whittemore of Springfield, Mass., will conduct the all-state orchestra; and the all-state chorus will be directed by Francis Findlay, head of the School of Music at the New England Conservatory of Music. Osborne McConathy, a nationally known critic and publisher of music, of Bainbridge, N. Y., will comment on the performances.

Adrian E. Holmes, director of music in Burlington High School, in an interview has stated that, in all probability, the concert this year will be as superior to former years. We expect a larger audience, greater number of participants and finer performance."

IRA ALLEN CHAPEL

KEELAN, JUNIOR SPEAKER LAUDS FOUNDER OF THE UNIVERSITY, IRA ALLEN

Speaker, Picks as His Subject for This Morning, "Ira Allen the Diplomat"

When I started to prepare this talk I was aware that everyone has when preparing a subject which is presented each year. I wish to be original and found that Ira Allen had been discussed from every conceivable angle. So I chose to speak on Ira Allen the diplomat, sincerely believing that this would be of the greatest interest to you.

Before I proceed further we should have some idea of the situation. For New York and New Hampshire were wrangling for possession of Vermont. The New York land grabbers were unscrupulous and most of the sentiment favored New Hampshire. But there were among these hardy souls who loved a free and independent state. Foremost these was Ira Allen. The country was at war with England. Vermont applied for admission to the Union but were put off.

Ira Allen who called the first of those historic meetings extending from 1776 to July, 1777, which framed a constitution for the state. At this meeting it was learned that Ticonderoga had recaptured Ticonderoga and the Continental Congress had refused Vermont for another regiments; called upon those to have had refused admission as a protection from continental [illegible] without the wherewithal [illegible] regiment. DR. HOLMES APPOINTED TO NATIONAL ASSOCIATION

Dr. R. M. Holmes of the department of physics of the University of Vermont has been appointed to the membership committee of the American Association of Physics Teachers. The association, which has a membership of college and university teachers, was organized two or three years ago for the purpose of improving the teaching of physics in colleges and universities in both elementary and advanced courses. A journal devoted to the teaching of physics is issued by the organization. It is anticipated that a New England division of the association which is national in scope may be started in the not distant future.

MRS. MELONEY SPEAKS ON "BEGINNING LIFE IN HARD TIMES" AT MUSEUM

Ruth Witham of New Hampshire State Chosen New Head of New England Conference

"The two most useful things to me to the greatest number of people are courage and common sense," said Mrs. William B. Meloney, editor of the magazine section of the New York Herald-Tribune, in her talk to the Student Union Conference held at Vermont last weekend. Her speech was the outstanding feature of the convention of representatives of ten co-educational colleges.

After registration of the delegates at Slade Hall from 4.30 to 5.30, and after dinner at Robinson, the Joint Council of Student Union executed the orders of the performance of the Gondoliers at City Hall, Thursday night, which, according to all reports, they enjoyed very much.

Friday morning, after breakfast at Robinson, the discussion was opened at Redstone at 8.30 continuing until 11.00. Lunch was served at 12.00 o'clock. Elizabeth Rich '35 was chairman of the arrangements for this. Discussion was continued after the luncheon until 3.30.

From 4.00 until 5.30 a musical tea was given at Delta Pi house in honor of Mrs. Meloney. Helen Jenkins, Daisy Putnam, Mary Barnard and Charlotte Morgan, members of Mortar Board, poured.

Mrs. Meloney was then entertained at dinner by 34 Grace Harris '34, Marjorie Amsden '35 and Elizabeth Bell '35 at the house. Following the dinner Mrs. Meloney was the guest of the Mortar Board at the theatre.

A formal dinner was held at Robinson Hall at 6.15 for the members of the conference and women students who were interested. Dr. Ida Bailey Allen '94 and Ellen Mae [illegible] '34 were joint toastmistresses at the dinner and arranged the seating plans. Miss Harris was toastmistress at the dinner and introduced Mrs. Meloney, who spoke on "Bluestockings, Women in Bluestockings, on Minnemaus and CYNIC, and members of the faculty were invited. SEVEN MEN SELECTED FROM JUNIOR CLASS BY BOULDER SOCIETY

Men's Senior Honorary Was Organized in 1905; Boulder on Campus Since 1848

Seven men from the Class of 1935 have been selected as members of Boulder Society for the coming year. They are: William Cate of Bennington, George Cook of Lancaster, Mass., Fred Lyon of Concord, Raymond Palmer of Hartford, Marshall Porter of Windsor, Lisle Reeve of Bennington, and Caroline Sackett of New London, Conn. These men were chosen because they showed high scholastic character and are outstanding in leadership on campus.

On January 9, 1905, a group of the most prominent members of the senior class met for the purpose of founding a senior men's honorary society.

Others Had Been Chosen at a Meeting in February—Initiated at That Time

Nine junior officers of the R. O. T. C. battalion were selected by the corporate Scabbard and Blade Society to serve for the coming year. They are: T. F. Bushey '35 of White River Junction, Vt.; A. In that plan, and without waiting for danger to be averted and order to be achieved, they envisioned the establishment of a University. That constitution provided

"A school or schools shall be established in each town, by the legislature, for the convenient instruction of youth, . . . and one Grammar School in each county, and one University in this State ought to be established by direction of the General Assembly."

For this early declaration the people of Vermont proceeded with unbroken purpose down to the date of the establishment of the old University of Vermont. . . . proceeded with a fixed purpose which only once seemed to falter, and then only seemed.

It has been asserted that the declaration for a University in the Constitution of 1777 was obliterated in 1786. In that year the Council of Censors proposed amendments to the Constitution in the form of a redraft. When some changes their proposal was ratified at a convention called for that purpose and held in June, 1786. The new Constitution thus adopted contained no provision for the establishment of "one University in this state . . . by direction of the General Assembly."

SPRING CONFERENCE OF VT.-N. H. STUDENTS IS PLANNED FOR MAY 18-20

Group of U. V. M. Students Have Charge of Plans for Week-end at Fletcher

A conference, sponsored by the students of the University of Vermont, will be held at Fletcher Farm during the week-end of May 18 with representatives from Middlebury, Bennington, Dartmouth, New Hampshire State, and Norwich.

Fletcher Farm is an old New England homestead on the road between Rutland and Bellows Falls. It was given by Mrs. Allen M. Fletcher to a board of thirty-six trustees who conduct series of conferences there along lines of current interest to men and women. The goal of Fletcher Farm is "to lay aside the duties of study and to pursue its pleasures."

At the college week-end there will be discussed the adjustments of students to community life and the enrichment of campus life.

The committee in charge of the conference consists of Miss Marian Patterson, dean of women at the University; Miss Florence Maddock of the State Y. W. C. A.; and the following students: C. A. Patnode '35, Brandon; Eluned Roberts '37, Fair Haven; Madeline Ainsboro '35, Derby; R. S. Wright '35, Burlington; and Edna Leach '36, Enosburg Falls.

W. A. A. Notes

The winner of the singles tennis tournament this spring will receive a cup. The list has been posted upon which those who are interested are to sign up. Margaret Kane '35 is in charge of the matches. Signing may be done until this noon, Friday, May 4.

Spring field day will be held May 24, or, if the weather is bad, on the twenty-second, or twenty-third.

At this time awards will be given out to those who have earned them since the indoor rally; and members of the varsity rifle team will receive rifles.

This week-end a hike to Mount Philo is being planned under the leadership of Helen Taylor '37. Lois Hammond '37 and Abbie Howe '37 are also on the committee for arrangements.

A new drive for membership in W. A. A. is going to be held. All points will be posted towards numerals, UVM's, sweaters, and V's.

ANOTHER RAZZ-DAZZ TOMORROW EVENING

Another Razz-Dazz evening is in the offering tomorrow night, May 4, at the gym. Music by a local orchestra will be presented to those who enjoy dancing. The usual card games and ping-pong will supplement this type of entertainment. Admission is 10 cents.

The Razz-Dazz evenings have been a feature on Saturdays during the winter. They have added to the entertainment of college students on week-ends in which little activity is going on. Their success has been demonstrated by the number which have attended in the past.

U. S. APPROACH TO WORLD AFFAIRS NEW BROADCASTS' SUBJECT

Intercollegiate Council Sponsors New Series of Talks by National Leaders Over Radio

The Intercollegiate Council, a non-partisan organization, in cooperation with the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education, announces a Friday evening series of National Radio Broadcasts on the theme "The Approach of the United States to World Affairs," beginning May 4. Two special broadcasts, one by Henry L. Stimson, former secretary of state, and the other by the Hon. Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, preceded the Friday series. Mr. Stimson spoke April 29 on the topic "To Preserve Our National Character and Welfare, America Must Trade Abroad." Mr Wallace spoke May 3 on a program sponsored by the Foreign Policy Association and the World Peace Foundation on the subject "America Must Choose."

Mr. Adolph A. Berle, New York City chamberlain, will open the Friday evening series tonight, May 4, talking on "Youth and Reconstruction." These broadcasts over the National Broadcasting Company nation-wide network will continue every Friday from 7.15 to 7.30 for six weeks. On May 11, Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, will address the country. Some of the other speakers include Mr. Ogden Mills, former secretary of the treasury; Prof. Manley O. Hudson, of the Harvard Law School; Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for the presidency in 1928; Willis Thorpe, director of domestic and foreign commerce.

These national broadcasts are only a part of the work of the Intercollegiate Council, which is attempting to stimulate students and other young people throughout the country to take a keener and more intelligent interest in the affairs of the nation. Through a thorough consideration of the basic factors which determine the domestic and foreign policies of the United States, it hopes to help make students aware of the need for a more competent leadership in public affairs—local, national and international and to awaken a keener sense of responsibility for active participation in public affairs.

One of the principal projects in the Council's program throughout some 750 colleges and among their graduates, who have been suggested by the college presidents, is the setting up of approximately 300 conferences.

MILITARY PRIZE NOW AVAILABLE FOR R. O. T. C. INSPECTION AWARDS

Freshman and Sophomore Drill-down Cups, Drill Squads Included

LOYAL LEGION SABER FOR LEADING OFFICER

Other Prizes for Senior Officers to be Given With Department's Recommendation

A number of prizes presented by various patriotic societies are available to the department of military science and tactics for award to members of the R. O. T. C. battalion at the University of Vermont. Some of these have been in force for a number of years and others were awarded for the first time in 1933.

Two cups, the Scabbard and Blade cups, are presented annually by Company F, Third Regiment, Scabbard and Blade, University of Vermont.

These cups are awarded at the annual federal inspection for excellence in the execution of the manual of arms; one to a sophomore and one to a freshman. The procedure in this contest is to arrange all members of the sophomore class in two parallel lines facing each other about five yards apart. Commands for movements in the manual of arms are given by a member of the Scabbard and Blade and each sophomore making a mistake in the execution of a movement is fallen out by the other members of the Scabbard and Blade who act as judges. The last survivor receives the cup. A similar procedure is followed with the freshman class. These awards were instituted in 1927 and have been continued every year since that time.

1930—W. J. Brock, sophomore; H. T. Guare, freshman.

1932—G. H. Burrows, sophomore; F. T. Churchill, freshman.

1933—K. M. Bent, sophomore; G. A. Smith, freshman.

In order to encourage preparedness for national defense, a large silver loving cup was presented to the University of Vermont R. O. T. C. infantry unit in 1929 by the reserve officers of Burlington, Vt., through Col. R. W. McCuen. This cup is awarded annually to the most efficient squad as selected at a drill competition held during the federal inspection. The squad in competition consists of eight students in ranks and one additional student who will conduct the drill as squad leader. The students in ranks must be members of the basic R. O. T. C. course (sophomores or freshmen). Not exceeding 50 per cent may be members of the second-year class. The squad leader must be a member of the R. O. T. C. but may be a member of any class, basic or advanced course.

The cup was won in 1929, 1930, and 1931 by the Delta Psi squad and, in accordance with the rules of the fraternity, became the permanent property of that organization. A new cup was presented by the reserve officers through Colonel McCuen in 1932, to be competed for under the same rules as before. It was again won by the Delta Psi squad in 1932. The winning squad in 1933 was from the Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

The American Legion trophy was presented in 1930 by Burlington Post No. 2 of the American Legion and is awarded annually to the most proficient company in the University of Vermont R. O. T. C. battalion. It is a shield of dark wood faced with silver and suitably inscribed. The selection is based upon the work

Professor Leonard Reviews "The Gondoliers" Opera Given Last Week Thursday by U.V.M. Glee Clubs

Last Thursday evening, at the City Hall Auditorium, the University glee clubs and orchestra gave a performance of the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "The Gondoliers." To have witnessed it was to have shared with a large but intimate audience one of the most delightful entertainments of the year. Yet behind the easy rendition of the lines and music, one was thinking of the months of preliminary planning and untiring guidance of the coaches Professor Bennett, Mrs. Taggart, Mrs. Bradish, Miss Baldwin, and Mr. DeVolt. Paradoxically enough, as always is the case in a fluent performance, technique was merged into a spontaneity of action and singing which rendered the whole event a unified single picture of sincerity. One was not reminded of premeditated details, but was under the impression of an effortless presentation lightly tossed off. To be entertained is to enjoy an interval mental stimulation of emotional stimulation—the art of entertaining is the concealment of technique by a synthesis of elements, which is what the glee clubs and orchestra succeeded in achieving this evening.

The smooth running of a spontaneous performance, on the other hand, is marked by a succession of more individual—a well-turned phrase or a charming gesture there. The whole we were thoroughly amused by the portrayal of the pompous, overbearing Duke of Plaza-Toro, as enacted by Mr. Wright '35. His was a voice well suited to the part, and modified by a personal sense of humor, which counteracted the quasi-seriousness of that character a source of continual pleasure. His wife, the Duchess, portrayed by Madeline Ainsboro '35, whimsical beneath a semblance of droll dignity, caused many an eyebrow to arch in sympathy. Their daughter, Casilda, interpreted by Viola Long '37, who was wantonly in love with her father's attendant, although married in infancy to the future King of Barataria, was done in keeping with the best romantic Gilbertian tradition, full of sighs and tender tragedy. The part of her lover, at first only a Duke's attendant, but finally, to everybody's surprise and delight, the real king of Barataria, was well filled by S. Pierce, Jr., '34, owing not only to his lyric tenor voice, but also to a personal appeal in his own character which an audience is so gratified to behold in any lover. The two gondoliers, Marco and Giuseppe Palmieri, so confused about their identity until the end of the opera, were well matched by A. R. Wilcox '35 and D. W. Jenks '34, respectively. Their lovers and subsequently their wives, Gianetta and Tessa, two of a chorus of contadines, whom they selected apparently at random, though deftly, by means of a game of blind man's buff, were prettily interpreted by Edith Petrie '36 and Margaret Kane '35, respectively. The formidable Grand Inquisitor, feeling as much as any one the weight of his own responsibilities of state, did well in the person of H. T. Bickford '37, whose rumbling patter gave proof of his adaptability to a variety of singing rôles as basso. The three minor gondoliers and five contadine showed their own usefulness both as soloists and as valuable leaders in their respective choruses. And finally Inez' prophetic recitative, a device so often used to mark the climax of a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, was well taken by Elizabeth Mandigo M. '36.

The choruses, of which there abound not a few, were skilfully handled by F. P. Colburn '35. A certain English swank represented in the rhythm as well as in the pompous circumstance of the lines, combined with an Italian background in scene and costume, and more than one suave Italian melody, offer possibilities for a number of contrasts in dance and gesture. These contrasts were quickly caught by the cast and chorus, and made manifest to the receptive audience.

In reviewing the annals of college opera, one is tempted to come to various conclusions. Undeniably, the tradition of Gilbert and Sullivan, as presented by college students, is as reliable as any. There is an ever fresh, even though quaint humor, in the plot, the action, and the music of all the operettas. Permeating each one is a readily distinguishable flawlessness of style peculiar to both author and composer, who, while they worked most successfully in the field of light opera, gave evidence of their really great genius as littérateur and musician. Their special talent lies in the fact that their irreproachable workmanship was so admirably conceived from the point of view of actor and singer, and consequently is so readily grasped and interpreted by cultured amateurs. Until some new school of opera writing comes into vogue, it would be hard to find

Group of U. V. M. Students Have Charge of Plans for Week-end at Fletcher

A conference sponsored by the students of the University of Vermont, will be held at Fletcher Farm during the week-end of May 18 with representatives from Middlebury, Bennington, Dartmouth, New Hampshire State, and Norwich.

Fletcher Farm is an old New England homestead on the road between Rutland and Bellows Falls. It was given by Mrs. Allen M. Fletcher to a board of thirty-six trustees who conduct series of conferences there along lines of current interest to men and women. The goal of Fletcher Farm is "to lay aside the duties of study and to pursue its pleasures."

At the college week-end there will be discussed the adjustments of students to community life and the enrichment of campus life.

The committee in charge of the conference consists of Miss Marian Patterson dean of women at the University, Miss Florence Maddock of the State Y. W. C. A. and the following students: C. A. Patnode '35, Brandon, Elmed Roberts '37, Fair Haven, Madeline Ainsboro '35, Derby, R. S. Wright '35, Burlington, and Edna Leach '36 Enosburg Falls.

W. A. A. Notes

The winner of the singles tennis tournament this spring will receive a cup. The list has been posted upon which those who are interested are to sign up. Margaret Kane '35 is in charge of the matches. Signing may be done until this noon, Friday, May 4.

Spring field day will be held May 24, or, if the weather is bad, on the twenty second, or twenty third.

At this time awards will be given out to those who have earned them since the indoor rally; and members of the varsity rifle team will receive rifles.

This week-end a hike to Mount Philo is being planned under the leadership of Helen Taylor '37. Lois Hammond '37 and Abbie Howe '37 are also on the committee for arrangements.

A new drive for membership in W. A. A. is going to be held. All points will be posted towards numerals, U.V.M.'s, sweaters, and V's.

ANOTHER RAZZ-DAZZ TOMORROW EVENING

[illegible] Razz Dazz evening is to be the offering tomorrow night, May 4, at the gym. Music by a local orchestra will be presented to those who enjoy dancing. [illegible] and games and ping-pong will supplement this type of entertainment. Admission is 10 cents.

The Razz Dazz evenings have been a feature on Saturdays during the winter. They have added to the entertainment of college students on week-ends in which little activity is going on. Their success has been demonstrated by the number which have attended in the past.

U. S. APPROACH TO WORLD AFFAIRS NEW BROADCASTS' SUBJECT

The Intercollegiate Council, a non-partisan organization, in cooperation with the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education, announces a Friday evening series of National Radio Broadcasts on the theme "The Approach of the United States to World Affairs" beginning May 4. Two special broadcasts, one by Henry L. Stimson, former secretary of state and the other by the Hon. Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, preceded the Friday series. Mr. Stimson spoke April 20 on the topic "To Preserve Our National Character and Welfare America Must Trade Abroad." Mr. Wallace spoke May 3 on a program sponsored by the Foreign Policy Association and the World Peace Foundation on the subject "America Must Choose."

Mr. Adolph A. Berle, New York City chamberlain, will open the Friday evening series tonight, May 4, talking on "Youth and Reconstruction." These broadcasts over the National Broadcasting Company nation wide network will continue every Friday from 7.15 to 7.40 for six weeks. On May 11, Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, will address the country. Some of the other speakers include Mr. Ogden Mills former secretary of the treasury, Prof. Manley O. Hudson of the Harvard Law School, Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for the presidency in 1928; Willis Thorpe, director of domestic and foreign commerce.

These national broadcasts are only a part of the work of the Intercollegiate Council which is attempting to stimulate students and other young people throughout the country to take a keener and more intelligent interest in the affairs of the nation. Through a thorough consideration of the basic factors which determine the domestic and foreign policies of the United States it hopes to help make students aware of the need for a more competent leadership in public affairs, local, national and international and to awaken a keener sense of responsibility for active participation in public affairs.

One of the principal projects in the Council's program throughout some 780 colleges and among their graduates, who have been suggested by the college presidents, is the setting up of approximately 300 conferences.

Until some new school of opera writing comes into vogue, it would be hard to find

Burns agreed and said, "Yes (he paused for effect) and again no."

Funk was heartily in accord with this conclusive statement and showed it with a brisk nod of the head and went back to his place at the hot corner.

But, seriously, the team looked good and we believe that they have learned a lesson by their previous defeats, and should hit the victory trail soon. The morale of the team has improved immensely, and with the proper spirit we look to this game against Williams as a start as the initial victory toward a glorious finish.

THE SPORTING EYE

Dr. Forrest Allen, athletic director at the University of Kansas has made an interesting proposal for a change in the basketball rules at the National Basketball Committee. Allen suggested that the baskets be raised from ten to twelve feet off the floor. At this height the ball ascending with great velocity would rebound about twelve feet. The average player is just six feet. This would prevent the tall men from dominating the play and would give the little fellows a much better chance.

A sports writer on the Springfield College newspaper remarks, "The stunt of pitching one-hit ball and striking out nine men by Bill Elliot against a hard-hitting team such as Vermont is known to be, was like eating a turkey dinner after an eighteen-day diet. To go further and make it even more potent, the whole game was like a full-course dinner to a starving Armenian." We wonder if maple syrup would have tasted better than Vermont turkey.

Johnny Regeczi, star punter at the University of Michigan last year, booted the new-sized football ninety yards and averaged eighty yards the other day, according to a dispatch from the Colgate campus. Boy, that's what you call punishing the pigskin.

Among the strange and unexpected subjects taught in American colleges will be found the following: Ping pong (University of Iowa); nut culture (Oklahoma A. and M.); broadcasting (Oglethorpe); horse shoeing (Michigan State); marriage (Connecticut State); and possibly the most beneficial of all—sleeping (University of Texas). Several of the local boys should get honorary degrees in the latter at Vermont.

Cornell resents the disappearance of certain sweat shirts during the basketball season. The Athletic Council there decided that until these shirts were returned, no basketball awards would be made. None of the sweat shirts have been returned and none of the awards have been made. That's one way of doing it.

Vermont Wins Conference Game From Norwich, 8-3

TRACK TEAM GOES TO COLBY THIS MORNING

On Saturday, May 5, Vermont's crack track team, which trounced St. Lawrence last Saturday, will meet Colby College at Waterville. Colby, however, has a strong team, and close competition is expected.

The main interest in the meet will be to see if Rollie Delfausse can duplicate his remarkable time of 9.7 in the 100 yard dash. Much also is expected of brother Lloyd who will be sure to add his usual points. Others who are expected to make good are Conner, Woodruff, Robbins, Levine, Twitchell, and Cook.

A great deal more interest is being shown in track this year and the Vermont team is ready to make people really take an active interest in this sport.

Beckley Twirls Six-hit Ball and Strikes Out Seven—Werner Hits Homer in Ninth

DEGREE STARS IN ALL-ROUND PLAYING

A rejuvenated Vermont baseball team made its appearance at Sabine Field in Northfield yesterday afternoon, and after nine innings of playing in a continual drizzle, beat the Norwich Horsemen 8-3. The Catamount team that played yesterday was an entirely new outfit as compared with previous Green and Gold nines this year. Led by Capt. Johnnie Beckley, the team played heads up ball all during the game, making hits count and holding errorlessly.

Beckley went the full distance in the game, allowed only six hits, and struck out seven Cadets. This performance is all the more worthy when one takes into account the wet playing field and the slippery ball. It would seem that it would be impossible to control the seamed pill, but Johnnie was master of the situation all the way through. Bob Degree made a single and a double and his catch in deep centerfield up against the bleachers in the ninth inning was a gem. Andy Werner gave the ball a ride in the ninth inning to far centerfield, and before the ball was retrieved, Andy had circled the bases for a homerun.

The fireworks started in the first inning when Burns led off with a single. Palmer followed suit and then Bob

The way tobacco is cut has a lot to do with the way Chesterfield burns and tastes

There are many different ways of cutting tobacco.

A long time ago, it used to be cut on what was known as a Pease Cutter, but this darkened the tobacco, and it was not uniform.

The cutters today are the most improved, modern, up-to-the-minute type. They cut uniformly, and cut in long shreds.

The tobacco in Chesterfield is cut right—you can judge for yourself how Chesterfields burn and how they taste.

Everything that science knows is used to make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder . . . the cigarette that tastes better.

The Chicago Daily Maroon reports the writing of Dan E. Clark of the Oregon Emerald as follows: "The present rules committee on football can take a few tips from the old country. Back in 1618 King James issued a proclamation prohibiting a football player from stepping on the nose of a prostrate opponent." Durante evidently was born 300 years too late.

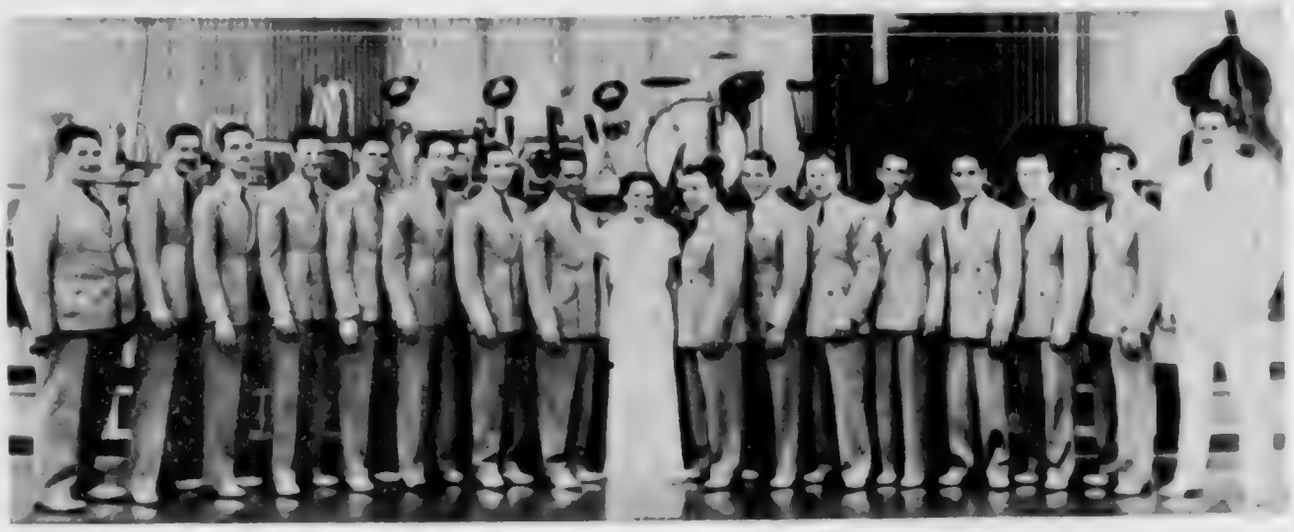
CHAIRMAN SIMONDS OF PEERADE COMMITTEE ASKS ALL TO PARTICIPATE

Object of the Peerade is to Advertise the Annual Junior Week Play

"REBOUND" SCHEDULED AS JUNIOR WEEK PLAY

[illegible] and members of the committee on Peerade heartily urge all [illegible] and sororities to participate [illegible] the first of Junior Week. [illegible] success of this demonstration [illegible] depends the success of the play [illegible] for as the advertising is reaching the people less familiar with the knowledge of the play depends to a [illegible] the number in attendance. [illegible] can use their unbounded [illegible] on the construction of a float as well as they can barter in the drug [illegible] we all feel certain the floats will be equal to their uniqueness. And, too, if [illegible] will use their knowledge of decorating and creating on their floats [illegible] as they create and design [illegible] eyebrow pencil and rouge—[illegible] floats should soar to the skies [illegible] beauty and color.



[illegible] to inform the students who [illegible] the real purpose of the Peerade. [illegible] there be any such students—[illegible] advertisement of the play [illegible]. The object of each float is [illegible] known in some way (associating [illegible] of the float with the title [illegible] from "Rebound") the play. [illegible] the originality, beauty and [illegible] the finer the float and [illegible] it is to win. It need not [illegible] though—the spirit is what [illegible] get it out on the street, even [illegible] car. People do not need to [illegible] and cleverness is what counts [illegible] quicker than the most elaborate [illegible] yet meaningless one. So [illegible] back and neglect to enter your [illegible]. It doesn't take much work—a [illegible] or girls for a couple hours [illegible] afternoon and Wednesday afternoon [illegible] all set. Make it a depression [illegible] if you wish, but make it clever.

Plea for Junior Week

Ladies and gentleman, this is Junior Week. A time when good old New England conventions are partially laid aside. We have the spring, the warm weather, the green grass for the men's benefit, and the carelessness of associations. Let us [illegible] make this week-end one of our [illegible] memories. Speak to your neighbor [illegible] wink, ask your cutlass and pin an [illegible] on your lapel. Go out of [illegible] to welcome people to your [illegible] houses, and help unite this [illegible] as a homogenous whole. This [illegible] may lecture, call it an appeal [illegible] it's a sad state of affairs [illegible] has to be mentioned, but not [illegible] can deny the existence of [illegible] influences spoiling your attitude [illegible]. This is an appeal to your [illegible] to make this a week-end of [illegible]. Usually this sort of [illegible] stuff-rot gets a big laugh [illegible] practical set. The author [illegible] ideals many moons ago yet [illegible] a question of setting up an [illegible] standard, it's an endeavor to [illegible] from the position of a door-[illegible] colleges and the subject of [illegible]. An attempt to get your [illegible] the pitchfork and instead [illegible] neighbor's hand. It's not [illegible] lots of those hands you [illegible] feel like a dead fish, but [illegible] you'll get lots out of it. [illegible] to the Prom, take the [illegible] your backbone—limber up [illegible] legs, don't be afraid to [illegible] shirt—a stiff front [illegible] a hoot, smile, let others [illegible] know you are enjoying [illegible] make noise, laugh, do anything [illegible] stands, to break that [illegible] which stalks in unnoticed [illegible]. Personally I'm wearing [illegible] Prom, if Hayes and [illegible] them here on time, that [illegible] may enough—if you don't think so wait [illegible] for them. Anyway, start [illegible] right, get into the Peerade [illegible] what it is and can be [illegible] something worth while [illegible] only work for it just a [illegible] and on the sidewalk and [illegible] at something good—[illegible] make it good, put some [illegible] dark corners you hide [illegible] at be in any form—but [illegible] sational!

FOUR SORORITIES HOLD SPRING FORMALS NEXT FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 4

Sigma Gamma, Pi Phi's, Tri-, Delt's, and Alpha Chi's Hold Dances Over Week-end

The campus today is humming strains of "After the Ball Is Over" as the vestiges of the last week's women's formals are seen. Sigma Gamma, Pi Beta Phi, Delta Delta Delta, and Alpha Chi Omega held their dances Friday evening, May 4, which all leads us to the fact that Junior Week opens officially in two days.

The Sigma Gamma dance was held at the Catholic Daughters' rooms which were decorated in purple and gold. Theodora Johnson '34 was in charge, assisted by Mildred Baldwin '35, Marion Burroughs '36, Gail Lamson '35, and Doris Folson '34. In the receiving line were the chaperones: Prof. and Mrs. E. Swift and Prof. and Mrs. J. A. Bullard together with Theodora Johnson '34, F. H. Spear '34, Dorothy Thomas '34, and S. A. Parsons '36. Lechnyr's orchestra provided syncopation.

A combination supper and dance at the Pi Beta Phi house was featured at their formal. Sid Carsley and his orchestra provided musical effects while Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Braun chaperoned. Rosemary Cahill '36, in charge of the affair, and W. M. Waterman '35 and Mrs. White, house mother, stood in the receiving line.

The Tri Delta formal, at the Country Club, was chaperoned by Prof. and Mrs. W. H. Behney and Prof. and Mrs R. J. Livingston. Harmony was by the Black Panthers of Middlebury. Ruth Maurice '37, chairman, J. W. Gillespie '37, Grace Harris '34 and I. G. Cogswell '34 received.

The Alpha Chi Omega dance was held at the chapter rooms. Twenty-[illegible] was in charge with Sue Eranee '35 [illegible] Gertrude Wright '36 as assistants. Prof. and Mrs. Leon W. Dean and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Bassett chaperoned.

"REBOUND" SCHEDULED FOR THURSDAY NIGHT

Cast Representing Every Class to Reproduce Play at City Hall

Once more bright lights will blaze at stage-door entrance and lobby hallway on Thursday evening at Junior Week for the spring's presentation by the University Players of "Rebound," Stewart's modern comedy. At 8:15 sharp the heavy curtains of the City Hall stage will part on the first act, with Alice McConnell '34 on stage as Liz Crawford, with her husband, Les, played by C. D. Howe '36.

Rehearsals have been in intensive process for a month and a day, under the direction of Mrs. C. I. Taggart, present director of University dramatic productions. The cast as one has declared itself "rarin' to go" and in the words of one member "it's a play with grand possibilities, and with Mrs. Taggart behind us what can't we do?"

The plot centers about Sara Jaffrey, twenty-eight, pretty, charming and unmarried, and Bill Truesdale, in love with Evie Lawrence. Evie, attracted by wealth, throws Bill over for the rich Lyman Patterson. Sara and Bill immediately become engaged and are married shortly afterwards.

On their honeymoon in Paris Bill shows signs of being a neglectful husband. Bill spends truant time with his old love, Evie, who is with her husband in Paris on their wedding tour.

The affair reaches alarming proportions, despite Sara's pleading with Bill. Finally, Johnny Coles (an old admirer of Sara's) confesses his love for her. She changes her tactics with Bill, who immediately "rebounds" back to her arms with every indication of being a devoted husband.

The first and third acts take place in the dining room in the country home of Les and Liz Crawford near New York. The second act is in the living room of a hotel suite in Paris.

The cast:

Liz Crawford	Alice McConnell '34
Lyman Patterson	F. L. Kingsley '35
Marta	Sylvia Minor '35
Les Crawford	C. D. Howe '36
Sara Jaffrey	Birdie Creagh '35
Bill Truesdale	S. Pierce, Jr., '34
Johnny Coles	J. Swift '36
Evie Lawrence	Thelma Rosenberg '37
Mrs. Jaffrey	Ruth Maurice '37
Henry Jaffrey	R. S. Wright '35
Pierre	A. R. Wilcox '34
Jules	D. W. Jenks '34

Hope Williams had the leading feminine rôle in the Broadway production of "Rebound," and Ina Claire in the talkies.

Mrs. Wilnetta Taggart is coaching "Rebound." W. A. Ross '35 is stage manager, Elvira Farman '34 is women's property manager.

It is reported that 90 percent of the graduates of the Harvard School of Business Administration are employed at present.

PEERADE ON THURSDAY AFTERNOON ADVERTISES JUNIOR PLAY "REBOUND"

All Sororities, Fraternities and Dormitories to Enter Floats in Competition for Coveted Prize

The annual peerade features the opening of the gala festivities of Junior Week. Practically all of the sororities and fraternities on the hill are competing for the prize given to the sorority and fraternity who presents the most original and most clever float.

The procession of the floats will leave the University campus about 3:00 p.m. Thursday afternoon, May 10, and proceed down Main Street to Church Street. Thence the peerade will traverse Church Street, pass the reviewers' stand at the Sherwood Hotel, and then will take a right turn up Pearl Street and back to the campus.

The various groups participating in the peerade are keeping their plans a deep and dark secret to be revealed only on the designated day. Each year many unusual contraptions are displayed to the interested congregation on Church street and this year proves no exception. The sororities and fraternities have entered into the full spirit of Junior Week and even though the plans are shrouded in mystery, the peerade gives vast promise of novel entertainment.

Of the sororities, all but three, who have no final plans, are entering floats. Pi Beta Phi, Tri Delt, Alpha Chi Omega, and Alpha Xi Delta are the definite entrants, with Kappa Alpha Theta, Kappa Delta and Sigma Gamma tentative.

The fraternities have some "indefinites" but most are competing. Those whose plans are completed are Sigma Phi with H. Gray '36 in charge, Sigma Nu with J. H. Lyndsey '35, A. H. Ross '37 and J. C. Barton '37 in charge, Johnny Seconds '35 is in charge of the Delta Psi float and G. O. Parker '34, C. A. Rogers '35 and B. D. Cushman '37 are maneuvering the Phi Mu Delta affair.

JUNIOR WEEK COMING, INCLUDES PLAY, PROM AND FRATERNITY DANCES

Lanahan and Ranslow Have Made Every Effort to Make the Week-end a Success

HECTIC WEEK-END TO CONSIST OF FOUR DAYS

At last it's here, the long-awaited Junior Week, the climax of Vermont students to the coming spring. Plans, made under the supervision of F. J. Lanahan '34 and G. L. Ranslow '35, chairman and financial manager respectively, every preparation has been made with the hope of making this week-end one which will satisfy every expectation of the student body and dates on the precedent of a most enjoyable time for all.

The high point of the week is reached Friday night, the time of the Prom, which shows every promise of being the most original in many years. Although the dance will take place in the college gymnasium, the committee on decorations, headed by Carolyn Cook '35, promises that the interior of the gymnasium will be transformed into the romantic setting of a ship-wrecked vessel. The decorating will be in charge of a professional decorator and will far surpass anything yet seen on the Lollitop both in originality and finished appearance. However the big feature of any Prom is the music and the management this year has met the unanimous desire of all who heard Mal Hallett's Orchestra last year by engaging them for the second successive year. Last year's [illegible] was the unqualified approval of all who have heard it and during the past winter has played at leading southern colleges and universities. Many dental schools will round out the occasion, include the students at fraternities together if they desire appropriate entertainments, novelty dance programs and the special permission to allow the dance to last until two o'clock.

Junior Week Peerade

Junior Week really begins on Thursday afternoon when the fraternities, sororities and dormitories form a parade of floats devised by them and based on the title of the Junior Play, "Rebound." This parade wends its way through the principal streets of Burlington, and affords much amusement to the townspeople and is instrumental in assuring a good turnout for the play. This year the play promises to be unusually interesting and is supported by an exceptionally well picked cast. The play will take place in the City Hall auditorium at eight o'clock, Thursday night.

Friday afternoon is left to the desires of the students, and on Friday evening is the colorful Junior Prom.

Saturday afternoon the Green and Gold baseball team entertains Boston University at Centennial Field. On the evening of the same day the various fraternities hold informal dances at their houses.

The concluding event of the week comes Sunday afternoon when some of the fraternities hold picnics.

Junior Week Events

The Junior Week Peerade displaying the originality and cleverness of the various entrants.

The Vermont B. U. game at Centennial Field when the Catamount will be out for revenge.

The fraternity dances on Saturday night which are well attended by returning grads.

The picnics which are the final feature of a well filled and enjoyable week.

Will all fraternities, sororities and other organizations that intend to enter a float in the Junior Week peerade, send a representative to draw for position in the peerade to the Old Mill Chapel at 1:30 Wednesday.

FROSH TRACK TEAM LOSES TO MONTPELIER SEMINARY SATURDAY

Score is 62-55—Frosh Show Strength in Several Events

The University of Vermont freshman track team opened the 1934 season Saturday afternoon, May 5, at Centennial Field with a defeat at the hands of Montpelier Seminary, the score 62-55.

With but one event, the javelin throw, still unfinished the Kittens were ahead of their opponents 55-53, but the Montpelier Seminarians took the three places in the latter event, scoring nine points to win the meet.

Hayden of Montpelier Seminary spurred his team to victory by taking two firsts, one second, and two thirds in the five events in which he participated, a total of fifteen points.

In the one-mile run Jenks of Vermont put on a great sprint to beat Granger of Montpelier Seminary to the tape by about two paces. His time was 5 minutes, 9 seconds.

In the 440-yard dash George Shaw, Vermont, led the rest of the participants until about fifty yards from the finish; then he seemed to lose his stride, and he finished third. The inspectors claimed that Shaw was hit by the elbow of one of the Montpelier Seminary men. Nothing came of it, however.

Iz Lehrer, former Connecticut schoolboy mile champion, proved that he was back in shape and ready for action after his appendicitis operation when he took the half-mile run well ahead of his opponents in 2 minutes, 16.2 seconds.

Johnny Webster, captain of track at Burlington High School last year, took first in the broad jump, leaping over 20 feet, 4½ inches of ground. This leap bettered the one which took first place in the varsity track meet with St. Lawrence by 6 inches.

The small but husky Herb Cannon showed his superiority in strength by throwing the discus 101 feet, ½ inch.

The frosh track team, as a whole, is mediocre. Much improvement can be made in the track as well as the field events. Regardless, we offer Coach Art Tudhope the best of luck in the dual meet with St. Johnsbury Academy and Lyndon Institute at St. Johnsbury, Saturday, May 12.

The results of the events in summary form:

120-yard high hurdles—First, Pierce (V); second, Brouillette (MS); third, Hawley (V). Time, 19.4 sec.

100-yard dash—First, Hayden (MS); second, Duley (V); third, Darling (MS). Time, 10.2 sec.

One-mile run—First, Jenks (V); second, Granger (MS); third, Bellmare (V). Time, 5 min., 9 sec.

440-yard dash—First, Higgins (MS);

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports' Editor

Last week-end produced some interesting sidelights for the sports enthusiast. Both ball teams emerged victorious and the track team showed up well on the cinders, although losing to ... 54.

The varsity ball team had a close call at Williamstown. This time they checked a last minute uprising, thanks to a timely triple off the bat of Enos Ramon in the eleventh.

Andy Werner appears to have come into his own in the last two contests. Four hits out of five attempts is good batting in any man's league.

Marchy Swartz was the life saver in the extra innings against Williams. He staved off any attempts of the opponents to win the game.

The frosh game against Clark School had its tense moments too. The intermission due to a thundred shower revived the Hanoverians.

The Kitten outfit looked very good defensively and showed batting power in the pinches. The hurling corps was a bit unsteady, but promises well for the future.

The star of the game was Rodney Tucker, slightly built third sacker. He fielded like a veteran, accepting difficult plays without an error. He surprised everyone with four clean hits at bat, and was instrumental in bring victory to the home outfit.

Colby had the edge on the Green and Gold tracksters, but the local boys surpassed in the track events, due to the combined power of the Delfausse brothers.

Between Rollie and Joe, they scored half of the points garnered by the team, Joe getting sixteen and Rollie eleven.

Rollie ran the 220 in 21.8 seconds to cop that event. That is quick time for any man running that event for the first time. Joe's 51 seconds in the 440 is not to be sneezed at.

The tennis team did well on its first invasion. Capt. Norm Myers and Hugh Wilson played their steady court game continually.

This is a big week in sports. With three varsity ball games, three tennis matches, two frosh ball games, and two track meets, no followers of athletics should be neglected.

Vermont Defeats Williams In Eleven Inning Game, 8-7

Ramon Triples in Eleventh to Send Werner Home With Winning Run—Team Plays St. Michael's at Winooski Park This Afternoon

The Catamounts have at last come into their own what with two consecutive victories since they met defeat at the hands of the Middlebury Panthers. Their initial win was being over the Norwich nine and the second when they outscored the strong Williams aggregation at Williamstown last Saturday, in a bitterly contested eleven inning game.

Ed Layden ace of the Vermont twirling staff, pitched a heady game for nine innings, only allowing six well-scattered hits, as the Cats pounded out fifteen hits on the offerings of three Purple hurlers, giving them the lead at 7-3, in the beginning of the ninth. At this juncture, the Williams boys went on a hitting spree of three hits, and Kirley replaced Layden to walk in two runs, which sent him to the showers, and put Swartz in to quell the uprising. Marchie was successful in this and was able to hold the Williams boys scoreless for the remainder of the game.

Enos Ramon came through in the eleventh with a long triple to center which drove in Werner and won the ball game. Werner and Palmer had very successful days at bat, getting four and three hits respectively, in five trips to the plate apiece.

The only casualty of the game was a severely sprained ankle, suffered by Eddie Funk, flashy third baseman. Eddie was heard to say after the contest that he would gladly have broken his leg, that the Cats might win. This type of spirit dominated the game throughout and is a contributing factor as to why Vermont won its second straight game.

This afternoon the baseball wars resume again as the Green and Gold tackles St. Mike's at Winooski Park. If the team can continue its new lease on life, it should annex its second game in the quest for the Green Mountain Conference title.

KITTENS EDGE CLARK SCHOOL 10-9 TO OPEN HOME BASEBALL SEASON

Hallinan and Tucker Star at Bat and Afield for Frosh—Rain Halts Game Temporarily

Saturday afternoon the Vermont freshman team successfully opened their season by warding off the attack of the Clark School nine in a closely contested game at Centennial Field.

The score was a continuous row of zeros until the fifth inning when the runs began to come across the plate. In the first half of the inning the Clark men scored one run. The Kittens promptly decided that they would not remain on the small end of the score and started on a drive for runs. When they were finally retired seven runs had been put across the plate. The outstanding hit of the inning was a triple by Duncan which scored three runs.

During the first part of the sixth inning the game had to be suspended for nearly thirty minutes because of a sudden shower.

The visitors began to show their ability during the next few innings, gaining two runs in the sixth inning, one in the seventh, three in the eighth, and two in the ninth, while they allowed the Kittens only one run in the sixth and one in the eighth, leaving the game a 9-9 tie as the Kittens prepared for their final chance in the ninth. Kennedy walked to first, advanced to second on a sacrifice, and went to third on an error. Stafford then came to the plate resolved to get a hit although he had not had much success during the rest of the game. He promptly proceeded to knock the ball to the outfield, scoring Kennedy and sending home the winning run.

There were many errors made on both sides, although the visitors made a few less than the Kittens. The Vermont team also had some difficulties on the mound. Gerow pitched a fine game until the eighth when Turner took his place. However, he couldn't seem to find the plate and after walking four men he withdrew and Wolf took the box in the ninth.

STUDENTS OF VERMONT, IN MIDST OF JUNIOR WEEK FESTIVITIES

Peerade and Play, Past; Prom, B. U. Game, Fraternity Dances and Picnics, Coming

Junior Week continues in full swing this evening when the annual Junior Prom will be staged at the college gymnasium, with Mal Hallett and his orchestra in attendance. Following the colorful and amusing Peerade and the brilliant presentation of "Rebound" by the Junior Week Play Cast the high point of the week-end is reached tonight at the Prom, the most important social event of the year in the eyes of the student body. Interest continues at a high pitch tomorrow, when the Vermont baseball nine plays host to the Boston University representation. The Vermont team victorious in its last three starts and greatly improved both in ability and morale will be out for revenge and should put up another victory.

Tomorrow evening the fraternities on the hilltop throw open their doors to one another in their annual informal open house dances. These are probably the gayest and most colorful of the fraternity dances and offer fitting conclusion to the outstanding social event in Vermont.

Sunday afternoon the Delta Psi and Sigma Phi fraternities will hold their annual picnics, other fraternities have [illegible]

Junior Prom Is Final Event Of Junior Week Program. Queen Selected At Prom

Junior Prom. this Year. is Featured by the Selection of the Beauty Queen by Mal Hallett Himself and its Hours Nine Until Two. Novel Decorations Planned

Frankie Carle, Pianist

Tonight Mal Hallett and his band will swing into the opening numbers at the Annual Junior Prom at the Vermont gymnasium amid one of the most elaborate and unusual settings arranged in recent years. The evening will be replete with many new and novel features. During the evening Mal Hallett and the orchestra will select from the ladies present the Junior Week Queen. The hours will be from nine to two, an innovation at Vermont dances.

The committee on decorations headed by Carolyn Cook have selected Mr. McGrath a professional decorator to take charge of the work. The predominating motif of the decorations will be marine atmosphere done in dark blue and sea green. The dance floor will represent the deck of a sunken ship with a railing around it and gang planks leading to it. The tables will be arranged around the dancing space as though on the sea bed, while the orchestra will be located in a sea garden, at the east end of the gymnasium. Suspended from the ceiling and floating further and you will be able to see gold fish octopus, sea horses and sea plants. Overhead a ceiling representing the surface of the ocean will effectively screen the rafters and upper part of the gymnasium from view. The entire scheme will be carried out so as to lend the mysterious atmosphere of submarine life.

The music for the evening will be of the best with Mal Hallett and his orchestra's known orchestra appearing in person. In addition to offering the latest musical melodies, the orchestra will present many novelty numbers and will feature the voices of Teddy Grace, southern torch singer and Ann Graham, blonde blues singer. The reappearance of Frankie Carle, piano wizard, and his Cabaneers, rotund band pilot will undoubtedly be hailed with joy by those fortunate enough to have attended last year's Prom.

Entertainment for the evening are in charge of Max Pember, the caterer who handled the prom in one week last year. The committee in charge is headed by Natalie Eisenberg.

Several innovations have been made in this year's program, including the issuing of programs to the members, together the change in hours which allows dancing a continuous period from nine o'clock until the usual hour of one o'clock, and the decision to choose the Junior Week Queen from the ladies present rather than from nominees chosen by the students.

Reservations may still be obtained by calling J. J. Lanahan at the Alpha Chi Omega house.

Campus Comment

[illegible] attempting to remedy fraternity politics. They hoped to institute a cure for such petty and childish displays of selfishness. At the end of the year, that same society calls itself names by using the methods it had originally set out to overcome.

Here then is the answer to the question, "Why is there no spirit at Vermont?" How can there be with fraternities cutting each other's throats? Who wants to attain honors when schoolboy politicians use their influence in detracting from these ends?

A recent statement in the Alumni Weekly pointed to the fact that unless fraternity politics were abolished our hopes for renewed athletic interests would remain dimmed. A new coach will not put on a new football team unless the team cooperates. The team will not cooperate when fraternity politics intervene.

The outgoing Boulder Society should feel ashamed for failing in their purpose. Their record is unenviable, and it merely reflects the status of the honorary societies at Vermont which compare so unfavorably with those of other colleges.

"REBOUND" BEGINS JR. WEEK PROGRAM IN CITY HALL AUDITORIUM

Mrs. Taggart Remarks on "Eating and Telephone Calls" in Play

"Rebound" began the Junior Week program last night with its presentation by the University Players. The cast was very well chosen and interpreted their parts well. All the players have been in junior college dramatic productions before.

The dining room in the country home of Les and Liz Crawford near New York was the scene of the first and third acts. The second act took place in the living room of a hotel suite in Paris. One of the amusing things about the second act was that about every two minutes the telephone would ring and the characters were up the jump all the time.

This play has made eating in the [illegible] marked Mrs. Taggart, "than any other I have ever coached. And the telephone rings in the second act more than in any other act I have known."

As a starting bit of innovation, yellow and black flyers cluttered up classrooms in the colleges Thursday morning, proclaiming in large type the news "300 seats reduced to 25 cents for Junior Week Play." The prices before this last-minute change were 50 and 75 cents the reduction being made for several reasons.

In the first place, according to H. H. Abbott '35, president of Wig and Buskin, a fairly full house with little profit was preferable to a scattered house, for the cast could do much better when playing to the former. In addition to this it was pointed out that the University Players receive an amount from the Student Activity fund, and that the lowest seats for the professional play that same evening were 50 cents.

Mrs. Wilmetta Taggart coached the play "Rebound." The stage manager was W. A. Ross '35 and women's property manager was Elvira Farman '34.

The cast:

Sara Jaffrey	Birdie Creagh '35
Bill Truesdale	S. Pierce, Jr. '34
Johnny Collis	[illegible]
Liz Crawford	Alice McConnell '34
Les Crawford	C. D. Howe '36

NOTICE TO JUNIORS

I have been informed by the Free Press, printers for the 1935 ARIEL, that the first copies will be delivered at the University Store today. I hope that all those who have paid up will be able to receive their books now.

One thing I should like you to keep in mind in reviewing this ARIEL: It is the result of many effort. Any new or good features came as a result of cooperative work by the staff, the engravers photographers, and printers.

We all sincerely hope the book pleases you.

In particular, we hope that this ARIEL will give rise, with the passing of time, to an increasing number of pleasant MEMORIES of your college career and the past year. This has been one of our chief aims throughout the work.

As is inevitable with this type of work, there are many faults which you may find. We earnestly entreat you to remember that we have done our best and to be tolerant.

Speaking of the merits of this 1935 ARIEL, we can say that, despite depression times and a limited budget, it is the largest ARIEL ever published, containing more pages and, we believe, more pictures than any of its predecessors, that it contains several features which have never before appeared, and that it has some novel photographic effects.

Finally and principally, we hope that this ARIEL is worthy of the Class of 1935.

West Virginia to Fête Football Coach

Morgantown, W. Va.—More than 400 persons attended a dinner on March 17, to Charles Tallman, new West Virginia football coach.

Even glass insulators behave badly toward telephone currents when humidity is high. This has been proved by experiments at Bell Telephone Laboratories.

When it's humid, a film of moisture forms on the glass. The more humid, the thicker the film—and the more electrical current escapes! Important factors governing amount of leakage are the chemical nature of the glass, its shape and age, the amount and kind of dirt on its surface.

Through exhaustive studies, telephone men have developed more efficient types of glass insulators—and are seeking ways to make them still better. Close attention to every detail of Bell System equipment leads to constantly improving service.

Baseball Team Wins Second Conference Game at Expense of St. Michael's—Men Get 18 Runs From 19 Hits—Eddie Swartz Gives Nine Hits and Five Runs in His Second Start

The Catamounts journeyed over to [illegible] on Tuesday and enjoyed a batting spree at the expense of [illegible] men. By touching Capt. FROSH TRACKSTERS TO COMPETE IN DUAL MEET AT ST. JOHNSBURY SAT.

Coach Tudhope's Athletes to Offer Stiff Opposition Against Two Prep Schools

Tomorrow, May 12, the freshman track team will travel to St. Johnsbury where they will hold a dual meet with St. Johnsbury Academy and Lyndon Institute. Both these teams are strong and a close meet is looked for. Despite the slim defeat by Montpelier Seminary last Saturday, the team is strong and ready to give their rivals some stiff opposition.

Coach Art Tudhope is rounding his team into the best possible shape this week and he is confident that they will come through this time. His main problem is getting someone who can throw the javelin and also fill in on the other weights. The team did not take one place in the javelin last week against Montpelier. The 220-yard low hurdles are also weak and Coach Tudhope is keeping his eyes open for someone to fill in this event.

The meet last week produced many good performances by various individuals and it is expected that these men will repeat this week also.

Daley did well by taking two seconds in the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Jenks ran a beautiful race last week and he ought to be able to take care of the mile easily. Iz Lehrer, originally a miler, is being worked as a half-miler as the half-mile is weak and the mile has enough men. Lehrer took the half-mile in the last meet with comparative ease. Although his time was a bit slow, 2.16, he was not pushed hard and he had instructions to take it easy on account of his recent operation. It is expected that he will cut his time down this Saturday, however. He has run the half formerly in 2.04. MacMillan, a newcomer to the squad, seems to be a natural track man. Everything he tries he seems to do well. Last Saturday was the first time he tried to broad jump and he jumped over twenty feet. At practice Wednesday he ran a quarter mile for the first time, doing it in 57 seconds. His appearance will help the team a great deal. Webster, who took two firsts in the last meet, is expected to duplicate his excellent showing tomorrow. Kennedy, pole vaulter, will not be able to participate in this meet as he will be playing with the freshman baseball team on the same day. His loss will leave the pole vault very weak. Pierce, who took a first in the high hurdles and a third in the low hurdles, is also counted on to get some points. Husky Herb Cannon should be able to get the discus over 110 feet tomorrow.

Others who will probably make the trip are: Bellmare, Shaw, Swift Rice, Barton, and Ross. The team will leave Burlington at 8.00 a.m. Saturday and return that evening.

Due to the congestion and crowded conditions of the University tennis courts, the following rules will be in effect immediately:

The tennis courts located near the Weather Bureau are to be used by University women only, and the back campus courts are to be used by University men only.

In the event that mixed tennis is being played, either of the two sets of courts may be used.

What this country needs is dirtier finger nails and cleaner minds.—Will Rogers.

CAT'S MEOW

By Sports Editor

We are [illegible] wards [illegible] posing [illegible] we wish to take this opportunity of expressing our appreciation for the cooperation extended to the CYNIC by the cadets manager of baseball.

We think the powers that be at Wrinooski Park might head the above with benefit.

The Saint's mentor apparently gained nothing from his "spying" at the Vermont-Norwich game. Better luck next time, Bob.

The keystone sack on the frosh nine is being well taken care of by Red Decker. He looks almost like big league stuff. Take our advice and see him in action at the next opportunity.

Our hearts were filled with glee at the ease with which the varsity galloped around the bases at St. Michael's.

A Boston rag reports that the track at Norwich on which the time for the hundred was run in 9.6 the other day is only 95 yards long. We mean to check up on this the next time we go down there.

Tommy Cogswell is still talking a great game, although being retired as yet to the bench with a bad ankle.

Well, we journeyed down to Middlebury with full intentions of giving you red hot dope but moisture sadly upset our plans.

Those high-powered guns of Larry Gardner's boys were working full tilt during as much of the game as was played.

Jug Layden seemed plenty peeved when the game was called. Who wouldn't at the fine start the boys had given him to work on?

As our parting shot we expect all the lads with their lasses will be on hand Saturday to witness the boys avenge themselves at the expense of Boston University. The tough break the Cats suffered at Nickerson Field should sharpen their claws.

MASS MEETINGS OVER FOR YEAR SAYS TOBIN

Owing to the beautiful weather that has visited the campus during the past few weeks, the committee on mass meetings has decided that, rather than attempt to arrange programs for the remaining few weeks of school, it would be much wiser to cancel the programs entirely. The success of this project is problematical; some of the programs during the year were very largely attended and many of the performances justified these large audiences. On the other hand only a handful of students turned out for other programs, the low point being reached when just sixty-two by actual count (including the committee) were present. Whether or not these programs will be continued next year is not known at present.

With the abandonment of the mass meetings, the schedule of classes will return to normal, the first class beginning at 8.30 and continuing as usual throughout the morning.

U. V. M. ALUMNÆ CLUB GIVES BENEFIT BRIDGE FOR COOPERATIVE HOUSE

A successful benefit bridge party was given by the U. V. M. Alumnæ Club at the Fleming Museum, last Monday evening, the proceeds to be used for the project of turning one of the dormitories into a house where girls attending the University may do their own cooking, under a supervisor.

In auction, the prizes for high scores were awarded Miss Evelyn Orton and Mrs. D. Rousseau.

In contract, the high score prizes were awarded C. Allen Middlebrook, Prof. Paul D. Evans, Prof. George V. Kidder, Mrs. A. B. Soule, Mrs. C. Allen Middlebrook, Mrs. James Pooley and Mrs. Hazen Adams.

Following the playing of cards, refreshments were served, the hostesses being Miss Constans Holden, Mrs. Rae V. Parrott, Mrs. Leon W. Dean and Mrs. Allen Newton. Several of the college girls served.

Game With Middlebury Rained Out Cats Ahead

The Catamounts pounced [illegible] upon the Panther lair with them [illegible] to avenge their recent 13-3 defeat. However, after a beautiful opening Mother Nature unleashed a deluge that put things to a halt.

Burns led off and fouled out. Palmer singled into right field. Degree next up hit to center the ball going through center fielder's legs. On a poor throw in, Palmer scored while Bob remained on second. Jug Layden singled again but through poor handling of the ball he advanced to third while Degree scored. Werner stepped up and had a count of one and one when the rain clouds took charge of the situation.

The results then were two scores on three hits for Vermont and three errors for Nelson's lads. The playoff has not as yet been decided upon.

TRACK TEAM TRAVELS TO WORCESTER TOMORROW FOR INTERCOLLEGIATES

Three Hundred Athletes From New England Colleges to Vie for Honors on Cinders

The University of Vermont varsity track team, after a lapse of several years, will again enter the eastern intercollegiates this year. The largest number of entrants since its inauguration ten years ago are expected to compete. Over 300 sturdy trackmen will be on hand for this important meet. Colby College, whose team defeated our team last Saturday, is entering for the first time and is rated as one of the favorites. Last year, the meet was won by Middlebury with Rhode Island State the runner-up.

The complete list of those schools competing in this meet is as follows: Amherst, Rhode Island State, Middlebury, Colby, Vermont, Connecticut State, Norwich, Trinity, Massachusetts State, Tufts and Worcester Tech.

The meet will consist of the regular fifteen intercollegiate track events. The trials will be held in the morning and the finals in the afternoon.

Vermont's chances of winning the meet are slim. However, the boys will all be trying hard and it is expected that they will be among the first five.

Joe and Rollie Deltausse should account for their usual points despite the tough opposition that is in store for them. Rollie should easily place in the 100 and 220 while Joe should get his usual first in the 440 and high jump.

Robbins, Connor, Harwood, Levine, and Woodruff can be depended upon to get their share of points.

Others who will probably make the trip are: Syme, Jezukawicz, Sowka, Cook and Twitchell.

One representative of each fraternity and sorority (independents included) is requested to be present in Room 3, North College, Monday, May 14, at 4.00 for the purpose of nominating the class officers for next year. Each fraternity and sorority is responsible for its representative. Nominations should be handed in to the chairman before the meeting.

J. T. Webster,
President Freshman Class.

—they age good grapes to make rare wines

—and they do something like that to mellow good tobaccos

WHERE THE RARE WINES come from they know that the two most important things in wine-making are the selection of the grapes and the long years of ageing in the wine cellars.

IT'S VERY MUCH THE SAME in the making of a cigarette. You have to get the right tobaccos, then put them away to age and mellow in wooden casks.

You can't make a good cigarette like Chesterfield in a day. It takes over two years to age the tobaccos for your Chesterfields—but it adds something to the taste and makes them milder.

Everything that modern Science really knows about is used to make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.

JUNIOR WEEK PEERADE WON BY PHI MU DELTA AND REDSTONE DORM

Winning Float Brought to Mind Apple-throwing Incident

ALL FLOATS ADVERTISE JUNIOR WEEK PLAY

Ten Trucks Cleverly Decorated for Tour Up Church Street

The Phi Mu Delta fraternity float in the Junior Week Peerade won the loving cup for men, while Redstone received the one for women. Phi Delta Theta and Alpha Chi Omega received honorable mention.

The winning float for men represented the Halloween apple-throwing episode between the police and students. Two youths dressed as officers, one with a sign "Officer Francis" and the other "Officer Bates," carried revolvers and faced a group of students who had apples tied to strings. The apples were thrown at the officers and retrieved by the strings while the officers "shot" blank cartridges at the students.

Redstone had a "see-saw" float based on the play; the Phi Delt stunt depicted a "Love game of Tennis," and the Alpha Chis put on an "Insull Feature."

Among the others entered were the Tau Epsilon Phi float which showed an episode in the life of a college student—"Painting the Boulder." Alpha Xi Delta put on a stunt based entirely upon the contents of the play, rather than the title Robinson Hall showed the idea of the play in bouncing balls and balloons from a car. The Tri Delts gave the idea of the play in one scene, showing the characters going to and from "Reno." Sigma Phi emphasized the change in price of the tickets by a rebound poster.

The Delta Psi float met with an accident on Main Street, so that it did not take part in the whole peerade.

EXPRESSMEN READY FOR HOME BAGGAGE RUSH

New York, N. Y.—With the end of [illegible] press expands enormously at this season of the year and much of it comes from [illegible] and answering them.

[illegible] Traffic Head [illegible] points out the greatest care and accuracy is required in moving it is required. Nothing causes greater embarrassment and agitation than delayed or [illegible] baggage. And the Boston truck [illegible] illegible addressing. But expressmen are old hands at solving these problems and such things happen only once in a lifetime. Yet the importance of moving baggage accurately and fully, so often stressed by transportation companies, is obvious.

Having a nation-wide organization, the Express Agency serves practically every one of the 1,200 college towns in the country, providing both collection and delivery service in practically all of them. Not only do local express agents appreciate this college business, but they go out of their way to suit the convenience and needs of the students and faculty and they are wizards in solving all kinds of shipping problems.
